The Stephen Vail property, corner of Central avenue and Fourth street, belonging to the Michael F. Marclay estate, has been purchased by the Mono Investing Company, comprising L. B. Woolston, J. C. Pope, J. A. Smith and G. W. V. Moy, stockholders. The property has a frontage of 179 feet on Fourth street and 120 feet on Central avenue. It is said that the property will be improved by the erection of new residences of approved modern style. The property transaction was made through the agency of Leifke & Laing, of Park avenue.

BURIED HERE.

Mrs. Albert Randolph Passed Away at Alfred, N. Y., Yesterday.

Mrs. Albert Randolph, a former well known resident of this city, died yesterday at her home in Alfred, N. Y. Her husband was janitor of the City High School in its earlier days. He was a brother of Thomas Randolph who for some years was in the grocery business at Second street and Madison avenue.

The remains will be brought to this city on the 9:40 train, Sunday morning. All friends are asked to meet them and attend a short service which will be held at Hillside cemetery in charge of Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, her former pastor.

BLACK DIAMOND CHANGES.

Lehigh Valley's Show Train Run Under New Schedule.

A circular has been issued by the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company stating that on and after February 8, 1903, the Black Diamond Express will be operated daily, leaving New York at 10:25 o'clock in the morning and arriving at Buffalo at 10 o'clock at night and arriving at Chicago at 12:50 o'clock the next day noon. The restrictions heretofore in effect as to transportation honored on this train will be abandoned, and all regular tickets will be honored. No extra fare will be charged, except from New York to Chicago.

Callahan Up Again.

Albert Callahan, of Richmond street, who has just been released from jail where he has been serving a forty days' sentence, was arrested again in the borough, last night, for being drunk and he will be given a hearing tonight. Officer Winn made the arrest.

Small-Pox Patients Cured.

The smallpox patients, who have been detained at the isolation hospital, have been discharged cured and Mrs. Gerold, the trained nurse, has also left the hospital.

The Easy Pill.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers do not gripe nor weaken the system. They cure biliousness, jaundice, constipation and inactive livers, by arousing the secretions, moving the bowels gently, yet effectually, and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach, liver and bowels that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely. These famous little pills exert a decided tonic effect upon the organs involved, and if their use is continued for a few days there will be no return of the trouble. L. W. Randolph.

THE VERDICT!

Engineer Davis Blamed and Railroad Freed From Criminal Responsibility.

A FULL TEXT OF THE VERDICT IS HERE GIVEN

Coroner's Jury Recommends a State Railroad Commission and Suggests No Stoves, Electric Headlights, Two Men in a Cab, Stricter Observance of Cautionary Signals, and Adoption of Automatic Safety Devices.

State of New Jersey, } ss.
County of Union. }

An inquisition indented and taken at the City of Plainfield, in the county aforesaid, the third, fifth, sixth and thirteenth days of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and three, before me, P. DuBois Bunting, one of the Coroners of said county, upon the view of the body of John Currid, then and there lying dead, upon the oaths of Charles J. Fisk, William F. Arnold, Floyd T. Woodhull, James F. Buckle, John J. Kenney and Andrew J. Gavett, good and lawful men of the county aforesaid, who being duly sworn and charged to inquire on the part of the State of New Jersey, when, where, how and after what manner the said John Currid came to his death, do say upon their oaths aforesaid, that the said John Currid was killed by a railroad collision occurring on the Central Railroad of New Jersey near Westfield, in said Union county, on the twenty-seventh day of January, nineteen hundred and three; that at the time he was killed as aforesaid, he was a passenger on his way home from New York to Dunellen, in train number thirteen, which is known as the Easton Local Passenger train, and that this train was run into from the rear by train No. 621, which was the fast express train run by the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad over the tracks of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. The collision occurred at about 6:40 o'clock p. m.

From the evidence brought out at the inquest, we believe that this collision was caused by the failure of the engineer, James N. Davis, of engine No. 27, A. C. R. R., operated by the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, drawing train No. 621, to observe the following signals displayed to warn him of approaching danger:

First. The red lamp set on the ground at Cranford, which notified him to stop for orders.

Second. The distance or cautionary block-signal, a green light just west of the Westfield station, which gave warning that the block ahead was occupied.

Third. A red lantern swung back and forth across the track by the flagman at the Broad street crossing, Westfield, 874 feet from the last mentioned block-signal.

Fourth. A red lantern swung by the rear brakeman of train No. 13; (this man claims that he was within about thirty yards of the road crossing when the train No. 621 passed him,) and finally the home block-signal, showing red and green lights, which indicated that he must come to a full stop, as the track ahead was occupied. This signal is located 2,136 feet from the warning signal. Although, from the evidence, we cannot find that the Railroad Company, or any of the officials, can be held criminally responsible, there are certain mitigating circumstances in regard to the action of the engineer which should be taken into consideration. The said James N. Davis, who has since died from injuries received in this accident, was thirty-four years old, in the best of health, and was one of the most experienced and valued engineers on the road.

On the run from Philadelphia in the morning with train No. 614, his own engine, No. 321, became disabled and he was obliged to leave it at Trenton Junction and take engine No. 27 from a local milk train, to bring his train to Jersey City. Although this engine appears to have been in good condition on January 27, 1903, an examination of the work books of the Company shows that it was in the shop between January 7 and 17, 1903, for the repair of a crack in the steam chest and for various minor repairs. That after leaving the shop the engine was reported for repairs to piston packing, etc., several times, and, although there is no report against the engine in regard to leaking steam after January 24, there is no doubt that there was an unusual amount of steam escaping from some part of the engine during the run from Jersey City to Westfield the night of the accident. This escaping steam, the engineer claims in his ante-mortem statement, obscured his vision so that he could not see the signals without shutting off steam. As the air was heavy, this steam settling around the engine, was probably the cause of his not seeing the train order signal at Cranford, consisting of a red lantern placed on the ground, thus failing to receive the warning from the train despatcher that train No. 13 was on the track ahead.

Engineer Davis states that, finding it necessary for him to get at the injector, he missed a signal. This was probably the cautionary signal before referred to just west of the Westfield station, and, as it has been shown by actual experiment that, at the rate of speed he was going at the time, it would only take forty seconds after passing Westfield to strike the rear of train No. 13.

The time table shows that, as a usual thing, he would have a clear track, with nothing ahead, from Cranford Junction to Plainfield, but, owing to a stalled train on track No. 4, the Easton train, No. 13, had been ordered to run ahead of No. 621 on track No. 2. Engineer Davis, failing to receive his order at Cranford, did not know that this train was ahead, and, unfortunately, train No. 13 had a hot journal on the tender which, in the judgment of the engineer, required his attention, and caused him to make an unusual stop a short distance west of Westfield station, where the accident happened.

We make this lengthy explanation to show that, although the engineer, James N. Davis, with his great responsibility in caring for the lives under his charge, failed in his duty in not keeping a lookout for the signals, the instances above narrated were against him; namely, the escaping steam, train No. 13 on an unusual track and an accident to No. 13 which caused it to make an unusual stop.

The fire which occurred immediately after the collision and added greatly to the horrors of the wreck, was probably caused by the explosion of the headlight and burning gases escaping from the tubes of engine when the smoke-box was broken in. However, there were two stoves in each of the two rear wrecked cars, which probably increased the rapidity of the conflagration.

Our investigation shows that this division of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, between Jersey City and Bound Brook, is equipped with the electric, pneumatic, automatic block system, which is operated automatically by the movement of trains over the track; the signals are placed on posts which display arms of the semaphore type by day and lights by night, and this system is said to be one of the best installed on any railroad.

The Central Railroad Company of New Jersey and the other large trunk lines have probably reached the limit in providing the best possible system for the running of trains by visual signals, but they have not yet succeeded in reaching a point to cover human fallibility at critical moments.

After a thorough examination, we believe the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, and the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, to be free from any criminal responsibility for the accident above referred to.

We have carfully considered measures that should be taken to guard against the repetition of accidents of this kind, and would suggest close study of the following questions:

Is the traffic of this railroad greater than can be safely handled, considering the very large amount of high speed service required; if so, what is the remedy?

Should not all stoves be prohibited, and all passenger cars be heated by steam from the locomotive?

Should not the headlights on engines be electric or something safer than a lamp containing a large quantity of oil, which, in cases of accident, is liable to cause fire?

Should railroads be required to provide another man in the cab, whose sole duty it would be to look out for signals?

Should not a stricter observance of the rules relating to signals be insisted upon by the railroad officials, this especially in regard to distance or green signals?

While there is no evidence before us that these signals are not regularly observed on the railroads concerned in this collision, there is a general feeling that a laxity prevails in this matter all over the country.

Should not the railroads adopt, in connection with their automatic visual signals, some one of the automatic safety devices that are now in the market, which actually shut off the steam, apply the brakes and stop the train if the track is blocked or out of order.

To arrive at a correct decision in these matters, which require a great deal of serious and expert study, we suggest that the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, now in session, pass a bill providing for a State Railroad Commission, to be appointed by the Governor, composed mainly of disinterested experts or practical railroad men, who shall investigate the above questions, and others of equal importance which may be brought to their attention.

This Commission should have the power to enforce such rulings and to require the adoption of such devices as will add to the safety and comfort of the large traveling public throughout this State.

We would call attention to the fact that statistics show that in Great Britain, where trains are run equally as fast and where the traffic is much more crowded, but where trains are operated strictly on the block system, not a single passenger lost his life during the year 1901, while in this country, where many roads are still without block signals, there were, during the three months ending October 1, 1902, 1,434 collisions, in which 148 persons were killed.

In witness whereof, as well the said Coroner as the said Jurors, have to this inquisition set their hands and seals on the day and year aforesaid, at the place aforesaid.

DAILY PRESS' FIRST MANAGER PASSED AWAY

James Alfred Demarest, Well-Known Newspaperman, Died in Brooklyn, Yesterday.

STRICKEN BY APOPLEXY

WAS FIRST MANAGER AND CITY EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS.

Had Been Been Employed on The Weekly Constitutionalist—Left Here to Become U. S. Consul at Brockville, Canada.

James Alfred Demarest, for many years city editor and general manager of The Daily Press and at one time probably one of the best known newspaper men in New Jersey, died yesterday afternoon at his home, 420 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn. Mr. Demarest was in his fifty-first year, was stricken with apoplexy Monday in the office of the Brooklyn Times, where he was employed. He was removed at once to his home and grew steadily weaker.

Mr. Demarest was born in the old city of New York and received his early education in the public schools. He afterward entered the College of the City of New York, from which he was graduated with honors. Later he entered the newspaper field and while a young man secured a place in the office of The Weekly Constitutionalist, first as a reporter, later as a bookkeeper and became the first manager and city editor of The Daily Press. The latter position he held until July 1893, when President Cleveland appointed him U. S. Consul to Brockville, Can. This position he held for four years, or until President McKinley was elected. Mr. Demarest was then retired from that position and he returned to New York to reengage in the newspaper business.

Mr. Demarest was a forceful character and a strong and able writer. At different times he engaged in politics, being a Democrat, and in many ways he assisted his party toward success. At the close of President Cleveland's first term, when Mr. Cleveland was going from Washington to his home in New York, he passed through Plainfield. At that time Mr. Demarest was the first one to announce Mr. Cleveland's candidacy for a second term. He had a large banner bearing that announcement displayed at the North Avenue station. Mr. Cleveland saw this in passing through the city and afterward he acknowledged it in a letter to Mr. Demarest. That letter was published in The Daily Press. Although Mr. Cleveland was not elected for the following term he was re-elected four years later and he did not forget to reward Mr. Demarest for his efforts in his behalf.

During his residence in Plainfield, Mr. Demarest assumed the management of Stillman Music Hall and it can be said that he was one of the most satisfactory managers of that hall. There were many excellent qualities in Mr. Demarest's character and he was always true to his friends. He exerted a strong influence in many directions and was instrumental in moulding public opinion in regard to various topics of importance. His persistent efforts in urging the building of a suitable Y. M. C. A. home and of Music Hall and his stirring articles urging the removal of the old freight house were signal victories.

Mr. Demarest leaves a wife and a son, Alfred, twelve years of age; also four sisters. Two of the latter are married, one being the wife of Rev. Charles Dunn, formerly of Park avenue, but now of Freeport, Ill. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock from the late home, 420 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, and the interment will be in Hillside cemetery, this city, Monday.

Pleasant Dance.

There was a pleasant dance at the home of Mr. Suydam, Oak Tree, Thursday evening, when one hundred guests from New York, Newark, Elizabeth, Plainfield, New Brunswick and Metuchen were present. The music, which was furnished by Prof. Sam Frazee, was a feature of the affair. At midnight a bountiful supper was served.

CORONER'S JURY COMPLETES INVESTIGATION INTO CAUSES OF THE WESTFIELD DISASTER

Final Session for Taking of Testimony, Held Yesterday Afternoon, Brought Out a Little Surprise—Testimony of Railroad Man.

BUT THERE WAS NOTHING TO AFFECT THE VERDICT WHICH IS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

Now comes the verdict of the coroner's jury to complete the investigation made by the county authorities into the Westfield disaster of January 27, when twenty-three lives were blotted out and two score injured. That verdict was made public this afternoon when the jury assembled at the Council Chambers and presented its findings to Coroner Bunting. The last public session for the taking of testimony was held in the Council Chambers yesterday afternoon.

While nothing of great importance was brought out at the hearing, yesterday afternoon, there was a surprise in the testimony of Joseph D. James, road foreman on the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, who happened to be a passenger on the Philadelphia express. He was positive that Engineer Davis applied the emergency brakes previous to the accident as Davis had said in his ante-mortem statement and believed that the shock of the collision could have changed the levers back again to a position of full speed. Other witnesses were produced to substantiate his story but none of them were absolutely certain that the brakes were applied although they believed they were. There were eight witnesses in all and it required only a little over an hour to hear their testimony.

It had been expected that no more witnesses would be examined but the Philadelphia trip had brought out several which the jurors were anxious to hear and so yesterday's session was arranged. All the jurors were on hand, so was Prosecutor N. C. J. English, County Physician F. W. Westcott, Chief Kiely and the little delegation from the railroad which included Lawyer Conover and an assistant and representatives of the claims department.

It was 2:15 o'clock when Coroner Bunting rapped for order and the visitors' seats were only partially filled. The usual quota of newspaper men was on hand and everyone was disappointed when it was discovered that the verdict would not be given out for publication until this evening. But now for the witnesses.

Chief of Police Kiely was the first witness sworn for the afternoon. He told of his investigation at Philadelphia in company with several of the jurors. He had examined the work book at the Ninth and Green streets round house and found several complaints made against engine No. 27, one of which was to the effect that there was a leak on the left side. Three days before the wreck occurred there was a complaint that the valve gland was loose on the right side and the steam packing blown out. This trouble, he had been informed, had been repaired and the workman who made the repairs had signed for it.

Joseph D. James, road foreman, for the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, and residing at Philadelphia, was the second witness of the afternoon. He boarded train 621 at Jersey City, occupying the first coach next to the engine. He observed nothing unusual until after Westfield was passed, when there was an application of the emergency brakes. [It pitched him forward, and a few seconds later he felt the concussion. There might have been a half dozen torpedoes, but he said he would not have heard them. It was the application of the brakes that attracted his attention. He thought the train must have traveled two or three hundred feet after the brakes were applied before the collision occurred.

After the collision he walked toward engine No. 27, and noticed she was blowing off steam. Mr. James then saw Engineer Davis and asked him if he was hurt much. The reply was: "Yes, I am dying." He assisted the engineer to a house nearby and gave what help he could. He gave Engineer Davis a small drink of whiskey. Davis positively did not make any statement to the witness, the latter testified. He was with the witness all except three minutes and during the time Davis made no statement. He said that someone approached Davis and asked him how it happened, and he, James, said:

"Don't, he is in no condition to talk."

The witness said that the throttle valve is very susceptible and might be moved by a heavy jar. In the opinion of Mr. James, Engineer Davis was doing all he possibly could to stop his train after passing Westfield. The only fire noticed by the witness was in front of the engine and he believed it was produced by the fire from the fire-door and the escaping gas.

The witness said the night was a trifle dense, but not so as to obscure the signals. So far as he noticed, the signals were all right.

Louis C. Reckless, baggage master on the Philadelphia express, told of his experiences that night. He was in the first car behind the engine and felt a slight jar to the train as if by the application of the emergency brakes just previous to the collision. He heard no torpedoes but the train was running so fast that he probably would not have caught the report. He went back to Westfield for another engine to get the cars back out of the way but when he secured one, the conductor and some of the other men had moved back the cars one at a time by hand. He had observed no extra amount of steam. He only noticed the train slow down at West Eighth street just previous to crossing the Newark Bay bridge. He remarked the excellent run the engine had made earlier in the day and it appeared to be in first class condition.

Charles W. Orner, rear brakeman on train 621, known as the Philadelphia flyer, testified that he was standing up in the rear car and when the emergency brakes were applied he was thrown down. He did not hear any torpedoes explode, although at times he had heard them go off when standing in the rear car. In explaining his duties, Orner said, that he was obliged to go back a sufficient distance to fully protect his train. It is a matter when a brakeman has to use his judgment. He believed that 800 or 1,000 yards a sufficient distance. In foggy weather a fusee is used as extra precaution this will show a red light for ten minutes.

The witness said that Engineer Davis had a good ruputation and had been on the road ten years.

After the accident, Orner said he went back to protect his train. On his way he met the brakeman from the Easton local. It was a clear night and signals could be seen plainly.

The night of the wreck, Orner said that he was standing at the rear door of the last car. He said his train left Jersey City three minutes late, in reply to a question by Foreman Fisk. The witness said he met O'Neil, the other brakeman, in front of the Westfield station, where a local train had stopped.

The next witness sworn was John Stauffer, Pullman conductor in charge of the two Pullman cars on the Philadelphia express. He was in the rear of the third car of the train when he was thrown forward by a sudden shock. He knew they were going through something or something was going through them. He was waiting for something, he did not know what.

"Not a pleasant sensation," remarked the Prosecutor.

Stauffer told how he looked over the passengers as soon as the accident happened and found they were all right and then responded to the call for liquor and cushions for the injured. He knew the rear brakeman went back at once because he asked, as he didn't want another train to run into them.

Robert M. Wilkinson, passenger engineer on the Philadelphia and Reading Railway, of twenty-three years experience, told of his acquaintance with engine No. 27. He had run it on several occasions. Then he had run it the day before the wreck from Philadelphia to Bound Brook and back the next morning. It was in first class condition. There was no steam escaping from the cylinder or steam chest. The only repairs needed were two brake liners.

"She was in first class condition," he exclaimed, "and fit to run any train on the road." The engine was all right when he left, after that he could not tell what happened.

"Why did you examine it?" asked the Prosecutor.

"That's our business," promptly responded the engineer and he went on to explain that the engineer was always expected to look over the locomotive after concluding a run.

Foreman Fisk asked many questions to draw out what treatment an engineer received if he made many complaints or came in late often, but Engineer Wilkinson insisted that there was nothing to complain of in the company's treatment of its engineers. Wilkinson said that if an engineer could see the block signals he could see the red lantern on the ground.

Engineer Dolan, of Philadelphia, who was called as a witness, was reported by his physicians as being at home ill with the grip.

Dr. Fred E. Brister, medical examiner for the Philadelphia and Reading, testified that just a year ago Engineer Davis was examined by his assistant, Dr. F. L. Baker, for sight, etc. The last time Davis was reported ill was December 17, 1901, and he was in the best of condition after that time and if he had been ill, the witness said he would have heard of it.

Dr. Frederick L. Baker, Dr. Brister's assistant, was next called. He had examined Engineer Davis a year ago regarding sight and hearing. They were normal. There was a sign of color blindness. He told something of the methods of examining railroad men. He declared a man ought to see a red light four miles away.

Dr. Brister was recalled a moment and asked about Dolan. While no official report had been made to him regarding Dolan, he heard from reliable authority that Dolan was quite ill with the grip.

After the last witness had been excused, Prosecutor English had something to say. That, he remarked, completed the evidence which the State had been able to secure. Of those whose testimony had been desired, only one witness had failed to respond and the Prosecutor was hopeful that he would be able to produce that man's affidavit in time for the jury to consider before it brought in its verdict. The investigators had, he said, received the best possible treatment from the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad and the Jersey Central Railroad. Both companies had offered every possible courtesy to assist them. The case now rested with the jury.

Coroner Bunting wanted to know if every member of the jury was perfectly satisfied with the evidence and whether they desired any more. Foreman Fisk asked them separately and all expressed themselves as satisfied that the investigation had been as complete as possible. Then there was a consultation among the members of the jury, the Coroner and the Prosecutor as to the time of meeting for giving out the verdict. J. J. Kenney objected at first to a meeting Saturday afternoon but finally consented to take time enough to present the verdict this afternoon. This was announced by Coroner Bunting and the session adjourned.

As the inquest was practically over, there was more of a formal leave taking than on previous occasions and the newspaper men gatheerd around Foreman Fisk to thank him for all the courtesies shown. There were also pleasant words passed between the county officials and the newspaper representatives.

PATERSON'S GREAT GROWTH

FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF ITS GREAT FIRE THAT SWEPT THAT CITY.

Rebuilding of Paterson Has Been Remarkable for Its Rapidity—What Has Been Done.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Paterson, Feb. 14—Paterson has just been commemorating the greatest calamity it has ever known, the big conflagration of February 9 last, which almost totally destroyed the heart of the business centre of the city, and incurred a loss of $6,500,000. That calamity, which seemed so black, so irretrievable, was apparently but a blessing in disguise, for out of the smoking desolation has arisen a finer and more substantial city with modern structures replacing firetraps, and imposing buildings supplanting ramshackle stores.

Inspired by the rapid growth of the city in the fire limits and the progressive business spirit, the manufacturers, storekeepers and officials decided to celebrate the anniversary of the fire, and Monday evening at the Sons of Veterans' Hall, the people of Paterson gathered and listened to speeches appropriate to the occasion, delivered by such well-known speakers as Dr. Charles D. Shaw, Judge Francis Scott, Rev. A. S. Isaacs and Congressman William Hughes. Patriotic citizens were requested to display their flags, and from every public building and business house Old Glory floated in the breeze.

The rebuilding of Paterson has been remarkable for its rapidity, and every person who saw the smoking ruins on February 9, is surprised at the Wonderful progress made. Before another year has passed Paterson will be entirely rebuilt and will rank as one of the handsomest cities in the State. The new city hall, the First National Bank building, the fine Quackenbush and Boston store buildings, are but examples of the new and greater Paterson which is rapidly emerging from the burnt area.

It is estimated that 459 buildings were destroyed in the fire, and during the year which followed 256 were replaced, most of them stone and brick and far more costly than the structures which were burned. More than $4,000,000 insurance money was poured into the city and nearly all of it went toward rebuilding. Local contractors and builders secured the major portion of the contracts. According to the figures of the building inspector the new buildings cost $3,060,000.

Besides those buildings already begun the coming year will probably see the erection of five new churches, a Y. W. C. A., a Y. M. C. A., the Free Public Library, the Curie office building, the Silk City Trust Company, and the Citizens' Trust Company, besides a number of other buildings, the total cost of which will amount to over $2,500,000. With the addition of a number of industries which are about to locate here and the erection of several big mills and factories the future of Paterson is assured.

THEATRICAL.

"The Sultan of Sulu," is in the middle of its second month at Wallack's and if anything Mr. Ade's witty musical satire is even more popular than it was at the start. It is only one of nine big musical shows now running on Broadway, yet the management announces that Wallack's broke the house record last Saturday night. It is a coincidence worthy of mention that last week another of Henry W. Savage's companies presenting George Ade's second operatic satire, "Peggy from Paris," at the Studebaker theatre in Chicago broke the record for that house where "The Sultan of Sulu" had an initial run of three months, and still another of the companies "The Prince of Pilsen" broke the record of the Century theatre in St. Louis at the same time.

KODOL
Digests What You Eat

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Digests What You Eat

Mrs. Loring Nichols of Penn Yan, N. Y., writes: After eating, my food would distress me by making my heart palpitate and I would become very weak. Finally I got a bottle of Kodol and it gave me immediate relief. After using a few bottles I am cured.

Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders, and gives the heart a full, free and untrammeled action.

Bottles only. $1.00 Size holding 2½ times the trial size, which sells for 50c.

TURF COMPANIES RAIDED.

Chicago Police Ordered to Close Fraudulent Concerns.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—Three turf investment company offices were raided here yesterday afternoon by detectives and a number of attaches arrested. The head of a fourth concern, warned of the proposed movement, made his escape before the detectives arrived. The different firms visited by the police were: The H. Brolaski company, 356 Dearborn street; Benedict & Co., room 703, 225 Dearborn street; the Midcontinent Investment company, 185 Dearborn street, and A. J. Demorest & Co., on the eighth floor of the Temple Court building, Dearborn and Quincy streets.

When the detectives reached the Demorest place, the president of the company, A. J. Demorest, could not be found, and there was a number of patrons in front of the locked doors clamoring for payment.

The raids followed a general police order to close all fraudulent turf exchanges in Chicago. Three squads of detectives started out simultaneously to round up the alleged offenders.

There are numerous other "turf investment" establishments in Chicago, and further raids by the police probably will be made. The circulars seized in the offices raided reveal, it is said, several ingenious new schemes. Letters from men, women and boys in nearly every town throughout the middle west were found, with hundreds of communications from Chicagoans.

Although no definite estimate of the amount lost to investors can be made at present, it is said the total will run into hundreds of thousands.

Racing at Ingleside.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14.—An attractive card drew a large crowd to Ingleside. Interest centered in the six furlong handicap. Although Kenilworth was carrying 135 pounds and was conceding much weight to some clever sprinters, he was installed favorite, with Princess Titania second choice. A poor start and the weight killed the chances of Kenilworth.

Gardner Outfought Weinig.

BOSTON, Feb. 14.—George Gardner of Lowell was far too good a fighter for Al Weinig of Buffalo in the ring of the Maverick Athletic club last night, winning the decision in the seventh round. The referee stopped the bout after a minute in that round to save Weinig, who had been knocked down and came up very groggy, although anxious to continue.

Cyclist McLean Suspended.

BOSTON, Feb. 14.—A bulletin of the board of control of the National Cycling association just issued announces the suspension of Hugh McLean, the Chelsea cyclist, who went to Australia to race with his brother, A. A. McLean, last fall. McLean is fined $10 for each race in which he competed with his brother in Australia and is suspended until the fine is paid.

Harvard Won From Columbia.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 14.—Harvard met Columbia tonight in their first dual intercollegiate fencing match and won 7 to 2. Up to this time the Columbia fencers had had a brilliant career, defeating Annapolis, among others, very easily. They were no match for the Harvard team, however, their lunging being erratic and their aim unsteady.

Baltimore's Wrestler Won.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 14.—"Americus" (Gus Schoenlein) of this city defeated M. J. Dwyer of New Haven, Conn., last night in their wrestling match. Americus got the two falls in twenty-two and fifteen minutes, catch as catch can style. Dwyer sprained his right arm in the first bout and remained on the defensive throughout the second.

Ottawa Ice Record Lowered.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 14.—Guesner, owned by Demarest, lowered the ice record here from 2:18¾ to 2:17¾. Guesner covered the mile track of the Ottawa Ice Racing association in this time. The 2:18¾ record was made by Jewell over a half mile track last winter.

THE FINAL ARGUMENT

Public Hearings of Coal Strike Commission Closed.

COUNSEL DARROW'S CLOSING SPEECH

Crowds Attend Last Day's Proceedings—President Mitchell Present, but Takes No Part—Early Decision Expected.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14.—The anthracite coal strike commission, after being in public session for more than three months, closed its open hearings with an all day argument by Clarence S. Darrow in behalf of the miners. The commission will meet in secret in Washington next Thursday and begin the consideration of its award. It is expected that by the end of this month the arbitrators will be ready to make their announcement. If an increase in wages is determined upon, the increase is to date from the first of last November, the commission having decided upon that date on Oct. 31. After the session yesterday the commission held a short conference with the lawyers for the several sides and asked them to hold themselves in readiness in case they are called upon by the commission.

The crowd that heard Mr. Darrow speak was fully as great as that which listened to Mr. Baer and Mr. Darrow the day previous. He took up the entire time of both sessions, five and a half hours. He touched upon almost every phase of the strike, and when he closed he was greeted with long applause, which Chairman Gray did not suppress. President Mitchell was in court all day, but did not have anything to say to the commission in parting.

Speaking on the question of violence Mr. Darrow said: "You can never have a great strike excepting here and there violence is done, and so it was in the coalfields, where 750,000 persons are living very close to life." He said it was a wonder if the operators had insolently and cruelly rejected the requests of the men that there was not more violence among this population, which was reduced to a condition bordering on starvation. He paid a tribute to foreigners in the coal regions, who, he said, were a warm hearted, emotional, sympathetic, religious people. It comes with poor grace, he said, for the operators to say that the Poles and the Slavs, whose labor the operators have taken for years, could not speak English and therefore are not a responsible party with whom they could make a contract. He spoke of the strict adherence of the operators to the dead letter of the law and the moral law of humanity and remarked that if "each of our captains of industry would respect their fellow man the bitter war just ended would not have occurred and those who lost their lives in that struggle would be alive today.

"Conflicts between capital and labor will continue," he said, "until these captains of industry respect their fellow men. It is idle, futile and useless to talk of curing it in any other way."

Turning to the boycott Mr. Darrow said there was one illustrious example at least in the United States of the boycott and that was in the American Revolution. "There is not one specific act that is charged to the mine workers," he said, "but what was charged to the loyalists whom we teach our children to love and venerate. You and I may sit here and judge men by the dead letter of the law. We may say that this act is right and that act is wrong, but up there sits the living God, and he judges the acts of men by another standard than ours. Let me say there is the legal side and the moral side. The boycott is an ancient weapon. It is respectable when the operators use it, but not respectable when we use it."

In closing he said: "This contest is one of the important contests that have marked the progress of human liberty since the world began—one force pointing one way, another force the other; every advantage that the human race has won has been at fearful cost. Every contest has been won by struggle. Some men must die that others may live. It has come to these poor miners to bear this cross, not for themselves, but that the human may be lifted up to a higher and broader plane than it has ever known before."

Three Drowned In a Gale.

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 14.—A special from Washington, N. C., says that during the heavy gale of Thursday night the skipper Manco was capsized in Swan Quarter bay. Captain Robert Westcott, master, and two white men were drowned. Reports are conflicting. One rumor is that five negroes, also of the boat's crew, were drowned.

Boer Generals Refuse Honors.

PRETORIA, Feb. 14.—It is announced that the government offered seats in the legislative council to Generals Botha, Delarey and Smuts. The Boer generals unanimously refused to accept, giving as their reason the manner in which the council was formed, which in their opinion was not in the best interests of the country.

North Carolina Town Burned.

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 14.—The town of Grimesland, Pitt county, has been practically wiped out by fire. Eleven buildings, including several warehouses and the town hall, were destroyed. The loss is placed at $25,000, one-fourth covered by insurance.

Two Deaths From Plague.

MAZATLAN, Mexico, Feb. 14.—There were two deaths from the plague yesterday. There are forty-four patients in the lazaretto. Over $200,000 for relief work has been received from various charitable committees throughout the republic.

PROTOCOLS SIGNED.

Immediate Raising of Venezuelan Blockade.

DINNER INVITATION CAUSED DELAY.

Final Formalities at British Embassy Late at Night—England and Italy Each Get $27,500 and Germany Gets $340,000 In Cash.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Herbert W. Bowen, Venezuela's representative in the peace negotiations at Washington, has signed with each of the allies' representatives here a protocol providing for the immediate raising of the Venezuelan blockade and for the reference of the question of preferential treatment of the claims of the allies against Venezuela to The Hague arbitration tribunal.

The final formalities occurred at the British embassy at 11:30 o'clock last night.

The British protocol was in English, the Italian in Italian and German and the German in German and English.

England and Italy will receive in cash $27,500 each. Germany will get $340,000.

Venezuela will be relieved of the blockade, which has produced very stringent conditions in all Venezuelan towns and has been excessively hard on the poorer classes.

Mr. Bowen signed in duplicate for Venezuela, Sir Michael Herbert for Great Britain, Signor Mayor des Planches for Italy and Baron Speck von Sternburg for Germany. Immediately on the signing of the last protocol cables were dispatched to London, Berlin and Rome announcing the fact. It is expected that the commanders of the blockading fleet within the next twenty-four hours will receive their orders to withdraw their vessels at once.

By the provisions of the preliminary protocols, which have required more than three weeks of constant negotiations, Venezuela makes two distinct gains, the immediate raising of a blockade from which she has been suffering for some weeks and the return of all her vessels, war and merchant, which have been captured by the allied fleet.

It is stipulated by the protocols that the claims of the creditor nations shall be adjudicated by joint commissions to consist in each instance of a Venezuelan, a representative of the claimant power, and in case of a disagreement an umpire to be named by the president of the United States.

By an invitation to Baron Speck von Sternburg, the German minister, to dine at the White House President Roosevelt unwittingly held up the settlement of the Venezuelan controversy for several hours.

Valuable Postal Package Lost.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 14.—A package of letters containing a large amount of commercial paper was lost by the postal authorities from a pouch on the Pennsylvania train leaving Louisville at midnight Jan. 31 and running to Chicago via Indianapolis. A thorough investigation by the postal authorities has failed to produce the missing package. It is impossible to estimate accurately how much money was lost, but it is said to be nearly $50,000. The loss was first made known by complaints from towns along the line, among which were banks at Jeffersonville, New Albany, Sellersburg, Edinburg, Columbus and Franklin. It is supposed that the package was left in a pouch by carelessness of some postal employee after the pouch was thought to be empty.

Waterbury Strikers to Have Help.

WATERBURY, Conn., Feb. 14.—According to a statement issued by the striking conductors and motormen of the Connecticut Railway and Lighting company arrangements have been made by which employees on all the roads of the company outside of Waterbury will shortly present demands for an increase in wages. The Connecticut Railway and Lighting company has trolley lines in Bridgeport, New Britain, Norwalk, Derby, Shelton and other points in this state. The announcement that a general strike on these lines is a possibility of the near future was unexpected here, as the members of the Waterbury union have denied all along that they desired to have men in other cities called out in sympathy with them.

Cattle Plague Again Serious.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The foot and mouth disease has again become serious in Massachusetts, and Dr. Salmon, the chief of the bureau of animal industry, will return to Boston in a few days to investigate the situation. Disquieting reports have reached Secretary Wilson regarding fresh outbreaks of the disease near Boston, where most of the cases recently have become concentrated, and there is considerable anxiety over a possible spread of the disease.

Ajax Brings Dead Sailors.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The bodies of ten sailors, nine of whom were killed by the explosion in the battleship Massachusetts off Porto Rico several weeks ago, have reached the Brooklyn navy yard. They were brought from San Juan on the United States collier Ajax, which reached Tompkinsville on Thursday. The yard tug Traffic was sent down the bay with a guard of honor to bring the bodies to the navy yard.

Hurricane at Budapest.

BUDAPEST, Feb. 14.—A terrible hurricane has visited this town and done enormous damage. The roof was blown off St. Elizabeth's church, five statues of saints around the church were thrown to the ground and other works of art were shattered. All the bridges are impassable and sixty persons were injured.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Skilled Labor and Its Output Unequal to Demand—Cotton Scarce.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Disproportion between supply and demand is still a factor of strength in many commodities, while similar conditions exist as to skilled labor, retarding much work and in some cases postponing important undertakings and improvements. Wages have been advanced voluntarily and also in response to demands by organized labor. A conspicuous example of the latter occurred in bituminous coal mining, and a corresponding advance in price will be made. Last month's phenomenal tonnage of anthracite relieved the pressure, 5,900,000 tons establishing a new monthly record, and mild weather combined to restore more normal quotations, retailers in this vicinity reducing prices to $6.50.

Sound conditions continue to prevail in the iron and steel industry, with few developments of note. Coke is in somewhat better supply, making it possible to operate blast furnaces with less interruption than was experienced when the month opened, but there is constant complaint of the scarcity and high prices commanded by pig iron. Finished steel products have not risen proportionately, although they are in good demand.

Cotton has taken the leading position of the great staples, both as to extent of advance and volume of speculative transactions. A rise of about $7.50 a bale within a comparatively short period in the option markets is largely due to the efforts of a short interest to cover contracts. Visible supplies are lower than at the corresponding date in any year of the past decade.

A British trade estimate that the world's wheat crop has surpassed all previous records by 152,000,000 bushels failed to depress quotations. Limited stocks at available points, restricted shipments and a steady demand, both for milling and export, sustain the markets, although speculation for an advance became less aggressive.

Failures for the week numbered 230 in the United States against 240 last year, and 20 in Canada compared with 33 a year ago.

FOR ST. PAUL'S POOR.

A Bequest of Nearly $1,000,000 For Charity—Politicians May Not Touch.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 14.—The will of Mrs. Cornelia Day Wilder Appleby, only daughter of the late Amherst H. Wilder, a well known millionaire railroad contractor, has been made public. Under the terms of her father's will she had received an income from two-thirds of his estate, the whole being valued at more than $3,000,000. One-third of the entire estate came to her on her marriage six years ago, so that the amount covered by the present will probably somewhat exceeds $1,000,000.

After making a number of minor bequests it is provided that the bulk of the large estate be invested for the benefit of the worthy poor of the city of St. Paul, without regard to color or religious belief and independently of any organized charities, hospitals or other institutions, with a central or administration building from which what is to be known as "the Amherst H. Wilder Charity" shall be carried on. Trained nurses are to be regularly employed for the benefit of the worthy poor.

It is specifically provided that no politician shall ever have anything to do with the administration of the charity.

Duff's Refined Molasses

Refined from the best New Orleans molasses, by a scientific process exclusively our own, DUFF'S REFINED is the purest, sweetest liquid which can be bought. Its superior baking qualities are at once discovered in the richness, flavor, and unfailing goodness of the gingerbread, gingersnaps, brown bread, or other cooking in which it is used. No other molasses gives to the cook such certainty of satisfaction. DUFF'S REFINED is sold by grocers in plain top or screw cap cans, which keep it clean and avoid waste. MUST NOT BE ADDICKS.

Regular Republicans In Delaware Make a Proposition.

DOVER, Del., Feb. 14.—The regular Republicans have held a caucus and framed a proposition which was presented to the Addicks faction agreeing to the election of one regular Republican senator and one Addicks Republican senator. The proposition states that the union Republican senator must not be J. Edward Addicks.

Henry C. Ellison, president pro tem. of the senate, said: "We want to settle this matter. We don't want the responsibility to rest on us if senators are not elected."

Strong pressure will be brought to bear upon the Addicks Republican assemblymen between now and Monday morning to accept the proposition made to them by the regulars. An element is at work to have the unions end the snarl of two years by nominating Secretary of State Caleb R. Layton, an Addicks adherent, for the long term senatorship and accepting Colonel Henry A. Dupont for the short term vacancy.

Colonel Dupont would be the senior senator, and Dr. Layton, who is several years his junior, would, it is contended, have every opportunity of bringing about what he is now prophesying, a sweep of the state for Addicks next year. The regulars under their signed manifesto would be bound to support him. This is considered by some of the leaders to be the only solution of the wrangle.

TO TEACH AGRICULTURE.

Bill Up at Albany to Provide For County Schools.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 14.—County schools of agriculture and domestic economy to furnish instruction in the elements of agriculture, in methods of farm fertilization, tillage and management and care of live stock and in domestic economy are proposed in Assemblyman Plank's bill just introduced.

Under its provisions the board of supervisors of any county may establish the schools, the school commissioner of each school district in the county and three members to be appointed by the supervisors to constitute the board of management, the members of which must serve without compensation. The expenses of the proposed schools are to be a county charge.

The commissioner of agriculture is to select the teachers, fix their salaries, which are to be paid by the state, and prescribe the curriculum. The period of instruction is to be from one to six months, and the schools are to be free to the inhabitants of the county. Special classes are to be formed for persons beyond the school age. The college of agriculture at Cornell and its teachers are required to assist the county schools under the direction of the commissioner of agriculture, who is to supervise them.

The project passed the assembly last year, but failed to pass the senate.

Another Railroad For Philippines.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The most important franchise yet granted in the Philippines is conveyed in an act by the Philippine commission, a copy of which has just reached here, granting to the Manila Railroad company the right to construct a branch road forty miles long from a station named Guiguinto to an important Philippine town now without railroad connection known as Cabanatuan, lying northwest of Manila. Up to this time the backbone railroad from Manila straight northward to Dagupan has constituted the entire railway system of the Philippines, and this connection marks the beginning of an epoch of railway development which is expected to open up the agricultural resources of the interior.

Big Diamond Robbery.

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 14.—Five thousand dollars' worth of diamonds were stolen from Adams' jewelry store between 5 and 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon. No one was noticed acting suspiciously, but the diamonds were seen at 5 o'clock and were gone at 6 o'clock. The chief of police was notified immediately and made an investigation of the premises. While the investigation was in progress a patrolman entered the store and said he had two men spotted. After a search both men were found and arrested. One was identified by a man to whom he had attempted to sell diamonds a few minutes before. The other man was found in possession of one of the stolen rings.

To Remember the Maine.

HAVANA, Feb. 14.—At a meeting of Americans here it was arranged to hold memorial exercises at the wreck of the Maine tomorrow, the fifth anniversary of the disaster. A subscription was raised to decorate the wreck. A cablegram was sent to President Roosevelt suggesting the propriety of sending a United States naval vessel to be present at the ceremony if one is available at Key West. President Palma and other Cuban officials were invited to attend the exercises. Memorial addresses will be delivered by American and other clergymen.

Three Killed In B. and O. Wreck.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 14.—In a frightful wreck at Vienna station, on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad about fourteen miles west of this place, three men were killed, the train to which they belonged was piled in a confused mass on the tracks, which were torn up for several hundred yards, and all traffic both east and west is blocked on the road. An eastbound freight train struck a large bowlder lying on the track in the cut just west of Vienna station. The dead men were all employees of the road.

Wall Paper Plant Destroyed.

YONKERS, N. Y., Feb. 14.—The wall paper factory of Hoofer & Co. at Nepera Park has been totally destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $115,000.

THIRD TRUST LAW.

Elkins Rebate Bill Passed by the House.

NO MORE ANTITRUST LEGISLATION.

Six Members Voted Against the Bill Because of Its Rigorous Terms. Crowds In the Senate to Hear Booth.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Under the operation of a special order which cut off opportunity to offer amendments the house after a debate of an hour by a vote of 241 to 6 passed the Elkins bill to prohibit rebates to shippers. The six members who voted against the bill were Democrats. Mr. Littlefield (Me.) was present, but did not vote on either the rule or the bill. The Democrats protested against the rigorous terms of the rule. It had been their purpose, they said, to offer the provisions of the Littlefield bill as an amendment to the bill. Mr. Dalzell (Pa.), Mr. Overstreet (Ind.) and Mr. Hepburn (Ia.) practically announced that with the passage of the Elkins bill the antitrust legislation for this session of congress would be complete. During the debate Mr. Cochran (Mo., Dem.) branded one of Mr. Hepburn's statements as a "deliberate lie." Contrary to the usual custom this strong language had no sequel.

The remainder of the session was devoted to the sundry civil appropriation bill, which was practically completed. No effort was made to pass it, as there was no quorum present.

An immense crowd was attracted to the senate to hear the invocation of General William Booth, founder and commander in chief of the Salvation Army. Among the occupants of the galleries were Booth Tucker, the general's chief assistant and son-in-law, and a large number of Salvationists.

When the statehood bill came up Mr. Depew resumed his remarks. He attacked the Mormon church because, he said, he believed its members still cling to the practice of polygamy. Mr. Rawlins replied, saying that if the Mormons were not interfered with they would work out their own destiny.

Senator Elkins consulted members of the committee on interstate commerce and secured an agreement to concur in the amendments to the Elkins antirebate bill passed by the house when it is received by the senate. This action will send the bill to the president.

Three More Dead at Ithaca.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 14.—Three more deaths from typhoid fever have occurred here. Two were those of townspeople and the third that of a student, George A. Wessmen of Passaic, N. J., a junior in the mechanical engineering department of Cornell university. The number of new cases reported seems to show that the worst of the epidemic is over and that the precautions being taken against the use of infected city water are proving effective. No new cases were reported among students of Cornell university. A census of the students of the university shows that in spite of the departure of many for their homes four-fifths of the total registration are regularly attending their classes.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Musicales Resumed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Mrs. Roosevelt resumed her Friday evening musicales at the White House last night. There was a large number of invited guests, who listened to an interesting programme which began at 10 o'clock and lasted until midnight and included Bohemian songs by Mr. Bogea Oumiroff, baritone, and coon songs by Miss Mary L. Leech, soprano. Mr. Rudolph Prushet was the accompanist at the piano. Those present included the members of the cabinet, representatives of the diplomatic corps and of congress, with the ladies of their families and friends from resident and New York society.

Silkworms to Supplant Dyers.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—To displace the dyer and cause the silkworm to color silk naturally in any desired shade is the object of a set of most interesting experiments which form the subject of a special report to the state department from United States Consul Atwell at Roubaix, France. He says that two French scientists actually have succeeded in producing bright red cocoons by feeding the silkworms with leaves washed over with red. Orange and blue shades also have been produced. The experiments are continuing.

Bitter Cold In the West.

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 14.—Bitterly cold weather prevails over Nevada, northern Utah, southern Idaho and western Wyoming. Wells, Nev., reports a temperature of 42 degrees below zero, and 33 degrees below was recorded at Winnemucca. Several freight trains are reported stalled on sidings across the Nevada desert, the cold being so extreme that it was impossible to keep up steam. Much loss to live stock is feared in Wyoming, where conditions before the cold wave were very unfavorable.

Cuban Soldiers' Pay Bill Passed.

HAVANA, Feb. 14.—The senate has passed unanimously and without debate the soldiers' pay bill. The railway commission, composed of five government officials, has voted in favor of granting a rehearing on the subject of the Cuban railroad tax, the company having complained of the amount, which it considers excessive. The secretary of the treasury, who is a member of the commission, does not admit that the commission has authority to remit the tax.

THE VERDICT.

It was supposed when the coroner's jury adjourned a week ago that the last public session of that body had been held and that its meeting in the future would be devoted to personal examination, a review of the evidence already received and the preparation of the verdict. As a result of the personal investigations in the round houses at Philadelphia and among the engineman there, a few additional witnesses were found who were examined in public yesterday afternoon. Then some other belated ones were put on the stand.

All these additional witnesses did not, however, serve to throw any new light on the Westfield disaster and the causes leading up to it. The most important facts were brought out early in the sessions of the inquest and there has been no reason brought forward to change the general opinion that the verdict of the jury would lay the blame for the disaster upon Engineer Davis, who died at Muhlenberg Hospital two days after the accident. All the evidence has tended to show that the signals worked properly on that occasion.

As was anticipated, the verdict, which is given in full in today's Daily Press, lays the blame on Engineer Davis and relieves the Jersey Central Railroad of criminal responsibility. As forecasted in these columns the coroner's jury has certain recommendations to make. Chief of these is the establishment of a State railway commission. The others are all in the line of providing greater safety and include many of the remedies heretofore suggested in the public press.

"POLYS" BEATEN BY LOCAL Y. M. C. A. BOYS

Hot Basket Ball Game Finally Ended in Favor of Local Team by Six Points.

THE SCORE WAS 23 TO 17

TEAM FROM POLYTECHNIC INSTITUTE, OF BROOKLYN, PLAYED HERE.

Game Played in Y. M. C. A. Gym—Visitors Led at the Start, But the Home Team Made a Strong Fight and Won Out.

One of the best basket ball games witnessed in this city this winter was played last evening between the Y. M. C. A. team and a team from the Polytechnic Institute, of Brooklyn. The visitors have the reputation of being among the best in the Metropolitan district and it was naturally expected that they would give the local team all it wanted to do in holding them down. The game was played in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium and was very fast from start to finish. Two twenty minute halves were played with ten minutes intermission. The local team won the contest by a score of 23 to 17.

In the first half the two teams were evry evenly matched during the early part of the contest, but toward the last the visitors showed considerable strength and walked away from their opponents with some ease. In this half the Y. M. C. A. team threw four goals from the field and one from foul, making a total of 9 points. The "Poly's" did a little better. They threw three goals from the field and four from foul, making a total of 10 points.

The local team made a grand fight in the second half and showed the visitors how to play the game. The score of their opponents was just doubled, the points being 14 to 7. The local team threw six goals from the field and two from fouls, while the "Polys" threw three goals from the field and one from a foul. Unquestionably the home team played much the better game in the last half, although the work of the visitors was superb. They played a sharp game and their interference was a strong point. Too much credit cannot be given the victors, however, for they put up a strong game throughout. The individual play was fine and at the same time the members of the team played well together. There was a marked improvement in their interference and general work.

The line-up was as follows:

Y. M. C. A.		"Poly's."
Denton	right forward	Mason
Hand	left forward	Weidmann
Scull	centre	Gluck
E. Neal	right guard	Benoit

Referee—C. E. A. Heywood. Timers—W. C. Smith and Bert Brokaw. Umpires—Robert M. Meeker and E. Doty. Scorer—John H. Doane.

SUBURBAN NEWS

A Department Devoted to the Minor Events in Greater Plainfield's Suburbs by Our Own Correspondents.

DUNELLEN.

It has just been made public that last Wednesday evening Miss Sadie Tilton, eldest daughter of Charles Tilton, of this place, was married to Joseph Kitchen, of Dunellen avenue, Plainfield. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. K. Doolittle in the Methodist church with only the pastor's family as witnesses. The young couple were unattended and the wedding was a great surprise to their many friends. They will reside at the home of the bridegroom in Plainfield.

The Misses VanArtsdale entertained a large number of their friends last evening in Apgar's Hall at a dance given in honor of their guests, Miss Mary Wortendyke and Miss Isabel McLean, who received with them. Guests were present from Plainfield, New York and other places. The hall was prettily decorated, the music was good and everyone had an enjoyable time. Wetton, of Roselle, furnished the music.

The Methodist church was crowded last evening by a large and enthusiastic audience which was entertained by the Alonzo Hatch entertainment. The moving and colored pictures were excellent as was the musical part of the programme. Mr. Hatch, who was to have sung a number of popular songs, was sick and unable to be present.

A cottage prayer meeting was held last evening at the home of James Manning by the members of the New Market Baptist church. A large number were present.

A writ of attachment has been served by Justice Warden for some goods of Henry Cases', for Adam Dealaman, for rent due the latter.

Mrs. Marshall Pittenger, of Knowlton, has returned home after a lengthy visit at the home of Adam Dealaman.

Services will probably be held in the Presbyterian church tomorrow as the repairs are about finished.

Miss Ethel Jamison, of Raritan, has returned home after a visit at the home of Miss Lulu Gise.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel B. Merrell are spending a week with their son, Asa, in Newark.

Miss Janie Churchill is making an extended visit to relatives in New York.

A flag walk is to be put from the Presbyterian church to the road.

NEW MARKET.

Thursday afternoon exercises were held in the schoolhouse at Lincoln to celebrate the anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birthday. Rev. T. E. Davis, of Bound Brook, gave a very interesting talk and special music was rendered.

J. Y. Wilson has little hope now of harvesting an ice crop and is preparing to make a visit south.

Calvin Blue is building some out buildings to replace the ones recently lost by fire.

A number from here attended a dance given in Dunellen last evening.

Mrs. William V. Drake, of Stelton, is ill with the scarlet fever.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Sunday services at the Baptist church tomorrow will be: Sunday-school, 9:30; morning preaching, 10:45; B. Y. P. U. meeting, 7; evening preaching, 7:45. At the morning service the annual collection for the Educational Society will be taken.

The entertainment committee of Fanwood Council, R. A., will meet tonight at the home of Wm. B. Noble to complete arrangements for the Council smoker to be held Tuesday evening, February 25, in the Council rooms.

The weekly prayer meeting of the Methodist church will be held in the church tonight. Rev. Mr. Bayliss will lead.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Maguire are entertaining their neice, Miss Maguire, of Orange, for a few days.

Naylor's orchestra will furnish the music for dancing at Ivamy's pavilion tonight.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

T. L. Laing is making iron grates for the windows of R. B. Manning & Brother's store. These grates are to take the place of the closed shutters at night and are considered to be a better protection against burglars.

The subject of the sermon at the Baptist church tomorrow morning will be "A Picture of the First Christian Church." The evening service will be of interest to all who attend. Music will be a special feature.

FAREWELL SERMON.

Pastor of Church and Prelate of Commandery Will Say Good-Bye.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., will attend divine service at the Park Avenue Baptist church, tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock, when the pastor and the prelate of the Commandery, Rev. J. W. Richardson, will preach his farewell sermon. Sir Knights will report at the Asylum at 7 o'clock in full dress Templar uniform, including belt, but omitting swords, and escort those not so equipped to the church. The Commandery will leave the Asylum at 7:20 o'clock sharp. The doors of the church will be open at 7:30 o'clock and the families and friends of the Sir Knights are courteously invited to be present.

Fully Exonerated.

Harry Goeller, the young boy who appeared before City Judge Runyon, last week, on a charge made by Mrs. Harding, of South Second street, that he had stolen two of her chickens, was fully exonerated today.

LEAGUE GAME WON BY HOPE

First Contest of New Schedule of the Plainfield Amateur Basket Ball League.

I. C. T.'S GOOD SHOWING

Play Was Hard and Fast From the Beginning, and While Hope Y. M. A. Finally Won 31 to 9, it Was Close Enough to be Decidedly Exciting.

Fast play marked the opening game in the new schedule of the Plainfield Amateur Basket Ball League, played between the teams of the Hope Y. M. A. and the I. C. T. Club in the gymnasium at Hope chapel last evening. While it was expected that the Hope boys would win the game, the visiting five made even a better showing than was expected and treated the audience which crowded the visitors' gallery to a game that was wildly exciting and close enough to be interesting. The final score was 31 to 9 in favor of the Hope boys.

While the I. C. T. Club team has played several practice games, this was really its initial appearance. At the start, however, it did not look as if the newcomers were novices. They started in at a pace that quite astonished their adversaries and managed to hold it until toward the close when the lack of training began to tell and Hope scored frequently. Even at that, the game was by no means a one-sided one.

For the first five minutes of play, Hope's famous team work did not appear. Then the home five steadied down and began to play. It was really creditable work on the part of the I. C. T. guards that prevented a big score. Blimm had discovered what no other guard had developed, a successful way to cope with Dilks' back throw. So well did he guard the Hope players that only twice was Dilks able to land the basket, and both were in the first half. The half ended with Hope in the lead 14 to 7.

There was a noticeable improvement on the part of the I. C. T. boys in the second half. For fully ten minutes the play was on even terms. Then Hope's superior physical condition began to tell and the remainder of the half saw the I. C. T. on the defensive. Even thus, the Hope boys had their troubles in scoring.

It was toward the close of the first half that the Hope boys were getting into the form for which they are noted. In the second half, part of the team showed up well, Whitley and McCombe, in particular, doing great work.

There was a tendency toward rough play at the very last but otherwise the game was a clean but very fast one. The smallness of the gymnasium made the play rougher than it would have otherwise been. The umpire was perfectly fair although a few judicious fouls would have come well in the last few minutes of the game. The work of the referee was particularly satisfactory.

The teams lined up as follows:

Hope Y. M. A.		I. C. T. Club
Bliss	right forward	Reynolds
Foster, Roseberry	centre	Sherwin

Score—Hope Y. M. A., 31; I. C. T. Club, 9. Goals from the field—Dilks (2), Porter (4), Foster (2), Whitley (4), McCombe (4), Reynolds, Caleen, Sherwin (2). Goals on fouls—McCombe, Blimm. Fouls—Hope Y. M. A., 2; I. C. T. Club, 1. Referee—Frank McTague, of the Orient Club, Newark. Umpire—Charles Bopp, of the Orient Club, Newark. Timekeeper—Robert A. Meeker. Scorer—George E. Firstbrook.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

On account of a contemplated removal, the New York Bargain store on West Front street has been conducting a great sacrifice sale. Clothing, overcoats, shoes and underwear are being disposed of at prices way below cost.

Many people have been taking advantage of the inventory sale which has been going on at the dry goods emporium of I. H. Boehm on West Front street. There are to be found at this store a fine lot of choice dress goods and silk remnants.

John H. Doane, the West Front street shoe dealer, advertises a strong combination in the Sorosis shoe for women and the Ralston health shoe for men. He claims there are no better shoes made and he keeps a large stock in all sizes. The prices are right.

P. G. Dubois, who keeps the Oriental tea room on West Front street, has just received a line of merut and Java pillow tops and table covers and pretty hangings. It is one of the most attractive displays ever seen in the city and an inspection will be well worth your while.

Hill & Shupp, the dry goods firm, is advertising money-saving prices for today in every department. They are making a strong feature of their millinery and by a persual of the firm's advertisement you will get an idea of the big bargains offered. In the carpet department, as well as the housefurnishing goods' department you will find a most desirable assortment of useful articles at low prices.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Central Lodge, No. 48, A. O. U. W., met last evening and initiated two candidates.

—Edward Hope, of Somerville, has secured a position as a night operator at the local telephone office.

—Raymond Cohen, formerly with the local telephone company, has secured a position with the Bell Telephone Company in New York.

—William Kennedy, who formerly resided in the borough but who is now located at Rochester, has accepted a lucrative position with the Rochester Lamp Company as a traveling salesman.

Still Unconscious.

John Schenck, the engineer of the water works, who was shocked by electricity yesterday, still lies in a semi-conscious condition at Muhlenberg Hospital. Efforts to revive him have proved futile.

EVERY CHURCH or institution supported by voluntary contribution will be given a liberal quantity of the Longman & Martinez Pure Paints whenever they paint.

NOTE: Have done so for twenty-seven years. Sales: Tens of millions of gallons; painted nearly two million houses under guarantee to repaint if not satisfactory. The paint wears for periods up to eighteen years. Linseed Oil must be added to the paint, (done in two minutes). Actual cost then about $1.25 a gallon. Samples free. Sold by our Agents—

POPULAR IN MEXICO.

Gen. Bernardo Reyes, Secretary of War of the Republic.

Should President Diaz Decline a Reelection He Would Be Chosen Chief Executive Almost Unanimously.

In two years the term of Porfirio Diaz as president will expire, and it is given out as an absolute certainty that he will then leave public life. Diaz is now past 70 years of age.

This announcement leads to the question: Who will succeed Diaz? There are numerous politicians who are eager to enter the race for the nomination. But the man who occupies the presidential chair will have to be a protege of the Diaz party, which is a powerful organization of reformers. The party has held absolute sway in Mexico since 1876, when Diaz squelched the last serious rebellion.

The knowing politicians have already picked out the man whom they say Diaz will support. He is Gen. Bernardo Reyes, the present secretary of war. In almost every respect Reyes is a second Diaz. He is a self-made man. He has shown himself to be dauntless in battle. He never forgives an enemy and never goes back on a friend. Reyes is strongly opposed to gambling in any form, or drinking. So is Diaz. Between them they have succeeded in checking, to a large extent, the gambling and drinking in the Mexican army.

Reyes has devoted his life to the interests of his country. Before he was 16 years old he ran away from home to fight the French when they invaded Mexico. He took part in all the succeeding struggles and was promoted to his present rank for bravery on the field.

Reyes is more popular in the state of Nuevo Leon than in any other part of Mexico. He has spent most of his life here and has helped this state in many ways. Reyes was born in Guadalajara, in the state of Jalisco, on August 20, 1850. His parents were the descendants of a distinguished Spanish family that settled in Jalisco during the eighteenth century.

When he was seven years old Bernardo was sent to one of the public schools in the city, and after he had acquired a knowledge of arithmetic, reading and writing he entered a higher institution of learning. As a scholar young Reyes was quiet, performed his work diligently and rose rapidly. Although a sturdy lad, he never mixed up in the quarrels among his associates, and owing to this they soon began to look upon him as a coward.

One day a lad who had vanquished the best fighters in the school and, elated over his success, was seeking more trouble, approached young Reyes.

"You act so old and mannish that I would like to whip you," said the bully. Reyes wheeled about and faced him, but did not reply.

"I think the first thing I will do will be to kick you, and then, if you want to fight, we'll have it out, but I don't believe you've got any fight in you," he continued. Young Reyes didn't wait to be kicked. He first smashed the bully in the face, knocking him down; then he jumped upon him and began punching until he yelled for mercy.

The same policy has always been pursued by Reyes the man. If anyone tries to assail his methods he strikes back quick and hard.

Gen. Reyes gained his great popularity in the state of Nuevo Leon in an odd way. In 1885 a revolution over local elections broke out in the state and Diaz called upon him to stop the trouble. Reyes hastened to Monterey, silenced the disturbers within a few days, and then reported to Diaz. The president of the republic was so pleased over this that he appointed the general military governor of the state, a position he held until 1895.

During this time the people of Nuevo Leon had become so attached to Reyes that a delegation of prominent men begged him to run for office. He was made a citizen of the state and was elected governor by an overwhelming majority. He held this office until two years ago, when he was appointed secretary of war.

SOAP IN THE GINGERBREAD.

A Product of the Maine Forest Which Is Regarded by the Lumbermen as Very Good.

"Did ye ever eat hot gingerbread with soap in it?" asked Frank Brown, the oldest camp cook on the West Branch, who, according to the New York Sun, boasts that he has made more than 2,000 barrels of flour into cream of tartar bread in the course of 26 winters in the forest. "Ef ye hain't e't it, you don't know what's good.

"Why, a lumberman would no more think of eating gingerbread without soap into it than he would think of drinking new rum without molasses. They always go together—soap into the gingerbread and molasses into the rum, and both are jest about as good as is made.

My rule is to dissolve a hunk of hard soap as big as a hen's egg in a gallon of water, then pour in a gallon of molasses, a half pound of baking powder and stir in the flour until the dough will almost run. Then grease yer pans, slap in the mixture and chuck it into a red-hot oven.

"When it comes out all golden brown and full of sweet bubbles that smoke when you break them open—the man who won't eat such food isn't fit to live or die.

"You can't tell me that soap gingerbread ain't fit to eat. I've eat it more than 25 years, and I'm jest as sound to-day as I was when I first tasted the food."

INCREASE IN SUICIDES.

Figures Collected by an Insurance Company Prove That Self-Murder Grows More Common.

In the Spectator, an insurance journal, the statistician of an insurance company gives an analysis of the suicide record for the year 1901. His figures are taken from 50 cities, and show an average slight increase over the ratio for the preceding decade of nearly one per cent., from 15.7 to 16.6 per 100,000 population. He estimates an approximate annual mortality by suicide of 10,000 in the country as a whole. The implied conclusion is that a further increase in the rate of suicidal tendency in the cities of this country may be expected during the next decade, and the suicide question, like arson in fire insurance, is thus becoming more and more one of the utmost importance to life insurance companies.

He also gives another table showing the experience of one company for the last 55 years, dividing it into two periods, including males only, as the female suicide statistics are too insignificant to be tabulated. This shows a percentage of suicides in the total mortality of 2.4 in the later as compared with 1.9 in the earlier period. The age of suicides seems also to have lessened, as the suicides under 45 increased from 2.1 per cent. to 3.9 per cent in the later period, and there was an actual decrease of those in advanced life.

OUR SHOES IN MEXICO.

They Are Much Liked by the Natives, But the Prices Are Excessively High.

According to United States Consul Canada at Vera Cruz, trade conditions in that part of Mexico have undergone a great change within the past ten years, especially with respect to American shoes. In former years it was impossible to buy anything in Vera Cruz in the line of shoe leather except that of native stock and manufacture, and ready-made shoes for Americans were not to be had at all.

United States shoes have, however, within a very short time made a name for themselves, and, the consul says, were it not for the excessively high prices asked for them they would surely drive all others out of the market. As it is, however, he adds, only the better classes can enjoy the luxury of our shoes, and the great mass of the people is debarred from that privilege. The principal obstacle to a heavier business is the high import duty and the fluctuations in the value of silver. The duty on the cheapest shoes is the same as on the finest productions.

GAVE A LARGE REWARD.

So Thought the Bestower and the Young Hero Who Received the Money.

"The following story will illustrate a number of things," said the Detroit ship owner who narrated it, "but chiefly will it show how the value of money varies with the supply.

"A boy was telling me of his prowess as a swimmer. He could dive, too.

"'Once,' said he, 'I dived down to the bottom of the river and pulled a little boy out.'

"'Bravo!' said I.

"'An' I tell you,' he continued, 'his pa was glad! He give me a dollar-an'-a-quarter.'

"Both the father and the hero live in a neighborhood the occupants of which are sometimes known as 'wharf rats'—the neighborhood or the docks. I have no doubt," concluded the ship owner, according to the Detroit Free Press, "that the dollar-and-a-quarter was as large to the man as to the boy."

Imprisoned for Yawning.

A Japanese M. P., Mr. Tanka by name, has been sentenced to 15 days' confinement and a fine of ten shillings for yawning in parliament. The crown prosecutor maintained that in an assembly where order has to be maintained, even an act of a physiological nature should be controlled. As the defendant, however, had yawned in order to annoy the government, the defense was even more punishable.

Wide Belts—Blue Serge Suits For Mornings.

Blue serge smartly trimmed with braid is much in request for morning wear, and little pouched vests embroidered and lavishly adorned with lace accompany these gowns, which are frequently made with that type of bolero which can be worn both open and closed.

Many of the blouse coats have short, square tails, and the revers turn back all around the neck and fronts of equal depth and have cuffs equally corresponding in style. The sack coat, reaching barely to the hips or quite level to the waist, is a favorite model, and the sleeves are all large and drawn into some species of wide cuff.

Belts are now of great importance, and there are wide ones for the full, soft blouses of flannel crape or oriental silk and narrow ones excessively elongated in front to wear with the waists which have closely fitted backs and for the blouse coat, which is usually worn with a narrow waistband.

An up to date chemise is here shown. The fullness is held in as far down as the waist. JUDIC CHOLLET.

ODDS AND ENDS.

The New Belts Have Artistic Buckles—Petticoats.

Many of the new wide belts have exquisite buckles set with stones or in the art nouveau style with just a few cabochons of turquoise or jade, and these buckles are arranged at the back and correspond with the chatelaine purse worn in front.

These accessories are very pretty on a tailor made suit and are most useful on black or gray gowns.

Petticoats of rich brocade are shown for evening wear and to use as tea gowns.

MODES FOR THE FAIR.

Something About the New Materials, Gowns and Waists.

Of all the old fashioned dress stuffs nothing is daintier or prettier than challie. The manufacturers have evidently thought so, for the stores are full of the material in over 400 different designs. Some of them have the satin stripe over the surface, the latter having its pattern of tiny bouquets or single flowers. Others have crossbars of the stripes in different colors over the design, and others, again, have simply the floral design without stripes, but instead delicate weaving, like lace. But, no matter what the design is or its complications, the soft and flexible quality of the challie remains. Perhaps the most attractive of all the designs is that in which the old pompadour figure is used. We see the challies in every shade and color of this season, some dark and some even with black groundwork. But the dainty and pretty flowers are perfect, each after its kind, looking like tiny roses or other blossoms. Among the designs brought out in the challies are, besides the floral patterns, Persians, dresdens and escurials on light or dark grounds. Some of the challies have a regular crape twist, which makes them hang like china crape. They are to be made into tea gowns as well as other house dresses, and it is even said that they will be among the best liked of summer frocks. Lace and ribbon are needed to make them all that one could wish.

Speaking of tea gowns reminds me that there is a great revival in the popularity of these graceful if somewhat careless garments. I mean that the tea gowns are rather negligee, though they cost enough to be full dress, with diamonds thrown in. They are loose and long and somehow create the idea that the wearer is making herself comfortable, and we all know that no woman has the right to do that "in company." Still, the tea gown is here and will stay.

The tea gowns of this season are indifferently of surah, liberty, voile, crepe de chine, poplin, albatross cloth, cashmere, drap d'ete, panne, chiffon over silk, challie and india silk. Billows of lace are placed wherever the fertile mind of a dressmaker can imagine it, and there are insets, applications and more ways and kinds of lace trimmings than I can remember. All the skirts are made into such fluffs of ruffles with ruches of chiffon on the edges that the bottom sets out in the most approved fashion. Ribbon is put on in many ways, even to being added in the form of "love knots" at one shoulder or another.

Most of the very fine tea gowns are of china crape in pink, blue or some of the delicate pastel shades which are back among this season's colors. Many have Irish crochet lace boleros, and others show deep sailor collars of fine mousseline with an overlay of rich lace. Others have deep yokes made of heavy renaissance lace, and, in fact, one can have anything one wants in the line of tea gowns. Only the long, loose shape is preserved.

Shirt waists and other separate waists are still with us and are likely to remain. Generally speaking, they do not vary much from those of last year. The principal thing to note about them is the exceedingly ugly and awkward sleeve. All the sleeves are built more or less on the same lines and are cumbersome and baggy at the bottom and made snug at the top. Most often this is done by having the top laid in tucks or folds. A few years ago we had the "leg o' mutton" sleeves, and they were very ugly, but they only interfered with the comfort of your neighbor, while these bother the wearer most miserably. They get into the soup and catch on everything and are not even pretty. Can any one account for the vagaries of women's fancies? I cannot.

Plaid silk is quite a fad for waists, and the woman whose wardrobe lacks a plaid silk shirt waist is indeed to be commiserated. All plaid silk or woolen waists require a little dark velvet as finish to tone down the warring colors.

A new and dainty evening corsage for a young lady is made to match the rest of the dress, although it is removable. It is made of white dotted silk mull over pale blue. There are flat bands of ribbon to match the under color and narrow ribbons of the same shade to define the bands. A half wreath of pink roses crosses the front. The whole design is very girlish.

A pretty liberty waist is laid in folds, and there is a sailor collar of Irish point on batiste. These collars are generally made removable, so that they can be worn with any dress. Boleros are made in the same way.

one of the pickers!—the words rang in Rossiter's ears. Why not himself? Certainly he was strong enough, and, he flattered himself, clever enough. He was very sure that he could acquire the knack of pole-pulling quickly—knack, it was evident, had much to do with it. He had watched the young man whom Jack Parmelee had named a number of times that afternoon, as he groaned over lifting an obstinate pole, and told himself that he did not believe he should make such a to-do.

He walked on several paces, meditating the while. Pole-pulling was much harder work, doubtless, than picking hops, but then the pay was more. If he were going to turn his back upon his old ways, he might as well begin whole-heartedly. He wheeled swiftly towards the two men seated in the door of the hop-kiln. They ceased speaking as he drew near, and realizing that his mood might change if he beat about the bush Rossiter went straight to the point.

"I overheard you say," he began, "as I was passing just now, that you are going to be short of a pole-puller. I'd like to have a chance at the job, if you'll let me."

"Let's see," answered Parmelee, leaning forward to scan Rossiter's face more closely, "what's your name? I don't seem to recall."

"Rossiter."

"Oh, yes! Come with the Becraft boys, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"Ever pull poles?"

"No, I never have, but I was watching the chap named Gridley, of whom you were speaking—he pulled for my box to-day—and I think I can do as well as he."

Parmelee looked Rossiter up and down. Then he rose and felt of his arm.

"I guess you'll do," he remarked, with one of his gruff chuckles. "I'll show you the trick in the mornin'."

"Thank you," said Rossiter, turning away.

"Obliged to you," answered Parmelee. "Glad you spoke about it. Helps me out considerable."

Rossiter walked from the farmyard with a sense of elation. His blood seemed suddenly to pulse more swiftly, and mounted to his head like wine. He paused an instant at the gate, wondering if Joe Becraft had returned, thinking to tell him of the step he had taken, but Joe was not among those who were loitering there. He glanced up and down the road, debating which way he should stroll, not caring to join his gossiping fellow-pickers. One addressed him, but he replied briefly and moved to the right in the direction opposite from that which he and Becraft had taken the evening before.

"Rum feller, that," said one of those at the gate.

"Yes," said another, "sort of a cross 'tween a tramp an' a dude," a remark which evoked a burst of merriment.

Rossiter felt that he was the subject of their mirth, but this realization did not lower the pitch of his mood. He smiled, put his shoulders back, and swung away briskly into the dusk. He was conscious that he was rapidly putting off his indifference. It did not occur to him to doubt his ability to succeed in the work which he had elected to undertake on the morrow. The waxing half-disk of the new moon cast his shadow before him, and in this and the chirr song of the crickets there was sufficient companionship. He was glad he had not found Becraft.

"WHAT'S YOUR NAME? I DON'T SEEM TO RECALL YOU."

After he had proceeded thus alertly for half a mile, the highway dipped sharply into a wide and deep vale that was packed with the dense shadows of night. Beyond, upon an opposite crest, a group of fir trees thrust their dark pyramids into the sky. Rossiter had no mind to plunge into this gloomy void, so he seated himself in a fence corner above the road, his back against the rails, and lighted his pipe. He was more free with his tobacco now that he actually had something like steady employment.

In the darkness not far distant a wood-thrush was sending up its final evening flute-notes. Rossiter listened to the rapt soloist, having no thought of the past nor of the future, conscious only of the present. When the bird ceased singing there was still the orchestral music of the crickets for his delectation. The moon was well risen in the heaven by the time his pipe burned out, yet he had no desire as yet to return to the farm. The vale below had gradually emerged from its obscurity and was brimmed with moonlight like an enormous bowl. He fancied he could make out the forms of grazing cattle, and caught the silvery moonsheen upon the running water. The half-distinct panorama held him until his attention was taken by a sound which he presently made out to be the footfalls of a pedestrian plodding along the road from the direction of the Mertons.

The large, slouching figure of a man at length came into view. Directly opposite where Rossiter sat the wayfarer paused. A wide-brimmed felt hat so hid his face that all Rossiter could distinguish was a stubby beard. The whilom at once set the new-comer down as one of the indigent fraternity to which he had so recently belonged, and, having no desire for speech with him, did not move. But the man in the highway, halted as Rossiter had been by the vast dip and sweep of the land, cast his eyes about as if for a spot to rest before going farther. On the reclining form upon the bank, clearly revealed by the moonlight, his glance naturally fell.

"Hullo!" he said in gruff surprise.

"Hullo!" returned Rossiter reluctantly.

"Campin' fer the night?"

"No, not exactly."

"Room fer two, partner?"

"I haven't a mortgage on the place."

The man had moved several steps in Rossiter's direction, but the tone from the fence-corner had not been especially cordial, and he now stopped.

"Got any terbaccer about yer?" he inquired, as a means of renewing the conversation.

"None to spare."

"Huh!" said the man, "you're not very damn friendly."

He pushed back his hat, and for the first time the moonlight fell full upon a countenance that if once seen was not likely to be forgotten. It was towny-bearded almost to the close-set eyes, and the effect was at the same time fantastic and repellant.

"Whiskers!"—Rossiter's lips unconsciously framed the name by which this man, Hart Dawson, was commonly known among his associates. The mind of the younger vagabond reverted with swift distinctness to a certain chilly night in the Arkansas bottom-lands when he, with Hart Dawson and a pal of the latter, had sought shelter in a rough lean-to. Chance had made the three companions, and they had shared fortunes for several weeks. In the heart of that bitter night Rossiter had awakened, bitten to the bone by the cold, to find himself alone, the thick coat which he had wrapped about him gone, in its pockets the few small coins which he possessed. It was a sharp experience, and while Rossiter was not one of the sort to cherish a grudge, he had reason to bear the man before him small good-will.

Do You Wish To Borrow Money?

In order to accommodate all classes of borrowers (those who cannot borrow at a bank, as well as those who can), the Mutual Loan and Investment Company, of 118 Market street, Newark, N. J., has a department for handling quickly and confidentially loans ranging from $10 to $300 on furniture, pianos, storage receipts, etc.

The security is not removed from your possession or in any way disturbed. The honest, careful and conservative borrower will try and decide two points before borrowing. First, where he can get the best terms. Second, where he can get fair and square treatment.

This company is in a position to give you by far the most satisfactory terms ever offered by any concern or individual negotiating this class of loans.

With this company you are assured of getting the lowest rates, easiest payments and longest time for repayment. The whole transaction from the time the application is made until loan is paid is entirely confidential. We give you another advantage in case you take the loan out for six months or a year, and wish to settle the same before the time expires: we charge you only for the time you have had the money. We also take up loans from other companies and advance more money.

Kindly call and let us explain our simple and up-to-date methods. If not entirely convenient for you to call, please write and our representative will call and give you any desired information. Remember it costs nothing to make application. Loans promptly made in Elizabeth, Plainfield, Westfield, Roselle, Rahway, Perth Amboy and all suburban towns.

MOSBY WAS PLUCKY.

Guerrilla Leader Talks About Some of His War Doings.

Tells of Sending a Lock of His Hair to President Lincoln—Latter Enjoyed the Jest and Laughed About It.

John S. Mosby, well known as the commander of a guerrilla band in the service of the confederacy during the war of the states, and who is now a special employe of the department of the interior, showed a willingness to talk about his wartime experiences to a Washington Star reporter a day or two ago. The latter inquired into the truth of a story that he had entered Alexandria in disguise and had engaged in some daredevil trick.

"Oh, that story is all nonsense," said Col. Mosby. "I never went to a place in disguise in my life. These stories arose because of the rapid movements of my command. Why, there is an official telegram on file in the war department, stating that I was in Washington in conference with Wilkes Booth the night of the killing of President Lincoln. It is needless to say that the statement was known to be false by most of the federal generals.

"Yes, I frequently got close to Washington during the war. Many a time I would ride up to the hill up yonder across the Potomac and look down upon the city. I might have one or two men with me, and we would soon disappear. Just over on the Virginia side early one morning I met Mrs. Barlow on her way into Washington with a wagon full of vegetables. Her husband was a federal soldier and she was a northern woman. She had a pass to go in and out of Washington and drove into the city often from her farm. I used to go to her house often and get a good cup of coffee. Of course, she gave it to us, knowing that we rather had charge of things along on that side of the river. Well, on this particular morning Mrs. Barlow had a pair of scissors hanging from her apron. After I had talked with her awhile I said:

"'Mrs. Barlow, lend me your scissors.'

"She handed them to me, and I reached up to my head, got hold of a bunch of hair, cut it off and said: 'Mrs. Barlow, please take this lock of my hair right in to Lincoln, and say to him that I am coming in to see him soon and will expect a lock of his hair in return.' She looked much puzzled, but she said she would do it.

"I found out afterward that she rode straight to the white house and gave the hair to the president personally, refusing to give it to anyone else. The president was amused and laughed heartily. No, I was not afraid to do this, because I knew that by the time the president could attempt to catch me I would be 30 miles away. President Lincoln never made an attempt to catch me, because he knew that I would be somewhere else when his men arrived. Many people took information of me into Washington for the purpose of trying to bring about my capture.

"I covered the entire south side of the Potomac for many miles each way, and the largest number of men I had in 1864, when Sheridan was in the Shenandoah valley, was five troops of cavalry, a total of 250 men. With that command we captured all the arms we needed, all the ammunition, food and clothing, and had a wagon train running to Lee's army frequently with supplies we had captured. No, I was never a general. I was a private in the First Virginia cavalry for the first two years after the war, and began raising my command after that time, beginning with one troop of cavalry. Each man was armed with two pistols and a saber. We had no carbines."

Some Long-Lived Popes.

But two popes have lived longer than the present occupant of the fisherman's throne. St. Agatho, who died at the age of 107 in 682, and Gregory IX., who died in 1241 at the age of 99 years. The list of those who have surpassed the reign of Leo XIII. is longer, and is headed by St. Peter, who reigned (33 to 68) 34 years 6 months and 17 days; Adrich I. (771-795) 24 years 10 months and 17 days; Alexander III. (1151-1181), 30 years 11 months and 23 days; and Pius IX. (1846-1878), 31 years 7 months and 22 days.

Difficult Reading Matter.

Of the 400 inscribed clay slabs found in the ruins of Babylon by the expedition sent out by the German Oriental society, but two have yet been deciphered, one explaining the Babylonian cuneiform characters and the other containing the litany chanted by the singers of the temple of Esagila on the return of the god Marduk to his sanctuary.

DECISION TO STAND.

Uncle Sam Will Abide by the Ruling of King Oscar.

History of Controversy Which Had Its Origin in Far-Off Samoa and Now Has Been Settled at Stockholm.

The ruling of King Oscar of Sweden and Norway, in the Samoan controversy, against the United States and Great Britain and in favor of Germany, is hailed with some surprise by many papers. The decision "is staggering, to put it mildly," declares the Brooklyn Eagle; and the New York Tribune says it is "surprising and inexplicable." The decision holds that the landing of marines on April 1, 1899, at Apia was not justified, and that, in consequence, the governments of Great Britain and the United States must pay the complainants for their loss. How the division of payment between the United States and Great Britain will be made does not seem to be known in the state department, but it is believed that it may have to be arranged by a special agreement between the two countries. The origin of the controversy is told briefly in the following paragraph taken from the New York Tribune:

"The dispute now decided grew out of the concerted action of Rear Admiral Kautz, of the United States navy, and Capt. Sturdy, of the British navy, in leading a combined American and British force at Apia on April 1, 1899, for the purpose of making a reconnoissance and breaking up Mataafa's supporters, who were in rebellion against the recognized government. It was on this occasion that Philip Landsdale, the executive officer of the Philadelphia, Ensign J. R. Monaghan and two enlisted Americans, and Lieut. Freeman and two British sailors were killed. Surgeon Lung, now President Roosevelt's physician, was the medical officer of the landing party. The United States ship Badger was promptly sent to the scene, carrying an international commission composed of Bartlett Tripp, representing the United States; Baron von Sternberg, the German commissioner, and C. N. Elliott, the British commissioner. Claims amounting to nearly $30,000 were filed by German, French, British and American residents on account of damages caused by the landing party. As the chief result of the investigations of the commission, the tripartite agreement of 1889 was abrogated, the islands being divided between the United States and Germany, while Great Britain withdrew. A convention was signed at Washington on November 7, 1899, submitting the claims of Samoan residents to the king of Sweden and Norway for arbitration, the main questions being whether the military action of the United States and Great Britain had been warranted."

"The sum is insignificant," remarks the New York Times, "but the position taken by the king of Sweden and the principles which appear to have guided his judgment would be of the more serious importance if they were to be considered as establishing a precedent." "The United States will take its own medicine, even though the flavor be unpleasant," comments the New York Tribune. It adds: "In the whole history of international arbitration the United States has fared so well that it can easily afford to accept with good grace this minor defeat. There will be no begrudging Germany her victory, any more than there will be in Germany any doubt of the good faith of the United States."

When a Man Is Drunk.

An English magistrate has added another to the many judicial dicta on the subject of how to test whether a man is drunk or not. "Were you drunk?" asked counsel of a witness in a case at Norwich. "Well, I knew what I was doing," replied the witness. "Ah," interrupted the recorder, "when a man is drunk and knows that he is drunk, then he is not drunk; but when he is drunk and does not know that he is drunk, then he is drunk, indeed."

Justice Married Himself.

Justice of the Peace Henry Bundy, of Jersey City, recently married Mrs. Mary Becker, and the ceremony was performed before a mirror. The bridegroom officiated as the minister, and, looking in the glass, asked the usual questions of his own reflection, and answered them himself. Then he pronounced the couple man and wife, kissed the bride twice, once for the justice, and once for the groom, and then started on his honeymoon trip.

C. C. BUELL VERY ILL.

A Former North Plainfielder in a Serious Condition at Camden.

Charles C. Buell, who now resides at Camden but who formerly lived in North Plainfield, and who has been lying at the point of death for several days, was given up by his physicians Wednesday. Thursday, however, he rallied and yesterday he was somewhat improved although he is still dangerously ill.

Mr. Buell, besides being a man of letters and remarkable executive ability, is an inventor of some repute. It is his patent that is being experimented with on some of the western railroads which makes it possible to telephone from a moving train using the telegraph wires as telephone conduits. He also patented the pocket knife which opens with a button on the side.

TWO CASES.

Small-Pox Patients Discovered and Removed to Isolation Hospital.

Dr. Marcus L. Clawson discovered two cases of small-pox yesterday on West Fourth street, in what is know as Battle Row. Those ill are Mrs. Addie Henry and her son, aged two and a half years old, colored. The boy was taken ill first. Dr. Clawson reported the cases to the Board of Health and last evening they were removed to the isolation hospital. Mrs. Gerold, the trained nurse, is in charge. As yet the Board of Health has not learned the cause of the outbreak, but a thorough investigation will be made at once.

Injured Holding Horse.

Horace J. Martin, of Somerset street, is suffering from a severe wrench to his hip, caused by a horse making a sudden lurch in his blacksmith shop. Mr. Martin thought the animal would get away and in getting him under control Mr. Martin sustained the injury.

No Supper After All.

Owing to the lateness of the season the supper planned by the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church will not be given next Thursday as announced. Those who have paid for tickets can have their money refunded. The supper was postponed from January 29 on account of the railroad wreck.

SPECIAL ELECTION.

Transpired at Regular Meeting of Perseverance Lodge, K. of P., Last Evening.

At its regular meeting, last evening, Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., elected the following officers, all but one of whom were advanced through a vacancy occurring: Vice chancellor, James McGinley; prelate, Thos. Muir; master-at-arms, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr.; inner guard, Philip Jahn. The officers were immediately installed by District Deputy Jere VanWinkle and his staff.

In the regular order of business, the second rank was conferred upon one candidate and resolutions were passed conveying the sympathy of the lodge to the parents of Harvey L. Patterson, who was vice chancellor of Perseverance Lodge when he lost his life in the Westfield wreck.

CLOSING NIGHT.

Still Junior Fair Continues to Attract Many People.

A special programme was prepared last night for the entertainment of the patrons of Benevolent Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. fair which has been held every night during the week at Saengerbund Hall. Among the other attractions was dancing which has been a marked feature of the bazaar. Tonight will be the closing night of the fair and it is probable that there will be a large attendance. A large delegation of Juniors from Elizabeth and Cranford will attend.

The fair which was held a year ago was very successful but this year's bazaar will surpass the other by almost a hundred dollars. This money will be used for the general fund of the lodge.

KICKED BY HORSE.

Small Boy Run Close to Animal's Heels With Serious Results.

William Halton, colored, whose parents resides on West Third street, was kicked by a horse last night and was severely injured. The lad was playing on the sidewalk when he started to cross the street. A team was being driven by and just as the horses passed him one of them kicked out with his hind foot and struck the boy in the stomach. The boy lay for several minutes on the roadway in a dazed condition until he was carried into the home of his parents a half a block away by some of his comrades. He is not considered in a serious condition.

Has Not Settled.

Mrs. L. Craig Waldron, of 237 East Fifth street, wishes The Daily Press to state that she has not effected a settlement with the New Jersey Central for $6,000 as reported. She says that she has not settled with the railroad company, neither does she intend to settle yet. Mrs. Waldron is not able to see any one, being detained at home with bronchitis brought on by exposure and worry the night of January 27.

JUNIOR CLASS GAVE PLAY

FARCE GIVEN AT THE BOROUGH HIGH SCHOOL LAST EVENING.

Entertainment Given to Senior Class by the Juniors—Those Who Took Part.

A reception and entertainment was tendered the Senior class of the Borough High School last evening by the pupils of the Junior class, at which the principal feature was a comedy farce of three acts.

Those who took part in the play were Miss Ethel Quipp as Mrs. Podgus; Leonard Mantz as Jack; Ethel Daggett as Bertie; Hanford Miller as Tony; Mabel Farlee as Janette; Florence White as Miss VanCourt; May Davenport as Miss Emerson; Mary Woolston as Miss Etta Bartlett; Ernest Powlison as Arthur Ward; Leslie Backer as Frits Edwards, and Maxie Mair as Jane. All carried their parts well.

Refreshments were served after which dancing was enjoyed until nearly midnight.

The committee which had the affair in charge comprised Leslie Backer, chairman; Miss Ethel Davenport, Miss Ethel Daggett, Miss Ethel Quipp, Miss Florence White, Miss Maizie Mair, Miss Marie Woolston, Ernest Powlison, Leonard Mantz, Hanford Miller, Miss Sadie Fountain and Miss Mabel Farlee. The players were coached in their respective parts by Miss Bush.

POOL TOURNAMENT.

Was Main Feature of Friday Night Club Meeting.

A pool tournament was the main feature of last night's session of the Friday Night Club at the Casino. There were no winners as the tournament will not be completed for three or four weeks. In the main hall bedminton was played while in the ping-pong parlors that game was the main feature. The attendance at the club meetings still remains good and the prospects that the club will continue to hold sessions late into the spring are good.

Extract From Lucile.

We may live without poetry, music and art;
We may live without conscience and live without heart;
We may live without friends; we may live without books;
But civilized man cannot live without cooks.

Since we must have cooks—what's a cook without fire?
A cook must have coal—and the best will require.
You may search far and near, you may hunt high and low,
But the best coal comes straight from Consumers' Coal Co.

Wrecked the Wagon.

Trolley car No. 23, of the Fourth street line, collided with a wagon belonging to S. Schener & Company on West Fourth street, near Grant avenue, last evening at about 7:45 o'clock. Adam Angerbauer was in charge of the wagon. As a result of the collision one wheel of the wagon was wrecked. It is believed that a satisfactory settlement for damages will be effected.

Front Forks Broke.

Walter G. Burton, an employe of the Pond Machine Tool Company, was riding his bicycle down Park avenue last night when he suddenly fell from the machine through the breaking of the front forks. He was thrown to the ground suffering severe contusions to the head and face. He was taken to his home in the borough, where a physician dressed the wounds.

More Wire Gone.

Traffic on the Westfield line of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway was impeded for several hours this morning by wire thieves again working near Galvin's Park last night. Several hundred feet of the power strand was taken from over one track. Cars were run over the other track until repairs were made.

Auction Sale.

Attention is called to the advertisement in this issue regarding the auction sale of furniture which will take place at the home of Mrs. Ethan Lanphear, 502 Central avenue, Tuesday afternoon, beginning at 1 o'clock. P. H. Latourette will be auctioneer.

Valentine Party.

Miss Marion Pierson, of Grant avenue, gave a Valentine party last evening to a number of her friends. A very pleasant evening was spent in playing games, after which refreshments were served.

Trinity Commandery to Meet.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., will hold a conclave Monday evening and work the Order of the Temple on one candidate. There will also be an address by a well-known Templar from Boston.

The Great Coal Saver
THE ÆOLIPYLE

THIRTY DAYS TRIAL FREE

As important an invention for the purposes intended as the Telephone.

NOW IS THE TIME

Now is a good time—cold and warm days alternating—to test the Æolipyle. It is equally valuable in mild weather as in cold, as the heat can be perfectly regulated, giving as much or little as desired and all the time saving coal.

SAVES 25 PER CENT. IN COAL

The Æolipyle saves 25 per cent in coal, will more than pay for itself this winter and return 100 per cent dividend annually.

INCREASES HEAT

It consumes the coal gas, which is turned into heat, and thereby prevents all escape of gas into the house.

EVEN TEMPERATURE

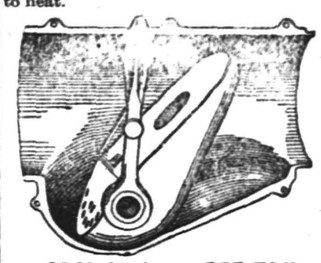
The Æolipyle maintains an even temperature through the whole house, night and day. It insures a warm house in the morning.

REDUCES LABOR

The furnace, with an Æolipyle attached, requires attention morning and night only. The coal is all consumed to a fine ash, hence no sifting of ashes

NO COLD ROOMS

The Æolipyle attached to a furnace, hot water or steam heater, will heat every part of the house, including that room which you have never been able to heat.



COAL AT $4.50 PER TON

If we should offer to sell you coal at $4 50 when you know that the selling price is $6 and upward we would secure your trade. Yet that is practically what we are doing. The Æolipyle will make three-quarters of a ton of coal produce better results than a ton without it.

OWNERS OF LARGE BUILDINGS will find the Æolipyle a coal saver, will be able to keep an even temperature with a great saving of labor, as one stoker can care for as many fires as five without it.

TENANTS

Tenants can have the Æolipyle attached, save 25 per cent. in coal, and take the Æolipyle with them on removal.

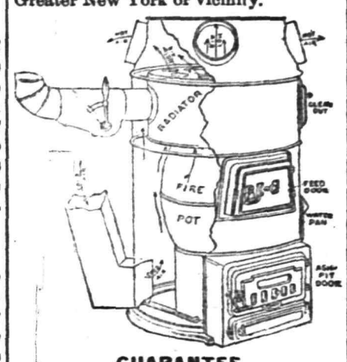
APPLICATION

The ÆOLIPYLE is applied at smoke collar of the furnace, or within six inches thereof, thus giving the results we claim for it.

COST OF THE ÆOLIPYLE

THE PRICE OF THE ÆOLIPYLE is $15 for 7 inch and upward for larger diameter of smoke pipe. It is merely nominal. The Æolipyle is indestructible, and will last as long as a furnace.

The above prices include attaching the Æolipyle to your heater anywhere in Greater New York or vicinity.



GUARANTEE

We will apply the ÆOLIPYLE, give you 30 days' free trial, and if it does not do all that we say it will we will remove it and restore your plant without cost to you. A PERFECTLY SAFE PROPOSITION FOR YOU.

ARE YOU INTERESTED?

If you are interested and wish to save twenty-five per cent in coal, if you wish to have an even temperature throughout your house night and day, if you wish to have more heat and warm every room in your house, if you wish to avoid sifting of ashes, if you wish to prevent coal gas in your house, if you wish for greater comfort, the ÆOLIPYLE will do all of the above for you. If you cannot call at our store and see the ÆOLIPYLE in operation, fill up the coupon below.

BADE THEM A FAREWELL

Rev. J. W. Richardson Spoke to Members of the Church and the Knights Templar.

MASONS THERE IN BODY

Farewell Sermon Preached at Park Avenue Baptist Church Last Evening Previous to His Departure to Stamford, Conn.—Substance of His Sermon.

Rev. John Wilbur Richardson, who, during the past ten years has been the pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church and who recently resigned to accept the pastorate of the Baptist church at Stamford, Conn., preached his farewell sermon at the Park Avenue Baptist church last evening. The edifice was thronged with members of the church and congregation, while almost the entire membership of Trinity Commandery, No. 71, K. T., in which Mr. Richardson held the office of prelate, in dress uniform and Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., of which he was chaplain, occupied seats reserved for them.

The fact that the members of the Masonic Order attended in a body was a touching and impressive tribute to the retiring minister, who is so highly esteemed by all who know him. Mr. Richardson's sermon was a strong and able discourse and to the point. It was listened to with strict attention by everyone present, all feeling deeply the force of the words spoken.

The preacher took for his text II Cor. xii :11: "Finally, Brethren, farewell. Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace." In part he spoke as follows:

"Brethren, whatever prosperity this church enjoys, is due to its unswerving loyalty to the Word of God. Pay no attention to what others may deem unpopular in your teaching. Modify none of your doctrines by public sentiment. Avoid interpretations of the Scriptures, so false and biased, that each reading only gives birth to newer doubts and questionings. But quarry the marble for your temple of faith, from the white peaks of Christ's words. Let the altar be erected on the merits of Christ's atonement. Let allegiance to Christ's commands be chisselled over the door. As a Baptist church, recognize no other authority in the universe, save Jesus Christ your Great Head. A skeptic recently said, 'It is a ludicrous thing in this age, to see men hide behind texts and cry, 'Thus saith the Lord.'' O modern shylocks teach you a lesson; take no man to be your pastor, who will not place himself behind Christ's words. The genuine, Christian minister must hide behind his text, that he may preach only Christ crucified to the people.

"Do not expect the church as an organization to do what belongs to each member to perform. It is ridiculous for a person to pray for the conversion of the heathen, and yet place a nickel on the plate when the missionary collection is taken. It is superb folly to prate about the church going after the common people, yet turn the cold shoulder toward the stranger who enters the church-door The piety of the individual; the measure of each member's fidelity to Christ; is what that member contributes towards the efficiency of the church, and its reputation in the community.

"With the wisest charty, tolerate liberty of opinion; respect each other's conclusions, cultivate the spirit of harmony. Each church, composed of people of so many temperaments, all things should be subordinated to the interests of Christ. Aim to live in peace, and give every man credit for his opinions. If one makes a mistake in judgment, for the sake of peace, let him be manly enough to confess it. He, who is too proud and obstinate to confess an error, or forsake a wrong policy, is a fool as well as a coward. Let peace become the guardian angel of the church."

In an apostrophe to Templarism, the speaker said: "We do honor the superb Christ, before whom we uncover our heads of reverent worship. It is true that some weak frater may forget the chamber of reflection, and the mighty scene on Calvary. But thank God, there are thousands of true hearts, who preach the manhood of Jesus; the sanctity of the home; and who would draw the shining steel

IN HUFF'S COURT.

Two Cases in Which Zimmerman Was Plaintiff Were Tried.

The contract case of Zimmerman against McVey was tried before Justice Huff, Friday afternoon. W. S. Angleman represented the plaintiff and H. C. Runyon the defendant. The justice reserved his decision.

Zimmerman against Granger, in tort, was tried Friday afternoon before Justice Huff and a jury of six men, A. S. Runyon, Wm. Thorn, Frederick Anderson, W. D. Clawson, Louis Willett and Alfred P. Drew. The jury brought in a verdict of no cause for action. W. S. Angleman represented the plaintiff and S. S. Swackhamer the defendant.

MAY CLEAR UP MYSTERY

THE BUNCH OF KEYS AND NAME TAG REGARDED AS IMPORTANT CLUE.

Found Near Scene of Westfield Disaster, and Belonged, Perhaps, to Wreck Victim.

Officials in this city and of the New Jersey Central regard a letter received by Dr. F. W. Westcott from Assistant County Prosecutor English, extremely important in regard to learning the identity of the unclaimed wreck victim at Cole's undertaking parlors. An attempt is being made to follow up the clue revealed, and developments are anxiously awaited.

The letter is here given in full:

Elizabeth, Feb. 11, 1903.

Frank W. Westcott, M. D.

Dear Sir: A few days ago a man named Charles E. Mackintosh, of this city, called at my office and said that a few days after the Westfield disaster he found near the scene a ring of keys. The ring was marked "Gannett, Derby, N. H.," and also bore the inscription "B. of R. R. T.," which I think is an abbreviation of the name of a railroad employes' fraternal society. He gave the keys to a brakeman employed on a train which was stopping there at the time, and whose name he does not remember. I write thinking that possibly this information may be of some value to you.

Yours respectfully,
John K. English.

UNITY TO CELEBRATE.

Passing of Twentieth Year as An Organization to be Fittingly Observed.

Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., is completing arrangements to celebrate on a large scale, the twentieth anniversary of its organization which falls on Thursday evening, February 26. Democratic headquarters on East Second street has been engaged for the occasion and Pythian lodges from this city, Bound Brook, Somerville and Elizabeth will be entertained. In addition Crescent Division, Uniformed Rank, of this city, will attend in a body.

Unity Lodge is one of the organizations which was burned out through the destruction of the Babcock building, last March, but none have made more rapid strides since. It has recovered entirely from the temporary set-back and the score year anniversary will be observed as fully as if nothing had occurred.

HUDSON OBJECTS.

Upper County Says Newcorn's Bill is Outrageous.

Assemblyman Newcorn's new bill providing that all building and loan associations shall make certain reports to the department of insurance and banking during the year, has aroused a storm of indignation in Hudson county, and those affected in that end of the State will send a big delegation to Trenton on Monday when a hearing on the bill be given. Some of the people in Jersey City have characterized the bill as outrageous. Others have said that the bill is all right and protects the investor.

Her Seventieth Birthday.

In honor of the seventieth anniversary of the birth of Mrs. Philpitt, of the borough, a party was given at her home Friday night. A very pleasant time was spent in singing and playing games, after which refreshments were served. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Dentz, Mrs. A. Windham, the Misses Philpitt, Miss Windham, Miss Dentz, Oscar Philpit and Frank Dentz.

Profit of Fair.

The women of St. Peter's German Lutheran church believe that $150 will be the profit from the recent fair. The money will be used to liquidate the indebtedness on the church.

JUNIORS' FAIR WILL BE CONTINUED TONIGHT

Its Great Success Last Week Encouraged Committee to Continue It This Evening.

SOME DRAWINGS MADE

SATURDAY SAW 598 ADMISSIONS SOLD —A RECORD-BREAKING CROWD.

The Remainder of the Contests Will be Awarded This Evening—The Dancing Will Still be One of the Principal Features.

Saengerbund Hall was again crowded Saturday night when the fair of the Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., was to have come to a close after a week's run. At a meeting of the committee, which was held in the committee room of the hall early in the evening, however, it was decided that the fair would be continued for another night. This evening will, therefore, be the closing night when all the contests will be awarded according to the lucky numbers. Dancing will also be a feature of the evening as it has been all during the past week.

Two contests were awarded Saturday evening. One was the contest on a sofa pillow which was drawn by No. 86, held by J. B. Smith, of the Plainfield Beef Company. The second was a contest on a table cover of handsome tapestry. It was won by A. R. Trenchand. Secretary A. G. Adams, of the committee, announced that the pair of slippers which was drawn by ticket No. 20 on Wednesday evening has not been awarded.

After the fair had closed, at 11:30 Saturday night it was found that 598 admissions had been sold at the ticket office. This was the largest number of people which has attended the fair any one night during the past week. The large number of people present did not hinder the dancing in any way, however. The dance music during the entire week was rendered by Suhr's full orchestra and this evening there will be several extra musicians in the orchestra.

DANGEROUS SPOT.

Sudden Descent to a Duck Pond Makes Traveling Dangerous.

Many complaints have been received by the local authorities regarding the dangerous spot on Park avenue just over the city line fronting the old Stelle property. One side of the road makes a sudden descent to a duck pond and the protecting fence has been broken down. There is nothing to prevent a horse or vehicle from slipping over if driven a little too close. The danger cannot be remedied by local officials as the property is in Middlesex county.

STILL AFTER IT.

Borough Board of Health Keeping Watch on Gas Company.

Owing to numerous complaints which have been made by the Borough Board of Health, regarding the emptying of sludge into Green Brook by the local gas company, the latter have been carting it to a field on the outskirts of the borough where they have been dumping it. A complaint was made to the gas company by the Board of Health and Thursday they set fire to the pile. It blazed for almost twenty-four hours.

Talk by Active Worker.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will meet tomorrow afternoon in the parlors of the church and listen to an address by Miss Joanna P. Moore, who was one of the first missionaries to the colored people at the close of the Civil War. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Official Board Meeting..

The meeting of the official board, of Grace M. E. church, which was to have been held after the regular prayer meeting last Tuesday night has been postponed until tomorrow night when matters of importance will be brought up for discussion.

Cameron Club to Entertain.

The Cameron Pleasure Club has decided to hold a dance and entertainment in its rooms on February 24. A committee comprising Ira C. Bowers and James H. Haggarty has been chosen to complete the arrangements.

Star Course.

The Dunbar Handbell Ringers and Male Quartette Company, assisted by Miss Evalina Benton, reader, will entertain in the Y. M. C. A. Star Course, Monday evening, February 23.

MURDER OR ACCIDENT?

Lifeless Body of David S. Vail Found Beside the Railroad Tracks at the "Tanks."

LATE LAST EVENING

Only Injury Was a Deep Cut Over the Eye—Question Whether He Met Death by Train or Was Assaulted and His Body Placed Near the Railroad Tracks.

The lifeless body of David S. Vail, who lived at 520 Park avenue, this city, was found on the tracks of the New Jersey Central, a few rods east of the Greenbrook tanks, shortly before 11 o'clock, last night. Just how he met his death is a mystery as facts do not tend to show entirely that he was struck by a train. The body was in no way mangled, the only perceptible mark of any kind being a deep cut and abrasion just over the right eye. Railroad men say it does not resemble the blow given by an engine pilot, which invariable crushes the skull.

When discovered by Engineer Phillip Eder, of an east bound coal train, the body was still warm. In fact he was not positive the man was dead. The form was placed on the engine and taken to W. G. Runyon's undertaking parlors at Dunellen where identification was established by a bill head in the clothing. If struck by a train it was probably the west bound local that leaves Dunellen at 10:10 o'clock.

A theory has been advanced by competent persons that Vail was assaulted by tramps, which infest the vicinity, for the purpose of robbery or revenge. A blow may have been struck harder than was intended and when its result was discerned, if not already dead, he was placed alongside the tracks to give the impression he had been struck by a train.

Vail, who was a butcher's clerk in the employ of J. W. VanSickle, of North avenue, had been visiting friends in Lincoln during the afternoon. He was at Melvin Smalley's home at that place until late in the evening and where he went after that no one knows.

He was thirty years old and leaves a wife and two children. There are also several brothers living in this city and vicinity. No arrangements have as yet been made for the funeral services.

LARGEST SAFE.

Hibbard-Rodman-Ely Safe Company Has Just Completed Largest One It Ever Made.

Practical completion has been made by the local factory of the Hibbard-Rodman-Ely Safe Company of the largest safe the firm ever contracted to deliver. It requires but a few finishing touches before being ready to set up in the building of the Wisconsin Fidelity and Trust Company, of Milwaukee.

The safe has been made in five pieces, having a combined weight of 125 tons. Despite its immense size the huge door can be operated by a child and yet not a crack is visible through which a burglar might insert a dynamite fuse. It has many other features that will make it one of the most reliable receptacles in the world.

Ernest Thomson-Seton.

The announcement, that the famous author-artist will appear at the Casino next Monday, will undoubtedly attract large audiences. The lecture for the afternoon appeals particularly to the children, "The Indians as I Knew Them," while the evening subject will be interesting. Reserved seats for the lectures will be on sale at Armstrong's pharmacy tomorrow morning.

To Meet With Them.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will hold a prayer and praise service in the church, Thursday afternoon, at which time the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church will meet with them.

To Visit Florida.

Kenneth Robbie, assistant secretary of the Y. M. C. A. sailed Saturday afternoon for Jacksonville, Fla., having secured passage via Clyde Line steamer, Seminole, at the local office of the company, 197 North avenue.

MRS. CHARLES POTTER WAS LAID AT REST

Funeral Services Were Held From West Seventh Street Home Yesterday Afternoon.

INTERMENT AT HILLSIDE

REV. GEORGE B. SHAW AND REV. DR. A. H. LEWIS IN CHARGE.

Members of the Family Bore the Remains to Its Last Resting Place —Grand Floral Tributes—Many to Honor Her Memory.

Funeral services of Mrs Charles Potter, who passed away Friday at her residence on West Seventh street, were held yesterday afternoon at 2:30. The services which were conducted by Rev. George B. Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, assisted by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, who has known the family for many years and who was at one time Mrs. Potter's pastor.

The services were opened by Mr. Shaw with a prayer after which Dr. Lewis spoke of the life of the departed in a feeling manner. During the services a quartette comprising Sydney A. Titsworth, Miss Nancy Randolph, Miss Cornelia Miller and Elmer E. Runyon, rendered several selections accompanied on the organ by Arthur L. Titsworth.

There was a large gathering present at the house from the Potter Press Works, of which the late Charles Potter was the founder. There were also a large number of people present from New York, Wisconsin, Philadelphia, Rhode Island and New York City.

The remains were borne to the grave at Hillside cemetery by members of her family who acted as pall bearers: David E. Titsworth, J. M. Titsworth, Albert Sheppard, of Chicago; Superintendent H. M. Maxon, of the city schools; Irving Maxon, of Westerley, R. I.; and William C. Hubbard.

The display of flowers at the home was grand. There were a large number of handsome set pieces, the tributes of a host of mourning friends and relatives.

VALENTINE DINNER.

Given to Famous Illustrator and Wife at G. W. Edwards' Home.

A charming valentine dinner was given Saturday evening by Mr. and Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Chandler Chrysty, of New York, Mr. Chrysty is probably one of the best known illustrators in this country, and both he and his wife are prominent in New York society.

The decorations consisted of a profusion of carnations, lilies of the valley, together with hearts and darts, carrying out the idea of St. Valentine's Day. The affair was a great success and all enjoyed the delightful dinner. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Chandler Chrysty, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. George P. Mellick, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ladd, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. James R. Blake.

MISS LEWIS' WEDDING.

Quiet Ceremony to be Followed by Reception at Truell Court.

Invitations have been issued by Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Abram Herbert Lewis, of West Seventh street, to the wedding reception of their daughter, Eva Minnette, to Bennett William Spencer, of Milwaukee, Tuesday afternoon, February 24, from 4 until 6 o'clock at Truell Court. The wedding, which will be attended only by the immediate family, will first be held at the home of the bride's parents on West Seventh street. The bride and groom will be "at home" in Milwaukee, Wis.

Song Recital.

A song recital will be given in the First Baptist church tomorrow evening, under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society. Mr. Hanslanger, a well known baritone, of New York, and Miss Florence Wolfert, the violinist, will appear on the programme.

Matinee Entertainment.

A matinee entertainment will be given Washington's Birthday at 2:30 p. m. in Association Hall for the benefit of the Boys' Department. Vocal and instrumental solos and a chorus assisted by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra will be the feature.

Miss May Serrell, of Plainfield avenue, who underwent an operation last week for appendicitis, is steadily improving.

ADDITIONS TO HOUSES.

Permits Granted at Office of Building Inspector T. O. Doane.

Two permits for erecting additions to frame houses were issued Friday afternoon at the office of Building Inspector T. O. Doane. One is for an extension of 38x40x42 feet to the house owned by F. W. Rogers at 511 Madison avenue. The addition will be three stories in height and the architect will be F. W. Rogers, the mason, Titus H. Laury, and the carpenter, L. T. Titsworth.

Robert Rial was also granted a permit for the erection of an extension to his house at 318 East Fifth street. The extension will be 18x24x30. The carpenter will be John C. Stewart.

CONDEMNED CHEAP THEATRES

ROUNDLY DENOUNCED PICTURES ON LOCAL BILL BOARDS.

Strong Sermon by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck on Plainfield, Its Blessings and Its Dangers.

"The Visitations of God," was the subject of an excellent sermon delivered by Dr. Schenck yesterday morning in Trinity Reformed church, from the text, "Because thou knowest not the time of thy visitation." Luke xix, part of 44th verse. During the discourse he spoke of the steady growth of Plainfield and how God had truly blessed her in the past.

Plainfield's water supply, pure and faultless, made so by the natural filtration underlying Plainfield, was compared with that of Ithaca, where typhoid fever, brought about by impure water, was taking off young students by death. The preacher thanked God for the quality of the men who had served Plainfield as Mayors in the past and for the honorable record they had made. He said that all should be grateful to God for the clean record of the men who had served as Councilmen. No finger of dishonesty had ever been pointed to them while in office, or out of office.

Dr. Schenck spoke of the request made for granting a saloon license in the new western part of the city and said that it would be a great mistake. God has so abundantly prospered Plainfield and such an act would be an abomination in His sight, and Dr. Schenck lifted his voice against it. The very excellent system of public schools found favor with Dr. Schenck and he said that Plainfield should thank God for it and pray that it continue to be a glory to the city.

The cheap theatre was roundly condemned by Dr. Schenck, as a place where the morals of girls and boys were being undermined by performances that were not elevating and left their impress on the minds of the young. Dr. Schenck further commented on the style of pictures on the billboards on the streets of Plainfield and said that if the plays at the theatre were in keeping with the pictures thus displayed, Mayor Jenkins or some one in authority should see to it that the license of such places be revoked.

PRELATE'S LAST DUTY.

Departing Officer of Trinity Commandery Will be at Conclave This Evening.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., will hold a regular conclave this evening. The Order of the Temple will be conferred upon one candidate and this will probably be the last opportunity the members will have to witness the very impressive work of the retiring prelate, Rev. J. W. Richardson. The work will be embellished with new and special music. Eminent Sir Wilson G. Fox, of York Commandery, No. 55, K. T., of New York, has consented to be present and with his stereopticon display during the ceremony many beautiful Scriptural scenes. There will also be a short address by Eminent Sir John R. Tresidder, of New York, an orator of renown.

Temperance Meeting.

Under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church, a temperance meeting was held last evening prior to the regular preaching service.

Wants Premises.

Possession of premises has been demanded by Charles Hand from Mrs. L. M. Apgar, through Justice Moffett's court. The case will be heard this week.

In Justice Hand's Court.

Summons have been issued from Justice Hand's court in the contract case of Morris Newman against Scribner. They are returnable today.

TO IMPROVE ITS SERVICE

Mr. Huntington Says Central Will Continue to Make All Possible Improvements.

SEVERAL CONSIDERED

Automatic Device to Stop All Trains That Run Past Signals is Under Consideration—No More Grade Crossings—What Mr. Besler Has to Say on the Verdict.

When General Superintendent Huntington, of the New Jersey Central, was shown the verdict of the Coroner's jury in the Westfield disaster, Saturday, he told a reporter that the railroad is now making all possible improvements, and would continue to do so. He explained that certain railroads in the west were experimenting with electricity for headlights, but that his road was experimenting with acetylene gas, and hoped it would prove a better substitute than electricity for the present old headlights. Mr. Huntington said that ninety-nine per cent. of the locomotives in the country were now using oil for headlights.

The block signal system used on the New Jersey Central, he declared, was the best known. At present an automatic device was being considered, which if successful would bring to a stop all trains that passed signals. In the future all crossings would be either depressed or elevated at streets. The principal improvement of this character would be at Elizabethport, where the trains of the Long Branch division cross at grade.

Vice President and General Manager W. G. Besler, who resides in Washington Park, was questioned last evening as to his opinion of the verdict. He said: "If the public is satisfied the railroad company is." Mr. Besler, as he has previously stated, said that all the evidence pointed to the fact that Engineer Davis had disregarded six distinct signals. The seeing of any one of them would have prevented the disaster. Mr. Besler seemed to be thoroughly satisfied with the verdict, believing that it was given according to the honest belief of men whose integrity has never been questioned.

NEW LODGE.

Daniel Lodge, K. of P., Organized Among Local Colored Men.

Under the direction of James Scott, Daniel Lodge, No. 16, K. of P., was organized Thursday in Odd Fellows Hall on West Front street. The new lodge was set apart by Grand Chancellor Campbell, of Atlantic City, and Grand Deputy J. H. Mason, of Newark. The following officers were chosen: Chancellor commander, Chas. E. Jefferson; vice, W. W. Scott; keeper of record, Reuben Wray; master of exchequer, G. W. Alexander; master of finance, F. DeHart; prelate, C. M. Small; master-at-arms, Oston Knight; inner guard, H. Thomas; outer guard, David Thompson; master of work, E. Cuff.

The new lodge starts with a membership of twenty-eight and meetings will be held twice a month.

SMITH RELEASED.

Placed in Custody of the Probation Officer After Forty-Two Days.

Jesse R. Smith, the man arrested on a charge of breaking into the Netherwood station, was released Friday from the County Jail, in the custody of the County Probation officer. He had been confined forty-two days. In a short time Smith expects to leave Plainfield, and reside elsewhere.

Coming to Install.

Washington Camp, Patriotic Order Sons of America, will meet this evening, at which time Past President W. D. Williams will install the officers elect. A full attendance of the members is desired.

The Liquor Cases.

The Plainfield illegal liquor cases have been adjourned from tomorrow until Wednesday. It is probable that they will be quickly disposed of once they come to trial.

Informal Dance.

An informal dance will be given tomorrow evening at the Park Club, under the auspices of the entertainment committee.

—Neuman Brothers recently received a large consignment of White Label canned goods. They can be had in large lots at special prices.

PAID ITS CLAIMS.

Promptness Shown by Prudential Life Insurance Company for Paying Claims of Wreck Victims.

The Prudential Insurance Company of America, with its characteristic promptness, has paid all the policies carried by that company on the lives of those persons killed in the New Jersey Central Railroad disaster near Westfield on January 27.

Of the twenty-four persons killed, six had policies in The Prudential, and that company, immediately upon learning of the accident, notified its representatives located at Plainfield to hasten in every way possible the filing of proofs of death at the home office of the company in Newark, in order to expedite the payment of the insurance money to the afflicted families.

In some cases the evidence by which the victims could be identified was very meagre, but the company gathered all the information it could and paid the claims. An idea as to how vague were the means of identification may be had from the fact that the company ordered the money paid on the life of one victim of whom nothing was recognizable but the fillings of his teeth, which were identified by a local dentist.

Another policy-holder's remains were burned beyond recognition, but the company paid the claim because of a ring worn on the finger bearing the initials of the deceased. The unfortunate engineer, James F. Davis, through whose negligence it is alleged the disaster occurred, was also a policy-holder in The Prudential, and his beneficiary received the money as soon as the claim papers were filed.

Needless to say, the promptness with which The Prudential settled these claims shows that it is seeking the best interests of its policy-holders in every way possible.

Its policies are issued in amounts from $15 up to $100,000 on the lives of persons who are between ages one and seventy, and to both sexes, thus bringing the benefits and privileges of its great system of life insurance within the reach of all. Persons desiring further information should address the home office of the compasy at Newark, N. J.

THEATRICAL.

Having passed its 300th performance at the Casino, New York, "A Chinese Honeymoon" is still setting the pace for music-mad Broadway. Although twelve of the most popular New York theatres have musical comedies or comic operas as their attractions, and although "A Chinese Honeymoon" is "the daddy of them all" with respect to consecutive performances on Broadway it has lost none of its popularity or drawing power. The past week, the fortieth of its successive triumph at the Casino, excelled even the receipts record for the house established by this same company last Thanksgiving week.

The announcement of the return to the Grand Opera House, New York, of "A Desperate Chance," Theodore Kremer's greatest melo-drama, and one which has for its foundation the life-story of the famous Biddle Brothers, the Pennsylvania outlaws, will doubtless prove of more than passing interest to patrons of that house.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Thomas Doyle, of this city, formerly night telegraph operator at Somerville, has been transferred to Westfield.

—A number of firemen of the borough are planning to attend the ball of the Aeolian Club at Cranford on Tuesday, February 24.

—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Kilbride, of West Fourth street, has been quarantined owing to a child being ill with a contagious disease.

—The first of a series of lessons in the life of Paul will be taught by William D. Murray at the Y. M. C. A. building on this evening at 8 o'clock. Young men interested are invited.

Miss Margaret Bird, of Somerset place, has recovered from the grip.

Miss Annie Durling, of Plainfield, is visiting her parents at Harlingen.

Miss Helen Terry, of East Seventh street, has been visiting Miss Blanche Ammerman, of Somerville.

Mrs. John Turner, of Somerset street, has gone to New Durham for a week's visit with relatives.

The Easy Pill.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers do not gripe nor weaken the system. They cure biliousness, jaundice, constipation and inactive livers, by arousing the secretions, moving the bowels gently, yet effectually, and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach, liver and bowels that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely. These famous little pills exert a decided tonic effect upon the organs involved, and if their use is continued for a few days there will be no return of the trouble. L. W. Randolph.

LITERARY.

Seven important men are discussed in the February number of The Cosmopolitan: "The Young Napoleon," by Field-marshal Viscount Wolseley; "Leo Tolstoy; an Interpretation Done in Little," by Elbert Hubbard; August Belmont, by R. H. Graves; Henry M. Whitney, by A. E. MacFarlane; "The Triumphal Tour of Adolf Lorenz," by John Brisben Walker; William Andrews Clark, by H. R. Knapp; and "President McKinley's Tours," by W. W. Price.

E. H. Sothern and S. R. Crockett are two names that stand out from the contents page of Leslie's Monthly for February. The former with a graceful and interesting appreciation of Joseph Jefferson, and the latter with the first of a series of stories of adventure in Spain.

The Crusade of the Doukhobors, the curious Russian sect who emigrated to Canada, is described with camera and pen by one who walked with them. There is a finely illustrated article on The Chinaman in America, and another on the new power dam across the Hudson.

Marion Hill has in this number one of her best children's stories, illustrated by Jessie Wilcox Smith, and Henry Kitchell Webster, part author of Calumet K., is represented by an up-to-date business story. The last installment of Anna Katherine Green's Amethyst Box appears this month, and gives the solution of that $10 mystery.

TOUR TO CALIFORNIA.

Under the Personally-Conducted System of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The second Pennsylvania Railroad personally-conducted tour to California for the present season will leave New York and Philadelphia on the Golden Gate Special, February 19, going via Cincinnati, New Orleans, San Antonio and El Paso to Los Angeles and San Diego. Three days will be spent in New Orleans, during the Mardi-Gras festivities. Should a sufficient number of passengers desire to travel under the care of a Tourist Agent and Chaperon, a delightful month's itinerary in California has been outlined; and a returning itinerary to leave San Francisco March 28, visiting Salt Lake City, Glenwood and Colorado Springs and Denver, arriving in New York April 6. Rate, $275 from all points on the Pennsylvania Railroad east of Pittsburg, covering all expenses of railroad transportation, side trips in California, and berth and meals going on the special train. No hotel expenses in California are included. Tickets are good for return within nine months, but returning cover transportation only. For detailed itinerary apply to ticket agents, or address Geo. W. Boyd, assistant general passenger agent, Broad Street station, Philadelphia, Pa. 2 9 2m causes a weak body and invites disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures and strengthens the stomach, and wards off and overcomes disease. J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Chriesman, Tex., says: "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and run down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefitted me, and after taking four bottles I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health." L. W. Randolph.

WARRANT FOR RICH MEN'S SONS

Assault of West Virginia Legislator Charged Against Hanna and Clark.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 16.—W. G. Caldwell, member of the legislature from Wheeling and chairman of the house judiciary committee, is able to get out of bed, but is in a badly battered condition. He occupied for a short time today his seat in the house of deputies. His colleague from Ohio county, Mr. Schwabe, offered a resolution to investigate the failure of local officials to serve warrants on Hanna and Winders. After Caldwell was ejected from his hack Captain J. B. White and Officer Spradling went to the private car occupied by Winders and Hanna, but found it locked. As Sheriff Jarrett was on the same train taking prisoners to the penitentiary the matter of arrest was left to him when the train left, but it is charged that telegrams were afterward sent for no arrests to be made.

The story of the affair is as follows: John Winder, general manager of the Kanawha and Hocking Valley company and J. Pierpont Morgan's representative in this district; Dan Hanna, son of Senator Mark Hanna; W. A. Clark, Jr., son of the senator from Montana, and others, who are charged with assaulting Caldwell here while the latter was going from the legislative ball in a cab, had been at a club during the night. They were on their way to the Kanawha and Michigan depot and wanted a hack. They hailed the hack in which Representative Caldwell was riding and attempted to enter it. Caldwell protested and said the hack was his.

Winder, Clark and Hanna are said to have entered the hack, and it is alleged that Caldwell was dealt a hard blow in the face, rendering him unconscious. Representative Caldwell was thrown out of the hack, and the others took charge of it.

Caldwell was picked up by friends and taken to a hotel in a serious condition. Winder, Hanna, Clark and others left on an early morning Kanawha and Michigan train for Columbus, O. A warrant for their arrest was sworn out by Caldwell and telegraphed to Point Pleasant, W. Va.

THE SPORTING WORLD.

Barney Dreyfuss to Close With Quakers Tomorrow.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 16.—Although postponed, Barney Dreyfuss, who has in hand the details for the purchase of the Philadelphia Baseball club, says that the deal will be consummated tomorrow.

"There is no financial hitch," said the Pittsburg magnate. "I now have enough money to buy the club if I wanted to, but I do not care to invest myself. I want to get everything settled up before Tuesday evening, when I would like to get away if possible."

The option expires on Tuesday, and it is hardly likely that there will be any further time asked for.

American Lost at Billiards.

PARIS, Feb. 16.—Louis Cure (French) won the first game in the international championship billiard tournament at the Grand hotel last evening, defeating George Sutton (American) by 500 to 415. The game lasted three hours. Cure's best runs were 70, 62 and 75, while Sutton's best runs were 83, 55 and 50. A large and fashionable assemblage, including many Americans, witnessed the contest. The only other entries in the tournament are Slosson (American) and Vignaux (French), who will play tonight.

Police Probing Boston Boxing.

BOSTON, Feb. 16.—The police intend to test the legal standing of clubs in Boston which have been holding boxing matches recently. Numerous warrants against alleged promoters of fights, the boxers themselves and the men named as club officers and directors have been issued and served, and court hearings are set for this week. George Gardner of Lowell and Al Weinig of Buffalo, who fought at a prominent club last Friday night, are among those summoned.

JURY COULD NOT AGREE.

Stood Eight For Acquittal to Four For Conviction of Dr. Alexander.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb., 16.—After being out forty-eight hours the jury in the case of Dr. J. C. Alexander failed to reach an agreement and was discharged at 10 o'clock in the morning. On the final ballots the vote stood eight for acquittal and four for conviction.

On the first ballot, taken Saturday morning, the vote was seven for acquittal and five for conviction. On the next ballot the vote stood eight to four. That was the ballot from that time until the jury was discharged, with the exception of one or two instances. The attorneys for the state have not decided what they will do.

There were several serious altercations during the consideration of the evidence in the jury room which came very nearly resulting in blows. Juror Lingenfelter accused Juror White of having come into the case prejudiced against the defendant. Hot words ensued, and the matter almost resulted in blows before the interference of others stopped it. This had a disquieting effect on Mr. White, and later in the day he was attacked with heart failure.

Dynamiters Attack Telephone Cables

WARSAW, Ind., Feb. 16.—Dynamiters attempted to destroy the toll line cables of the Commercial Telephone company in Warsaw. The men selected a cable box at the top of a pole where the cables center and lead into the exchange office. The top of the pole was blown off, and several windows in buildings near by were shattered. The wreckers escaped.

AMES UNDER ARREST

Former Mayor of Minneapolis Found In New Hampshire.

HAD CHANGED BEYOND RECOGNITION

Man Charged With Attempted Bribery Had Been In Hiding at the Home of a Minister In Hancock For Several Weeks.

HANCOCK, N. H., Feb. 16.—Broken in spirit, a physical wreck and changed probably beyond recognition, Dr. Albert Alonzo M. Ames, formerly mayor of Minneapolis and who is wanted in that city on an indictment for attempted bribery, was discovered yesterday in the home of a local minister and placed under arrest by Sheriff Doane of Nashua.

So pitiful was his condition that he was not locked up, but left in charge of a deputy to await the arrival of officers from Minneapolis. After his arrest, however, Ames communicated with United States District Attorney Charles J. Hamblett of Nashua and obtained his services for a fight which, he says, he will make against extradition.

Dr. Ames has been here for several weeks, although his presence was not known outside of the home of Rev. C. H. Chapin, who received and sheltered him. Mrs. Chapin is a sister of the woman who accompanied Dr. Ames and who is supposed to be his wife. The knowledge of his relationship probably led to his detection.

Sheriff Doane received a communication from Chief of Police J. W. Greger of Minneapolis asking him to go to Hancock and see if Ames had sought refuge at the home of his sister-in-law. The sheriff came here and after an investigation placed Ames under arrest.

Dr. Ames is wanted to answer to an indictment for attempted bribery and also for defaulting his $10,000 bail given at the time of his indictment.

Dr. Ames is wonderfully changed from the description of him sent out by the Minneapolis police after his disappearance.

He has grown a full beard, and his hair is almost white. It is said that he is sixty-two years of age, but he looks over seventy. His flesh is much wasted away, and from a physical standpoint he is helpless.

Just how long the parsonage has protected the prisoner and his wife is not known outside of the house, and none of his family is inclined to talk. It is believed, however, that Minneapolis detectives, who followed him to Boston, were thrown off the track there and that he came directly to this town. Before going to Boston he was reported to have been in Louisburg, Ky., and West Baden, Ind., and it is thought that he came east from the latter place.

Developments last night indicate that Dr. Ames has still many friends and abundant financial resources and that every move to bring him to trial in Minneapolis will be bitterly contested.

The Albany Sails.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—The United States cruiser Albany has sailed from the Brooklyn navy yard for her cruise in the Mediterranean. She was to have started several days ago, but the nonarrival of ammunition delayed her. The cruiser will probably touch at Gibraltar for her first port or may possibly keep on to Algiers, where Captain Rodgers will communicate with Rear Admiral Crowninshield for further orders. She carries a crew of 350 sailors, firemen and marines.

Wrecked by an Open Switch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Train No. 33, the New York and Florida express of the Southern railway, ran into an open switch at Ravensworth during the night. Fireman Walter Wigginton, colored, was killed, and Engineer Purvis is missing. So far as known none of the passengers was seriously injured. It is thought the switch was tampered with for the purpose of wrecking the train. The switch light was missing and the lock gone.

Mont Pelee Still Spouting.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Captain Ebert of the German steamer Catania, which has arrived from Brazil, reports that on Feb. 4 when passing the island of Martinique he made an observation of Mont Pelee. Much smoke was issuing from the crater, and great quantities of lava were flowing down the mountain and into the sea, causing big clouds of steam to rise from the surface of the water.

Bad Storm In Oklahoma.

GUTHRIE, Okla., Feb. 16.—The worst storm of the winter has been raging with terrific fierceness in Oklahoma and Indian Territory. Sleet and rain were followed by a driving snowstorm, a cold norther accompanying. The rain was preceded by a dense fog, the only one known to present residents of the territory.

Floods In Kentucky.

OWENSBORO, Ky., Feb. 16.—There has been a steady rain for two days. All small streams are overflowing. Much damage has been done in this county. Several bridges were washed away. Rough river, Bond river and Green river are higher than ever before.

Miss Roosevelt Goes South.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Miss Alice Roosevelt and Miss Root, daughter of Secretary Root, have left Washington for New Orleans to attend the Mardi Gras festivities.

Ambassador Choate In London.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Ambassador Choate has just returned to London from his tour through the countries of the eastern Mediterranean and Egypt.

BLOCKADE IS RAISED

Foreign Warships Sail Away From Venezuelan Ports.

GREAT REJOICING AMONG ALL CLASSES

Merchant Vessels at Once Take Advantage of Freedom—The Government Takes Immediate Steps to Crush the Revolution.

LA GUAYRA, Venezuela, Feb. 16.—The blockade has been officially raised. The commander of the British cruiser Tribune, the only warship here, sent an officer ashore with the announcement, and the Tribune left for Trinidad.

There is great rejoicing among all classes here at the end of the Venezuelan blockade. Many sailing vessels have been lying in this port with cargoes for Venezuelan ports. They are leaving today. A number of steamers are loading for the same destinations. A great amount of coffee is awaiting transportation from Venezuela to the United States. No one is apparently more glad at the raising of the blockade than those on board the blockading squadron.

The news received from all the Venezuelan ports, except Coro and Higuerote, is that the foreign warships have sailed away. The government immediately on receiving the news that the blockade had been raised took military measures and sent troops in all directions to crush the revolution without giving the rebels a momen't respite.

VENEZUELA'S PAYMENTS.

The Toll on Customs Receipts to Begin on April 1.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—In further explanation of the articles of the protocols signed by Mr. Bowen and the representatives of the allies here the following addendum was prepared and duly signed by all of the negotiators:

"Our interpretation of the protocols was and is that the 30 per cent of the total income of the customs receipts of La Guayra and Porto Cabello shall begin to be set apart on the 1st day of March, 1903, and continue to be set apart through the said month and that the first payment will be due not the 1st of March, but the 1st of April, 1903."

This percentage will be set aside and retained in the Venezuelan treasury until The Hague tribunal shall decide whether it shall be distributed without preference among the claimant nations or whether the allied powers of Great Britain, Germany and Italy shall receive preferential payments.

A Portfolio For Cortelyou.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—With the signing of the bill providing for a department of commerce comes the announcement that Mr. Cortelyou, secretary to the president, will be appointed secretary of the new department. His appointment will be sent to the senate by the president at once, and it is likely there will be no delay in its confirmation. Coincident with the qualification of Secretary Cortelyou as the secretary of the department of commerce and labor William Loeb, Jr., will enter upon the duties of secretary to the president. Mr. Loeb is at present first assistant secretary to the president. For several years he has been the private secretary of Mr. Roosevelt, serving him in that capacity while he was governor of New York and vice president.

Unions and the Militia.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Lieutenant John McDonald of Company C of the Fourth regiment of New Jersey national guard, with headquarters in Jersey City, said that in his recent efforts to organize a new company for the regiment he had been informed by many young men that they would like to join the regiment, but could not do so because the labor unions of which they were members have recently adopted a rule prohibiting membership in the militia. He said that twenty out of twenty-three young men called on gave that reason for declining to enlist.

General Miles Returns.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—The great rival transatlantic liners Philadelphia and Lucania arrived in port in a neck-and-neck finish shortly after midnight, the Philadelphia from Southampton and Cherbourg, the Lucania from Liverpool and Queenstown. Both steamers experienced stormy winter weather throughout. Among the passengers on the Lucania was Lieutenant General Miles of the United States army, returning from a tour around the world. General Miles has been absent five months. He visited the Philippines and China on official business.

Boston Trolley Men Get More Pay.

BOSTON, Feb. 16.—The Massachusetts electric companies controlling all the electric street car lines in eastern Massachusetts outside of Boston have through their subordinate companies, the Boston and Northern and the Old Colony Street railway, granted the request of the employees for increased wages. The decision affects 2,522 conductors and motormen, who are divided into six classes or grades, the average increase for all being 12.18 per cent, or $154,067, based on last year's pay rolls.

Count Cassini Gets a House.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The Russian ambassador, Count Cassini, has closed negotiations with a representative of former Vice President Morton for a year's lease of the latter's house at 1500 Rhode Island avenue, with a view to a subsequent purchase of the property. The ambassador and family and staff will move into the house next Wednesday.

A Mammoth Sale of Black and Colored Silks.
28,000 Yards of Newest 1903 Fabrics.

Under the cost of production today, the unquestionable supremacy of the Hahne & Co. Silk store was never better illustrated than in this sale now in progress. But you must understand the conditions. Everything that has to do with the making of fine silks is higher than it was two months ago—labor, dyeing and raw silk. The grades of raw silk that cost 3.50 a lb then are 4.60 a lb now. But we ordered months ago at concessions even below the old figures. And for this sale we have made our own profit little or nothing. The quantity is immense, every desirable silk is represented.

MAINE REMEMBERED

Fifth Anniversary of Warship's Destruction Observed.

WRECK IN HAVANA HARBOR DECORATED

Americans and Cuban Veterans Join In the Ceremonies About the Forlorn Remains — United States Legation Not Represented.

HAVANA, Feb. 16.—Four hundred Americans observed the fifth anniversary of the destruction of the Maine. A flag draped with crape and a wreath were hung on the wreck as a tribute to those who lost their lives in the disaster. Representatives of the Cuban Veterans' association took part in the ceremony and brought the finest of all floral offerings.

The exercises were purely memorial, references calculated to revive animosities being purposely avoided. The United States legation was not represented, Minister Squiers holding that any possibility of stirring up the feelings of the Spanish residents by public exercises commemorative of a bitter incident in the war ought to be avoided. The Cuban government officials finally decided not to attend, but a government launch accompanied the procession to the wreck. United States Consul Rublee, Vice Consul Springer and some representatives of the United States army were present.

A United States quartermaster's launch led the way to the wreck, followed by two small steamers loaded with Americans and numerous little craft. All about the harbor American and Cuban flags were flying at half mast. The strains of the dead march played by the band of the United States artillery corps floated across the harbor as the procession made its way to the Maine. After completing the decoration of the forlorn wreck the boats clustered around the quartermaster's launch, the awning deck of which was utilized as a platform. After a prayer, offered by the Rev. Mr. McPherson, General Nunez, the governor of Havana province, who is also the president of the Cuban Veterans' association, spoke in Spanish to the effect that the Cuban veterans would never permit such an occasion to pass without testifying their regard for those whom the Cubans were proud to regard as comrades.

Ernest Conant delivered the memorial address. Other speakers urged the co-operation of Cubans, Spaniards and Americans in working out Cuba's destiny. The ceremony concluded with the sounding of "taps."

The New Maine In Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 16. — The new battleship Maine, built to replace the warship of the same name which five years ago sank in the harbor of Havana as the result of a submarine explosion, left her dock yesterday at the League Island navy yard and anchored in midstream. Today she proceeded down the Delaware river on her first official assignment, that of joining the north Atlantic squadron. The Maine is commanded by Captain Leutze and is manned by her full complement of 640 seamen and marines. Her armament consists of twenty guns.

Train Robber Confesses.

BUTTE, Mont., Feb. 16. — George Cole, under arrest here, has made confession of the Burlington holdup of last Wednesday and implicates George Howard, alias Joe Kirby. He says they sent a boy to a livery stable to hire a rig about 9:30 o'clock Tuesday night. They drove to the scene of the holdup and held up the train. Kirby had two guns, but was too drunk to use them. Kirby is the man who jumped on the engine as the train was nearing Homestake and compelled the engineer to stop and made the fireman get down. But for Kirby's drunken condition, Cole says, they would have met with better success. Cole and his companion were arrested Saturday because they answered the general description of the two robbers.

The Senatorial Situation In Oregon.

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 16.—The last week of the legislative assembly began today, and from present indications there will be no election until the last day and perhaps the last hour of the session. No joint resolution for adjournment has yet been passed, but the assembly probably will dissolve either on Friday or Saturday night. Throughout the entire session State Senator C. W. Fulton of Clatsop county has been the leading candidate, with 34 votes, 45 being necessary for a choice. Ex-Governor Geer continues to hold his 15 votes.

Prominent Druggist Dead.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 16.—Dr. G. W. Sloan, one of the most prominent residents of Indianapolis, is dead of apoplexy. He was born at Harrisburg, Pa., in 1835 and had been a druggist of national reputation. He was ex-president of the American Pharmaceutical association and in 1900 was elected trustee of the United States pharmaceutical convention. He was a thirty-third degree Mason.

Sulphite Fiber Works Burned.

DETROIT, Feb. 16.—The Detroit Sulphite Fiber works in Delray were destroyed by fire. The loss is $100,000 and is covered by insurance. The plant will be rebuilt immediately. There were several narrow escapes from death among the employees and firemen who were fighting the flames.

Heavy Snowfall In Indiana.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Feb. 16.—A snowstorm has prevailed here for the past twelve hours. All trains are late, telephone wires are damaged and country roads are almost impassable.

THE RESPONSIBILITY.

After long and careful deliberation, six of Plainfield's worthy citizens have determined, as far as it lies within the human province to do so, who was to blame for the Westfield disaster at which twenty-three lives were lost and two score injured. There was no surprise in the announcement that the blame was primarily laid on Engineer James N. Davis. That was to be expected after the character of the evidence had been heard. It was plainly stated by the jury, however, that there were certain mitigating circumstances in the case of the engineer which should be taken into consideration.

While there are some who will not be satisfied with the findings of the coroner's jury, it is probable that a majority of the world will decide that the inquest went to the bottom of the subject and has discovered the cause. There has been much sympathy expressed for the engineer. His guilt has been admitted and yet there were many who thought that it was an unfortunate combination of events that brought it about and absolved the engineer from the greater share of the blame. It was by incorporating that same thought in the verdict that the jury struck what might be termed the popular chord.

There are certain suggestions and recommendations that are made by the jury in its verdict that will be received with interest. Most important of them is the recommendation that a State railway commission be appointed. This subject has already been brought before the public but there was no strong public support for it. The findings of the jury may, however, put a different aspect on it.

Then there are other questions which are suggested by the jury with the desire that their answers be carefully considered. While the jury does not take upon itself the responsibility of saying these suggested reforms would prevent similar occurrences, it brings them forward for consideration and apparently with the hope that, with a State commission appointed, they will be investigated with great care and utilized if found expedient.

Reports from Trenton would indicate that the Legislature is going to attempt to prevent wrecks like the Westfield disaster by passing legislation without a previous investigation. The idea of two men in the cab has met with popular favor and of the bills providing for that, Senator Wakelee's, which provides for an engineer and two firemen, has received the most general approval. A hearing on this bill is set for Monday afternoon and unless there are decidedly new developments in the case, it seems quite probable that this bill will be passed by the Senate and quite possibly by the lower house.

Democracy invaded the Republican stronghold of Plainfield, the Third ward, the other evening and held a dance in the Casino, which has always been a gathering place for the Republican leaders. It remains to be seen how much that prestages the happenings of the future.

Decidedly satisfactory was the opening of the Plainfield Amateur Basket Ball League Friday night. There was a good game and the crowd that filled the visitors' gallery at Hope chapel was well pleased. There is prospect of much interest in the series of games just begun.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

To be contented with the grocer one should trade at W. W. Dunn's Park Grocery. Mr. Dunn keeps a choice stock of vegetables and staple and fancy groceries.

Nothing is nicer than fresh vegetables out of season. They cannot always be obtained, but it is safe to say T. L. Walsh's stock at present was never better. Prices low.

Smalley Brothers on North avenue, is one of the best places in this city to purchase meats as they secure the best that can be bought. They always have a fine lot of fowls and game in season.

No matter what is wanted in the way of men's furnishing goods J. R. Blair, the Park avenue haberdasher can supply it. He makes a specialty of paying particular attention to the wants of the most fastidious.

The New York Painting and Decorating Company is showing some very fine wall-paper designs for 1903. The stock is complete and an inspection is invited. This firm solicits your trade and guarantees all work to be first-class.

If you want to be absolutely certain that you are being served with pure milk and cream leave your order with Wm. Lindsay & Son, of Mountain avenue. This firm sells certified milk and hundreds of patrons will testify as to its purity.

Perhaps it is true that "there are just as good fish in the sea as was ever caught" but its absolutely certain that many of the best being captured found their way to the market of the Rogers Company, on West Second street. They are beauties, everyone, because the Rogers' buyers know how to select. Early morning deliveries a specialty.

It is surprising what great results can be obtained in the way of pretty residential grounds, for a very small outlay of money. The careful placing of trees and shrubbery presents a pleasing appearance and increases the value of property. The Belleview Nursery makes a specialty of shrubbery of all kinds and is at present taking orders for spring delivery.

The house of Harry C. Squires, which has recently been erected at the corner of Arlington avenue and Sixth street is being papered and handsomely decorated. The interior of the house will be finished in a very attractive style by the New York Painting and Decorating Company. When completed the house will be one of the most artistic specimens of interior decorating to be found in this city.

PERSONAL.

Charles Westphal, of East Third street, is able to be out again after a recent illness.

Miss Femly, of Lebanon, spent Sunday at the home of Charles E. Smith, of Grove street.

Dr. Moldenke, of Watchung, who has been in Boston on a business trip, has returned home.

Miss Cora Davenport, of Plymouth, Pa., is the guest of Miss Helen Shupp, of Madison avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Borsum, of Woodland avenue, was entertaining company from New York.

Edward Rudd, of Clinton avenue, has practically recovered from a two weeks' illness with pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Humphrey, of Hillside avenue, are stopping in California, where Mr. Humphrey has been ill.

Miss Joanna P. Moore, a pioneer worker among the freedmen of the south, is spending the week at the home of Mrs. David Boice, of Park avenue.

Rev. Clarence M. Gallup, of Albany, N. Y., who occupied the pulpit at the First Baptist church yesterday morning and evening, was entertained at the home of Charles W. McCutchen, of Rockview avenue.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

THE LATEST—CREPE-DE-PARIS

Have you seen the goods? Have you heard the price? Do you know how immensely popular this, the prettiest of the new Spring Fabrics, has become? The goods are made of silk and wool, the weave gives a suggestion of crepe, has a beautiful sheen, comes in rich shades, is 44 inches wide and sells for 1.00 per yard. Mere words will not describe its beauty. See it, handle it, buy it, wear it, and life will take on a new meaning for you.

But this is not the only particularly desirable new fabric we are showing. Crepe-de-Voile is another extremely pretty weave. Comes in black only, is made of silk and wool with a pin spot woven closely throughout, is 44 inches wide. Price is 1.50 per yard.

Open weaves in Etamines, Voiles, Canvas Weaves, etc., we show in choice grades, and in reliable goods only. Zebalines, Broadcloths, Fancy Cheviots for skirts.

"Reides Lansdowne"—Too well known to need elaborate comment. Good trade is familiar with it, and constantly asks for it. We carry it in black, white and colors. Price the world over 1.25 per yard.

We are making a strong bid for the dress goods trade of this city. We are succeeding because we offer only the newest things at the best prices. We understand perfectly well the prejudice many ladies have against buying at home, but we find that feeling gradually being dissipated as they become familiar with our ways of managing the dress goods business. Exclusive styles, small quantities and low prices count for a great deal.

Great Mid-Winter Furniture Sale.

Notwithstanding the heavy selling of the past few weeks, we still have plenty of good things to offer you. These great Furniture events are planned on a broad liberal scale, so that we have plenty for all and to spare. But there's an end to everything; ten days more and this great sale will be a thing of the past. So come now, and if you don't want your purchases delivered till later, we will hold them and deliver when you say.

Finds Fortune in Elks' Teeth.

Eight hundred elks' teeth in the grave of an Indian chief, all splendid specimens and susceptible of mounting, was the recent wonderful find by a Philadelphia curio hunter named Zimmerman, who has been gathering relics among the canyons of the tortuous Snake river for several months. Zimmerman dug into the grave, which was in a wild, barren and remote country along the Snake river, above Lewiston, Idaho. Some distance down he encountered several small bones, which on examination proved to be magnificent specimens of elks' teeth, and on scooping away the earth with his hands he found that a loose tunic wrapped around the ex-chief's skeleton had been literally crammed with teeth—the best obtainable in the days when elks were plentiful. Zimmerman took his find to Lewiston for shipment to Philadelphia, keeping very quiet about the discovery. One man to whom he confided the secret in Lewiston offered him $10 apiece for the 400 with the red streak.—San Francisco Call.

Conductor Full of Electricity.

The conductor of a New York trolley car in taking a fare gave the passenger, who happened to be a woman, an unexpected experience. As she placed the nickel in his hand she shrieked and the coin flew up in the air. There was some hubbub, in the midst of which the conductor explained. He said he had received a heavy shock at the power house and that he was "full of electricity." The passenger corroborated him by saying that she had been shocked severely when her hand, with the nickel, came into contact with his and she thought the company "should do something about it." The conductor was contrite but helpless. He said he would lay off at the end of the trip, to get the current out of him, but that he did not like to be shocked more than other people. All this suggests that there are more queer possibilities in connection with electric cars than the average woman wots of.—Detroit Free Press.

He Wanted Action.

A well-dressed man went into the telegraph office of a southern Michigan town and wrote a message home for money. He then laid down a quarter and asked that it be sent as soon as possible. "Three cents more," said the agent. "Haven't got it," replied the man. "Can't send the message, then." "Well," said the fellow, "send it as far as you can for a quarter. I am a gambler and I want action on my money, if it is only 25 cents."—Chicago Chronicle.

His Aspirations.

"Yes, ma'am," said Tattered Tag Tad, sadly, "my high aspirations are de only t'ings dat have prevented me from obtainin' work."

"Ah, my poor fellow," she said, as she passed out a meal; "another victim of mercenary commercialism. What are the high aspirations that handicap you in your search for work?"

"Ter be cap'n on an airship, ma'am."

"Sic 'im, Tige!"—Baltimore Herald.

Similar Sounds.

"Ethel," said Mrs. Subbubs, sternly, "after that young man had said 'good-night' to you on the porch last evening I heard several sounds like kisses!"

"Yes?" replied the girl, demurely "Oh, I know! What you heard was the noise he made pulling his feet out of the mud as he walked down the path."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Old Virginia Land Tarts.

Two cupfuls of sugar, one of butter, two eggs and three cupfuls of flour. Roll very thin, cut in squares with a knife, spread with the white of an egg on top, sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar, press a raisin in the center of each, and bake.—Housekeeper.

An Undesirable Neighbor.

"I hear Kadleigh was hopping mad over the seat they assigned him at the banquet."

"Mad? He was simply beside himself."

"Beside himself? No wonder he kicked."—Philadelphia Press.

DUNELLEN.

Rev. D. W. Skellinger will lecture in the Presbyterian church tomorrow evening on "Rip in the Rockies." In addition to being a well known lecturer, Mr. Skellinger is an ex-pastor of the church and the double attraction will doubtless attract a large audience.

John Merschrod, the local artist, has put up a drawing in the postoffice in commemoration of the sinking of the Maine, Feb. 15. The piece is handsome and well done.

Miss Mary Wortendyke and Miss Isabel McLean, of New York, have returned to their homes after an enjoyable visit at the home of the Misses VanArtsdale.

Wilson Fredericks was reported yesterday as holding the improvement he has made. There is still a long, hard fight before him, however, before he fully recovers.

The mortgage on the Methodist church will probably be burned by April 1. Two thousand has already been paid on out of the $3,000 necessary.

Some large branches have been broken off trees in the park and on various streets by the weight of the branches.

Mrs. Peter VanTwistern is recovering from her injuries and is not in a serious condition as reported.

The Willing Workers held a business meeting in Holy Innocents' Guild room, Saturday afternoon.

Walter Bodine, of New York City, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bodine.

Several from here attended a dance given in the Council rooms at Plainfield, Saturday night.

Rev. S. K. Doolittle preached at both services in the Methodist church, yesterday.

The Banjo Club will meet tomorrow evening for practice instead of this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wynkoop spent last evening with friends in Plainfield.

A party from here attended the theatre in New York Saturday night.

Harry Swackhamer entertained out-of-town friends, yesterday.

NEW MARKET.

John Nelson, the aged father of Dr. W. J. Nelson, of this place, died yesterday morning at the home of his son after an illness of four weeks with catarrh of the stomach. He had been well for a number of years and his demise was not unexpected. The deceased was formerly a well-known farmer in Piscataway where he lived for a number of years. He was seventy-seven years of age and is survived by four sons and two daughters. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 from the home of Dr. W. J. Nelson.

According to the latest reports, the Fair heirs now stand a good show of getting more money. If they do this place will be benefitted to some extent as some good has already been done with the money already received.

Regular services were held in the First Baptist church yesterday. Services were poorly attended in the evening on account of the storm.

Many trees were stripped of small branches and had large ones broken in last night's storm.

Mrs. Hannah Nelson is slowly regaining her health at the home of her daughter in Union.

Mrs. Louis Morgan spent a portion of Saturday with friends in Plainfield.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

George Miller, a hostler at one of the local hotels, was arrested Saturday night by Officer Pangborn for being drunk and disorderly. Miller spent the night as the guest of the township in the jail. Sunday morning, when arraigned before Judge Clark, he pleaded guilty and paid a contribution to the fund of $3.50.

With election day only two weeks away, it would be well for the taxpayers to remember that the appropriations raised this year should be enough to repair the sidewalks, especially through the village, from the borough line to Mountain avenue. The walks are in very bad condition.

The annual collection for the Educational Society, which was to have been taken at the morning service at the Baptist church Sunday, was deferred one week owing to the small attendance.

The members of the B. Y. P. U., of the Baptist church, held their weekly meeting in the parlors of the church last night. Owing to the storm the attendance was small.

The Hetfield & Waldron stone crusher in the valley is rushed with work filling orders for the spring demand for crushed stone.

Miss Maguire, who has been spending a few days with her aunt, Mrs. Wm. Maguire, returned to her home at Orange, Saturday.

Mrs. Maria Noble, who has been spending a few days with her son, Wm. B. Noble, has returned to her home in Newark.

A delegation from Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., paid a fraternal visit to Westfield Council Friday night.

Floyd Hull, of Metuchen, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hull, has returned home.

Wm. Alexandra, formerly of the village but now of Plainfield, spent yesterday with friends in town.

John E. Flannery, of Plainfield, spent Sunday with his daughter, Mrs. George Johnston.

Richard Hart, of New York, is spending a few days with friends in town.

The Misses Cook have been entertaining friends from out of town.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The statement of another paper that the public school here was closed on account of an epidemic of measles, and would reopen today was erroneous. It has not been closed. Several scholars have been out on account of sickness, but they are now beginning to return, and the school under the principalship of Miss Nellie Manning is in excellent order.

Another evidence of progress in the town would be the removal of old sign boards, which at certain points on the roads direct strangers to New Brooklyn. These signs were good in their time, but have been out of date about ten years.

Business at the coaling station has greatly increased on account of the increase in railroad traffic. In December 11,000 tons of coal was used, and in January 10,000 tons passed from the tower to the trains.

James H. Jones, who has been ill with pneumonia a large part of the winter at Newark, has now returned to his home. His grandson, Fred Pullen, is with him during this week.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Laing attended the turkey supper of Maroonnier chapel, held at Mr. VanCourt's home, Thursday night. The affair was successful.

A new cross street starting at the point where the old wheelright shop formerly stood and extending to Church street is greatly needed.

Marian Bigley has returned from a short visit with Mrs. Lennie Tappen at Plainfield.

To Preach Here Again.

Rev. Clarence Gallup, of Albany, N. Y., who preached in the First Baptist church yesterday, will preach in the same church Sunday. His sermons, yesterday, were very strong and interesting.

Called to Connecticut.

Rev. Frank St. John Fitch, formerly of Caldwell, N. J. has been called to the pastorate of the Baptist church at Brandford, Conn. Mr. Fitch and his wife visit Plainfield quite often.

W. W. Warnock, of Craig place, has recovered from a several days' illness.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

E. T. Dunn, an employe of the local postoffice department and who lives on Park place, has in his possession a potato which he has carried in his pocket for thirty-five years. He says that he put the tuber in this pocket years ago when he used to suffer from rheumatism and he affirms that its charm has prevented an attack of the disease since he has carried it.

A peculiar condition exists in the borough high school. There are now more pupils than can be placed in the assembly hall and at the morning session when all the classes are in that room there are not seating accommodations sufficient for the pupils and many of them are obliged to stand all through the exercises. Some of the pupils are seated on chairs while others find seats on the drawing chests about the room. While the seats in the class rooms are sufficient for the number of pupils it is found that if the membership increases many more other seats may have to be added. It was stated at the school this morning that there are more scholars enrolled in that building at present than there have ever been before.

OUR STRANGER-DEAD.

"REQUIESCAT IN PACE."

How shall we bury our stranger-dead,
Left in our midst alone,
Shall we give none but official care,
A shroud, a grave and a stone?
Fathers and Mothers! somebody's child
Lies at our doors unclaim'd,
What shall we give as funeral rites
To one of a creed un-nam'd?
Somebody may be watching in vain!
Mayhap an orphan is here!
Some mother's darling mutely appeals
To us from a lonely bier.
Citizens! here a brother lies low,
All will know justice is done,
But who will show acts of mercy sweet
To somebody's unclaim'd son?
"Brothers of Pity!" fall into line,
Ye were spared the stranger's fate!
Mothers! send tokens of human love
To add to the pomp of state.
Thus let us bury our stranger-dead
Left in our midst alone,
With all that is meet and loving and kind,
More than a grave and a stone.

—H. M. K., Feb. 11, 1903.

A few days ago a well-known city official was taken ill with the grip and he decided to call in a physician. The wife of the executive was applying simple home remedies when the doctor arrived and he said that nothing more could be done. The official was soon able to be about, and on the street one day he met his physician and asked him what the bill was for his services. The M. D. remarked that the bill was $5 and when the official said something about that money being easily earned the doctor replied:

"My dear man, do you know that it took me four years in college, two in medical school and five years of practice to tell you just what was the matter with you?"

The bill was paid without any further discussion.

Several days afterwards the physician happened to see the official on the street and asked him to come to his barn and tell him if he could place five tons of hay in the loft with safety.

The official, who was at one time an experienced carpenter, went to the place and after looking over the rafters, etc., told the physician that if he spread the hay out on the floor of the loft the barn would not collapse.

"By the way, what do I owe you for your trouble?" remarked the doctor.

"Five dollars," replied the official.

"But," continued the doctor, "It did not take you very long to earn that money. Kind of steep, isn't it?" queried the medical man.

"Doctor," replied the one time carpenter," do you realize that it took me about twenty-five years of hard study and work to be able to tell you just how much hay that barn would hold?"

The bill was paid without any further protestations, and amid mutual smiles.

blade to defend innocent maidens, and protect helpless orphans. It seems to me, that the marvelous success of our matchless order; the superb momentum by which it carries Christian manhood higher, and nearer, the sublime ideal of the Christ-man. That the mighty force of its rich principles, which renders even the statesmanship of our McKinleys and Rooseveits more rugged and firm against chicanery and corruption. That the Glory, the crown, and the universal potent power of Templarism in the whole world, is because Christ's own hand honors those who would honor Him; and wield the kind of sword He brings. Great is the power of the Divine arm, back of the Knight Templar's sword."

Mr. Richardson then thanked the faithful church members who had supported his ministry. He paid an earnest tribute to the press of the city, stating that he had been greatly aided by the newspapers; and personally thanking the editors and staffs of The Daily Press and other newspapers for their uniform courtesy and helpfulness.

With a touching appeal to the unconverted, whom he urged for a "last time" to yield their lives to Christ, Mr. Richardson turned to the officers of the church and surrended his pastorate.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—The Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will hold a regular meeting Friday afternoon.

—The officers-elect of the Patriotic Order Sons of America will be installed this evening by Past President W. D. Williams.

—Thomas Buckley, of the Potter Press Works, has gone to Boston, where he will erect new presses in a newspaper office.

—There will be a special meeting of the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent Legion tomorrow evening. A full attendance of the members is desired.

—When once White Label canned goods are used, their superiority is established. Neuman Brothers place their own guarantee behind every can.

—The Rasores Club will meet tomorrow morning at the home of Mrs. H. D. Halloway, of East Seventh street. There will be answers to quotations from Tennyson.

New Investment Company.

The Mono Investment Company has organized by electing the following officers: President, G. W. V. Moy; vice president, L. B. Woolston; treasurer, J. C. Pope; secretary, H. W. Marshall; chairman of finance committee, Robert Clark, Jr. This company has purchased the property corner of Central and West Fourth street for $4,500 and the scheme is to improve the same.

Expect Action.

There will be an adjourned meeting of the Common Council Monday evening, February 23, when it is quite likely that definite action will be taken regarding the proposed Gamewell police patrol system. It is believed that the committee having the matter in charge will be ready to make a complete report at this meeting.

AN ORDINANCE

Establishing a Sanitary Code for the Township of Fanwood.

The Board of Health of the Township of Fanwood, in the county of Union, and State of New Jersey, by virtue of the provisions of the act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled, "An act to establish in this state Boards of Health and a Bureau of Vital Statistics, and to define their respective powers and duties," approved March 31st, 1887, and the several supplements thereto and amendments thereof, doth ordain:

ARTICLE NO. I.

Marriages, Births, Deaths and Burials.

Section 1. Any physician, midwife, nurse, clergyman, magistrate or any other person, who shall officiate at any death, birth or marriage, and who shall neglect to make return thereof to the proper officer acording to law, shall for each and every failure to make such return or report, be liable to a penalty of twenty dollars.

Sec. 2. In case of any person dying within this township it shall be the duty of the physician who may have attended during the last illness to furnish the undertaker or any member of the family with a certificate of death, or in case there was no attending physician, the township physician may be required by the Board to view the body and furnish said certificate, which certificate shall be made out on, and shall comprise all the facts stated in, the blank forms furnished for that purpose by the Board.

Sec. 3. No person shall disinter any body from any place within the township between May 1st and November 1st, as prohibited by State law, nor during any other portion of the year, without the written consent so to do from this Board.

Sec. 4. Any person or persons offending against the provisions of sections 2 and 3 of this ordinance shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two, nor greater than 100 dollars.

ARTICLE NO. II.

Contagious Diseases.

Section 1. All cases of small-pox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, typhoid fever, yellow fever, typhus fever, measles, Asiatic cholera, or other contagious and infectious diseases, and all cases of death therefrom in the Township of Fanwood, shall be forthwith reported in writing to the Board of Health of the said township by the owner or occupant of any dwelling in which any of such diseases or deaths shall have occurred, and also by the physician in attendance on the case.

All directions which the Board of Health shall prescribe for the purpose of preventing the spread of such disease, either by the use of disinfectants, fumigation, isolation, or otherwise shall be strictly carried out, and any order that may be made by the Board for the destruction of clothing or other articles for the purposes aforesaid shall be promptly obeyed. Whenever there shall occur in the Township of Fanwood a case of cholera, small pox, variloid, diphtheria or membranous croup, yellow fever, typhus fever, or scarlet fever, the Board of Health or its authorized agent shall place upon the house or houses in which said case or cases are confined, one or more placards stating that a case of contagious disease exists within the house, and no person or persons shall remove said placard or placards without authority of said Board of Health.

Whenever a placard shall be placed on a house as herein provided, no person or persons except the medical attendant and nurses shall enter therein or depart therefrom without permission of the Board of Health or its authorized agent.

Sec. 2. All funerals and interments within the Township of Fanwood of persons dying of any contagious, infectious or pestilential diseases, shall be under the direction of the Board of Health of the township, and within thirty-six hours after death; and it shall be the duty of the householders and all persons concerned, when a death occurs from any such disease, to prevent any needless assembling in the apartments or house where such diseases are, of all persons liable to become infected thereby.

Sec. 3. Adequate disinfection of premises, furniture and belongings, deemed by the Board of Health to be infected by contagious or communicable diseases, shall immediately follow recovery, death or exposure, and such disinfection shall be performed under the supervision of the Board of Health.

Sec. 4. No person from any dwelling house wherein a disease dangerous to the public health exists, shall take any book or magazine to or from the public library without a permit from the Board of Health. The Board will inform the librarian of all cases of said diseases, and until a writen permit is given, he or she shall allow neither books nor magazines to be taken or to be returned from the dwellings where such cases exist.

Sec. 5. In case a coach, hack, cab or carriage, or any upholstered vehicle used for the conveyance of passengers, shall convey a patient suffering from a contagious disease, said coach, hack, cab or carriage, or upholstered vehicle, shall be disinfected under the direction of the Board of Health before again being used.

Sec. 6. Every veterinary surgeon who is called to examine or professionally attend any animal within the Township of Fanwood having the glanders or farcy or any other contagious disease, shall within twenty-four hours thereafter report in writing to the Board of Health of said township the following facts, viz: (1) a statement of the location of such diseased animal; (2) the name and address of the owner thereof; (3) the type and character of the disease.

Sec. 7. Any person or persons offending against the provisions of any section of this article shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two, nor greater than 100 dollars.

ARTICLE NO. III.

Food and Drink.

Section 1. The pollution of any stream, well, spring or reservoir of water used for drinking purposes is hereby prohibited, and any person or persons who shall cause or permit such pollution, or who shall aid therein, shall forfeit and pay a penalty as specified in section five of this article.

Sec. 2. No person or persons shall have or offer for sale, or sell, any meat or vegetable food or drink that is unwholesome or unfit for food; nor shall any person have or offer for sale, or sell, any calf, pig or lamb, or the meat thereof which at the date of its killing, being a calf, was less than four weeks old; or, being a pig, was, when killed, less than five weeks old; or, being a lamb, was, when killed, less than eight weeks old.

Sec. 3. Whenever this Board shall have satisfactory evidence that any well, the water of which is used for domestic purposes, has become polluted and rendered unfit for use, notice to discontinue the use of said polluted water shall be sent to the owner or party in charge of said well, and, at the discretion of the Board the owner or party in charge of said well may be ordered in writing to close or fill up said well, or withdraw from the ground the well-tube.

If the said order is not complied with within the time therein specified this section shall be deemed violated, and this Board may proceed to cause the said well to be closed, filled up, or withdrawn from the ground. Every well which is used for domestic purposes shall be at least fifty feet distant from every privy vault or cesspool.

Sec. 4. No ice containing deleterious matter shall be supplied for any domestic or drinking purposes within the limits of the Township of Fanwood.

Sec. 5. Any person or persons violating the provisions of any section of this article shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two, nor greater than 100 dollars.

ARTICLE NO. IV.

Nuisances.

Section 1. Whatever is dangerous to human health, or whatever renders the ground, the water, the air or food a hazard or any injury to human health is hereby declared to be a nuisance, and any person or persons creating or maintaining any such nuisance shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two nor greater than 100 dollars.

Sec. 2. Any person who shall carelessly, negligently or willfully aid in or contribute to the doing of any act dangerous to life or detrimental to the health of any human being, except for justifiable motives and for adequate reasons, or who shall omit any precaution, reasonable and proper, to prevent or remove danger or detriment to life or health of any human being, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two, nor greater than 100 dollars.

Sec. 3. The accumulation of any decaying animal or vegetable substance or substances, or of other offensive matter in the form of rubbish, garbage or offal, in or upon any lot, street or highway, or in or upon any public or private place, and allowing the same to remain in or upon any such lot, street, highway, public or private place, until the same shall become hazardous to health, or until the same shall by reason of offensive odors, become a source of discomfort to persons living or passing in the vicinity thereof, is hereby declared to be a nuisance, and any person or persons who shall allow any such accumulations, or who shall aid therein, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two, nor greater than 100 dollars.

Sec. 4. The construction of any drain or sewer, or the pouring out of fouled liquids on the surface of the ground in such manner as to become the source from which offensive odors shall emanate, or in such manner as to pollute the ground, air or water to the risk or detriment of the health of persons living or passing in the vicinity thereof, is hereby declared to be a nuisance, and any person or persons who shall cause or maintain, or who shall aid in causing or maintaining any such nuisance, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two, nor greater than 100 dollars.

Sec. 5. No animal or vegetable substance, or swill or garbage, nor any offensive material, either separately or mixed with ashes or rubbish, shall be deposited on or used to fill in or raise the surface or level of any ground, lot or street. Persons offending against any of the provisions of this section shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two, nor greater than 100 dollars.

Sec. 6. Any imperfect trap, sink or water closet within any house, or any other drainage appliance or fixture within any house, from which there shall arise any foul or obnoxious gas or odor detrimental to human health, is hereby declared a nuisance; and any owner of said property or other person maintaining any such nuisance, or any person who shall refuse or neglect to repair or make perfect any defect in any drainage appliance or any part of the soil pipe or waste pipe, or any fixture, sink, basin, water closet or trap attached to said waste pipe or soil pipe, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two, nor greater than 100 dollars.

Sec. 7. The keeping of any tenement house or other house or building, or any part thereof, in such a state of uncleanliness, or the crowding of persons in any tenement house in such a manner as to endanger the health of the persons dwelling therein, is hereby declared to be a nuisance; and any person or persons through whose act such state of uncleanliness shall be caused, and any person or persons by whom such crowding shall be caused, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two, nor greater than 100 dollars.

Sec. 8. If, upon inspection, or at any time, any lot, lots or lands shall be reported to the Health Inspector as being in a condition dangerous to the public health, it shall be his duty to visit the same, if he has not already done so, and if in his opinion such be the case, and it can only be remedied by draining or filling such lot, lots or lands, he shall communicate the facts, with his opinion, to the Board of Health for their action thereon.

Sec. 9. If, upon inspection, or at any time, any privy, sink, or cesspool, lot, yard, cellar or building shall be reported to the Health Inspector as being in a condition dangerous to the public health from any cause whatever, it shall be his duty to visit the same, if he has not already done so, or cause the same to be visited by such police officer or other person as may be detailed to assist him, and if he finds such to be the case, it shall be his duty to prepare a notice in the form devised by the Board of Health, and to serve or cause the same to be served, as provided by section 14 of the act approved March 31st, 1887, upon the owner of, or the agent of such premises on which such nuisance shall be situated, requiring such owner or agent to remove the contents of such privy, sink or cesspool, or to cleanse such lot, yard or building within five days after the service of such notice. And in any case in which the terms of such notice shall not have been complied with within the time specified, the Health Inspector is directed to proceed as provided in said section of said act, and all acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Any owner or agent of any premises, building, lot, yard, cellar, privy, sink or cesspool, who shall neglect or fail to comply with the requirements of such notice, shall pay not less than two, nor greater than 100 dollars for each and every offence, and pay the cost of abatement of such nuisance, to be recovered by action of debt.

Sec. 10. The keeping of any pen or enclosure for goats, swine or other animals, or of any slaughter house, tannery or factory, in such manner that offensive odors shall emanate therefrom to the discomfort or to the detriment of the health of persons living or passing in the vicinity thereof, is hereby declared to be a nuisance; and any person or persons who shall keep any such pen, enclosure, slaughter house, tannery or factory, in such manner as aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two nor greater than 100 dollars.

Sec. 11. No person or persons or corporation shall carry on any trade or business within the township in such manner as to be obnoxious and offensive to the inhabitants of the Township of Fanwood or any other part thereof, and which may be attended by noisome or unhealthy odors, under a penalty of twenty dollars for the first offense, and a further penalty of ten dollars for each and every day such business shall be carried on thereafter.

Sec. 12. No cart or other vehicle carrying any offal, swill, manure, or the contents of any privy, vault, cesspool or sink, shall without necessity therefor stand or remain before or near any building, place of business or other premises, where any person may be; nor shall any such cart occupy an unreasonable length of time in loading or unloading, or in passing along any street, or through any inhabited place or ground; nor shall any such cart or vehicle, or anything thereto appertaining, be in a condition detrimental to the public health; and when not in use all such carts, vehicles and all implements used in connection therewith, shall be stored and kept in some place where any noxious odor arising therefrom shall not be detrimental to public health. Any person or persons having charge or control of any such cart or other vehicle who shall fail to comply with the requirements of this section, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two, nor greater than 100 dollars.

Sec. 13. All carts and vehicles in the last section mentioned, and any boxes, tubs and receptacles in which any substances referred to in said section may be carried, shall be strong, and the sides shall be so high above the load or contents thereof that no part of such load or contents shall fall, leak or spill therefrom; and all carts and vehicles, and the boxes, tubs and receptacles thereon used in the removal of night soil, offal, or any substance emitting noxious odors, shall be adequately and tightly covered.

Any person or persons having charge or control of any such cart, vehicle, box, tub or other receptacle, who shall fail to comply with the requirements of this section, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of twenty dollars.

ARTICLE NO. V.

Sanitary Condition of Buildings and Grounds.

Section 1. Whenever it shall be decided by this Board that any building or part thereof is unfit for human habitation, by reason of being infected with disease, or by reason of its being in a condition dangerous to health or life, or to be likely to cause sickness among the occupants and notice of such decision shall have been affixed conspicuously on the building, or any part thereof, so decided to be unfit for human habitation, and personally served upon the owner, agent or lessee, if the same can be found in the State requiring all persons therein to vacate such building, or part thereof, for the reasons to be stated therein as aforesaid such building or part thereof shall, within ten days thereafter, be vacated; or, in case of special emergency, within such shorter time as in said notice may be specified.

Sec. 2. No building, or any part thereof, within the Township of Fanwood, shall be used for the sale, storage, sorting or handling of rags, without a written permit from the Board of Health.

Sec. 3. No person shall keep or permit to be kept in any dwelling house, or in any part thereof, any horse, cattle, swine goats or fowls.

Sec. 4. Every house and other building in the Township of Fanwood, now or hereafter erected, so situated that connection can be made with any sewer now constructed or that may hereafter be constructed, shall be so connected therewith within thirty days after written notice to make such connection shall have been served upon the owner, occupant or person in charge of such house or other building, by the Superintendent of Sewers. All such connections shall be made under the supervision of the Superintendent of Sewers, and in accordance with such rules and regulations as the Board may, from time to time, prescribe.

Notice to make such connection or connections served upon the occupant or person in charge of any such house or building in the absence of the owner, shall be deemed and taken to have been served upon the owner, and any owner who shall not comply with the provisions of this section within the time limited in any such notice, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of twenty dolars, and shall pay an additional fine of ten dollars for each and every day after the expiration of said thirty days in which the provisions of this section and of such notice shall not be complied with.

Sec. 5. Any foul, noxious or unwholesome fluid or matter found on any land or premises, whether arising from the domestic operations of the occupant, or otherwise, shall be drained into a cesspool to be dug on such premises by the owner, occupant or person in charge thereof. Such cesspool shall be of sufficient size for the reception and discharge of all the refuse matter, fluids or waste water that might accumulate on said premises.

In case any owner, occupant or person in charge of any lands shall neglect or refuse to make such cesspool within ten days after notice so to do shall have been served upon him or her by the health inspector, the same shall be made at the expense of such owner, occupant or person in charge of said lands and premises.

ARTICLE NO. VI.

Sidewalks and Yards.

Section 1. No person being owner, lessee, or tenant of any house or building, shall allow any water or other liquid to run from or out of his building or ground upon or across any sidewalk, and if such substance is allowed to pass upon any street, it must reach the same by a passage, to be kept at all times adequate and in repair by such person, under or through such sidewalks; and no such water or other liquid, or ice therefrom, shall be allowed to gather or remain on the upper surface of such sidewalks or passage; nor shall such person allow any accumulation of such water or liquid, or the ice therefrom, upon any street or place, but shall at all times cause the same to be removed.

Sec. 2. Every owner, tenant, lessee and occupant of any building or lot (whether vacant or occupied) within or near the built-up portions of said township, shall keep and cause to be kept the sidewalk and flagging and curbing in front thereof, free from obstructions and nuisances of every kind, and shall not allow anything in the area or yard on or about the premises to become a nuisance, or dangerous or prejudicial to life and health.

Sec. 3. No person shall take, or allow to go or be taken (having the right and ability to prevent the same) any horse or other animal, or any vehicle, upon any sidewalk or foot path in front of any building, to the peril of any person; nor shall any person block up or obstruct any street or place, or contribute thereto.

Sec. 4. It shall be the duty of all owners, lessees, tenants or occupants of any and all buildings in the Township of Fanwood to keep the gutters and sidewalks in front of said buildings free from any offensive substance, liquid or solid, or any dirt, rubbish, water or stones, or any other thing dangerous to health, life or limb.

Sec. 5. Any person or persons who shall offend against the provisions of any section of this ordinance shall forfeit and pay a penalty of twenty dollars.

ARTICLE NO. VII.

General.

Section 1. It shall be lawful for any of the members of the Board of Health, the Township Physician, the Health Inspector, any member of the police force and any other person acting under and by authority of the Board of Health, to enter into and upon any land, tenement, building or other premises, for any of the purposes specified in any of the ordinances of this code; and any person preventing, obstructing or resisting any officer heretofore named, or person employed by the Board of Health, in entering in and upon any land, tenement, building or other premises for any of the purposes aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two dollars, nor greater than 100 dollars.

Sec. 2. In every case in which the penalty prescribed in this ordinance or any section thereof is not less than one given sum nor greater than another given sum, the amount of the penalty between the maximum and minimum inclusive shall, pursuant to the statute, be left to the discretion of the court or a magistrate before whom the complaint is made.

Sec. 3. Prosecutions for fines and penalties for violations of the foregoing ordinance or any section thereof, shall be conducted as prescribed by the act cited in the enacting clause of this code, and all such fines and penalties shall be paid to the Township Treasurer, and credited to the Health account.

Sec. 4. All ordinances and parts thereof heretofore adopted that are inconsistent with the provisions of any section of any ordinance of this code, are hereby repealed.

Sec. 5. This code of ordinances shall take effect on February 24, 1903.

The Board of Health of the Township of Fanwood.

New Woman Happenings Here and There

MRS. ADA LANDON HAND has the distinction of being, I believe, the only woman leader and proprietor of a men's orchestra. She and her orchestra furnish music for balls, concerts and all kinds of entertainments in New York city and its vicinity. In her girlhood the lady was an accomplished pianist. Her strong point was and is her versatility. She can render a piano solo or a "coon song," accompany a prima donna in opera or play dance music with equal facility. Some years ago Mrs. Hand was left a widow with four little boys to support. Music was her first love, and to it she turned for a living. When she was only four years old, she had begun piano playing and did not leave it off when she was married. When widowed, therefore, she faced the future with her four boys around her and only her dauntless will and her knowledge of music between all of them and homelessness or dependence on charity. At first she taught piano music and played for evening entertainments wherever she could get engagements. She was also pianist for an orchestra. Then she determined to have an orchestra of her own. She was known and highly respected by members of the musical union. The system she devised is an elastic one. She obtains an engagement for an orchestra of a given number of players, from five to twenty-five, as is wanted. Then from other orchestras and from the musical union she engages here and there the desired quota, and thus the count is made up. She herself does not usually conduct the orchestra in person, because she is the pianist of the company. She has had a hard struggle, the hardest part of it against that prejudice which ever tries to stamp out women in a new field, but she is overcoming that. It is pleasant to record that here is one woman with practically perfect health, and that is an immeasurable help to her.

Says the editor of the New York Evening Journal, "The man who is surly to his typewriter and indifferent to her feelings will be surly to his wife and indifferent to her feelings."

For generations men and women artists have painted from the nude in the same classes in Paris, and nothing evil has been thought of it. Lately a private studio was opened in Berlin in which the same practice was inaugurated. The German police interfered and demanded either the closing of the studio or the separation of the art students along the sex line. The edict was obeyed for awhile. Then matters slid back as they had been, and the students painted in the same class. The preceptor was of the highest rank; the students were men and women without exception enthusiasts in their task. This time, although the authorities must have been aware of the infraction of their order, the studio was not interfered with.

I am sick of people who always know what other people ought to do.

The greatest misfortune in life is to be born lackadaisical, so that one can never become enthusiastically interested in anything.

Most of us are the result of our own and our parents' mistakes.

The real lady never says behind your back what she would not say to your face.

There is a Greek legend to the effect that once a man asked Jupiter to change him to a woman awhile so he could see how it would go. Jupiter allowed his request and changed him accordingly. After he had been a woman for a time Jupiter asked him how he liked it. He replied that he would like to be a woman always. Thus there is only one man on record who preferred to be a woman, and he, alas, is nothing but a myth!

Not long ago the Women's Single Tax league of New York gave a banquet to Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox. It was a notable gathering of brainy women and men. One of the speakers was that brave and brilliant southern girl, Kate Gordon. In her speech at the banquet she said, "The new woman to me is progress personified." Just so. The time has come when to be called a new woman is an honor.

The most ridiculous affair that has come under my ken recently is the marriage of a widow whose grown son "gave her away" at the wedding. She was rich, had reared that son and supported him all his life, yet he had to "give her away" when she married again.

Charlotte Perkins Gilman says that only in the human species is the female inferior to the male, and this is woman's own fault for not cultivating her powers. Further, Mrs. Gilman says that a man can run, but that a "woman can only waggle a little way." Splendid! Say some more, Charlotte!

Lately a woman made a large gift to a male students' college. A daily paper near by heralded the deed and published a fine picture—of the woman who gave the generous donation? No, indeed! An imposing halftone of the doctor of divinity who is president of the college. The woman herself was nowhere and nobody.

His first impulse, born of the keen recollection of the suffering of that night, was to assail Dawson there and then, and have revenge in some sort, if he might, for the contemptible theft and desertion. He controlled himself, however, and made no effort to rise, hoping not to be recognized. But the working of his lips and his very apparent emotion did not escape the notice of the man in the road. He leaped up the bank, and, not knowing what to expect, Rossiter felt compelled to get upon his feet. So in the fence-corner they faced each other, the one curious, aggressive, bulky, and brutal; the other tense with restrained passion, alert, and sinewy.

"Blast me," ejaculated Dawson, his unexpressive countenance showing amazement and discomfort in so far as that was possible, "if it ain't Charlie Ross!" This was the name that some of his wandering companions had jocularly given to Rossiter.

"Well," said the latter coolly, "what then?"

Dawson quickly recovered his composure.

"Ye don't seem glad to see me," he remarked.

"I've had greater pleasures."

"Oh, come now, Charlie, what's the use o' standin' off like that with an ole pal? 'Twan't me so much as it was Lanky Bill as done ye dirt. Let's patch it up. You're bound fer Waturbury, I take it, where the've made a camp fer the boys, an' are feedin' 'em good 'grub,' an' so am I. Let's toddle along together like friends."

Rossiter's hands were clenched at his side. A cold rage was growing on him at the man's effrontery.

"Where I am going," he said icily, "is my own concern, not yours."

The two measured each other steadily for several seconds, their eyes upon a level, for they were of equal height, and then Dawson's glance shifted.

"Ye always held yerself too cussed good fer common folks," said he.

"You'd better move on, 'Whiskers,'" said Rossiter.

Their eyes met again, and presently Dawson drew back a pace, and finally descended to the highway.

"Ye can go to hell, fer all o' me," he remarked, and shambled off down the road towards the valley.

CHAPTER VI,

THE NEW POLE-PULLER.

As Rossiter came out from breakfast the next morning, which was Thursday, he found Jack Parmelee awaiting him.

"I was lookin' for you," said Mr. Merton's factotum. "We'll go over ahead of the rest, an' I'll show you how it's done."

They crossed the road together, Parmelee swinging a hop-dog in one hand.

"You ain't a farmer," said he, eyeing Rossiter.

"Not exactly," answered the latter, "though I've often done farm work."

"Well, there's a dum sight worse things than farmin'. You don't catch me shut up in a shop peddlin' calico an' jew-jaws to a lot o' fussy women."

"Yes," Rossiter answered, "the open air is the natural place for a man."

"None o' your town life for me!" said Parmelee. "There's too much blamed noise; too many pesky people about."

"Perhaps I should have been a farmer," said Rossiter. "I'm not particularly fond of racket and a crowd."

"You've lived in a town, though; that's plain enough to see."

"Yes," said Rossiter, with a nod. "How'd you guess it?"

"Oh, it's easy to tell. In the first place, you don't talk like a countryman."

They had reached the hop-field by this time, and made their way to where the box in which Rossiter had picked was standing.

"You'll pull for these three boxes," said Parmelee, indicating the one near them, the one where the Becrafts had been and the half-box which Miss Merton and her cousin had used. "The girls won't trouble you much. They're pickin' for health or pleasure, whichever you've a mind to call it."

Parmelee now swung the strap of the hop-dog about his neck and, after cutting the vines of one hill very close to the ground, proceeded to show Rossiter how the pole should be loosened.

"Oh, you'll make it go," said he, having seen his pupil lift two poles with seeming ease.

Rossiter was then instructed in regard to stripping the poles after the hops had been picked, and in stacking them in Indian-wigwam fashion by making a basis of four poles fastened together by a piece of vine about three feet from the top and then spread wide apart at the bottom. Just as the lesson was over the pickers began to cross into the yard. Rossiter had said nothing to the Becrafts in regard to his new departure, thinking it would be rather good fun to surprise them. He was bringing a second pole to lay across the end where Mrs. Becraft and her daughter picked when the family approached, Joe leading the way

He observed Rossiter and came to a dead stop.

"What in thunder are you up to?" he demanded.

"Can't you see?" said Rossiter. "You've got a new pole-puller."

"Well, I'll be blowed!" Joe exclaimed, while the others expressed their astonishment in various small outcries; "I thought you'd never been in a hop-yard before?"

"This is my first experience, I assure you," said Rossiter, and then he informed them how the change had come about.

"We'll make you hustle!" cried Joe, breaking off a long branch from the end of a vine and beginning to strip the hops into the box. "You'll wish you'd never seen a hop-pole before night."

"I'll risk it," returned Rossiter, good-naturedly, moving away to attend the other pickers who were under his care.

Work had been going on for an hour or more when Miss Merton and Miss Densmore appeared in the field. Rossiter spied them coming, and had a pole ready for them when they reached their box. Both girls recognized him by a slight inclination of the head, and he replied to their salutation by removing his cap.

"We've a new poll-puller, I see," commented Miss Merton, with a certain pretty air of proprietorship in everything that was going on. "I hope you won't find it so hard as Mr. Gridley seemed to."

At this instant Joe Becraft set up a shout of "Hop-pole!" so Rossiter thanked her for her kindly wishes and hurried away.

"What a polite pole-puller!" exclaimed Miss Merton when Rossiter was out of hearing. "Who is he, I wonder?"

"Aren't pole-pullers usually polite?" inquired Miss Densmore, smiling a little. "I thought the one of yesterday was very attentive to our wants."

"Yes, he was, but there is a difference even in pole-pullers. Did you notice the way this man took his cap off? Why, you might have been bowing to some one on Keneseo street!"

By and by Jack Parmelee paused a moment to chat with the two girls.

"How does your new pole-puller get on?" was the first question he asked.

"Oh, beautifully!" responded Miss Merton. "Do you know his name?"

"'Rossiter' is what he calls himself."

"That sounds rather ambiguous. Do you think that isn't his name?"

"No, I've no reason to think so."

"How'd you get hold of him? He doesn't work about here. I understood all the pole-pullers were men from near by."

Parmelee then explained how he had happened to employ Rossiter.

"He came with the Becrafts over yonder," he added, indicating them with a nod, "mill people from Fallsburgh. Very likely he's a mill hand, but I don't care what he is so long's he looks after you an' the rest. We're mighty short o' help. Well, I declare," he concluded, glancing into Miss Densmore's box, "if you ain't makin' a picker! Miriam's nowhere."

"I don't talk as much as Miriam does," said Miss Densmore, demurely.

"You can," cried that young lady, "only you won't."

Do You Wish To Borrow Money?

In order to accommodate all classes of borrowers (those who cannot borrow at a bank, as well as those who can), the Mutual Loan and Investment Company, of 118 Market street, Newark, N. J., has a department for handling quickly and confidentially loans ranging from $10 to $300 on furniture, pianos, storage receipts, etc.

The security is not removed from your possession or in any way disturbed. The honest, careful and conservative borrower will try and decide two points before borrowing. First, where he can get the best terms. Second, where he can get fair and square treatment.

This company is in a position to give you by far the most satisfactory terms ever offered by any concern or individual negotiating this class of loans.

With this company you are assured of getting the lowest rates, easiest payments and longest time for repayment. The whole transaction from the time the application is made until loan is paid is entirely confidential. We give you another advantage in case you take the loan out for six months or a year, and wish to settle the same before the time expires: we charge you only for the time you have had the money. We also take up loans from other companies and advance more money.

Kindly call and let us explain our simple and up-to-date methods. If not entirely convenient for you to call, please write and our representative will call and give you any desired information. Remember it costs nothing to make application. Loans promptly made in Elizabeth, Plainfield, Westfield, Roselle, Rahway, Perth Amboy and all suburban towns.

KNOX ON ANTITRUST LAWS.

Attorney General Pronounces Legislation Highly Satisfactory.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Attorney General Knox, who is known to have prepared the important features of the antitrust bills now enacted into laws, on being asked as to how they were regarded by the administration said:

"The legislation affecting the trusts at this session of congress is satisfactory to the administration, and the prompt response to the president's requests is highly gratifying. A very long stride in advance has been accomplished, and the promises of last fall have been made good.

"The giving and taking of railroad rebates is now prohibited by a law capable of effective enforcement against corporations as well as individuals, and the courts of the United States are clothed with jurisdiction to restrain and punish violations.

"The act creating the department of commerce vests in that department complete authority to investigate the organization and business methods of corporations engaged in interstate and foreign commerce and to that end to compel the testimony of persons having the desired knowledge. The legislation is concise in its terms, but very comprehensive in its scope. Under its provisions a fair opportunity will be afforded to test the effect upon the tendency toward industrial monopoly of its guarantees of no favors for the great producer as against the small one.

"Discretion is lodged in the president as to the publication of facts useful to be publicly known, and a wise administration of the law promises much that is helpful and nothing that is harmful.

"The law to expedite the hearing of cases and giving an appeal directly to the supreme court from the court of first instance assures within a reasonable time authoritative decisions upon important pending questions, in the knowledge of which future legislation, if necessary, can be confidently framed.

"Upon the whole the situation is eminently satisfactory and is the result of concessions, modifications of views and forms of expressions upon the part of many earnest and thoughtful men who have endeavored within a very brief session to meet a rational public demand in a rational and effective way."

FLOWERS FOR FISHERMEN.

Memorial Service For Dead Held at Gloucester, Mass.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Feb. 16.—Nearly a thousand people, including men, women and children from all walks of life, crowded Atlantic wharf yesterday afternoon and witnessed the beautiful yet pathetic ceremony when seventy-four flowers emblematic of the seventy-four lives sacrificed in the fisheries from this port during the past year were cast on the cold, gray waters of Gloucester harbor.

These memorial services are conducted annually under the auspices of Gloucester Seamen's bethel, of which Rev. D. C. Charlton is the present religious director.

The records of the bethel show that during the past seventy-two years the deep has claimed 5,046 lives from among the fishermen of Gloucester harbor. Nine hundred and eighty-nine widows and 1,180 children have been left to mourn these tragic deaths. Seven hundred and thirty-two vessels have been lost, representing a total value of $3,493,046.

The exercises were attended by a larger crowd and more interest was manifested than on any former similar occasion, this in spite of the fact that the air was raw and disagreeable.

The services were, as usual, simple but impressive. Rev. W. H. Rider, D. D., spoke of the deeds of Gloucester fishermen.

The seventy-four children, each in turn, then cast their flowers upon the water.

Professor Paton Goes to Orient.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 16.—Professor L. B. Paton, Ph. D., of the Hartford Theological seminary has been chosen director of the American School of Oriental Research and Palestinian Archæology in Jerusalem for the year 1903-04 and has been granted leave of absence by the trustees of the seminary in order to fill this position.

Wins a Foreign Education.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 16.—The William Thompson fellowship for purposes of study abroad has been awarded by the vote of the faculty and trustees of the Hartford Theological seminary to Walter B. Pitkin of Detroit, Mich., a senior at the seminary. He will spend two years in Germany.

Cold In Nebraska.

LINCOLN, Neb., Feb. 16.—Nebraska is experiencing the coldest weather of the winter. A light snowfall was followed by a steady fall in temperature. A thirty mile an hour wind intensified the cold. Trains are delayed on account of difficulty in keeping up steam.

HORROR CAUSED HER DEATH

MISS HALEY NEVER RECOVERED FROM SIGHTS SEEN NIGHT OF DISASTER.

Was Visiting at Home of D. F. O'Keefe—Lived at Centralia, Pa.—Nineteen Years Old.

Heart disease, brought on directly by the sights at the North Avenue station the night of the horrible wreck at Westfield, was the cause of the death of Miss Delia Haley, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. O'Keefe, of West Fourth street. She passed away this morning.

Miss Haley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Haley, of Centralia, Pa. Mr. Haley is prominent in the municipal government of that town. She has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O'Keefe and had been in good health for some time. She was taken ill while at the North Avenue station when the hospital train arrived, bearing the bodies of those who were killed and injured at the wreck. She has been confined to her bed since then. She was nineteen years of age.

The remains will be taken to the home of her parents this afternoon.

ANOTHER WIN.

Plainfield Camera Club Defeats the Jersey City Club Whist Team.

The whist four of the Plainfield Camera Club, holders of the Metropolitan whist trophy, scored another win for this trophy Friday night when the Jersey City team was defeated. This makes the third win for the local team and too much praise cannot be given for the excellent work in keeping the trophy in Plainfield. The final score Friday night was 10 to 8 points in favor of the Camera Club. In the first round the visitors were the victors 3 to 5, while the in the second and third rounds, the local team were the winners 2 to 1 and 5 to 2.

The Camera Club team was composed of Arthur F. Freeman, Fred H. Freeman, Ralph T. Willis and W. J. R. Hegeman, Jr. Those representing the Jersey City Club team were C. T. Whittier, D. Rowley, O. S. Mecabe and J. H. Burnstead, Jr. The Elizabeth Chess and Whist Club is next in line as challengers.

VALENTINE SOCIAL.

Miss Josie Culbertson Entertained Some of Her Young Friends.

A delightful valentine social was held Friday evening at the home of Miss Josie Culbertson, of Crescent avenue. The evening was pleasantly spent in playing games and dancing. Those who were present were: Misses Jeanie Miller, Margaret Phillips, Margaret Leggett, Ruth Schupp, Katherine Brown and Mina Culbertson and Harold Millar, Kenneth Phillips, Bert Leggett, Vreeland Van-Alstyne, Newell Kirkner, Charles Eoff. During the evening, Mrs. B. Forster Updyke led the Virginia reel.

Death of Mrs. Bird.

Mrs. Florence Bird, wife of Lewis R. Bird, of Summit and Watchung avenues, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, died this morning about 9:30 o'clock. Mrs. Bird was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Rugg, of this city. She was a popular young woman in a large circle of friends and acquaintances. Mrs. Bird leaves a husband and an infant baby. The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Burial Here.

The remains of Mrs. Alfred Randolph, who died at Alfred, N. Y., last Thursday, were brought to Plainfield yesterday morning and interred in Hillside cemetery. Rev. Dr. A.H. Lewis, the former pastor of the deceased, met the remains and relatives, accompanying them to the cemetery, where a short service was held.

One Was Fined.

The trial of Joseph Burns and a man named Taylor, who were arrested on Somerset street early Saturday morning for disturbing the peace, was held Saturday night. Recorder Doud reprimanded both men severely and fined Taylor $5.

—The first lecture of the Griggs' course will be held Thursday afternoon, commencing at 3:45 in Vincent chapel.

PROGRESSED AT EACH COURSE

UNIQUE ST. VALENTINE DINNER GIVEN SATURDAY EVENING.

Each Course Was Served at Home of Different Member of Luncheon Club.

A very unique and charming affair in celebration of St. Valentine Day, was given Saturday evening under the auspices of the Young Women's Luncheon Club. The affair was a progressive dinner party and each of the six young women, composing the membership of the club, invited a friend. At each home the dinner table was appropriately decorated and as each course was served the young women gave favors.

The first course, oysters, was served at the home of Miss Berry in Grove street; the second course, soup, at the home of Miss Barlow in Prospect place; the third course, meat, at the home of Miss Valiant in Myrtle avenue; the fourth course, the entree, at the home of Miss Milne in Willow avenue; the fifth course, salad, at the home of Miss Frankie Burr in Sycamore avenue; and the sixth course, dessert, at the home of Miss Mary McCutcheon in Rockview avenue.

The men invited to join in the pleasant affair were Arthur Peck, Donald A. McGee, A. Willis West, E. Clinton Hall, Robert Simpson, of this city, and Richard Pitts, of Princeton. The dinner commenced at 6:30 o'clock and was concluded at 10 o'clock. After the last course all joined in having a social time, while the singing of college songs was a feature.

ANNOUNCED ENGAGEMENT.

Was Given Out at Valentine Gathering at Home of Groom's Parents.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Frost, of Watchung avenue, entertained thirty young people at their home Saturday evening at a Valentine party, when the engagement of Miss Evelyn Lynas, daughter of T. R. Lynas, manager of the Aetna Life Insurance Company, of Chicago, to G. Harwood Frost, of London, Eng., was announced. Mr. Frost is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Frost and has been visiting his parents. He will sail for London next Saturday on the Lucania.

During the evening there was a progressive heart party, after which a collation was served. Later in the evering there was a programme of music. Miss Lynas is a most accomplished young woman and has travelled extensively through Europe.

ENTERTAINED FRIENDS.

The Misses Roseberry Played the Parts of Hostesses.

The Misses Edith and Flora Roseberry, of West Front street, entertained a number of friends at their home Thursday evening. Mrs. Sparks, of Philadelphia, rendered a few vocal selections. THREE LOCAL TEAMS BEATEN

PLAINFIELD Y. M. C. A. BOYS VISITED ORANGE ASSOCIATION.

Boys Beaten in Morning, Leal's School in Afternoon and First Team in Evening.

Saturday was "Plainfield" day at Orange, where three basket ball teams from this city, met a similar number from the Orange Y. M. C. A.

In the morning a boy's team, consisting of "Ted" Gavett, Carl Steiner, Harry Bentley, Harvey Gilmore, "Turkey" Webster, Harvey Douglass and Jerry Manning, met a boy's team from the Orange association and was defeated by a score of 20 to 3.

In the afternoon a team from Leal's School met a team picked from the school teams at Orange. The visitors suffered defeat by a score of 17 to 12. The Leal team consisted of Gordon Abbott, c; Ray Biglow, rg; C. Robert, lg; Wm. Doane, rf; Robert Abbott, lf.

In the evening the regular team from the local Y. M. C. A. met the regulars from the Orange association and received the worst defeat of the season, the score being 53 to 7. The Orange team played the visitors to death and in the last half the Plainfield boys simply stood by and watched their opponents throw goals. The local team was tired out having played two strong games during the week. There will be a return game in this city March 16, when the Plainfield team hopes to retreive lost honors.

After each game, the visitors were served with light refreshments and treated royally.

TALKED WITHOUT PICTURES.

F. Henry Grant Gave His Lecture on "Korea" Saturday Night.

The lecture given by F. Henry Grant at the Crescent Avenue church, Saturday evening, under the auspices of the Boys' Mission Band, was fairly well attended. The subject was "Korea." Mr. Grant took these pictures two years ago while on a trip around the world with Robert E. Speer, and he expected to show them Saturday evening. The person who was to have operated the lantern did not arrive and instead Mr. Grant just gave the talk without the aid of the pictures.

Strike at Cotton Mills Serious.

DOVER, N. H., Feb. 16.—The strike of the carders and ring spinners of the Cocheco cotton mills looks more serious than it has at any time since the men left their work last Wednesday noon. The weavers', mule spinners' and loom fixers' unions met separately and unanimously voted to indorse the action taken by the strikers to remain out and fight to the end. Later a mass meeting of all the operatives of the mills was held, and it was voted to continue the strike.

LOTS OF SNOW, NO BLOCKADE

Heavest Snow Storm of Winter Came in Night, But Did Not Interfere With Traffic.

THE SLEIGHING IS FAIR

Jersey Central Had Trouble in Yards, But Trains Were Running All Right—Even the Trolley Observed Its Schedule—Over Twelve Inches of Snow.

Winter is not over yet. A foot of snow arrived during the night to practically demonstrate that fact. It wasn't any modern blizzard, just an old-fashioned snow storm, and although there was more snow than Plainfield has seen at any one time before this winter, everything was opened up early and there was little interruption to the business activity of the city. Of course, the going was hard on the horses and pedestrians had their troubles before the sidewalks were cleaned off but the trains ran as usual and even the trolley surprised everybody by running its cars on something like scheduled time even in the early morning. It was just a taste of real winter and the lowering temperature which has followed the snow promises to retain the impression for a little time to come.

There were signs of trouble brewing Sunday. According to custom it began to rain Sunday morning. The mercury wandered down to the freezing point and the sidewalks began to assume an icy guise. By Monday morning, sidewalks grew unpopular and the middle of the road offered greater attractions for those who were a bit uncertain in their footing. The rain ceased during the morning but much of the ice remained to form an enduring bottom for the snow that was soon to fall.

The snow began to fall as the sun set yesterday afternoon and it continued with remarkable persistency until over twelve inches of light, feathery flakes had fallen. The real snow ended at 6:30 o'clock this morning and the wind shifted around from the north east. A harmless little squall appeared an hour or so later but it didn't amount to much. It left fair sleighing for there was an ice bottom although the snow didn't pack well.

There were unsurpassed opportunities for the north wind to get in its work and blockade everything with huge drifts but, for once, it failed to rise to the occasion and the snow was not heavily drifted. There was some wind during the night and that made itself evident in the more open sections where a few drifts appeared. There was more of it as the morning progressed. The chance for a blizzard to rival that of 1888 was lost, however.

When the snow began to fall so heavily last night and the wind showed a disposition to rise, the railroad men expected trouble. Freight traffic suffered somewhat but the east bound passenger trains went on schedule time and the commuters found themselves carried to New York this morning almost on the time to encounter their troubles there. An east bound coal train was stalled on track three at Fanwood early this morning but an extra engine soon ended the blockade. There was some trouble in the Jersey City yards on account of the deep snow and the west bound trains were delayed from thirty minutes to an hour at the terminal. Except in the yards, however, the railroad men were not seriously handicapped in handling the passenger traffic. Through trains from the west were more or less late.

The local trolley company had its troubles in keeping the various lines open, but it succeeded. Early in the evening it became apparent that there would be trouble ahead and some of the cars were operated in tandem. Even this did not serve to keep the lines clear and by 10 o'clock the entire system was tied up. The absence of the snow scrapers on the trucks of the cars and the empty sand boxes was responsible in many cases for the early tie up.

Superintendent Brown was up nearly all night superintending the operations of the snow plow and the clearing of the tracks. Work was continued all night and this morning it was possible to operate the cars on something like schedule time. The absence of any high wind alone pre-

MET DEATH BY ACCIDENT

COUNTY AUTHORITIES DECIDE THAT VAIL WAS NOT MURDERED.

Base of Skull Found Crushed In and Other Evidence That He Was Struck by Engine.

A searching investigation on the part of the Middlesex county authorities, yesterday, resulted in their declaring with a certainty that David S. Vail, of Park avenue, came to his death on the tracks of the New Jersey Central, Sunday night, by accidental means.

The assault and murder theory was scouted by them and on close inspection, the base of the skull was found crushed in, giving every evidence that it had been done by some projection from an engine. It was in such a position that it was not at first discerned and from the slight cut on the forehead suspicion was aroused.

Coroner Quackenboss, of New Brunswick, viewed the remains, yesterday, and permitted their removal to this city. The funeral services will be held from his late home, Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock.

STATE RAILROAD COMMISSION

ASSEMBLYMAN NEWCORN INTRODUCES BILL PROVIDING FOR ONE.

Provides For Four Commissioners to be Appointed by the Governor.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Feb. 17—Mr. Newcorn, of Union, introduced last night in the Assembly a bill providing for a State Railroad Commission. The bill grows out of the necessity of State regulation of roads, as proved in the recent wreck on the Central Railroad at Westfield.

The bill provides that four commissioners are to be appointed by the Governor to serve four years, with a salary of $1,500 a year each. They are to have supervision of the management of railroads and are to make an annual report to the Legislature.

The House passed the bill appropriating $125,000 for an Essex armory.

SEVERAL CONTESTS.

Decided at Fair at St. Peter's German Lutheran Church.

In closing the St. Peter's German Lutheran church fair last week, several contests were decided. The pink pillow presented by Mrs. E. F. Moldenke, of New York, was presented to Mr. Texier of Watchung. The green pillow given by Mrs. Lennau, of New Market, was presented to Mrs. Charles Smith, and Miss Jennie Mantz won the pillow presented by Miss Vogt. Miss Seidentopf's pillow was won by Mrs. Richard Moldenke and the doll presented by Miss Vortermeier, was won by Miss Jennie Dresselt.

Work of State Committee.

For about three minutes before the afternoon meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday, F. H. Andrews, who is chairman of the State Y. M. C. A. committee, took occasion to speak on the work of that committee. The music at the meeting was a pleasing feature. Martin A. Korff rendered several selections on the violin and was accompanied by Miss Conger. The singing was led by Nelson A. Miller.

Funeral of J. A. Demarest.

The funeral services of the late James Alfred Demarest were held Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock from the home in Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, and yesterday the remains were interred in Hillside cemetery, this city. The remains were accompanied to Plainfield by relatives and several friends.

Makes an Address.

Miss Joanna P. Moore, who has worked among the colored people in the south since the Civil War and is still laboring among them, will make an address this afternoon before the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church. All are cordially invited.

Pulpit Supply.

The pulpit at the Park Avenue Baptist church will be occupied the next two Sundays by Rev. Mr. Warren, of New York, and an effort will be made to secure Rev. T. E. Vassar, of Elizabeth for the following two Sundays.

Case Adjourned.

Adjournment until Thursday has been made in the contract case of Burdick against Lloyd, which was to have been heard yesterday in Justice Hand's court.

JUNIORS FAIR FINALLY COMES TO A CLOSE

Stormy Weather Did Not Prevent a Large Crowd From Attending Last Night

WILL CLEAR OVER $400

RESULTS OF SOME OF THE CONTESTS WERE ANNOUNCED.

Those Who Were in Charge of the Different Departments — Dancing Was the Principal Feature During the Week.

In spite of adverse weather the attendance at the closing night of Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., was very good last evening, and, as planned, the dancing was a great feature. The fair held this year by the council netted more by $200 than the first one held a year ago. The lodge will clear about $400 from the week's run in the borough.

Outside of the dancing the principal feature of the evening was the awarding of the prizes and contests. There were two women in the contest for the set of china dishes and Mrs. De Nise won the contest by $10.65 over Mrs. John Hope. The former collected $40.65 and the latter reported $30.

Much interest centered in the contest for $25 worth of merchandise which was run off last evening. The lucky number drawn was No. 3 which was held by Miss C. M. Clark.

The fair was held for the purpose of replenishing the treasury of the council and the proceeds were very gratifying to the committee which comprised: J. V. Beekman, chairman; A. G. Adams, secretary; Edward C. Searing, treasurer; H. G. Adams and Robert M. Clark, assisted by the following floor committee: Clifton Compton, I. N. Wyckoff, Frasee Putnam and A. R. Trenchard.

Those who assisted the general committee at the fair were: Refreshments, Samuel Terry, Marion Brokaw, J. H. Adams, Bowling; Frank Quass. The women who had charge of the several booths were: Mrs. A. G. Adams, Mrs. George A. Ballantyne, Mrs. J. V. Beekman, Mrs. George VanCamp, Miss C. M. Clark, Mrs. I. N. Wyckoff, Miss Margaret Sheppard, Mrs. F. L. Manchester and Miss Kohler. In the cloak room were Gilbert S. Martin, William T. Newman and the ticket selling was done by Walter Fisher.

The music for the dancing all during the week was provided by Suhr's Imperial orchestra and was very fine.

RESIDENTIAL CHANGES.

Sales and Rentals Made Through Mulford's Agency.

The following sales and rentals have been consummated through the real estate agency of Edward C. Mulford & Son, of North avenue: Mrs. Akin has purchased the property known as 79 Summit avenue, North Plainfield, belonging to J. A. Hubbard; George W. Schooley has purchased Mrs. Denckla's property at 323 East Second street; Charles Layton has rented the apartment in the Pittis building, corner of Fifth street and Watchung avenue; F. W. Iredell, of Washington Park, has rented the Rogers house on Madison avenue near West Seventh street; Mrs. Elizabeth MacQuoid, of Westfield, has rented the house corner of Fairview and Watchung avenues; Frank Randolph, of Watchung avenue, has rented Andrew McCardell's house on West Front street, and J. W. Leary, of the Aluminum Plate Works, has rented the house at 941 West Sixth street.

Test Work.

The test work, which has been held at the City High School for the past week, came to an end today, and tomorrow the regular work will be resumed. The pupils have been examined in each subject in two hour tests held at the beginning of each day. This has been done to assist the teachers in determining the standard for marking in the recent work.

At Elks' Show.

A delegation of 100 Plainfielders was in attendance at the annual performance of the Elizabeth B. P. O. Elks minstrel troupe, in Jacobs' Theatre, last night. The performance was one of the most creditable yet given and was witnessed by an audience that packed the theatre to the doors. John Sullivan, of this city, was a member of the chorus.

HOPE Y. M. A. WILL LOSE BASEBALL FIELD

Hope Common is to be Converted Into a Handsome Residental Park.

SOON BEGIN OPERATIONS

ONLY FIRST-CLASS HOUSES ARE TO BE ERECTED.

Meanwhile the Officials of the Y. M. A. Are Hunting for a New Site for Their Diamond — Several Are Under Consideration.

The Hope Y. M. A. is confronted with the prospect of having to secure new grounds for its baseball games during the coming summer. It is announced that building operations on the Leonard property, which it has been occupying for the past three years, will commence about the middle of March.

The plot of ground is bounded by West Eighth street, Plainfield, Sherman and Grant avenues and is the site selected for the residential park projected by local and Philadelphia capitalists. It will be cut up into building lots of a large size on which handsome residences are to be erected. The details of the plan were given in a recent issue of The Daily Press.

Several vacant lots of an area suitable for a baseball diamond have been looked over by Y. M. A. officials and it is possible one will be selected in time to be graded and ready for the regular league schedule. If successful the team management will co-operate with other baseball organizations and erect a suitable grandstand and bleachers.

WANTS TWO-ENGINEER LAW

FRANK J. SHATTLE WRITES CONCERNING TWO MEN IN A CAB.

Believes Such Law Should Be Passed By the Legislature Without Delay.

Frank J. Shattle, of this city, has written a communication to The Daily Press in which he urges that a law should be on the statute books compelling railroad companies to have two engineers in the cabs of "flyers." He refers to the editorial in The Daily Press which stated that the railroad is not to blame because there is no law compelling them to have two men in the cab. Mr. Shattle says that such a bill was presented by Congressman Allan Benny, of Bayonne, to the Legislature of the State, on two different occasions and was defeated.

He believes that such a law should be made or else the railroads should be compelled to equip their lines with the Kinsman automatic signal. He cites the fact that the engines now used are so different from the old style, where the fireman used to be close to the engineer. Now, he says, the fireman is some distance off and separated by a long portion of the boiler. He thinks the engineer might be dead at his post and the fireman would not know it, as the latter is compelled to be firing most of the time on the "flyers."

Mr. Shattle suggests that a blank ballot be published in The Daily Press each night, appealing to the lawmakers through the people for greater protection. He says that if it is necessary for a boat to have two pilots, then a mile-a-minute flyer should have two men in the cab.

TO CALL PASTOR.

It Is Expected That Grace M. E. Church Will Ask Him to Stay.

On Wednesday evening of next week the quarterly conference of the Grace M. E. church will be held when it is probable that a call will be extended to the present pastor, Rev. E. L. Earp, to remain with that congregation for another year. Tomorrow evening the conference committee will hold a meeting. R. Hoagland and Edward Stine comprise the committee.

New Sounding-Board.

A new sounding-board put in position over the pulpit at the Park Avenue Baptist church was used Sunday for the first. While the board does not make the acoustic properties perfect, it helps greatly and the congregation expressed the opinion that the preaching is more distinct.

HANDSOME CHARM FOR THE RETIRING PRELATE

Members of Trinity Commandery K. T. Made a Valuable Present to Mr. Richardson.

AT REGULAR CONCLAVE

DISTINGUISHED GUESTS PRESENT—ORDER OF TEMPLE CONFERRED.

Short Historical Address by Eminent Sir John, R. Tressider, of New York—Presentation of Maltese Cross to Prelate.

At a regular conclave of Trinity Commandery, No 17., K. T., last evening, the Order of the Temple was conferred by Eminent Sir Commander Samuel Bingaman, assisted by Rev. J. W. Richardson, as prelate, and Eminent Sir Wilson G. Fox, of York Commandery, No. 55, K. T., of New York, the latter displaying during the ceremony many beautiful Scriptural scenes. Right Eminent Sir Daniel Demarest, of Grand Commandery of New Jersey, and the associate grand officers, together with a large delegation from Damascus Commandery, of Newark, were present; also Right Eminent Sir Davidson, of Washington, N. J.

A rare intellectual treat was a short historical address by Eminent Sir John R. Tresidder, of New York, who as an orator has a few equals and none excel him in the knowledge of the Order from the time of the crusade. This address was considered one of the best ever listened to and all left the Asylum with a better knowledge of what the Order was and is and with higher ideals as a man and a Templar.

A feature of the evening was the presentation to Rev. J. W. Richardson, the retiring prelate, of a maltese cross containing five diamonds in the crown and seven rubies in the cross. The Masonic emblem was beautifully inscribed on the reverse side, bearing Mr. Richardson's name and the date of presentation. It was attached to a watch fob. The presentation was made by Eminent Sir Commander Samuel Bingaman, who in a happy speech recited the excellent service of Mr. Richardson and expressed the sincere regrets of all on his departure from the city. The emblem was given to Mr. Richardson in behalf of the Commandery, and the recipient responded in words of much feeling and gratitude for the handsome gift. He thanked all most heartily and said that he was exceedingly sorry to sever the ties of friendship.

At the close of the conclave all were invited to partake of a collation prepared by a committee from the Commandery.

ANOTHER VOTE.

Somerville's School Board Still Trying for Better School Facilities in That Place.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 17—The Somerville Board of Education is determined to have better school facilities. Although its propositions so far have always been voted down at public meetings a session has been called to be held in the Court House on Thursday evening at 7 o'clock, when two new propositions will be voted on. The polls will be open two hours.

The first proposition is to erect a brick school building in the rear of the large school house on High street and to make necessary repairs to the present building. Probable cost, $24,000.

The second proposition is to purchase a lot of land in East Somerville and erect and furnish a four room brick school house at a cost of $10,000.

New Brunswick Day.

Saturday will be New Brunswick day at the local Y. M. C. A., when the members of the New Brunswick Y. M. C. A. will pay a visit to this city and will be entertained during the morning with a basket ball game. The building will be thrown open to the Brunswickers and at noon they will enjoy a repast.

Cleaning Crosswalks.

Street Committeeman James K. Arnold, of the borough, had a large force of men at work on the borough streets yesterday morning clearing the crosswalks of the slush and ice. Some of the sidewalks in the borough are in a very bad condition.

—Among the varieties of White Label canned goods at Neuman Bros. are sifted sugar peas, small green lima beans and extra fine Maine sugar corn. Special prices for large lots.

HE FOUND HIS WIFE DEAD

SAD DISCOVERY MADE BY JAMES ANDERSON ON RETURNING HOME.

Was Partially Kneeling on Floor of Bedroom—Apoplexy Was Cause of Death.

On reaching home from his day's work at 6:45 last evening, James Anderson, of West Third street, was surprised to find his wife absent. Searching about the house he found her body, cold in death, partially kneeling on the floor of a bedroom. She had evidently been stricken by apoplexy and made an attempt to lie down. Dr. Cregar was called but he declared life had been extinct at least two hours.

Mrs. Anderson was formerly Miss Rosa Burke and was the daughter of Mrs. Bridget Burke, of West Fourth street. She is survived by one sister, Miss Julia Burke, who lives with her mother. She was twenty-nine years of age.

County Physician Westcott viewed the remains today and granted a burial permit. No arrangements for the funeral have yet been completed.

SUPPLYING REGULAR ARMY

CLIFTON & CAMPBELL ARE SHIPPING FOODSTUFFS TO PORTO RICO.

Have Contract to Supply Army There With Supplies—Now Sending to Navy.

Few people in this city know that one of the local firms supply the regular army at Porto Rico with vegetables and foodstuffs, yet such is the case. A local man is at the head of the distribution station in that beautiful West Indian island and has been there for some time looking after the interests of his employers in this city.

Some time ago Clifton & Campbell, the local wholesale produce dealers, secured the contract for supplying the soldiers stationed at the Island of Porto Rico. Large shipments of supplies have been sent from this city and from New York consigned to Porto Rico by the local concern and recently they have had a large increase of business in that locality.

Last week the local concern received instructions from Washington to supply the naval forces at Porto Rico with provisions and they have been sending extra large shipments there. It was not stipulated in the contract that they should supply the naval forces at that place but the new contract means much larger business for the local concern.

Clifton & Campbell are arranging to import a large shipment of pine apples from Porto Rico, and as soon as the season commences they will have large quantities on hand.

The local firm is represented at Porto Rico by Walter H. Martin, who was a resident in this city for some time and he has charge of the entire receiving station at that place.

TO STATE CONFERENCE.

Plainfielders Will Attend Conference of Charities and Corrections.

A large number of Plainfield people will attend the second State conference of Charities and Corrections to be held at the State House, Trenton, Thursday and Friday, as the subjects to be discussed are of vital interest to this community, among them being the increasing evil of wife desertion, extension of the probation system to police courts, the need of a State reformatory for women and others. Among those who expect to attend the conference are Mrs. Dexter O. Tiffany, Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, Mrs. Horace Kimball, Mrs. Charles E. Brooks, Miss Mary Tweedy, Mrs. Lucius H. Biglow, Jr., Miss Rafferty, Overseer of the Poor Alex D. Ayres, William G. Debele, Miss Sarah M. VanBoskerck, Chief of Police Kiely and Henry M. Maxson. The latter will be one of the speakers at the conference.

Party for Guests.

A party was given by Mr. and Mrs. V. Utzinger, of 75 Grandview avenue, last evening, in honor of Mrs. Porter and her daughter, Miss Katheryn Porter, of Grahamsville, Sullivan county, New York, who are guests at their home. Those present included neighbors and friends. The evening was spent in playing games, singing, etc., after which refreshments were served.

FLAMES END CHILD'S LIFE

Four-Year-Old Child of Wm. O'Connor Burned to Death While Mother Was Out.

CLOTHING CAUGHT FIRE

Two Little Ones Had Been Playing With Water and Stood Before Kitchen Fire to Dry—One Stood Too Close—Death Resulted From Burns.

Death in a horrible form came, yesterday, to a four-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. William O'Connor, former residents of this city, but who a short time ago moved to Newark. While the mother was absent, visiting a Plainfield woman at the Newark hospital, the child's clothing took fire from a stove and before assistance could reach it, death had resulted from burns and the inhalation of flames.

Mrs. O'Connor, who is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Reid, of Liberty street, left her two children at home while she went to see Mrs. Patrick Lynch, of West Second street, who is a patient in the Newark hospital. The children began playing with water and one of them had its clothing saturated. In attempting to dry it by standing in front of the kitchen fire, the heat started a tiny flame which sprang into deadly blazes when the child ran frantically about the room. Life was extinct when neighbors reached the house in response to the cries.

A local undertaker went to Newark today and the remains will be brought to this city. They will be interred in St. Mary's cemetery.

AFTER ANOTHER.

Somerville Board of Trade Is Hustling for a Second New Factory.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 17—An enthusiastic meeting of the Somerville Board of Trade was held in the Court House Saturday night, when the contract with the New York Agricultural Company, which will build a large factory here, was read and approved by a unanimous vote.

A committee was appointed to investigate a large manufacturing concern in New York. This company desires a suburban location for a $75,000 building and has had representatives here who said they were well pleased with the town. If the committee's report is favorable a great effort will be made to have the concern locate here.

The Board voted to at once take steps for incorporation.

Trust Company's Showing.

In the advertising columns of this issue will be found a statement of the condition of the Plainfield Trust Company at close of business February 6. Comparing it with the published report of December 31, deposits have increased from $350,000 to $440,000, or about 25 per cent. in less than six weeks. The total assets now exceed $600,000. That the Trust Company has found its way to public favor and confidence is fully proven by the rapid increase in its business.

Tuskahoe Club Concert.

The Tuskahoe Club will render a concert at 117 Madison avenue, Thursday evening. The club is a colored musical organization and they have arranged a very pleasing programme for that evening. After the concert a social evening will be enjoyed when games and dancing will be kept up until a late hour. Waverly Carter is chairman of the committee of arrangements.

Birthday Dinner.

Miss Elizabeth McGee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. McGee, entertained a number of her friends at Truell Court, Saturday evening, in honor of her birthday anniversary. Those present were Miss Jean Saunders, Miss Janet VanVliet, Miss Madeline Howard, Miss Frances Iredell, Miss Dorothy McCutchen, Miss Helen Joy, Miss Anna Yerkes and Miss Bessie Flanders.

Declared Mentally Unsound.

Having been declared mentally unsound, Paul Richter was yesterday sent to Monticello, N. Y. This was where he resided before coming to Plainfield and where his wife, who is declared to be quite wealthy, now lives. He will probably be committed to the State Hospital.

THEATRICAL.

Contracts have been signed by E. R. Reynolds and Charles Klein whereby the latter is to write a new comedy for De Wolf Hopper. Owing to the success of "Mr. Pickwick" it has been decided that another version of the Pickwick Papers is to be the vehicle which Klein will turn out. This work of Dickens furnishes enough material for a dozen plays and if Mr. Klein succeeds as well in his new play as he did in the last, Hopper will have to look no further for material for several years. The author has been given two years to finish the new work as the present, "Mr. Pickwick" will no doubt prove one of the biggest winning attractions of next season on the road and is now testing the capacity of the Herald Square Theatre where it will finish out the season.

Blanche Walsh has closed her season in "The Daughter of Hamilcar" and opened in the much talked of production of "Resurrection" at the Victoria Theatre, New York, Monday evening. Collin Kemper has returned from his flying trip to London and Paris, where he divided the five days of his stay between performances of "Resurrection" at the Odeon Theatre, Paris, and rehearsals of the piece by the Beerbohm Tree Company in London. Mr. Kemper not only obtained many valuable suggestions for the New York production of this great European success but he ordered a complete reproduction of the furniture and costumes used in Paris, and which it would be impossible to obtain in this country. "Resurrection" is now being given with great success in Berlin, Madrid and Vienna, and is in rehearsal in Holland, Belgium and Spain.

THE NEW CUP DEFENDER.

Mr. Iselin Satisfied With Progress on Yacht.

BRISTOL, R. I., Feb. 17.—Mr. C. Oliver Iselin, the managing owner of the proposed cup defender, after inspecting the yacht in company with the designer, N. G. Herreshoff, expressed himself as very well satisfied with the progress on the boat. As to the name of the new yacht Mr. Iselin would not say whether or not "Republic" had been selected.

Captain Charles Barr, who will command the new boat, was also a visitor to the yards and said that a majority of the crew would report for duty on April 20. From this it is believed that the yacht will be launched a few days later and taken out on her trial trip in Narragansett bay about May 5. This is nearly three weeks ahead of the Constitution in 1901 and over a month ahead of the time when the Columbia had her first trial in 1899.

Captain Barr said that the crew had been selected, the number being forty-eight. He was noncommittal as to their nationality.

Rafferty Heads Yale Eleven.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 17.—Captain George B. Chadwick unexpectedly called a meeting of the members of the Yale football eleven last night to elect a captain to succeed himself. For several weeks three candidates have been considered, E. T. Glass, H. G. Metcalf and Charles D. Rafferty. A statement issued by Captain Chadwick after the election explains why Glass was not voted for, and it is understood that Metcalf withdrew in favor of Rafferty before the meeting was over. The final choice of Rafferty was by unanimous ballot. He played as a substitute three years ago, getting into one of the championship games. Two years ago and last year he was a regular member of the eleven. His home is in Pittsburg.

Beach Warrant For Ryan.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 17.—John J. Ryan, head of the turf investment company bearing his name, has been arrested on a bench warrant issued by Judge Douglas. The indictment alleges fraud and conspiracy to commit fraud, which is the same charge brought in the indictment against Arnold and Gill, who are believed to have gone to Mexico. In the circuit court yesterday W. F. Kier obtained a writ of attachment for $2,100 against John J. Ryan, doing business as John J. Ryan & Co. Service was had on Ryan while he was in the grand jury room. Accounts held by Ryan in eight or ten St. Louis banks and trust companies were made the objects of garnishment writs.

Americans Win at Racquet.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Play for the international racquet championship began last night. The Americans won all the games. Four matches were disposed of, two of them by default. Lawrence Waterbury defeated F. F. Rolland of Montreal by a score of 15 to 10, 15 to 4, 12 to 15 and 15 to 4. A. A. Shaw of Boston defeated W. B. Dunsmoney of New York by a score of 7 to 15, 15 to 7, 15 to 5 and 15 to 3. R. K. Cassatt of Philadelphia beat Captain R. G. McDougal of Montreal by default, and Erskine Hewitt beat Ford Huntington by default.

Vignaux Defeats Slosson.

PARIS, Feb. 17.—Vignaux (French) badly defeated Slosson (American) in the second game of the international billiard championship tournament which was played at the Grand hotel. Vignaux scored 500 against Slosson's 146. Slosson was evidently in bad form, his highest run being only 42. Vignaux's highest runs were 98, 82 and 87. Sutton (American) will play Slosson tonight.

On the Ice at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 17.—The Ottawa ice races yesterday were devoid of excitement. The three mile race was won by Guesner, a horse that seems full of surprises. He is credited with having done a trial quarter over the track in thirty-two seconds, three-quarters of a second better than Cresceus. The weather was cold and attendance small.

Baseball Pitcher Dead.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Phil Reccius, a well known baseball pitcher, is dead at the state insane asylum, where he had been for several months, says a dispatch to the Tribune from Louisville, Ky. In July, 1894, while pitching a game for Spokane against Seattle he was hit on the head by a batted ball. The injury affected his mind.

One Winning Favorite.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 17.—Ailyar, in the first race, was the only winning favorite. Bud Embry was run up to $1,000 after his race and bought by J. Carroll. Weather cloudy and cold; track heavy.

Kenilworth Breaks Track Record.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17.—Kenilworth beat a good field and broke the Ingleside track record for a mile by covering the distance in 1:39½. Perfect weather prevailed, and the track was fast.

Doukhobors Coming to Their Senses.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 17.—The department of the interior has been advised of a meeting of the Doukhobors with Peter Veregin, their leader, and the agents of the department at Swan River and Yorkton, at which it was resolved to become British citizens and Canadians. The Doukhobors also decided to take out their patents for homesteads.

Failure Caused by Thefts.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—William Cossitt Cone company, members of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, with offices at 44 Broad street, have announced their assignment in favor of William M. Bennett. The cause of the failure is said to be a big defalcation by one of the clerks.

ADDICKS TO BOLTERS

Delaware Senatorial Candidate Issues a Statement.

HIS OPPONENTS HAVE TWO MOVES.

No Man Who Refused to Vote For Addicks Will Ever Be Allowed to Hold Office In the State.

WILMINGTON, Del., Feb. 17.—The following statement on the senatorial situation has been issued by J. Edward Addicks, the union Republican candidate for United States senator:

"On the Republican side there are but two things the bolters can do. First, the ten men now voting against J. Edward Addicks can come into a common caucus of thirty-one Republicans. In this case Mr. Addicks will withdraw, and his twenty-one friends will nominate two union Republicans senators as near to Mr. Addicks as possible, and the whole thirty-one will elect them. Of course if the bolters can find any way whereby ten men can beat twenty-one they can nominate one of the senators.

J. EDWARD ADDICKS.

Second, each side can elect one senator without dictation from the other side. In this case Mr. Addicks will be the choice of the union Republicans. No dictation will be permitted by the union Republicans.

"On the Democratic side the Democrats can join the bolters and elect anybody the coalition pleases. This cannot be prevented by the union Republicans, and they would not lift a hand to prevent it.

"As to the future position of the union Republicans, in no event will any more notice be taken of the bolters in Newcastle county. No more common primaries will be tolerated which would be binding on honorable union Republicans and not binding on bolters. No man who refused to vote for J. Edward Addicks in the legislature will ever be allowed to hold any office in Delaware nor will any bolter sympathizers be permitted to come to the front. Union Republicans will nominate a straight ticket in Wilmington and throughout the state in the long future. As to the appointments, Congressman Ball cannot get a federal appointment. After March 4 the appointments, according to custom, ought to go to the chairman of the union Republican state committee and the national committeeman, J. Edward Addicks. We will see where the power will lie."

Gave Life For a Friend.

LANCASTER, Pa., Feb. 17.—Moses Keller, aged forty years, gave up his life in a brave attempt to save a companion from asphyxiation in an oil tank. David Lindeman had entered the tank which he was emptying to sweep out oil that had failed to run off. Ordinarily this was a safe procedure, but today the heavy atmosphere confined the poisonous gases which usually evaporated. Lindeman was overcome and fell unconscious. Seeing Lindeman's predicament Keller bravely dropped through the manhole of the tank to the rescue, refusing to take the precaution urged upon him of tying a rope about himself, shouting there was no time to be lost. Keller, too, was overcome. By means of hooks both were finally dragged out, but Keller was dead. Lindeman soon recovered.

Some New Jersey Appointments.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 17.—Governor Murphy has sent to the senate these nominations: For circuit court judge, Charles W. Parker of Jersey City; for district court judge in Jersey City, James S. Erwin, to succeed Judge Parker; judge of the court of errors, George R. Gray of Newark, to succeed Judge Krueger, who declined a reappointment. The appointment of Judge Erwin came as a surprise. A couple of weeks ago he was unsuccessful in obtaining a reappointment as prosecutor of Hudson county. He was opposed by the Republican organization of the county.

Sold Nickels For Half Eagles.

LANCASTER, Pa., Feb. 17.—Elmer Weikert, aged thirty years, who is thought to have operated extensively in Philadelphia and this city, has been arrested here by Secret Service Operator Griffin on the charge of gilding and milling five cent pieces and passing them as five dollar gold coins. Several of the counterfeits were found in his boarding house. Weikert was remanded for a hearing.

Mitchell In Chicago.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Six thousand people crowded the Auditorium at the demonstration of the local labor unions in honor of John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers. The greatest enthusiasm was shown when Mr. Mitchell appeared on the platform, and his speech later in the meeting was received with cheers.

TWO BILLS PASSED.

Philippine Currency and Indian Supply Through Senate.

DEBATE ON STATEHOOD OMITTED.

Mr. Morgan Spoke on a Question of Privilege—The House Disposed of a Number of Important Measures.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—There was no debate on the statehood bill in the senate yesterday. The Indian appropriation bill and the Philippine currency bill both were passed. Mr. Vest while the Indian bill was up called attention to a point of order which had been made against one of its provisions on the ground that it was new legislation. The senate, he said, had passed the Philippine government bill as a rider to the army appropriation bill, and yet ruled other provisions out. All rules, he said, were violated when a majority was in favor of any measure.

Mr. Morgan spoke on a question of privilege regarding the dispatch which recently appeared in the public prints purporting to be signed by the Colombian minister to Mexico, Senor Rafael Reyes, in which Senor Reyes took exception to an alleged statement by Mr. Morgan in the senate that the Colombian president had sold out and abdicated for $1,000,000. Mr. Morgan declared that there was a betrayal of the senate in the matter of what transpires at executive sessions and that Senor Reyes had violated a principle of diplomacy when he obtained information surreptitiously from persons false to their trust.

The Philippine currency bill as passed by the senate prescribes that the unit of value in the Philippines shall be the gold peso, of twelve and nine-tenths grains of gold, nine-tenths fine, said gold peso to become the unit of value when the government in the Philippines shall have coined and ready for circulation not less than 5,000,000 of the silver pesos provided for in the bill. The gold coins of the United States at the rate of $1 for two pesos shall be legal tender in the islands. The bill also provides for an additional coinage of 75,000,000 silver coins of the denomination of 1 peso which shall be legal tender except where provided by contract. Coins of the denomination of 50 centavos, 20 centavos and of 10 centavos also are provided for, all such coinage to be under the authority of the government of the Philippine Islands in such amounts as it may determine, with the approval of the secretary of war. The bill also provides for the issue of certificates of indebtedness to maintain the parity of the silver and gold pesos, such certificates outstanding at any one time to be limited to $10,000,000 or 20,000,000 pesos.

Chairman Cooper of the house committee on insular affairs says that as soon as the bill is received from the senate by the house it will be sent to conference.

The house disposed of a number of bills under suspension of the rules, defeating two. The most important measure passed was the senate bill to amend the railroad safety appliance law. A special order was adopted which practically will make the Fowler currency bill a continuing order for the remainder of the session, not, however, to interfere with conference reports, appropriation bills and other privileged matters.

Mr. Bryan's Opinion of New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Many women were present to hear William J. Bryan speak before the Women's Democratic club in Brooklyn. It was in no sense a reception to Mr. Bryan, for Mr. Bryan himself said: "I have been restrained from taking part in anything like a reception for fear that my motives might be misconstrued. In New York a man can't do anything without being misconstrued. If he says anything, they are not willing to let it stop at that, and if he says nothing they make up something for him."

Philadelphia Home Burglarized.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 17.—The residence of William C. Bullitt, who is a member of the firm of Castner, Curran & Bullitt, coal operators in the Pocahontas fields, was entered by burglars during the night, who carried off the family plate, valued at $5,000. Nearly every article of silverware of any value was stolen.

Religious Revolution In Toledo.

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 17.—Toledo is undergoing a religious revolution owing to the presence here of Evangelist J. Wilbur Chapman. All the Protestant churches are co-operating in the meetings, which have been so large that overflow gatherings have been found necessary. Dr. Chapman will remain here two weeks.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Bremen dock laborers go on strike.

The condition of Prince Christian of Saxony was pronounced much worse.

President Palma of Cuba signed the naval coaling station agreement with the United States.

The Southern Pacific overland limited was ditched in Nevada. Two passengers were seriously hurt, five others injured.

Two passenger trains were stuck in the snow in Kansas, one on the Kansas and Southwestern and the other on the Santa Fe.

The mother of Everett Coffin, injured in the Park avenue tunnel disaster in New York city, sued the Central railroad for $500,000.

Cortelyou Made Secretary of Commerce and Labor.

NOMINATION IS QUICKLY CONFIRMED

Private Secretary to Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt Promoted to Membership in Chief Executive's Official Family.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The senate has confirmed the nomination of Hon. George B. Cortelyou to be secretary of commerce and labor under the act creating the new department. The nomination was referred to the committee after the senate went into executive session, and the committee was polled on the floor. Senator Depew reported the nomination, with a favorable recommendation. He asked for immediate action, and as there was no opposition Mr. Cortelyou was confirmed.

Secretary Cortelyou is a man of attractive personality, a scholar of ability and admirable training and a public official of genius. He has set a high standard as secretary to the president.

GEORGE B. CORTELYOU.

He is the personification of courtesy, is invariably kind and obliging and may be depended on always to say and do the right thing.

Mr. Cortelyou was born in New York city on July 26, 1862. He is descended from a distinguished family, his ancestors being among the leaders in the colonial and Revolutionary history of the state of New York. From early childhood he was an earnest student, and his home training and associations were of the best. He came to Washington in July, 1891, as private secretary to the fourth assistant postmaster general. His record in the postoffice department was such that in 1895 President Cleveland appointed him his executive clerk and confidential stenographer. He served President McKinley in the same capacity until 1898, when on account of the vastly increased amount of work at the White House he was appointed assistant secretary to the president. On the retirement of Mr. John Addison Porter Mr. Cortelyou was named as secretary to the president. The wisdom of Mr. McKinley's choice has been demonstrated.

It was at the personal request of President Roosevelt that Mr. Cortelyou continued as secretary to the president. In naming him as the first secretary of the new department of commerce and labor and elevating him to a position in the cabinet the president has done gladly that which Mr. McKinley probably would have done had he been permitted to provide for the organization of that department.

Garfield Gets an Appointment.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—It is announced at the White House that the president will appoint James R. Garfield of Ohio commissioner of corporations under the act creating the new department of commerce. Mr. Garfield is a son of the late President James A. Garfield and is at present a member of the civil service commission. When appointed to the civil service commission, Mr. Garfield was a member of the law firm of Garfield & Garfield of Cleveland, his brother, Harry Garfield, being the other member of the firm. He had served as a member of the Ohio senate and had taken a prominent part in several political campaigns. For some time the president has had him under consideration in connection with the position of commissioner of corporations, which is regarded as second only to the secretary in importance and power in the new department.

Will Prosecute Strikers.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Feb. 17.—Everything is quiet at the United States Reduction and Refining company's plant. The standard plant is running under guard with 250 men. Warrants are being prepared for the arrest of the strikers who met with employees of the mills and beat them. The officers of the reduction company state that all such offenses will be prosecuted.

President Still For Crum.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—President Roosevelt has expressed to those senators who have called on him the hope that the senate would confirm the nomination of Dr. D. H. Crum to be collector of the port of Charleston, S. C. The president has no intention of withdrawing the nomination and desires that the senate take definite action on it.

THE CENTRAL'S POLICY.

Every Plainfielder will be interested in the statement said to have been made by General Superintendent Huntington, of the Jersey Central Railroad, as given in yesterday's Daily Press. It told of sundry improvements to that system which were already under consideration. The policy of the road would be, he said, to make all the improvements possible.

As Plainfield has to depend entirely on the Jersey Central for transportation for any distance and the prosperity of this city is vitally affected by that railroad, there is every reason why all the city should watch every movement of the company with much interest. Anyone who has taken trouble to look into the matter has discovered that the Central has one of the most effective systems of block signals that are in existence. It has often been used as a strong argument to prove the safety of the Central road and, despite the fact that this terrible disaster occurred here only recently, we still believe that the Central is one of the safest roads going out of Jersey City.

The fact that this disaster occurred to one of the commuter trains is likely to have its effect on certain prospective citizens unless they fully understand the situation. Six reputable citizens have decided that the railroad company took the needful precautions and that the blame for the accident was not with them. An unfortunate combination of circumstances which may occur at any time on the best managed railroad in the world was the indirect cause. The direct blame will have to be placed on the unfortunate man who disobeyed his signals.

It is sincerely to be hoped that the Central officials will continue to use every known method to make their road as safe as possible and that they will let that fact be known. Public confidence in the railroad means much to Plainfield. This is an unfortunate period for both city and road and only careful management will keep the truth to the fore and prevent either one from getting a "black eye" as far as the outside public is concerned.

In the departure of Rev. J. W. Richardson from the pastorate of the Park Avenue Baptist church, the congregation of that church has lost a faithful pastor and a valued friend. During the ten years that Rev. Mr. Richardson has made his home in Plainfield, he has made for himself a place that it will be difficult indeed to fill. He is greatly beloved by all the members of his church and has won the respect and esteem of the other members of the community with whom he has come in contact.

According to the schedule, this week should see the end of the season for The Daily Press Bowling League. Owing to the postponement of games early in the season, the tournament will not end on time but a decision will probably be reached before the month is over. It now lies between Roselle Casino and the Westfield Club to decide which shall be the winner of the trophy this year.

There has been no reason to complain this year that the Legislature did not get to work early enough. Despite the fact, however, that both houses began to consider important questions early in the session, there is still lots of work before the Legislature.

It certainly looks as if the anti-pigeon killing bill was going to fail of passage this winter. There are forces working against it which, it is said, are in the majority in the committee to which it has been referred.

There is the greatest difference in jewelry as you will see by examining the large stock at J. Hervey Doane's store in Park avenue. His word that all goods are first-class is enough. His prices are also just right.

If you are thinking about going to housekeeping this spring don't forget that the Gayle Hardware Company offers unusual facilities for securing necessary household utensils at a low figure. All goods are first-class and guaranteed.

Now is the time to think about your spring suit of clothes and M. Weinberger, of West Front street, is prepared to serve you. His stock of clothing for men and boys is unsurpassed and his prices will certainly appeal to you.

There are cigars and cigars. Cigars of the best quality are those made with the best material and are absolutely free from flavoring. The cigars which are manufactured by M. C. Dobbins are hand made and are made of the very best material.

It is the man behind the gun on whom depends the accuracy of the shot and so it is with the man who repairs your watch. If he is a skilled watchmaker one will have confidence in the work he does. Such a watchmaker is L. Moraller & Son, of Park avenue.

Charles Conover & Company, painters and decorators, of Elmwood place, are prepared to show you the latest designs in wall papers for 1903. They have some beauties and an early selection is desirable. The firm is also prepared to take your contract for painting and papering and a first-class job is guaranteed.

"In spring the young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love" but at all times of the year the practical property owner thinks of how he can best imporve the appearance of his home. One way is the proper application of paint and there is one man who can do it—James O. Hansen, of East Front street. His employes are skilled mechanics who can touch up exterior or interior in the most approved manner.

White Label canned goods are sold in every part of the United States and hundreds of dozens are disposed of weekly. The firm has yet to hear of one giving anything but the best of satisfaction for the simple reason that the extreme care is exercised in preparing the vegetables for market. Neuman Brothers are the sole local handlers of the goods and they place their personal guarantee with every sale. They can be had in small or large lots at special prices.

May Reside Here.

Rev. Mr. Warren, who is to preach in the Park Avenue Baptist church the next two Sundays, is pastor of the Central Park Baptist church, New York, at present. It is rumored that Mr. Warren is negotiating for Plainfield property and that he may take up his residence in this city in the near future.

THE LATEST—CREPE-DE-PARIS

Have you seen the goods? Have you heard the price? Do you know how immensely popular this, the prettiest of the new Spring Fabrics, has become? The goods are made of silk and wool, the weave gives a suggestion of crepe, has a beautiful sheen, comes in rich shades, is 44 inches wide and sells for 1.00 per yard. Mere words will not describe its beauty. See it, handle it, buy it, wear it, and life will take on a new meaning for you.

But this is not the only particularly desirable new fabric we are showing. Crepe-de-Voile is another extremely pretty weave. Comes in black only, is made of silk and wool with a pin spot woven closely throughout, is 44 inches wide. Price is 1.50 per yard.

Open weaves in Etamines, Voiles, Canvas Weaves, etc., we show in choice grades, and in reliable goods only. Zebalines, Broadcloths, Fancy Cheviots for skirts.

"Reides Lansdowne"—Too well known to need elaborate comment. Good trade is familiar with it, and constantly asks for it. We carry it in black, white and colors. Price the world over 1.25 per yard.

We are making a strong bid for the dress goods trade of this city. We are succeeding because we offer only the newest things at the best prices. We understand perfectly well the prejudice many ladies have against buying at home, but we find that feeling gradually being dissipated as they become familiar with our ways of managing the dress goods business. Exclusive styles, small quantities and low prices count for a great deal.

Great Mid-Winter Furniture Sale.

Notwithstanding the heavy selling of the past few weeks, we still have plenty of good things to offer you. These great Furniture events are planned on a broad liberal scale, so that we have plenty for all and to spare. But there's an end to everything; ten days more and this great sale will be a thing of the past. So come now, and if you don't want your purchases delivered till later, we will hold them and deliver when you say.

The Clearance Sale of Shoes

has been a great success and it still continues. I do not propose to house any odds and ends of stock and that's all there is to it. The best shoe values ever offered in Plainfield.

The $1.98 lot is being picked up at a great rate. One lady bought six pairs for her own wear. If they weren't bargains she wouldn't have bought, you can bet on that.

And for men I have placed on sale at $3.50, $3.00, $2.00 and $1.25 a lot of shoes (not all sizes on every grade) that ought not to remain in the store two days if you are after good goods cheap.

A Department Devoted to the Minor Events in Greater Plainfield's Suburbs by Our Own Correspondents.

DUNELLEN.

There has been much speculation around town as to how David Vail, who was killed at the tanks Saturday might have met his death. It was once suggested that he had been killed for the sake of his money as he did not seem smashed enough to have been struck by a train. It is thought, however, that he was struck by the bunker of an engine which some times kills without cutting up, as his valuables were all found on his clothes.

Dunellen was the darkest last night it has been in many a day. The weight of the ice had broken a wire somewhere and the electric lights were not lighted. In addition the ice on the trees made it seem much darker.

John Peters, Jr., has left his father's barber shop and taken up the insurance business with a firm in Plainfield. He has taken the step in order to get more out of door work.

The local trolley lines did good work last night in getting their roads cleaned off for travel this morning. A snow plow was run on the Bound Brook line nearly all night.

The members of the senior class in the Whittier school have secured their new class pins. They are of gold, with the class colors in enamel and D. H. S. across the back.

A large crowd is expected at the first annual ball of the Levering & Garrigues Beneficial Association in Bound Brook Hall, Friday night.

This snow will give the street committee a chance to get in some good work in having sidewalks cleaned off, according to ordinances.

Miss Coyle, of Front street, has returned home after a visit with out of town friends.

A large audience is looked for at the lecture in the Presbyterian church this evening.

The young son of L. Greenhahl is improving rapidly from an attack of diphtheria.

A meeting of the Juniors will be held this evening to clear up routine business.

Skin grafting will be tried on Wilson Fredericks at the hospital this evening.

The banjo club will meet this evening at the home of Miss Emma Nelson.

Mr. and Mrs. Firman Gise are visiting for a few days in Raritan.

NEW MARKET.

The funeral services over the remains of the late John Nelson were held this afternoon at 2:30 from the residence of his son, Dr. W. J. Nelson. The services were in charge of Rev. Frank Fletcher, of the First Baptist church, and were very quiet, being attended mainly by friends and the relatives of the deceased. Interment was at Hillside.

A snow storm such as that of last night makes it much worse for this place than for places where the trolley runs, as it is very hard for men who work out of town to get to their places of business. Osman's stage was quite a godsend this morning, both for breaking the road and carrying passengers.

It is reported that Edson Davis has purchased some choice lots on Prospect avenue.

George Crandall will move to Dunellen on March 1.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The newly organized gun club, the Brookside, which is holding regular Saturday afternoon membership shoots, is doing finely. The members are turning out well every week and some very good trap shooting material is being developed, although it has been hard for some of the amateurs to master the mysteries of the deceptive "blue rock." It is told that two of the members several weeks ago started to shoot a friendly match of fifteen birds. The match ran out and neither had broken a one, each having a clean score on the other side of the sheet. As the result was still in doubt the term were changed to a hit and out. Forty-five birds were shot at with the result still undecided. Darkness put an end to the contest. It is said both have improved wonderfully since then.

Several of the members of the local B. Y. P. U. attended the district B. Y. P. U. meeting held Monday evening in the South Baptist church, of Newark.

The treasury of the baseball club will be enriched about $50 as the result of the benefit entertainment held last Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Fancher, of Newark, have been visiting Mr. Fancher's mother, Mrs. F. W. Westcott, of the borough.

Miss Louise Robison, who has been spending Saturday and Sunday with her parents, returned to Brooklyn, Monday.

The regular monthly meeting of Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company was held in the company's rooms, last night.

Rev. G. M. Shott spent Monday in New York, attending the ministers' weekly conference meeting.

J. E. Ruth, of Newark, has been visiting at the home of friends in town.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The topic for the prayer and conference meeting tonight at the Baptist church will be, "How the Spirit Reflects Christ to the World."

Mrs. David Bigley is ill at the home of her friend, Mrs. Harry Tappen, of Plainfield.

Stillman Randolph is improving from an attack of grip.

Mrs. Hoffman died yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Colored Evangelist Here.

Rev. Prophet Jones, a colored evangelist, conducted a revival service in Calvary Baptist church last evening and will continue to hold them all the week at that church. Rev. Mr. Jones has traveled all through the south, where he has been conducting these services and has converted many people. The service was largely attended last evening and many raised their hands asking for prayers.

In Justice Huff's Court.

The case between the Cotton Bedstead Company, of Red Bank, and Rosell, which came up for trial yesterday before Justice Huff, has been adjourned for one week. The case will be heard Tuesday, Feb 24.

Board of Trade Meeting

A regular meeting of the Board of Trade is to be held this evening. All members are asked to be in attendance as important reports and much new business is to be considered.

Naturalization—Owen P. Mahon, chairman, Elizabeth; James R. Guttridge, Plainfield; Wm. J. Dunn, Elizabeth; Owen Farrelly, Elizabeth; William F. Brower, New Providence.

Printing—E. M. Meek, chairman, Elizabeth, John J. Lammerding, Elizabeth; W. T. Cox, Elizabeth; W. T. Young, New Providence.

Speakers and Halls—Frank B. Dobbins, chairman, Plainfield; E. A. Brennan, Elizabeth; James J. Manning, Elizabeth; E. L. McGirgan, Summit; J. H. Hillman, Plainfield.

Chairman Moody, in his remarks to the committees, spoke of the importance of regular attendance, and said the rule that drops members from the roll who absent themselves from two meetings would be enforced.

To Improve Her Purchase.

Through the real estate agency of Leifke & Laing, Mrs. Katherine R. Casey, of this city, has purchased the property on West Third street, formerly owned by the Plainfield Building and Loan Association, and she proposes to improve the property. The purchase price was $1,500.

Birthday Party.

Miss Louise VanCampen entertained a number of her friends at the home of her parents on Plainfield avenue Friday in honor of her fifteenth birthday. The evening was pleasantly spent in playing games and in singing until a late hour, when refreshments were served.

Daughters of Liberty.

The recent reports of the New Jersey State Council, Daughters of Liberty, shows that there are 147 councils with 13,003 members in the State. The total worth of councils is $63,626.71. During the past year the net gain was five councils and 743 members.

Milk Cases Adjourned.

The cases which were to have come up in Justice Smalley's court in the borough, yesterday morning, when about ten milk dealers were to have been arraigned for adulterating their milk, was adjourned until Wednesday February 25.

Star Course Entertainment.

Attention is called to the advertisement in another column about the entertainment of the Y. M. C. A. Star Course, to be given Monday evening, February 23, and also about the matinee concert to be given the same day.

THE FAR WEST WIPED OUT.

Wildness and Woolliness of That Portion of the Union Has Almost Entirely Disappeared.

A publishing house in this city, says the Chicago Chronicle, has received an order from the Yukon region for books expressive of what is now the "far" northwest. The order includes Gibbon's Rome, Macaulay's England, the writings of John Stuart Mill, of Flammarion and other engaging scientists, graphic novels, humorous stories, but none of Bret Harte's. The "Far West" of Bret Harte is at the vanishing point. A hurry posterip observed that the navigation season is short and that only letter mail is carried over the ice.

In truth, there is no longer any "far" west or "far" northwest. The rugged and often illiterate humanity that cleft the mountains and swam the rivers, opening up a new empire for all the world, is also of the past. The universal free school sends a different multitude now to the advancing frontier. Sturdy but not illiterate, the new pioneers want books wherever they go, and science and the organized forces of civilization enable them to gratify their taste. Culture is no longer a monopoly of the older portions of the country.

MULES PLOW IN ASPHALT.

Drag Big Breaking Plow Through Deep Deposit in the Chickasaw Country.

In the Indian territory, where all sorts of things are done that were never heard of elsewhere, they are plowing asphalt, says the Kansas City Star of recent date. Eighteen miles southeast of Comanche, in the Chickasaw country, six strapping Missouri mules are hitched to a big breaking plow every day and long furrows of asphalt are turned. It is the same kind of a plow the farmers use who break ground in the black jack country, and the asphalt is the kind got by blasting on the island of Trinidad. The mules are plowing in the center of a deposit one-third larger than the asphalt deposits on Trinidad. Wells have been dug to the depth of 100 feet. Strata of asphalt of varying thicknesses have been encountered to whatever depth the wells have been sunk. The supply is apparently inexhaustible. Men of means have become convinced there are millions of dollars to be made, and are either going to make it or lose a fortune in their experiment.

SKINNING A PEARL.

A Delicate Operation for the Removal of Stains or Discolorations That Requires Skill.

The lapidary was skinning a pearl, according to the Philadelphia Record. He had on gloves of a very delicate sort of kid, and the glasses that he wore had lenses of such magnifying power that his eyes, through them, looked as big as saucers. "I wear gloves," he said, "because the hands perspire freely in this work, and perspiration has often been known to discolor pearls. This stone was injured by the accidental dropping on it of some acid. The disaster discolored it some, you see. With this very delicate little tool I am removing its outer skin, and if I find that the acid has filtered through and discolored the inner skin also, I may remove that as well. A pearl, you see, is composed of concentric layers, or skins, and you can, if you are a clever workman, peel it down and down until it disappears."

Strange Fatalities.

The Chicago Tribune recently published a column of strange fatalities collected from its exchanges. One of the deaths was that of a man at Quincy, who kicked at a cat, missed the animal, fell and broke his neck. An Akron, O., barber died from inhaling hair while working on his customers' heads. The top of a can of peaches was fractured at Blossburg, N. Y., and bits of the powdered glass were eaten, causing death.

QUALITY FIRST,

that's what you will always find here in meats. We are always on top, at the front, and leading in the line. No one can be proving it, it's too clear, blazing, conspicuous and undeniable to be overlooked. We never allow quality to come off the elevation. Price is the only thing we make come down. Will these prices interest you for cash?

FIERCE SOUTHERN STORMS.

Reports From Many States Tell of Great Damage and Suffering.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 17.—Rain, snow and sleet combined in many places with high winds are the prevailing conditions throughout the south.

Railroad traffic is delayed and in many cities the street railway service is almost at a standstill.

Reports from Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi, northern Texas, Alabama, Georgia and all parts of Kentucky tell of damage done by the blizzard, of swollen streams and suffering on the part of man and beast, of traffic of all kinds delayed and in some instances of loss of life.

In Louisville, though the snow is only 4.1 inches deep, the snow has drifted so badly that several of the trolley lines have been abandoned, snowplows proving powerless.

In Memphis, Tenn., the snow and sleet storm is one of the worst in years and interfered to some extent with the operation of trolley cars and the telegraph and telephone wires.

At Fort Worth and Dallas, Tex., the snowfall was the heaviest in years, and a general blizzard prevailed throughout the southwest. Reports from Chattanooga, Nashville and Knoxville, Tenn., state that sleet, snow and wind have crippled the trolley wires and electric light plants.

In Atlanta all day a heavy rainfall and high wind prevailed. The same conditions are reported from many portions of Georgia, and the Chattahoochee river is rising rapidly. The rise in the Alabama river also continues, and considerable damage is anticipated while the streams in the southern part of Kentucky are out of the banks. The Tennessee and Cumberland rivers also are rising. Severe windstorms, attended by loss of life, were reported from South Carolina and Georgia. There has been a general drop in the temperature throughout the south and southwest and intensely cold weather is feared.

Severe Weather In the West.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 17.—Reports from nearly every section in Wyoming say that the weather is intensely cold. It has ceased snowing. Heavy losses of live stock are predicted. Advices from Santa Fe report a temperature of 5 degrees below zero, the coldest for years. All over New Mexico from Socorro north the snow is from two inches to two feet deep.

Cold In Nevada.

RHNO, Nev., Feb. 17.—This has been the coldest February in western Nevada in many years. For the last week the mercury has gone to zero and 5 below. The reservoir and supply ditch of the local water company is frozen solid and water to supply Reno is being sluiced down on top of the ice.

A Colliery Shut Down.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 17.—The first tie up in the anthracite region since the strike settlement occurred yesterday, when 760 men and boys were rendered idle by the shut down of the Pettebone colliery of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company at Kingston. The company made a proposition to thirty-eight miners working in the top or three foot vein to pay $1.07½ per car instead of 87½ cents a car, the men to clean out the eighteen inches of rock in the vein. The men made a counter proposition to work as company hands in this vein for $2.45 a day or at contract at $1.50 per car for clean coal. Eighteen inches of this vein is blue rock, or bony coal, which is all sent to the surface at the 87½ cent rate. The company rejected both propositions of the men and closed the mine.

Time For Spanish Claims Extended.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—President Roosevelt has extended for six months from March 2, 1903, the life of the Spanish treaty claims commission, which since its first meeting on April 8, 1901, has been engaged in examination of claims submitted to it under the law of March 2, 1901, creating the commission. The extension of the lifetime of the commission was made on a showing of the necessity therefor presented by Mr. William E. Chandler, president of the commission. Mr. Chandler in a letter to the president, dated Jan. 17 last, says that the total number of claims presented to the commission is 542 and the amount claimed $61,672,077.

Miss Anthony's Birthday.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 17.—The eighty-third birthday of Susan B. Anthony, Feb. 15, was appropriately celebrated at her home yesterday. Miss Anthony was assisted by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, who received visitors all day. About $200 in cash presents has been received, which will be donated to the fund for woman suffrage campaign in New Hampshire, in accordance with the wish expressed by Miss Anthony some time ago. Messages of congratulation from all parts of the globe were received.

Dr. Brooks Get Comet Medal.

GENEVA, N. Y., Feb. 17.—Dr. William R. Brooks, director of Smith observatory and professor of astronomy in Hobart college, has been awarded the comet medal of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific for the discovery of his twenty-third comet. This is the seventh medal awarded to Dr. Brooks for his cometary discoveries by this society. He also has the honor of holding the first medal ever bestowed by the society.

Ice Harvest a Failure.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Feb. 17.—The ice in the Hudson river north of this city has moved out. Unless there is prolonged severe cold weather the harvesting is at an end. The river houses contain 40 per cent of the usual crop. One-half of this is last year's ice.

Weather Probabilities.

COUGHS UP BRASS TACK.

After Eleven Years a Denver Boy Plays Havoc with a Costly Medical Diagnosis.

Cecil Hull a 15-year-old boy who is a pupil in a Denver high school, had been afflicted with bronchial trouble for 11 years. The other day he fell into a severe paroxysm of coughing lasting for three-quarters of an hour. Then he coughed up a membraneous substance which was found to contain a tack he had swallowed when four years old.

It was feared that he was developing tuberculosis, but all efforts to relieve him had proved unsuccessful. Now he is improving and is free from bronchial irritation. Physicians who had worked with the boy declare it to be one of the strangest cases in all their practice affirming it to be almost impossible for a tack to remain for that length of time in a person's throat.

The tack itself was a brass carpet tack about a half inch long. Cecil had swallowed it when he was four years old. Efforts were made at the time to remove it but without success. Later he began to complain of irritation, and then the chronic bronchial trouble developed and caused him suffering for years. His parents naturally are rejoiced at the outcome.

"We feared the boy's health never would be good," said Mr. Hull. "It seemed that the older he grew the more frequent and more violent became the paroxysms of coughing. The strange thing in connection with his case is the fact that none of the physicians who examined him were able to give a reason for his affliction. They could not declare his lungs affected, and yet he had the cough which is considered a sure symptom. When he started to cough in the paroxysm which brought out the tack, I began to fear the end was coming right then, it was so severe. The outcome is most fortunate."

UNIQUE TOMBSTONE.

The Old Fireplace of the Maine Hunnewells Set Up in Cemetery Over Their Graves.

The most remarkable gravestone in all Maine, if, indeed, its like can be found anywhere, is in the Hunnewell family lot at Windham, where a great old-fashioned fireplace serves instead of marble or granite shaft.

The Hunnewells have for two and a half centuries been the foremost people in Windham, and many of the family lie buried in this cemetery. Recently Charles H. Hunnewell, the present head of the family, decided to erect a monument in the cemetery lot.

He decided that the old fireplace where his greatgrandparents did their cooking and toasted their toes would be more appropriate for the purpose than an ordinary monument. So he had the old fireplace taken from the farmhouse, with its hanging crane, andirons and other belongings, and set up in the graveyard in a framework of bricks taken from the old chimney—bricks that were brought from England in the early part of the seventeenth century.

Thus the fireplace stands, a conspicuous object among the white stones that surround it. The opening is filled in with a metal tablet, upon which is inscribed the record of the Hunnewell family for eight generations, or from 1654 to 1901—247 years.

In the space around the family record appear pictures of fowls, cows, hogs and other live stock owned by the various generations of the Hunnewells, which won prizes at fairs. Seven hens, two hogs, four cows and six oxen appear in single pictures, while others are in a group. There is, in addition, a large picture, representing a farm scene in winter.

Perils of a Washerwoman.

In this country in 1898 at least a dozen deaths were reported of women struck in the act of stripping clothes from wire clotheslines. If the wash is hung on one of these clotheslines it is safer to let it get wet than to try to save it from a quick shower. There are perils in being too conscientious a washerwoman.—Leslie's Popular Monthly.

THE SELFISH CHILD.

Weak and Self Sacrificing Parents Are Responsible For Him.

The selfish child is the result of the unselfish parent.

There isn't the slightest doubt of that. But I wonder if a woman realizes the harm she is doing when she sacrifices her life for her children. I don't take into consideration the fact that in nine cases out of ten she doesn't get any thanks, although that is bad enough. The serious thing is that she is doing the worst harm to the child that she possibly can, that instead of saving the child pain and trouble, as she fondly imagines, she is making it for him just about as fast as she possibly can.

HE GRABS EVERYTHING IN SIGHT.

When you pick up things after your children and wait on them and generally dance attendance, you are making useless, helpless men and women of them, and heaven pity you when they suddenly awake to a realization of it and bless (?) you because you brought it on them!

When little Johnny, the pet of the nursery, grabs all the toys in sight, screaming with rage at any attempt to take them from him, and you reprove your other children when they use salutary force to make him realize their own rights; when you make them give in to little brother because he is the youngest, you are simply making a hateful, selfish man out of little Johnny, a man who, thanks to your weakness, will have few friends and lead a lonely, narrow life, miserable himself and making all those around him wretched. And it doesn't make the child any happier—this continual coddling and giving in to him, even leaving out the serious question of his future. The more you give him, the more he wants, until the limit is reached, when you have given him his share and yours, too, and then he turns from you carelessly and indifferently or else with bitterness in his heart that he cannot get more.

Think of the emptiness of life to the selfish child; of all the joy and the beauty and the large heartedness that he misses! It is no wonder that the foolish mother is punished when the child grows up to the realization of her folly.

THE DEEP WINDOW.

An Artistic Way of Treating a Square Room.

The deep window adds much to the comfort of an unattractive square room. It affords an opportunity for cozy corners and confidential conversations.

In the picture there is a section of a library, showing the walls of paneled oak bisected by two deep, square bay windows. One is finished after the manner of a room, with a table, books and a settle pulled half away out into the room. The other is entirely fitted with a cushioned seat having two pillows.

Long, heavy portieres on sliding rings can shut off these recesses entirely, if it is so desired.

The color scheme of the room itself is dull red and green, with the woodwork of Flemish oak.

Fashion Notes.

That all lace dresses are to be among the best of the new things is made sure by the importation of thousands of all over lace dress patterns and also any amount of frontings, vestings, etc. Some of the all over designs have the ground white or black and the design worked over the surface. Heavy laces for gowns are also offered in the shapes which will be required to fashion the gown. A rich Irish point gown has two skirts, one reaching to the knees and the other to the feet. These parts are specially shaped and finished for the purpose. Other pieces are furnished for waist and sleeves. A nice silk skirt with the regulation ruffles at the bottom is needed to show them off.

The cotton dress goods look like gardens of flowers, they are so very bright and pretty. All the colors are good, and some of them are exquisite, the designs being neat and fine rather than gaudy.

A Knight of the Highway

By CLINTON SCOLLARD,
Author of "A Man at Arms," "The Son of a Tory," Etc.

Copyright, 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Company. All rights reserved.

"I don't think it's at all likely 'at she can," said Jack Parmelee, with a grimance. "'Tain't possible! But here!" he exclaimed suddenly, "I can't waste any more valuable time on you two," and off he posted to a different part of the yard, where a stentorian voice was bawling "Hop-sack!"

Rossiter thoroughly enjoyed ministering to the wants of the two girls. It had been many a long day since he had been thrown into even the remotest contact with women of refinement, and though he had little speech with Miss Merton and her cousin, he had plenty of opportunity to observe them. Occasionally the former addressed a remark to him or plied him with a question, feeling free to do so as Mr. Merton's daughter, but he held himself scrupulously aloof unless his services were required, and was careful to say nothing unless he was first spoken to. Miss Merton's sunny temperament and gay spirits pleased and amused him, but he found Miss Densmore's personality far the more attractive. Furthermore, to him she was fairer to look upon. Her complexion was remarkable for its clarity. Now and again, when she was speaking, in her cheeks a faint flush like the tint of the briar-rose blossom would come and go. Her eyes, of the deepest blue, met those of the person with whom she was conversing with an open and confiding glance. Constancy was mirrored in them, and they seemed like twin wells of purity and truth. One little lock of hair, in which the sunbeams ambushed, had a way of escaping from its confinement, and, crinkling across her brow, lent a soft witchery to her face. Her voice rippled in sweet modulations, and her laugh, which was never loud, had in it a beguiling contagion.

"Gettin' acquainted?" asked Joe Becraft, as Rossiter tarried an instant by the box where the Becraft family were busily engaged.

It was not the first remark of the sort that Joe had indulged in, and it jarred on Rossiter, he hardly knew why. Becraft's previous familiarities had not touched him in this way. He was well aware that it was natural for Becraft thus to express himself, and that what he said was meant wholly in good part, but inwardly he resented it; and while he endeavored not to show this in his reply, Joe was quick to see something was wrong, and thereafter was more careful how he referred to Miss Merton and Miss Densmore.

During the two days that followed Rossiter was quite as cautious as at first not to address any conversation to the two girls unless they invited it. The free-and-easy life of the hop-fields, however, soon made itself felt in their intercourse, and when Miss Merton and her cousin discovered that their pole-puller was intellectually their equal, whatever he might be from a social point of view, they often chatted freely with him during the occasional intervals when he was not busy and chanced to be standing near. They began, however, to have considerable curiosity concerning him, for despite his rough clothes it grew to be evident that he had sometime been accustomed to a different environment from that in which he was now placed.

"I don't believe he's a mill-hand at all," announced Miss Merton, during one of the talks the two had concerning him.

"You speak as though you had an intimate acquaintance with the workers in mills," Miss Densmore returned with some amusement.

"Well, mill-hands don't pick you up when you misquote Shakespeare," and as though she regarded this as proof positive that she had established her point, Miss Merton branched off upon another theme.

When Saturday night came Rossiter proposed to Joe Becraft that they should walk into Hintonville together. Before starting he approached Parmelee, into whose good graces he had rapidly advanced by the admirable way in which he had performed his work, and requested that he be paid the amount due him for his labor.

"It's not accordin' to our custom," said the jovial manager, "but as long as I'm pretty reasonably sure it isn't whisky you're wantin' to spend it for, I don't mind seein' that you're accommodated."

"With such a pair of shoes, the only ones I possess," said Rossiter, pointing to his dilapidated footgear, "it isn't very likely the money'll go for drink."

Both men derived much pleasure from their walk. They found the streets of the little town bright with purchasers and strollers come in from the country, and in the shops Rossiter saw a number of faces that he recalled from his old college days. After having liquidated the small debt he owed Becraft, he invested in a pair of stout shoes at a sale that chanced to be in progress, and also in a cheap razor and a few toilet articles. He then had exactly a dime remaining.

"Just enough for two beers!" he exclaimed, pitching the little silver disk into the air and catching it as it descended.

Joe protested against his spending his last cent, but Rossiter insisted that it was "his treat," so the two went into the bar room of the Hintonville House, where the desired beverage was speedily forthcoming. As Rossiter placed his empty glass upon the bar a bacchanalian college ditty which he used occasionally to roar through the streets with a few choice and congenial spirits (a ditty which embalmed the name of a former proprietor of the Hintonville House), unrecalled for years, went lilting through his brain—

"Down to Powers' we will go,
Let the lager freely flow,
Then go reeling, to and fro
Back to Alma Mater!"

It had a very rakish sound, but it had never meant much more than the natural outburst of the exuberance of youth.

With the recollection of the college song came the thought of the college, and he decided that on the morrow he would make a pilgrimage to the scenes of his student days. Accordingly, Sunday morning, soon after he had breakfasted, he slipped away and set out. The autumn term had not yet opened, and he knew h should have the campus practicall to himself. Reaching Hintonville, h left the village square behind, and turned westward along the extensive maple-shaded street that led to the base of the hill on the crest of which the college buildings were situated. Upon the old stone bridge spanning the swiftly flowing Oskenonto he paused, as he had so often done before, to watch the dancing water, the swaying willows, and the changing lights and shadows. Then he went on up the long, steep slope.

Now he saw changes on every hand. Buildings belonging to the various college fraternities were dotted along the hill-side where, in his day, there had been open fields. He looked for a grape-vineyard that an injudicious husbandman had persisted in cultivating to the vast delight of the students, but it had disappeared. The little wooden arbor half way up the hill had been replaced by a more imposing structure built in part of hewn stone. He saw the venerable form of his favorite professor, apparently untouched by the lapse of the years, sitting beneath his tree-embowered porch, and the desire was strong in Rossiter's heart to go in and take him once again by the hand, but a glance at his own attire, threadbare and weather-stained, though he had succeeded in freshening it somewhat, restrained him.

It was with a thrill of pleasure that he came, just before reaching the hill-crest, to the row of ancient Lombardy poplars, stately trees that had defied the winter winds for well-nigh a century. They had a greeting for him. "Here we are," they seemed to say, "just as we were when you tramped up and down beneath us, and we're glad to see you back." They, at least, did not notice the altered appearance of the erewhile spruce young man.

A flood of recollections swept upon him as he turned into the campus. Here there were new buildings and a more prosperous air than of old, but the general effect was the same, and struck Rossiter more than ever before as beautiful and impressive. The hall in which he had roomed was locked, so he roamed on, wandering about at will and meeting no one, better pleased to have it so, finding ample companionship in the talking trees and in his own memories. By and by he strayed down into the college burying-ground, a little hedge-girdled God's-acre just under the brow of the hill, where some of the college worthies and a few students who had gone from life while yet undergraduates slept their long sleep. It was an ideal spot, full of the deepest peace. In the lower corner, where the trees opened and revealed a vast sweep of country as far away as the Deerbrook Hills beyond the Mohondaga Valley, Rossiter cast himself upon the sward. Here he lingered for more than an hour, and when he rose to leave there was a sense of contentment in his heart that was strange to him, and the light of a firmer resolve shone upon his face.

Do You Wish To Borrow Money?
In order to accommodate all classes of borrowers (those who cannot borrow at a bank, as well as those who can), the Mutual Loan and Investment Company, of 118 Market street, Newark, N. J., has a department for handling quickly and confidentially loans ranging from $10 to $300 on furniture, pianos, storage receipts, etc.
The security is not removed from your possession or in any way disturbed. The honest, careful and conservative borrower will try and decide two points before borrowing. First, where he can get the best terms. Second, where he can get fair and square treatment.
This company is in a position to give you by far the most satisfactory terms ever offered by any concern or individual negotiating this class of loans.
With this company you are assured of getting the lowest rates, easiest payments and longest time for repayment. The whole transaction from the time the application is made until loan is paid is entirely confidential. We give you another advantage in case you take the loan out for six months or a year, and wish to settle the same before the time expires; we charge you only for the time you have had the money. We also take up loans from other companies and advance more money.
Kindly call and let us explain our simple and up-to-date methods. If not entirely convenient for you to call, please write and our representative will call and give you any desired information. Remember it costs nothing to make application. Loans promptly made in Elizabeth, Plainfield, Westfield, Roselle, Rahway, Perth Amboy and all suburban towns.

TO CRUSH REVOLUTION.

Venezuelan Government Sends Men and Ammunition.

CARACAS, Venezuela, Feb. 17.—The Venezuelan gunboat Miranda, which the German warships tried to capture in Lake Maracaibo and which was the the cause of the shelling of Fort San Carlos by the German vessels, has sailed with 1,200 men and 2,000,000 rounds of cartridges on board for a destination which was not announced, but which is believed to be Tucacas, where the troops and munitions will be landed to assist the government in crushing the revolution.

The revolutionists near Tucacas received during the night of Feb. 12 300 boxes of ammunition which were landed on the coast by the schooners Augusta and Prinzessin from the island of Curacao.

Advices from La Guayra indicate that no steamers had yet reached that port.

A dispatch from Porto Cabello says that the German cruiser Vineta is still lying in the bay.

Holland's Queen May Name Umpire.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands may be requested by the Washington government to name the umpire who shall pass on the claim of the United States against Venezuela in the event that the persons named by the United States and Venezuela cannot agree.

INTO FORBIDDEN CITY.

Buddhist Priest Returns to Tell of Perilous Undertaking.

VICTORIA, B. C., Feb. 17.—According to mail advices from Kobe, a Japanese Buddhist priest who left there six years ago to penetrate to forbidden Lassa, in Tibet, has returned, having accomplished his purpose.

He traveled via India to Darjeeteng, where be remained two years to acquire the Tibetan language. Then disguising himself as a lama he cut himself from friends and after a journey which occupied a year and was marked by great hardships, his life being imperiled many times, he reached Lassa and remained there two years before becoming an object of suspicion.

He fled and after almost insurmountable difficulties escaped to India and thence went again to Kobe. He has since learned that some of those who aided him in Lassa have been imprisoned. The object of the pilgrimage was to obtain information about religious subjects.

Foreign Crops.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The official reports on foreign crop conditions received from the foreign statistical agent of the department of agriculture at London, under date of Feb. 1, shows unseasonably mild weather in most parts of Europe during the greater part of January. Official Russian reports represent that a serious deficiency in winter grain is highly probable in most of European Russia, crops being almost entirely destroyed in sixteen provinces and poor in others. The Hungarian autumn crops are generally poor and the area less extensive. The Spanish wheat crop of 1902 is estimated at 123,439,950 bushels, or nearly 6,000,000 in excess of the previous year, while Italy's wheat crop is 25,000,000 bushels short of 1901. In Great Britain reports on the growing crop were favorable.

An Advance For Telegraphers.

HAZLETON, Pa., Feb. 17.—A 10 per cent increase in wages dating from Feb. 1 has been granted the telegraph operators on the Delaware, Susquehanna and Schuylkill railroad, which handles the output of the Coxe Bros. & Co. and other collieries.

BASKET BALL.

Owing to an injury to his foot, Walter Cahoone, of Watchung avenue, has been unable to play with the Y. M. C. A. basket ball team. The injury is slowly improving, but it will be a few weeks before Mr. Cahoone will be able to play.

Tomorrow afternoon the Hasbrouck Heights Institute, of Jersey City, will play basket ball with the City High School in the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. The game promises to be an exciting one and, as it is the return game between these two teams, an unusually interesting one is anticipated.

ON THE DIAMOND.

Baseball practice is being held three times a week in the Olympia building on Sycamore street, by the team of the City High School. The management has secured this building for use until the ground gets in condition for outdoor work and a cage has been rigged up for batting work. A good representation of the candidates turns out to every practice and all are working to put another star team on the diamond this year.

NEW FIRM.

William Debele and Julius Stahl Will Go Into Partnership.

William Debele and Julius Stahl, both business men of Somerset street, have formed a partnership and will do business after the first of April under the firm name of Stahl & Debele. They will manufacture ice cream and candy and the store will be located where is now the present store of William Debele. An addition will be erected to the rear of the store and the building will be otherwise improved.

The sub-postoffice which has been located in the store of Julius Stahl will be moved to the new store opposite Manning avenue and the present store of Mr. Stahl will be closed.

Grand Jury Still in Session.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 17—The Union County Grand Jury appeared before Judge Vail, this morning and presented one more indictment, but was not discharged. It then retired for further consideration. Nothing was said in reference to the Westfield wreck or the finding of the coroner's jury.

CITY HIGH SCHOOL GAMES

BASEBALL SCHEDULE FOR COMING SEASON IS ANNOUNCED.

Manager Monro Makes Public the Thirteen Games He Has Now Arranged.

Manager H. S. Munro has been exceptionally busy in the past week arranging baseball games for the coming season with out-of-town teams. He has succeeded thus far in adding six games to the original schedule of seven. The games now scheduled are the following:

March 28, Orange Field Club, home grounds.

April 4, Pingry School, Elizabeth.

April 8, Westerleigh Collegiate Institute, home grounds.

April 11, Brooklyn Boys' High School, Brooklyn.

April 15, North Plainfield High School, home grounds.

April 18, Newark Academy, Newark.

April 22, Khiani Club, of Princeton College, home grounds.

April 25, Princeton Preparatory School, home grounds.

May 16, Rutgers Preparatory School, New Brunswick.

May 20, Montclair High School, home grounds.

May 23, East Orange High School, home grounds.

May 30, Rutgers Preparatory School, home grounds.

Games have also been arranged for with the underclassman team from Stevens Institute, Orange High School, and the Vacquero Club, of Princeton College, but dates have not as yet been closed with these teams.

TWO LECTURES.

Will be Given Here by Ernest Thompson-Seton Next Monday

Ernest Thompson-Seton, the well-known author of "Wild Animals I Have Known," is coming to the Casino Monday to lecture on "The Indians as I Have Known Them," and "Animal Minds and Heroes."

The lectures will be illustrated by stereopticon views—some of them taken from photographs, others from his own drawings—of bears, foxes, rabbits, deer, elk and the queer tracks wild animals make in the snow. Mr. Thompson-Seton is not a lecturer, in the strict sense of the word. He merely talks in a delightful conversational way on the things in the animal life of which he knows, and sometimes tells why and how he knows, and gives the animal calls. He is a thoroughly entertaining talker.

REFORM CLUB MAKES A STRONG SHOWING

In Initial Game With Y. M. C. A. in Plainfield Amateur Basket Ball League.

THE Y. M. C. A. TEAM WON

IN SECOND HALF THE PLAYING WAS DECIDEDLY CLOSE.

Y. M. C. A.'s Recent Hard Games Told on Team's Play—Reform Club Weak at the Start, But the Team Soon Braced Up.

In the nature of a surprise was the showing made by the basket ball five of the Plainfield Reform Club in its initial game in the Plainfield Amateur Basket Ball League series last evening. The Y. M. C. A. team won as was expected but the Reform Club boys made the winners work for their victory. The final score was 30 to 17. The game was played in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium and was one of the cleanest ever witnessed in this city. The officials were all of the Jersey City Y. M. C. A.

While the Reform Club team has played several practice games, this was its first formal appearance. The strangeness of the gymnasium worried the boys at first but they began to settle down to work by the time the first half ended. There was a lack of team play at the start and the association players were left unguarded. As a result, Y. M. C. A. had a lead 11 to 3 when the half ended. The cleanest game was played by the visitors, as they only had three fouls called against them as against eight on the Y. M. C. A.

There was a change when the second half began. The home team no longer found its men unguarded and the Reformers showed a tendency to play together. Their goal throwing was more accurate than that of the home team. The second half was decidedly exciting. While Y. M. C. A. obtained a lead, it wasn't much and but for the unevenness of the first half the game was a close one. As it was, Y. M. C. A. only rolled up 19 to Reform Club's 14 in that half. As before the greater number of fouls were made by the association five.

The small crowd present was highly delighted with the game and it was the general opinion expressed that the Reform Club aggregation is going to prove an important factor as soon as it has had a little more experience. The Y. M. C. A. boys still showed the results of their hard games the week before and were not quite up to their best form.

The teams lined up as follows:

Y. M. C. A.		Reform Club.
R. Smith	rf	Scott
Hand	lf	Taylor
Denton, (Capt.)	c	Galbrath
Neal	rg	O'Loughlin, Capt.
Heinecke	lg	Townley

Score—Y. M. C. A., 30; Reform Club, 17. Goals from the field—Smith (4), Hand (5), Denton (5), Scott (4), Taylor (2).

Goals on fouls—Denton (2), O'Loughlin (5). Fouls—Y. M. C. A., 19; Reform Club, 10. Referee—William C. Geiger, of Jersey City. Umpires—H. W. Hoffman and F. W. Manger, Jr., of Jersey City. Time-keepers—Arthur J. Spicer, of the Y. M. C. A., and Harry Montross, of the Reform Club. Scorers—John H. Doane, of the Y. M. C. A., and Edward Smith, of the Reform Club.

Still a Democrat.

The genial and happy presence of James E. Martine has been missed for several days on the streets and in the editorial rooms of The Daily Press. Inquiry revealed the fact that Mr. Martine has been detained at home with a severe attack of grip. He says that the malady has taken everything out of him except his love for true Democracy of the Jeffersonian type.

Schenck's Condition Improved.

The condition of John Schenck, the engineer who is in Muhlenberg Hospital, suffering from the combined effects of an electric shock and fall, was reported today as being much brighter. He is conscious only at times but the physicians think his chances of recovery are excellent.

Fredericks is Better.

Physicians in charge of Wilson Fredericks, one of the wreck patients at Muhlenberg Hospital, noted an improvement in his condition today. He is now quite strong and within the next few days will undergo an operation of skin grafting to replace the cuticle destroyed by scalding.

THE KING OF SIAM.

Oriental Potentate, Who Will Visit Us Soon, Is a Truly Progressive Monarch.

Chulalongkorn I., king of Siam, has long been contemplating a visit to the United States. The crown prince is at present making a tour here, and his father has definitely announced his intention of coming over in January next.

His majesty Chulalongkorn—or we may be permitted to say his royal hairpin, as that is precisely what chu la long korn means—was born September 1, 1853, and at the age of 15 he succeeded to the throne upon the death of his father. Then, according to Siamese custom, he went into novitiate for the priesthood for two days. In 1873 he was again crowned, and here, seated upon his magnificent throne, he released his courtiers from the time-honored custom of appearing in their sovereign's presence on hands and knees. This was the beginning of his doing away with many rigid and ridiculous court rules. Formerly the king was regarded as a sort of semi-divine being. He dressed as no one else did and he used words which no one else was allowed to utter. King Chulalongkorn attires himself in ordinary dress and knows how to make himself generally agreeable. He is unusually studious and progressive, and has during his reign introduced a privy council, a cabinet, and a legislative council. There is a noticeable lack of dogmatism in all his decisions.

THE KING OF SIAM.
(Known in His Country as "His Royal Hairpin.")

To insure the greatest degree of welfare for his people the king is continually sending his officials on investigating excursions, and if in the course of their travels they find any hints which may be of advantage to Siam, he heartily cooperates in any feasible project. Not only is he educating his sons abroad, but he is maintaining 90 other young men who are studying some one of the professions. He himself is an extensive traveler.

Siam, on account of its central position in relation to neighboring states, its influence over them and its maintenance of its own native government, has been called the "Heart of Further India." It invites foreign trade and would undoubtedly prove a good market for any American who might be enterprising enough to attempt a furtherance of commercial intercourse.

OLD FORT PUTNAM.

Ruins of Famous Revolutionary Fortification Still in Existence Near West Point.

When the revolution had become a foregone conclusion, the importance of fortifying the Hudson river at its narrow passes among the Highlands was suggested to the continental congress by the provincial assembly of New York, and on the 6th of October, 1775, the former directed the latter to proceed to make such fortifications as it should deem best. In pursuance of these directions, says the Four-Track News, a number of forts were erected at various points. In March following, it was determined to erect a strong fort at West Point, and under direction of Kosciusko, the famous Pole, Fort Clinton was built. To further defend Fort Clinton and command the river, a strong fort was erected on Mount Independence and called Fort Putnam in honor of Gen. Israel Putnam, commander of the post. After the revolution the old fort was almost destroyed by people in the neighborhood using the material for building purposes, but in 1824, the government bought the land on which it stood, and the picturesque ruins of the old fort remain to this day, as one of the most attractive spots about West Point.

RUINS OF FORT PUTNAM.
(One of the Most Attractive Spots About West Point, N. Y.)

Street Commissioner Gavett was awake to the situation at 5 o'clock this morning and had one of his gangs of men at work opening the walks with plows, where it was most needed. Later other men and teams were sent out and, by noon, crosswalks and thoroughfares were but little impeded.

Five teams and men are removing snow from West Front street, Park and North avenues and tomorrow, the entire street force will be used to clear walks where the property owners have neglected to do it.

Weather Observer Neagle announced this afternoon that the total amount of snow fall amounted to 13 and 2-10 inches.

DOCTORS AND CHARITY.

What the Medical Profession Owes to the Benevolent Institutions of Our Country.

Human want and misery is not to be altogether attributed to ignorance in the ordinary educational sense, nor altogether to economic conditions, but more largely to the malign effects of hereditary physical taint and unsanitary surroundings, says American Medicine. All modern communities possess organizations of the charitably inclined, and to the efforts of such benevolent persons the medical profession is chiefly indebted for the founding and support of the many institutions through which physicians exercise their functions among the poor. It remains for the profession to enter into this work in a more systematic way. Every city, county and state medical society should have a standing committee of its most public spirited members, whose particular business it should be to cooperate actively with the organized charities in the capacity of an advisory board. By such a system much may be done in the way of preventing mistakes and of developing the form of preventive charity which will seek to ameliorate suffering by the reduction of pernicious conditions. The splendid work of infirmaries, dispensaries and hospitals in placing curative medicine at the disposal of the diseased poor, needs to be supplemented by bringing the science of preventive medicine into harmonious action with that form of charity which looks to the lessening of social evils along the lines of personal and public sanitation.

EFFORTS TO MODIFY ANCIENT SUNDAY LAW

Appeal Made by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis to Pennsylvania Legislative Committee.

AT A PUBLIC HEARING

ON A BILL GIVING GREATER FREEDOM ON SUNDAY.

He Spoke in Behalf of Seventh-Day Baptists and Pointed Out Dangers of Compulsory Idleness—Is Praised by Newspapers.

For several years past efforts have been made in the State of Pennsylvania to modify the ancient Sunday law passed in 1794, or have it repealed. The larger interests, such as railroads and similar forms of business, go unchallenged when they trangress the law but lesser interests, especialy in the larger cities and notably in the city of Philadelphia, are subject to much annoyance under the existing statute. An effort is now being made through what is known as the Berkiebach bill, to modify the old law. This seeks to legalize the sale of candy, cigars, soft drinks and such minor articles Sunday.

There was a hearing last week before the committee of the Senate of the Pennsylvania Legislature, for the purpose of discussing the question from the higher standpoint of religious liberty, and of Sunday legislation as a part of the State-church system, and among those prelent who took a prominent part in the hearing, was Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of this city. There were large delegations present from all parts of the State, including Philadelphia, many opposing the bill under the general argument that the law of 1794 was necessary to the best interests of the State and of good order and morality, while others said that the passage of the bill was a necessity on the ground that the people demanded such minor forms of business.

Through the courtesy of Senator Cox, chairman of the committee having the bill in charge, Dr. Lewis was privileged to speak for a period of about thirty minutes. He announced himself as appearing in behalf of the Seventh-Day Baptists of Pennsylvania and the United States and as asking for the repeal of the law of 1794, because, in spite of repeated efforts to secure some recognition of the rights of conscience in behalf of the Sabbath-keeping Christians, of Jews and of all men, Pennsylvania had persistently refused such recognition, until the demand for the repeal of the ancient and oppressive law was the only remaining alternative.

Dr. Lewis urged the repeal in view of the fact that all Sunday legislation at the beginning was the direct product of the ancient pagan State-church system, and that throughout the history of the Christian church such legislation had fostered holidayism, and that compulsory idleness on Sunday at the present time fosters the liquor traffic and encourages the worst forms of evil of which the friends of Sunday complain.

The remarks by Dr. Lewis were listened to with much eagerness and he was several times compelled to desist because of the applause, notably when he announced that the people whom he represented and the plea which he made was farthest away from any sympathy with saloons and Sunday rioting, or any other form of evil, and that his plea for the repeal of the ancient law was in favor of a better state of things by doing away with compulsory idleness. The deep interest which was awakened in the general question concerning Sunday, was shown when the speaker referred to the fact that he is the author of a book on "Swift Decadence of Sunday," a copy of which would be sent to any member of the Legislature who might desire it. At the close of the address Dr. Lewis was beseiged by scores of men who commended the position taken and nearly half a hundred names were sent in from those who desire a copy of the book referred to.

In speaking of the meeting the Philadelphia Record paid a rich tribute to Dr. Lewis for his earnest words and the Philadelphia Ledger also supported Dr. Lewis in his stand. The Patriot, of Harrisburg, and the North American, of Philadelphia, contained warm words in support of the stand taken by the editor of the Sabbath-Recorder. It is generally believed that the hearing on the bill will have some effect.

UNION COUNTY'S DELEGATION

AT THE CONFERENCE OF SEVERAL WORKERS AT TRENTON TOMORROW.

Several Speakers From Elizabeth—Other Prominent Workers Are Expected.

Union county is to be well represented at the conference of social workers, which is to be held in the assembly room of the State House tomorrow afternoon and evening and Friday morning.

The afternoon is to be given to the general subjects: Wife desertion, placing of dependent children in homes rather than institutions; the need of separate places of detention of juveniles awaiting trial, truant schools, societies for the prevention of cruelty to children, needed amendments to the probation law and want of a woman's reformatory. The evening and morning sessions will be devoted to State supervision of penal and charitable institutions. From Plainfield a dozen delegates are announced, while from Rahway there will go several officers of the reformatory.

Elizabeth will present several speakers. Rev. J. R. Atkinson, of Trinity church, opens the conference with an address, "The Significance of the Conference." Former Governor Voorhees and Mrs. Williamson will speak at the general public session tomorrow evening; the former on "Society's Duty to the Weaker Members" and the latter on "Twenty-five Years' Progress in New Jersey Charities and Corrections." James Heg, president of the Automatic Heating Company and formerly superintendent of the Rahway Refrormatory, will speak Friday morning in answer to the question "What Type of Supervision Does New Jersey Need?" Discussion on his paper will be led by William H. Allen, Ph.D., general secretary of the conference.

Among other prominent speakers will be Charlton T. Lewis, LL. D., of New York, prominent publicist and author, president of the New York Prison Association and intimately connected with many New Jersey charities, public and private; Rev. Henry Collins Minton, D. D. LL. D., who presided at the Philadelphia Presbyterian Revision Conference two years ago; Mrs. C. B. Alexander, Castle Point, Hoboken; Mrs. George W. Blackwell, President of the Political Study Club, Orange; County Judges Alfred F. Skinner, of Essex, and C. V. D. Joline, of Camden.

TEACHERS TO MEET.

Mid-Winter Meeting Will be Held at Somerville Saturday.

The mid-winter meeting of the Somerset County Teachers' Association will be held at Somerville in the public school building on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. The session will close at 12 o'clock. A programme of interest and help has been prepared as follows:

10:30. "What is being done in my school to increase the language power of my pupils," Principal S. C. Strong, Peapack; Miss Garetta Q. Genther, Belle Mead; Miss Mary G. Wilson, Franklin Park.

Discussion.

11:15. "Experience, the all around education," J. J. Savitz, A. M., Westfield.

12:00. "The feasibility and advisability of teaching drawing," Prof. S. I. Kreemer, High School, West Chester, Pa.

Change in Choir.

Mrs. Theodore Mantz, of Richmond terrace, is singing in the Congregational church choir since the departure of Miss Etta Raybert who recently resigned her position in that church to accept one in the First Presbyterian church. Mrs. Mantz is a talented soprano singer and has sung on several occasions in the Congregational church.

Slipped on the Steps.

While leaving Holy Trinity church, Sunday evening, William E. MacClymont, who is the organist and choirmaster at that place, slipped on some ice and struck the base of his spine. The injury was a painful one and it still gives Mr. MacClymont considerable trouble.

For a Local Armory.

Among the bills in the lower house of the State Legislature to be given preference in consideration is one offered by Assemblyman Newcorn, of this city. This bill provides for an appropriation for a company armory at Plainfield, if the county gives the site.

CHANGE IN OFFICERS.

L. W. Randolph Elected Secretary-Treasurer of the Association.

A meeting of the Local Druggist's Association was held Monday evening at the store of Peter Hodge at the corner of Watchung avenue and East Front street. Owing to the retirement of G. W. V. Moy from the druggist business his resignation was sent in to the association and was reluctantly accepted. L. W. Randolph was elected in his place as secretary and treasurer of the organization. That was the most important business which came up for discussion although several other matters were discussed which will be dealt with more fully at the next meeting which will be held on the second Tuesday in April.

DUNAVAN CASE DISMISSED.

Supreme Court Sustains Common Council—Blocks Further Action.

The case of Lewis M. Dunavan, complainant, against the treasurer of the City of Plainfield, defendant, was brought up before Judge VanSickel and Judge Garretson, of the Supreme Court, at Trenton, yesterday, on a writ of certiorari. The decision in the case sustains the action of the Common Council in suspending Mr. Dunavan, without pay, and dismisses the case with costs.

Yesterday, the defendant through its attorney, Craig A. Marsh, counsel for the city, moved to dismiss the writ in this cause on the ground, among other grounds, that said writ was improvidently allowed and had not been prosecuted according to the rules and practice of the Supreme Court. The Court having heard Craig A. Marsh, attorney for the defendant, and Robert M. Clark, attorney for the prosecutor, and the latter making no opposition to said motion, and on good cause shown, the Court ordered the dismissal of said writ with costs.

IT HAS GROWN.

Runyon Vail Back to Plainfield After Thirty-Eight Years Absence.

Runyon Vail, who is now a member of the well-known firm of Vail & Vail, makers of washing machines, was in this city yesterday as the guest of Edward Vail, a member of the local fire department, stationed at the headquarters on East Second street.

Runyon Vail came from Green Valley, Ill., where he went when he was a boy thirty-eight years ago. When he left this city it was little more than a village and the trip was made in a covered wagon, and the party camped out along the ground as at that time there were no railroads. He was surprised to find the little village of Plainfield grown to such large proportions. This is the first time he has visited this city since he left it thirty-eight years ago.

WORKING FOR NEGROES.

Miss Moore Tells of Her Mission Work in the South.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society, of the First Baptist church, was addressed yesterday afternoon by Miss Joanna P. Moore, who for more than forty years has labored among the colored people of the south. Her earnestness of purpose, cheerfulness of temper and patient endeavors to lift a neglected race into a higher and better life have made Miss Moore a power in a large district south. The account of her methods of teaching and securing the co-operation of the people she aimed to help, was full of interest and instruction.

To Practice in Newark.

Lawyer Robert M. Clark has given up his office in the Marsh building and has opened an office in the Globe building, Newark, where he will continue the practice of law. Mr. Clark's office in this city will probably be taken by Justice vonMindern, of New Market.

Mrs. Anderson's Funeral.

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. James Anderson, who died suddenly from apoplexy Monday evening, will be held from St. Mary's church, tomorow morning at 9:15, when a requiem mass will be said. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Auction Sale.

Charles Hazell will have an auction sale of cows, farming utensils, etc., at his farm near South Plainfield, on Monday next. L. H. Tappen will be the auctioneer.

Dancing Class Reception.

The first reception of the Tuesday Night Dancing Class will be held in the Democratic Club rooms, 119 East Second street, Monday evening, February 23.

Freedom Castle's Anniversary.

The anniversary of Freedom Castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle, will be celebrated Tuesday evening, Feb. 24, in an appropriate manner.

NEW ATHLETIC CLUB FORMED

Alis Club, Outgrowth of Alis A. A., Prepares to Have Club House and Athletic Grounds.

ALSO A BASEBALL TEAM

Preliminary Meeting Was Held Monday Night—Another to Follow Soon When New Organization Will Take Permanent Shape—Other Interesting Details.

At a meeting of the Alis Athletic Association held at the home of Roy Phillips, of Madison avenue, Monday evening, the name of that well known athletic organization was changed to the Alis Club and an entirely new organization was perfected.

The meeting was more of a preliminary one and was held for the purpose of ascertaining the opinion of the members regarding the proposed changing of the association's name and departing from athletics to a combination of athletic and social features. This plan the members were highly in favor of and at once a committee was appointed to arrange matters toward this end. An informal discussion followed in which the members all took a lively interest. John G. McLaughlin was elected president pro tem and Chauncey H. Burt was elected temporary secretary.

Among other things which came up for discussion was the advisability of securing a club house convenient to a trolley line near the outskirts of the city. A favorable site was agreed upon and arrangements are now under way to secure an option on the place. There will be spacious grounds about the place and these will be used for the football and baseball games. The grounds will be enclosed with a high board fence and adjoining the house will be a large tennis court which will also be enclosed.

There are fifty charter members to the new organization and it is probable that there will be a large number of new members secured before spring. The club house will be furnished in a most complete manner. Part of the house will be furnished up as a gymnasium which will be large enough to play basket ball in. Another part of the house will be furnished as a meeting room for the members and in another part of the club house will be a pool and billiard parlor and reception room.

Heretofore the Alis Association has not had a baseball team in the field but the Alis Club, which has been augmented by several good local players, will make an application to the City League for membership and if admitted the members promise to put up one of the strongest baseball teams turned out in this city in many years. The club intends making this game an important part of the features of the coming season.

There has been talk for some time among the members of the old association of securing the Casino and using that for the club house but it has been definitely decided that the best course to pursue is to have another club house.

Another meeting of the club will be held Wednesday evening, February 25, when officers will be elected and the organization completed. Committees will report at that time and it will then be known whether the premises now in view can be secured. Another feature of the new organization will be the social side of the club. Heretofore little attention has been paid to that feature and with the organization of the new club and the securing of a club house the club promises to play an important part in the social whirl among the younger set.

Shot a Wild Cat.

Alfred I. Smalley, who recently left the borough with his family and went south for his health and for business reasons, writes to his friends in the borough that the hunting in the south is fine and that he recently shot a wild cat four feet long. He has also shot a number of foxes and small game. He is at East Arcadia, N. C.

READY FOR BURIAL.

Remains of the One Unidentified Victim Placed in Casket.

The unidentified remains, which have been lying at the undertaking parlors of George C. Cole on West Second street since the wreck, have been prepared for burial and are now lying in a handsome casket. The few remaining articles of clothing, which were found on the body and which were not altogether consumed by the fire, which so horribly charred the remains of the victim, have been placed in the casket for identification purposes. No definite funeral arrangements have been made so far as it is thought that some one will appear who can positively identify the remains.

DEMOCRATIC BANQUET.

Democratic Club Plans for One for Jefferson Day.

A meeting of the Democratic Club was held in its headquarters on East Second street, Monday evening when important business was discussed. A committee, comprising: P. J. Reville, H. W. Marshall and Lewis Stover, was appointed to arrange for a banquet which will be held at the headquarters on Jefferson Day. Two sets of quoits have been purchased and a quoit pitching tournament is soon to be started.

J. J. Kane, Victor Troice and Harry Dilts comprise a committee on entertainment which was appointed at the last meeting and they were instructed to prepare some entertainment for the members once every month.

SUPPER BY MEN.

Brotherhood of First M. E. Church Plans for Friday Evening.

The Brotherhood of the First M. E. church is planning to hold a supper and entertainment in the church parlors Friday evening. The supper promises to be a novel one as the cooking and the waiting on the tables will be supervised and executed by the male members of the Brotherhood. The women of the church are invited to attend and the proceeds of the supper will be devoted to the various objects along the lines of work of the organization.

GOOD TALENT.

Will Take Part in the Y. M. C. A. Star Course Entertainment.

The Dunbar Handbell Ringers and Male Quartette Company will appear in the Y. M. C. A. Star Course, Monday evening, February 23. The company includes the handbell ringers with their magnificant peal of more than one hundred musical handbells, the Dunbar Male Quartette and Ralph Dunbar, 'cellist. The company will be assisted by Miss Evalina Benton, reader.

Piano Recital.

An event of more than unusual interest will be the piano recital to be given at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, by Miss Harriett Cady, who is well-known among music-lovers in this city. Miss Cady will be assisted by Raymond A. McGee, basso, of North Plainfield. The programme will be of exceptional merit, comprising classical selections from standard composers.

May Not Meet.

As Monday will be a holiday, it is doubtful whether the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital will hold a meeting in the evening. There are a number of events scheduled for that night and the meeting may be postponed to a later date.

Photograph of Cadets.

An excellent photograph of Commandant James D. Macnab, Cadet Major Murphey, and the field and staff officers of the Plainfield High School Battalion has recently been taken and copies are now to be had of Quartermaster L. T. Koons.

Get After Them.

While there is a marked improvement in general regarding the cleaning of walks after a snow storm, the last storm shows that the city officials can with propriety get after some property owners.

Annual Musicale.

The fifth annual musicale under the auspices of the women of the Guild of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will be given in the parish house, Clinton avenue, Monday evening, February 23, at 8 o'clock.

Change of Date.

The Common Council will not meet until Tuesday evening, February 24, the preceding evening falling on a holiday. It was originally intended to meet Monday, but the date has been changed.

Second Reception.

The Nonpareil Social Club will give its second reception in Saengerbund Hall, Tuesday evening, March 12.

ONE VIEW OF THE WRECK

ENGINEERING NEWS DRAWS CONCLUSIONS FROM IT.

The Last Issue of That Publication Sums Up the Testimony and Deductions.

The Engineering News, of which George H. Frost, of Watchung avenue, is the president, publishes an interesting article in its last issue by the way of comment concerning the recent railroad wreck at Westfield. This publication is an authority on civil, mechanical, mining and electrical engineering and what it has to say is of special importance. In part the article reads as follows:

"Sifting and analyzing all the testimony, probably what actually happened was this: The engine did blow steam from the front end sufficient to bother the engineer somewhat in reading the low pot-signals when running through the yards at Jersey City, and very likely an occasional puff would cloud the front windows of the cab, and make it difficult to see through them. The engineer did not see the train order signal put out for him at the Cranford station, probably because he was not looking for it, it being unusual for a stop to be made by such a train for orders on a block-signaled road. He failed to make out the block-signal beyond Cranford when he passed it, and under the rules he ought to have at once checked the speed of his train, and kept a sharp lookout for the next signal, ready to come to a full stop before reaching it if it stood at danger. But on this long straight stretch of road the track is usually clear, and engineers are accustomed to make up time; an injector just then demanded attention, and the engineer got down in the cab to fix it. While so engaged he passed the home signal standing at danger and the flagman waving his red lantern at the crossing, and when he again looked ahead he was close on the rear of the standing train.

"The sum and substance of the cause of the disastrous Westfield collision, then, is disobedience to block signals by the engineer. The excuses for this disobedience are not important except as they shed light on the question, what can be done to make engineers implicitly obey signals, and never 'take chances' when a signal is not seen or is seen imperfectly. We see nothing better to be done than to continue the process of education and discipline—a progress which doubtless needs to be applied to many subordinate operating officials, and perhaps to not a few higher ones, as well as to the men who compose our engine crews."

HIGH SCORES.

Cranford Casino Captured Two Out of Three From the Roselle Casino.

Phenomenally high scores were rolled last evening by the bowling team of the Cranford Casino in the eleventh game in The Daily Press Bowling League last evening against the Roselle Casino at Cranford. Cranford defeated the Roselle players by two games out of three in one of the most exciting series of the entire contest. Only once before has a score been rolled higher than that rolled last evening by the Cranfords, and that score was made by the Park team when they played with the Roselles in this city.

The teams and their individual scores were as follows:

NO IMMEDIATE HOPE OF TROLLEY EXTENSION

But Chandler Riker Says That Proposed South Plainfield Line is Feasible.

THE LINE MAY BE BUILT

VARIOUS QUESTIONS DISCUSSED BY BOARD OF TRADE.

Frank H. Smith Elected Secretary to Succeed Harry C. Runyon—Report of the "Repealer" Hearing—The Other Business.

Owing to the absence of several of its officers and the secretary, the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Trade, last evening, was not as important as it otherwise would have been. The attendance of members was good and the enthusiasm exhibited of late was again in evidence.

The resignation of Secretary Harry C. Runyon, tendered at the previous meeting, was accepted and City Collector Frank H. Smith was elected to succeed him. The names of J. P. Homan, John Johnson, Fred Endress, Charles Jensen and Henry Haurand were added to the membership list.

Speaking for the committee on trolley extensions and improvement of the service, Charles W. Runyon reported having a conference with Chandler Riker in which he stated his company, as well as others was awaiting developments in car manufacturing and equipment before making inroads in new territory. He expressed the opinion that the new route to South Plainfield, over the Maltby property, was feasible but would require much grading. He gave no hope of immediate action. In behalf of the business centre street lighting, Mr. Runyon reported progress.

President Woolston reported for the delegation sent to Trenton to appear against the "repealers" and told of its work. He concluded with a decided hope for favorable action and a greater Plainfield within the near future.

In regard to the question of keeping stores open evenings and abandoning the early closing movement, nothing was done beyond instructing the secretary to secure the views of the local merchants upon the subject.

A NEW LECTURE.

Animal Artist and Author Will Tell Something New.

Ernest Thompson Seton, the famous animal author and artist, will be heard in an absolutely new lecture entertainment entitled "The Indians as I Knew Them" next Monday afternoon, at the Casino. This will prove good news to the boys, as all boys like to play Indian. A big audience of Plainfield children will surely greet him on this occasion, for the little people have already become familiar with the native American Indian as Mr. Seton saw them through his publications. It will be hard to find a schoolboy who has not played Indian at some time in his career, and the opportunity for actual knowledge about the scenes they have played at will, without doubt, prove an irresistible attraction to the Plainfield boys. Mr. Seton's talk about the Indians is as fascinating to older people as to the children, and his illustrations taken from photographs of his own making of the scenes he has visited in acquiring his information about the American Indian have been highly praised as works of art.

Sale of seats for the Thompson Seton lectures is now in progress at Armstrong's pharmacy. The evening subject is "Animal Minds and Heros."

Death of Castner Irving.

Castner Irving, who is very well-known to many in North Plainfield and who formerly resided in that part of the town, but who was a resident of Iola, Kan., died there last week after a short illness. He was an uncle of Mayor and David Smalley, and when they were in the west a few weeks ago they visited at his home. He was a very prominent farmer. No details of the funeral arrangements have as yet been made.

Danced With Woodchoppers.

A large delegation of Plainfielders attended the dance which was held at Elizabeth, Monday evening. Some of those who went down left on the early train and expected to return on a special trolley car, but their plans were upset by the heavy fall of snow.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE DOING

SOME BRIEF PARAGRAPHS OF A PERSONAL NATURE.

Many Folk of Greater Plainfield Are Entertaining or Being Entertained.

Andrew Cox, of East Fourth street, has recovered from a recent illness.

W. M. Smith, of Elmwood place, has been visiting his sister at Orange for a time.

Miss Ross, of Woodhull & Martin's store, is enjoying her mid-winter vacation of one week.

Mrs. V. W. Nash, of Prospect avenue, continues to improve from a severe attack of the grip.

Mrs. B. A. Hegeman, Jr., left yesterday for Atlantic City, where she will remain for two weeks.

John Mackey, of this city, who has been ill with the grip, has recovered and is able to be out again.

Mrs. Aaron M. Higgins, of Liberty street, is slowly recovering from an attack of pleuro-pneumonia.

Percy Sandford, who has been away from Plainfield for some time past, is now enjoying life in New Mexico.

Miss Anne Kelly, of Woodhull & Martin's store, returned to her position Monday, after a pleasant week's vacation.

Miss Marguerita Wood, of Pittsburg, has returned home after a visit with Miss Fanny C. Cox, of West Seventh street.

George L. VanEmburgh, of the dress goods' department at Woodhull & Martin's store, is having his week's vacation, which the firm is giving at this time.

Assemblyman William Newcorn and S. S. Swackhamer returned from Trenton last evening, where they have been attending the sessions of the Legislature.

William Howett, of Grove street, who has been seriously ill for some time past, shows no sign of improvement. Owing to his advanced age and the nature of his illness, it is not believed that he will get out again very soon.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—L. Moraller & Sons, the Park avenue jewelers, are having their store painted and papered, adding much to the general attractiveness of the place.

—The quoit-pitching contest will be continued tomorrow evening at the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M. A full attendance of members is desired.

—Rev. Theodore Duensing, pastor of St. Peter's German Lutheran church, has in course of preparation a class for confirmation. The service will be held within a short time.

—The Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will hold a regular monthly meeting Friday afternoon, at which time a full attendance of members is desired.

—A week ago a letter was received by a Plainfield friend regarding Bert Heinrichs, formerly of this city but now of Arizona. The letter states that Mr. Heinrichs is feeling much better, with fair chances for recovery.

—Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., will hold a regular meeting Friday evening, when it is expected that a report of the recent fair will be presented and several candidates will be initiated into the order.

—Dr. Charles Davis, the dentist, expects to take up his residence at the corner of Park avenue and Fifth street, just as soon as the new house now in course of construction is ready. Dr. Davis will take the whole house, having his office on the first floor.

Dinner in Washington Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Arrowsmith Hegeman, Jr., of Myrtle avenue, gave a delightful dinner Monday evening to a few friends. The decorations were crimson and in this color scheme the table was very attractive. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, Mr. and Mrs. George Wharton Edwards and Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Hegeman, Jr.

Music for Firemen.

A social gathering was enjoyed Monday evening at the Warren Engine Company No. 1, when a number of members of the company were present and listened to music rendered by James Poma and Raffey Tuzi, both musicians of the borough. The affair was an impromptu one and there were about a dozen members there.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

The number of railroad men who died during last year from natural causes was 140. This included men in every branch of the service from president to section man. A roadmaster who had reached the age of ninety-one years was the oldest and the youngest was a passenger agent of twenty-two years.

J. G. Brokaw, the agent for the New Jersey Central at Somerville, has in his possession a stock certificate issued to his grandfather, John C. Garretson, by the Elizabethtown and Somerville Railroad Company, on December 25, 1840. The certificate is numbered 532 and is for 100 shares of the captial stock of the company at fifty dollars each.

A well-known young man of the borough narrowly missed being on the ill-fated train last month and had it not been for a man stumbling on the walk in front of the gates to the train yard he would have been on the train which was wrecked. As it was he missed that train on account of the gateman not allowing him to pass within. Thinking that it was that gateman's sense of duty that kept him from losing his life that night he has sent him a good sized money reward.

THEATRICAL.

There will be but two weeks remaining of Mrs. Fiske's engagement at the Manhattan Theatre, New York, in that great play, "Mary of Magdala," and all who have thus far missed seeing this beautiful and impressive production should take advantage of the opportunity to witness it. The one hundredth performance will be given this evening, February 18, and this afternoon Mrs. Fiske will give a special performance, the proceeds of which she will donate to the Regina Angelorum, a home for working girls conducted in New York by the Sisters of Mercy. "Mary of Magdala" steadily draws very large audiences, and it could run out the season to undiminished patronage were it not necessary for Mrs. Fiske to leave the Manhattan Theatre the first of March to fulfill contracts in other cities.

Jerome Sykes, as "John Doe," in Klaw & Erlanger's spectacular production of the new farce, "The Billionaire," at Daly's Theatre, New York, is scoring the record of years at this house. The keynotes at this performance are fun, humor and satire and they are very adroitly used in the construction of a most enjoyable comic entertainment. "John Doe" is the best part Jerome Sykes has ever had and he has taken full advantage of its opportunities to increase his reputation as a comedian, which has always been of the best since he made his debut as a star four years ago. The theatre scenes in the second act are the talk of New York. Seats may be ordered by mail four weeks ahead.

Shake Off the Wintry Blasts.

The months of January and February are the most disagreeable to the northerner and delightful are they for the Florida tourist. The trip to Jacksonville is through a section as historic as it is picturesque, and the service to that point via the Royal Blue Line is the best. The New Jersey Central is going to run an excursion to Jacksonville on Tuesday, March 10. Train leaves New York, foot Liberty street, at 8:30 a. m., arrive Washington at 2:10 p. m., same day; leave Washington at 7 p. m., March 11 and arrive Jacksonville at 1:20 p. m., March 12. The round trip rate from New York and vicinity is $50, and includes also sleeping car berths, meals en route, transfer and hotel accommodations in Washington on southward trip, passengers making their own arrangements for the northward return trip. The arrangements are such that the care and worry of the journey are in the hands of the railroad company, and the tourist has the entire time for enjoyment. The New Jersey Central has issued "A Little Yellow Book" on this Florida trip; if you want it send a postal to C. M. Burt, general passenger agent, New York. It's free for the asking. 2 18 6 eod c 3

SEVENTEEN DROWN.

Passenger Steamer Sent to the Bottom by Cyclone.

SIX HALF FROZEN SURVIVORS RESCUED

Distressing Disaster Occurred on the Chowan River In North Carolina. Vessel Had Almost Reached Its Destination.

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 18.—A cyclone struck the passenger steamer Olive, which plies between Franklin, Va., and Edenton, N. C., during the night and sent her to the bottom of the Chowan river off Woodleys pier, between Mount Pleasant and Oliver's wharf.

Seventeen people are known to have been drowned, and others who were rescued are in a serious condition.

The whirlwind when it struck the Olive caused her to go over on her beam ends, and when she righted it was only to sink on account of the water she had taken. A majority of the passengers and crew were below at the time and had no opportunity to reach the pilot house of the vessel. This point was the only portion left above water, and in it standing waist deep from the time of the accident until 6 o'clock in the morning Captain George H. Withy and five others were saved.

At 6 in the morning the river steamer Pettit hove in sight and rescued the almost frozen survivors.

The Olive was a small single screw steamer owned by J. A. Pretlow of Franklin, Va., and has been plying between North Carolina and Virginia for several years. She left Franklin last evening for Edenton and had almost reached her destination when the cyclone struck her.

Bernard Beyond Reach of Police.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18.—Edward H. Bernard, for whom the police had been searching in connection with the murder of Miss Regina Curry, aged twenty-six years, late Thursday night, has been killed by a freight train on the Pennsylvania railroad at North Penn Junction, a few miles outside the city. Captain Miller of the detective department states that Bernard committed suicide to evade arrest, but the station agent, who claims to have witnessed the tragedy, asserts that his death was accidental. He had been wanted by the police on a charge of bigamy, but would have been held pending further developments in the murder of Miss Curry. Both Bernard and Miss Curry resided at La Mott, a suburb of this city.

Mail of Turf Firms Held Up.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 18.—Orders have been received at the postoffice from R. J. Wynne, acting postmaster general, to hold all mail addressed to E. J. Arnold & Co. or L. A. Gill, manager, or E. P. Faute and G. P. Faute, assistant managers, in St. Louis; the Christy Syndicate and Investment company or Thomas Walsh, manager; the International Investment company or W. J. Hogue, president and general manager, or Elias Silverthorne, assistant manager, National Securities company. Thousands of dollars supposed to be in letters which have come for Arnold & Co. since last Thursday will be returned to the persons who sent them.

Panama Company's Offer Accepted.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The government has formally accepted the offer of the Panama Canal company to sell to the United States the canal property and all of the company's rights therein for $40,000,000, subject only to the ratification of the pending treaty with the republic of Colombia. The effect of this acceptance will be to extend the life of the option held by the government beyond March 4 next and until the treaty now before the senate has been ratified by both countries in interest.

Schoolteacher's Brave Act.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 18.—Miss Mary Martin, teacher in the New Caldwell school at Thayer, Ill., by her bravery and presence of mind in a fire which destroyed the school saved the lives of fifty of her little pupils. With egress by the stairway cut off by flames, Miss Martin dropped her pupils from a second story window to the ground. After the last of the children had been rescued the plucky instructor swung herself over the window ledge and dropped to safety.

A Great Wireless Station.

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 18.—The government will shortly erect the greatest wireless telegraph station in the world at Cape Henry. The Marconi system will not be used, but Commander Clinton Custis of the Norfolk navy yard says messages will be sent across the ocean. The principal use of the station will be to communicate with war vessels at sea, Tampa, Key West and Dry Tortugas and northern navy yards. The poles will be 200 feet high.

Chicago Car Strike Unlikely.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Employees of the Chicago City railway are voting on the strike proposition, but danger of a cessation of work is now said to be remote owing to the action of Manager Robert McCulloch in offering to submit all questions at issue to the Chicago board of arbitration.

Change In Oregon Senatorial Vote.

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 18.—The vote for United States senator brought many changes. Seven of the Multnomah delegation voted for Geer, and Paulson of Clackamas changed from Fulton to Geer. The ballot was: Fulton, 33; Geer, 25; Wood, 15; scattering, 12; absent, 5.

Weather Probabilities.

STORM WIDESPREAD

Suffering and Destruction Reported In Many States.

HEAVY SNOWFALL IN NEW YORK.

Chicago, Boston and Many Other Cities Stormbound—Railway Schedules Abandoned and Telegraph Lines Paralyzed.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Following the worst snowstorm New York has experienced in many years, crippling street and "L" railway lines, blocking traffic in the main arteries of the city, delaying trains, bringing down telegraph wires and cutting off many suburban towns from outside communication, came also the coldest wave of the season.

Seven thousand men were put to work cleaning the main thoroughfares of the city, but the fall of snow was so heavy and the drifts packed so solidly by the wind it was with the greatest difficulty the work was carried on, and the record of the day was one of continued blockades in the congested part of the city.

Some of the ferry lines were put out of commission, suburban electric trains found it impossible to plow through the drifts, while the conditions generally were such that great damage to vessels at sea was feared.

The snowfall in New York was 9.9 inches in less than eighteen hours, which was the heaviest since this day three years ago, when it was the same.

On the Pennsylvania trains were reported from one to five hours late; the same conditions prevailing on the Erie, Central of New Jersey and Baltimore and Ohio.

In Jersey City the trolley companies are all seriously crippled, while the telegraph and telephone wires in all parts of the city are all but destroyed.

Trains on the New York Central and the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroads were all reported late at the Grand Central station.

Blockade after blockade resulted in the rush hours on all of the street railway lines and hundreds of thousands of persons walked to their work in preference to taking chances in the prevailing conditions. Not in the history of New York were the overhead services so badly crippled.

FIERCE SOUTHERN STORMS.

Reports From Many States Tell of Great Damage and Suffering.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 18.—Rain, snow and sleet combined in many places with high winds have wrought great damage throughout the south.

Railroad traffic is delayed and in many cities the street railway service is almost at a standstill.

Reports from Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi, northern Texas, Alabama, Georgia and all parts of Kentucky tell of damage done by the blizzard, of swollen streams and suffering on the part of man and beast, of traffic of all kinds delayed and in some instances of loss of life.

In Louisville, though the snow is only 4.1 inches deep, the snow has drifted so badly that several of the trolley lines have been abandoned, snowplows proving powerless.

In Memphis, Tenn., the snow and sleet storm is one of the worst in years and interfered to some extent with the operation of trolley cars and the telegraph and telephone wires.

At Fort Worth and Dallas, Tex., the snowfall was the heaviest in years, and a general blizzard prevailed throughout the southwest. Reports from Chattanooga, Nashville and Knoxville, Tenn., state that sleet, snow and wind have crippled the trolley wires and electric light plants.

Blizzard In Chicago.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Seven inches of snow, with a fall of temperature to about the zero mark and a strong wind to make it more penetrating, has given this section the severest taste of winter it has had this season. Traffic has been seriously impeded and all railroads are running belated trains. These low temperatures are reported: Cincinnati, zero; Indianapolis, 6 below; St. Louis, 6 below; Kansas City, 6 below; Omaha, 10 below; Milwaukee, 10 below; St. Paul, 20 below; Duluth, 24 below; Huron, S. D., 28 below; Bismarck, N. D., 28 below.

Wyoming Railroads Blocked.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 18.—The worst blockade of the winter is in force on the railroads entering this city. A strong wind filled all cuts, and trains have been unable to move. Seven passenger trains and a number of freights are snowbound on Sherman hill, the Cheyenne and Northern is blockaded between Cheyenne and Horse Creek and the Denver Pacific is impassable between Cheyenne and Carr. From Cheyenne east the Union Pacific and the Burlington are experiencing great difficulty.

Cape Breton Storm Swept.

SYDNEY, C. B., Feb. 18.—Advices received here show that the worst snowstorm in years has raged over the northern part of Cape Breton the past three days. All trains on the Intercolonial road between McKinnon's Harbor and Point Tupper have been canceled, as the snowdrifts are on a level with the car windows. At Antigonish and Cape North the snow is eleven and twelve feet deep, but the crust is so hard that traveling is easy in all places.

Record Breaking Cold In Kansas.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 18.—The cold weather has made a new record in Kansas, the government thermometer registering 10 degrees below zero. The snowfall in the state for the past three days has averaged six inches. Near Clay Center a woman was frozen to death. Reports from western counties show a great shortage in the coal supply.

Storm Stopped Collieries.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Feb. 18.—The snowstorm and blizzard caused the stoppage of operations at all the collieries in this region. It will be several days before all of the mines will be in operation again. Railroad and trolley traffic was greatly interfered with.

Foot of Snow In Connecticut.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 18.—Connecticut is buried under a foot of snow. The storm is the most severe in point of quantity of snow of the season, and traffic on steam and trolley roads is seriously hampered.

Boston Deep In Snow.

BOSTON, Feb. 18.—This city is buried under ten inches or more of snow. The storm is the worst this year. The snow was accompanied by high winds.

HAY AND BOWEN SIGN.

A Protocol Providing For a Commission to Meet at Caracas.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The navy department has received formal notice of the lifting of the Venezuelan blockade.

It is not known what the destination of the several men-of-war will be other than that they will depart from Venezuelan waters. It is reported that they will not return to Europe for some time.

Secretary Hay, for the United States, and Mr. Bowen, for Venezuela, during the day signed a protocol providing for the adjustment of United States claims against Venezuela by a commission to meet at Caracas.

This commission will consist of two members, a Venezuelan and an American, to be appointed respectively by Presidents Castro and Roosevelt, and in the event of disagreement an umpire to be appointed by the queen of the Netherlands. It is expected that the minister for foreign affairs will be appointed as Venezuela's representative and that either Mr. Bowen or Mr. Russell, the United States charge, will be named to represent the United States.

Baron Gevers, the minister for the Netherlands, called at the state department during the day to give notice of the acceptance by Queen Wilhelmina of the task imposed upon her, her consent having been previously sought by both parties to the arbitration.

Following promptly the signing of the protocol for the settlement of the United States claims against Venezuela Mr. Bowen began negotiations with M. Jusserand, the French ambassador, for the preparation of a protocol for the adjudication of the claims of citizens of France against the South American republic. He made a formal call on M. Jusserand and had a talk with him with a view to arriving at a basis of agreement. The French ambassador will consult his government by cable in order to obtain certain instructions to aid him in his work, and after they have been received it is expected the negotiations will proceed smoothly and expeditiously.

The French claims against Venezuela aside from those which already have been adjudicated approximate 11,000,000 bolivars.

Severe Weather Off Newfoundland.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Feb. 18.—The unprecedentedly severe weather continues in these latitudes. The United States revenue cutter Seminole, which is on her way to the Bay of Islands to attempt to cut out the icebound American fishing schooners, is still herself icebound in Channel harbor, and the prospect of her continuing the voyage is worse than ever. The mail steamer Bruce is fifty-four hours out trying to cross from Channel to Sydney, a distance of only ninety miles. She is still unreported and, it is feared, has been caught in the floes.

Coal Freight Rates Advanced.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 18.—Coal freight rates have been advanced in keeping with the advance on other freight rates by the leading executive and freight traffic officials of the railroads interested in the coal traffic from the Pittsburg, Ohio and West Virginia districts. The rates agreed upon are: Pittsburg to Chicago, all rail, old rate $1.75, new rate $1.90; Ohio to Chicago, old rate $1.50, new rate $1.65; West Virginia to Chicago, old rate $1.90, new rate $2.05.

Coghlan's Fleet Sent to Honduras.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Upon further report from United States Consul William E. Alger, at Porto Cortez, that conditions in Honduras are threatening and that American interests are likely to be endangered owing to the internal turmoil Secretary Moody decided to send Admiral Coghlan's fleet of cruisers and gunboats, now cruising in the Caribbean, to the gulf coast of Honduras. The orders were issued today.

A Bad Freight Wreck.

BIDDEFORD, Me., Feb. 18.—Freight train No. 254, from Portland for Boston, collided with freight No. 249 at McIntire's cut, on the eastern division of the Boston and Maine railroad, about a mile west of Biddeford. Both engines were derailed. The engine crews jumped in time to save themselves from serious injury.

Union Denounces Militia Bill.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Feb. 18.—The Molders' union held a meeting last night at which the Hughes militia bill was denounced as being an insult to organized labor, and a committee of three was appointed to do all possible to defeat the measure.

Winnipeg Carpet Store Burned.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 18.—A. F. Banfield's carpet store has been destroyed by fire. The loss is about $180,000; insurance, $110,000.

TURF CONCERNS RAIDED.

New York Police Arrest Alleged "Get Rich Quick" Firm.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Following the sensational charges against alleged "get rich quick" turf concerns in this city and throughout the country, Detective Sergeants McConville, Peabody and Clark of the central office have raided the offices of Rand & Co., at 199 and 171 Broadway, turf syndicate operators, and arrested C. E. Rand and Joseph Regan.

They were later arraigned before Magistrate Green in the Center street police court and held on a short affidavit by McConville on suspicion of larceny. Bail was fixed at $1,000 in the case of each.

According to the central office men, the offices of the Rand concern were sumptuously decorated. The detectives seized many advertising circulars, letters and literature concerning races. In the offices were two young women stenographers, neither of whom was arrested.

When arraigned, Rand said he was sixty-three years old and lived at 358 West Fifty-seventh street. According to the central office men, he is known as an owner of race horses and as a turf man. Regan said he was thirty-eight years old and a bookmaker.

Horses Killed at Ingleside.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—The racing at Ingleside was marred by an accident which resulted in the death of two horses and the injury of a jockey. The unfortunate affair occurred in the fifth race. Canderos was crowded into the rail after a quarter of a mile was covered and fell, throwing Jockey Waterbury heavily. Elkarn fell over Canderos and was instantly killed. Canderos sustained a broken leg, and it was found necessary to destroy him. Waterbury was bruised and shaken up, but there is no evidence of a fracture. Bozeman, who rode Elkarn, escaped injury.

American Bowlers at Odds.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 18.—There is a possibility of a split in the American Bowling association. Unless the next tournament shall go to Milwaukee it is said that the bowlers of Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota will secede from the national association and form an interstate league. Cleveland bowlers, it is said, will go after the next tournament with great vigor. The Clevelanders were supposed to favor Louisville. The eastern teams probably will give their support to Cleveland. Indianapolis and Chicago delegates hold the balance of power.

No More Hockey at Princeton.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 18.—Professor H. B. Fine, chairman of the faculty athletic committee, has notified Captain Purnell of the hockey team that all further games scheduled to be played by the team must be canceled. The reason for Professor Fine's action is that six of the seven members of the team failed in some of their examinations. The announcement has caused disappointment among the undergraduates on account of the team's excellent showing this season.

New Orleans Results.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 18.—Sheriff Bell, St. Tammany and O'Hagan were the winning favorites. Weather clear and cold, track slow and lumpy.

Bituminous Operators Organize.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18.—A large number of bituminous coal operators shipping to tidewater met here and formed an association to be known as the Bituminous Coal Trade association. It is said the new organization represents about 75 per cent of the operators in the Clearfield, Cumberland, Meyersdale, Flat Top, New river, Beech creek and West Virginia fields. L. N. Lovell of New York was elected president, and H. S. Fleming, at one time secretary of the Independent Anthracite Coal Operators' association, was made secretary.

Lafayette's Great Grandson Coming.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—The foreign office announces the appointment of the Vicompte de Chambrun to be an attache of the French embassy at Washington. He is a great-grandson of Lafayette, was the representative of the Lafayette family at the Rochambeau ceremonies and is a brother of the Marquis de Chambrun, a member of the chamber of deputies, who is the ranking representative of the family.

Gunboat's Sailors Poisoned.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—News has reached the navy department from Tutuila, Samoan islands, that on Jan. 14 fifteen of the crew of the gunboat Wheeling were poisoned by eating fish caught over the ship's side. While no cases have proved fatal, some half dozen were on Jan. 26 slowly recovering from the effects in the enervating climate, and one case was making very slow progress.

NAVAL BILL IN HOUSE

A Clash Between Sulzer and Littlefield.

SENATE AGREES TO ARMY BILL REPORT

At Caucus of Republican Senators It Was Decided to Take Up the Canal Treaty Daily Until Disposed Of.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The house yesterday began consideration of the naval appropriation bill under the operation of a rule which made the new legislation relative to the increase of the personnel of the navy and for the increase of the Naval academy in order. The general debate on the bill was without special feature. The paragraph in the bill providing $250,000 for a naval station on the great lakes went out on a point of order. Mr. Littlefield and Mr. Sulzer had an interesting clash before the naval bill was taken up, the former charging the latter with having perverted the record.

The senate agreed to the conference report on the army appropriation bill. Discussion of the statehood bill was resumed, and Mr. Depew continued his remarks in opposition to it. Toward the end of the session Mr. Teller declared that himself and the country had been insulted by some of Mr. Depew's references to the unequal representation in the senate.

At 4:05 p. m. the senate adjourned.

The Republican senators held a caucus and decided to have the senate continue consideration of the Panama canal treaty daily until the treaty shall be disposed of. This result was reached after an hour and a half's discussion of the legislative situation in the senate. The conclusion reached was unanimous. The understanding is that the statehood bill does not lose its advantageous position in the order of business when the senate is in legislative session. The Republican supporters of the bill agree not to antagonize a motion for an executive session to consider the canal treaty nor to make any objection to the prolongation of such sessions to any extent necessary to secure ratification. The caucus was opened by a statement by Senator Allison, chairman of the steering committee, giving it as the conclusion of the committee that the Panama treaty should be ratified before adjournment of the present session.

The conferees on the army appropriation bill reached an agreement. The senate amendment providing for the detail of retiring army officers to the number of twenty for service with organized militia was agreed to, but the provision for the assignment of retired officers as attaches at American embassies and legations abroad was omitted. The conferees agreed to the provision that citizens of Porto Rico may enlist in the regular army and that the Porto Rican regiment may be ordered for service outside of Porto Rico, with an amendment providing that all volunteer officers now in the Porto Rican regiment shall be mustered out of service June 30, 1904, and their places filled by detail from the line of the regular army.

The senate amendments making $25,000 immediately available for the purpose of equipping officers' schools and making appropriations available for barracks and quarters in the United States and in the Philippines were agreed to; also the provision made by the senate for an annual appropriation of $2,000 for the purchase of a national trophy and medals to be contested for annually by the army and national guard. The appropriation of $2,000,000 for equipping the national guard the same as the regular army was agreed to.

The senate conferees receded from the amendments providing for the purchase and preservation of the Bails Bluff battlefield.

The senate provision for $500,000 for army post buildings to take the place of the canteens remains in the bill, but it is provided that not more than $40,000 be expended for any one post building.

There is added to the artillery corps twenty-five master electricians to be enlisted by the secretary of war.

The senate amendment permitting army officers below the grade of major general who saw service in the civil war to retire with the rank and pay of the next highest grade was agreed to, with a further amendment making it apply only to officers who served in the civil war more than one year.

Missing Mail Pouch Found.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 18.—The missing mail pouch containing money, checks and drafts aggregating in value $50,000 which has caused the postoffice department so much concern has been found and is now safe in the office of the superintendent of mails here. The missing pouch arrived here yesterday from Cincinnati. How it reached Cincinnati is a question yet to be settled.

Wyoming Land Withdrawn.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 18.—The Cheyenne land office has received instructions from the general land office to withdraw from entry, except under the irrigation act, a strip of land in northern Laramie county varying in width from twelve to thirty miles and extending entirely across the county from east to west. This tract comprises 750,000 acres.

Four Negroes Hanged.

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 18.—Four negroes convicted of murder were hanged in Mississippi today. Alexander Smith was executed at Poplarville, Thomas Swer at Raleigh, Emanuel Walker at Indianola and Joseph Campbell at Yazoo City. Governor Longino finally refused to interfere in any of the four cases.

STATE RAILROAD COMMISSION.

One of the strongest recommendations of the coroner's jury in giving its verdict as to the cause of the Westfield disaster was that the Legislature establish a State Railroad Commission. Acting along that line, Assemblyman William Newcorn has introduced a bill into the Legislature with that idea in view. It was not long after the wreck occurred that Mr. Newcorn introduced a resolution calling for a legislative investigation with a view to investigating the conditions and recommending such legislation as the situation should warrant. This new measure is in reality along the same lines as Mr. Newcorn's first plan, only it provides for a permanent commission instead of one composed of members of the Legislature, and its object, to discover just what should be done to prevent a recurrence of such accidents, would be the same.

There is nothing really new in the idea of a State Railroad Commission. New York State has one and it is believed that it has accomplished much. Former Governor Griggs recommended one to the Legislature in one of his annual messages but his suggestion was never adopted. Two days following the Westfield disaster, the New York Tribune strongly urged the appointment of such a commission and secured the opinions of many of the legislators. Many of them favored the idea in the abstract but could not see how that wreck could have been prevented by one. The recommendation of the coroner's jury gave an added impetus to the movement until now it has attained considerable force.

There is a popular belief that something ought to be done to prevent another such catastrophe but ideas are somewhat hazy when it comes down to specifically defining what that something should be. The establishment of a State Railroad Commission would not make any immediate change but, if its object was attained, the conditions would be carefully looked into and the proper course discovered. As far as Plainfield is concerned, the proposed commission has met with general favor as a means toward arriving at a desired end.

People have been so accustomed to blame the trolley company for poor service that its success in keeping the local lines open right through the heaviest snow storm of the season should be property noted. When the snow came down so rapidly and it was seen that a heavy storm was in progress, it was supposed, of course, that the trolley cars would not be running yesterday morning. Imagine the general surprise when the cars were seen early in the morning running with real regard to schedule time. While there were no drifts of any size to encounter, there was plenty of snow on the level and it kept the plows working all night in order to have the cars running on time in the morning.

The peculiar arrangement of Plainfield and North Plainfield has always resulted in the great bulk of the business being done in the city. Some of the borough merchants are now complaining that their business is gradually drifting away and are now preparing to move into the city in order to retain it if possible. It is only another instance of the ridiculousness of making one community divided into two municipalities.

A writer on the psychological aspect of advertising is quoted by the Philadelphia Record as saying that no man knows what impressions have been made on his mind by newspaper advertisements; but when he happens to want a thing the name of an advertiser and perhaps an effective catch line will instantly occur to him.

Plainfield has, of late, had all the conditions necessary for a record breaking blizzard. There has been extreme cold, gales out of the north and a heavy snow fall. Luckily, however, they have not all appeared at the same time.

As Washington Birthday comes on Sunday, this year, the official observance of the holiday will take place on the Monday following, February 23.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

For first-class stationery, toys, dolls, etc., A. M. Harper, of Park avenue, is headquarters. His place is known as the "doll's hospital," and for anything in the doll line you should consult Harper.

E. S. F. Randolph, proprietor of the Watchung Pharmacy at the corner of North and Watchung avenues, offers a cough syrup for sale which will cure the most violent cough. He also makes special prices on quinine pills.

Money can be saved by taking laundry to the hand laundry of G. Meissner, of 432 Watchung avenue. There is not any where near so much wear and tear on clothes when they are done by hand as when they are washed by machinery.

In addition to keeping a superior line of dry goods, Putnam & DeGraw, of West Front street, maintain a first-class men's furnishing goods department. The stock of shirts, ties, handkerchiefs, socks, etc., is the best and the prices are very reasonable.

F. H. Firstbrook, of Liberty street, offers his customers during this week some of the choicest apples to be had in this vicinity; among them being some greenings, Baldwins and other varieties. He also has some very fine Florida and California oranges.

L. W. Randolph, the prescription druggist on West Front street, is constantly striving to give the public the best possible service. His stock of drugs, medicines, toilet articles, is always complete, while all prescriptions left at his store are accurately and promptly compounded. Mr. Randolph's reputation for selling the best soda is a strong feature. A full line of Huyler's celebrated confections is always in stock.

PERSONAL.

Seaman Williams, of Sandford avenue, is gradually recovering from a week's illness.

Miss Edith Ordmann, of South Second street, is home from a stay with friends at Brooklyn.

Miss Grace Emmons, of Jackson avenue, is the guest of friends for a few days in Brooklyn.

Mrs. D. D. Davidge, of Rockview avenue, who has been ill with the grip, is slowly recovering.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Worth, of Washington avenue, were entertained by friends in New York Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Radway, of Clinton avenue, are entertaining friends from Hasbrouck Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mundy, of West Third street, are the parents of a young daughter who arrived at their home, Monday evening.

THE LATEST—CREPE-DE-PARIS

Have you seen the goods? Have you heard the price? Do you know how immensely popular this, the prettiest of the new Spring Fabrics, has become? The goods are made of silk and wool, the weave gives a suggestion of crepe, has a beautiful sheen, comes in rich shades, is 44 inches wide and sells for 1.00 per yard. Mere words will not describe its beauty. See it, handle it, buy it, wear it, and life will take on a new meaning for you.

But this is not the only particularly desirable new fabric we are showing. Crepe-de-Voile is another extremely pretty weave. Comes in black only, is made of silk and wool with a pin spot woven closely throughout, is 44 inches wide. Price is 1.50 per yard.

Open weaves in Etamines, Voiles, Canvas Weaves, etc., we show in choice grades, and in reliable goods only. Zebalines, Broadcloths, Fancy Cheviots for skirts.

"Reides Lansdowne"—Too well known to need elaborate comment. Good trade is familiar with it, and constantly asks for it. We carry it in black, white and colors. Price the world over 1.25 per yard.

We are making a strong bid for the dress goods trade of this city. We are succeeding because we offer only the newest things at the best prices. We understand perfectly well the prejudice many ladies have against buying at home, but we find that feeling gradually being dissipated as they become familiar with our ways of managing the dress goods business. Exclusive styles, small quantities and low prices count for a great deal.

A Department Devoted to the Minor Events in Greater Plainfield's Suburbs by Our Own Correspondents.

DUNELLEN.

Quite a large audience assembled, last evening, in the Presbyterian chapel to hear the lecture given by Rev. D. W. Skellenger, of Washington, D. C., on "Rips in the Rockies." Mr. Skellenger's talk was enjoyed by all present and was very interesting. It told mainly of a trip to the Rocky Mountains, about Denver, a journey up Pike's Peak and many other interesting points in those mountains. A neat sum was taken in at the door.

A meeting of the Literary Circle was scheduled for last evening, but owing to the lecture in the Presbyterian church it was thought best to postpone it. The meeting will be held next Tuesday evening at the home of W. J. Hamilton.

The horse attached to Schenck's delivery wagon ran away on Saturday afternoon. It ran from Jackson avenue to Taylor's Hotel where it was stopped. No damage was done.

An inspection of the local electric light system was made by Superintendent Bache yesterday and all breaks repaired so that the lights were good again last night.

The Presbyterian church is not yet entirely furnished and services will not be held there until March 1, which is communion Sunday.

The Bound Brook trolley line was much commended yesterday for the prompt manner in which the tracks were cleared after the storm.

William Giddes has about recovered from the effects of injuries sustained in the Westfield wreck.

Mrs. Annie Hague, of Jackson avenue, is confined to her home by illness.

An unusually large number of seighs passed through here yesterday.

Prayer meeting will be held in the local churches this evening as usual.

A practice meeting of the banjo club was held last evening.

Wilson Frederick's conditions was quite favorable yesterday.

Miss Mary Teel spent yesterday with relatives in Easton.

George Knidoshes has purchased a spirited new horse.

The band will meet for practice this evening as usual.

NEW MARKET.

There was a very small attendance at the local school yesterday as the storm made it impossible for many of the children to make the journey.

Last night's cold froze the pond up and the prospects for an ice crop are now much better.

Prayer meeting will be held this evening in the First Baptist church at 7:30.

The Friendship Social Circle will hold a regular meeting this afternoon.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The small blizzard of Monday night made Scotch Plains storm bound by Tuesday morning. The trolley company was not able to keep anything like a schedule. The attendance at the public school was small. But by noon the snow plow, under the direction of Township Committeeman Brachman, had made paths through the village and travel could be resumed by those who were obliged to be out. In some places the snow was drifted to a depth of four and five feet.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Molloy, who has had charge of Glenside for several years, making it a very popular resort for a number of Newarkers who spend the summer there, have leased the resort for another term of three years.

The storm of Monday night crippled the Western Union Telegraph service at Fanwood. Five poles were down. The damage was repaired early Tuesday by one of the gangs of linemen.

The pupils and teachers of the public school are practicing for their Washington Birthday exercises which will be held in the assembly room of the school on Friday afternoon.

The weekly meeting of the teachers of the Baptist Sunday-school will be held tomorrow night at the home of Superintendent Chas. H. Vincent, of the borough.

Sleigh bells and sleighs, which had been laid away for another winter, were very much in evidence again yesterday.

The political situation on both sides is very quiet in town considering the primaries are only about two weeks away.

George W. Marsh, who has been suffering from a severe attack of quinsy sore throat, is improving.

The weekly meeting of the Boys' Club of the Methodist church will be held tonight in the church.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

An extensive sale will take place tomorrow of the stock and farming utensils belonging to Joseph Smith, of New Dover. Among other articles advertised are about twenty head of cattle and seven horses.

The interment of the remains of John Nelson, the father of Dr. W. J. Nelson, took place yesterday afternoon at South Plainfield Hillside cemetery.

Oscar Thorn is improving from his late attack of measles. Neighbors have gladly assisted in caring for his stock, and his marketing goods.

Since his recent severe attack of pneumonia, James H. Jones has found it necessary to stay within doors during all unpleasant weather.

Men here who have positions at the Pond Tool Works find it difficult just now to get there and back again on account of the snow.

Pastor Cubberley is expecting to begin revival meetings with the assistance of an evangelist about March 1.

PERSONAL.

Homer J. Wightman, superintendent of the North Plainfield High School, is confined to his home a sufferer from the grip.

Mrs. Charles Hall, of Watchung avenue, is spending a few days with her son as the guests of her father, George H. Tice, of Perth Amboy.

Edward Rudd, of Clinton avenue, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia, has recovered sufficiently to leave for a visit with relatives in New York.

Mrs. W. J. Buttfield, of Rockview avenue, who was recently operated upon for appendicitis, was able to sit up for a short while Monday and is gradually improving.

John H. VanWinkle, Jr., of the firm of John H. VanWinkle & Son, lawyers, who has been confined to his home for some time suffering from gastritis, is able to be about again.

Two Houses Rented.

Through the real estate agency of Leifke & Laing two houses have been rented during the past two days. One is located at 934 West Front street and was rented by Former Mayor C. H. Perry, of Bound Brook. Another house rented through that agency is located at 802 West Front street and will be occupied on or about the first of the month by Charles Maull, foreman of the Pedrick-Ayres Company, of the West End.

Removing Snow in the Borough.

Chairman James K. Arnold, of the street committee of the Borough Council, had a large number of men at work on the streets this morning removing the snow and dumping it in a lot on Race street. There are about ten wagons at work and twenty men.

The Easy Pill.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers do not gripe nor weaken the system. They cure biliousness, jaundice, constipation and inactive livers, by arousing the secretions, moving the bowels gently, yet effectually, and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach, liver and bowels that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely. These famous little pills exert a decided tonic effect upon the organs involved, and if their use is continued for a few days there will be no return of the trouble. L. W. Randolph.

REASONS WHY BOROUGH MERCHANTS WILL MOVE

Their Departure to Plainfield Will Affect Borough in a Business Way.

ARE GOING APRIL FIRST

SAY THAT NORTH PLAINFIELD'S BUSINESS GOES TO PLAINFIELD STORES.

People Prefer to Trade Where All the Stores Are Nearby—So Several of the Borough Merchants Are Preparing to Move Into City.

When the first of April comes around there promises to be several important business changes in the borough which will seriously effect that portion of Plainfield in a business way. Some of the prominent merchants of that part of the town are in favor of making a general exodus from North Plainfield into the city proper and some of the leading store keepers have gone so far as to close with agents for the renting of some stores on this side of the brook. This movement among the merchants has an annexation side to it which is interesting to the "antis."

In an interview secured with one of North Plainfield's leading merchants he showed facts and quoted figures showing that during the past eleven years business has been retrogressing instead of progressing. This he affirms is due to the fact that many of the residents of North Plainfield are not loyal to their own merchants but prefer to trade in the city of Plainfield. During the past four or five years, he claims, the borough people have been steadily taking their trade from the home shops, as it were, to the stores on this side of the brook simply because they are in the center of the business district and can, in some cases, save more time by doing all their trading in one block instead of having all their dealers scattered about different sections of the town.

Almost any merchant, who is asked how business is in the borough has the same answer: "Very quiet." It is this same quietness in business in the borough which has led five of the most prominent merchants of the borough to consider the matter of closing their doors and moving to this side of the brook or go out of business altogether, as one merchant intends doing when the spring comes. Some of the business men, who are planning this move, pay heavy taxes on their business properties. Their removal from the borough will therefore mean a heavy loss financially to North Plainfield.

One of the borough's oldest business men, with a well established business, said last evening when seen by a Daily Press reporter that he could get far more Park business with a store in Plainfield than he could at present when his store is really in the heart of what should be the business section of the town. He also said that he could not get any city business because people as a rule say it is too far to go to North Plainfield to trade and the consequence is that they do all their trading in Plainfield.

REFORMS DEMANDED.

Powers Join Against Turkey In Behalf of Macedonia.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—It is said in official quarters here that the Austrian ambassador at Constantinople will at once present a note to the porte asking for reforms in Macedonia. This is regarded as inaugurating the project for joint action on the part of the European powers toward Turkey.

The presentation of the Russian note, which is identical, will follow that of Austria, but the foreign office here has not yet been advised of the exact date of its presentation. The terms of the notes were submitted to France, Great Britain, Italy and Germany and were approved in principle by all except Germany. This is regarded by the French officials as indicating German divergence from the European concert and as a tendency to support Turkey.

The notes, while firm, do not contain a menace, the present suggested administrative and financial reforms not affecting the political status. In explaining the project an official said it was an application of "Europe's Monroe doctrine," which imposed the "same duties to maintain peace in Europe as the United States exercises in Cuba and South America."

CASTRO THREATENED.

Placards Posted In Caracas Demanding President's Death.

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Feb. 18.—It is asserted in reliable quarters here that placards reading, "Death to Castro" and "Down with Castro" were posted in the streets of Caracas on Sunday last.

It is further asserted that 500 men left Caracas Sunday to attack a force of revolutionists which occupied a position three hours' march from the Venezuelan capital.

A presidential decree has been issued establishing a war contribution in the form of an extra duty of 30 per cent to be levied on all imports.

The export duty on coffee is made 2 bolivars per bag's weight, on cocoa 16 bolivars and on hides 4 bolivars per 100 pounds.

The German commander at Porto Cabello has returned to their Venezuelan owners fifteen fishing craft and schooners which had been captured by the German war vessels.

Three More Victims at Ithaca.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 18.—Three more deaths from typhoid fever occurred yesterday of students of Cornell university. They were Otto Wohls of Rochester, N. Y.; Henry A. Schoenborn of Hackensack, N. J., and Charles J. Schlenker of Batavia, N. Y. No deaths occurred among the townspeople, although there are a number of very critical cases. Eleven physicians reported eight new cases and eight others sent out of town. The reason for sending new cases out of town is that the local physicians are utterly unable to care for additional sufferers. President Schurman of Cornell university when seen in regard to the typhoid fever situation said, "The number of new cases among students has markedly declined during the last few days."

Municipal Elections In Pennsylvania

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18.—Municipal elections were held in all townships, boroughs and cities in Pennsylvania yesterday. Owing to the snowstorm the vote polled was not as heavy as was expected, except in a few local places where there were sharp contests. In Philadelphia the election passed off extremely quiet. John Weaver (Rep.), the present district attorney, was elected mayor by the usual large Republican majority over Francis Fisher Kane, the Democratic nominee.

Schools Closed by Scarlet Fever.

NAUGATUCK, Conn., Feb. 18.—On account of the prevalence of scarlet fever all the schools in this town except the high school and a few small schools in the outlying districts will be closed for one month. There are thirty cases of the disease here at present.

FRU BJORNSON.

The Beautiful, Gifted Wife of Norway's Most Distinguished Author.

The greatest man Norway has produced since old viking days is perhaps Bjornstjerne Bjornson. He is so great that in spite of his name we in America are familiar with his fame. A hundred times more people know of his writings than know how to pronounce his distinguished name. He is the most versatile literary man of his time in any language.

Well, it is gradually coming to be known that he does it through the aid of a wife as capable in her way as he is in his. Fru Karoline Reimers Bjornson is her husband's secretary and counselor. In both the mechanical and intellectual departments of his tasks she is at his side, sweet, wise and strong. If there ever was the perfect woman, nobly planned, it is Fru Bjornson.

A photograph of the husband and wife made about the time of the celebration of Bjornson's seventieth birthday gives the impression that they must be the handsomest elderly married couple in all Europe. It shows that men and women who live the right lives, serene, loving, kindly and strong, need not fall to pieces even as they approach seventy. Fru Bjornson has rather large features, as befits a large woman mentally and physically, but they are classic and beautiful. Her hair, now snow white, is abundant and fluffy, softening a royal forehead. It is doubtful if the famous author and his wife were so handsome in their youth. They look like a married pair whom the gods love so well that time is not permitted to touch them except to beautify.

Notable in Bjornson's writings is the wholesome, happyfying tone. They are not painful, morbid pictures of miserable men and women, like so many of Ibsen's and Tolstoi's. It is a good world, preaches Bjornson, a bright, loving world, if we only take it in the right way, which is the way he himself takes it. The women of Scandinavia adore Bjornson. He holds them up to be honored and respected. He paints men such as women love and women such as men love in a wholesome, natural way. At the author's seventieth birthday celebration women vied with men doing him honor. It was because he had honored them so in his books.

Every man judges the whole feminine sex by his own wife and mother. It is easy to divine whence Bjornson obtained his exalted ideas of women and his tenderness toward them. He sees the whole sex in beautiful, noble Karoline Reimers. What she has been to him he naturally thinks other wives must be to other husbands. If Ibsen had been so fortunate in marriage as his literary compatriot, his stories and dramas must have taken a different tone.

Fru Bjornson is manifest especially in the couple's country home at Anlestad. She was married in 1858 to Bjornson, but not until recent years has the Anlestad home been completed. Like the married life of the pair who live there, it is as nearly perfect as anything can be in this existence. The farm is a large one and one of the best cultivated in Norway. The house is very large and luxuriously furnished and full of admirable art pieces. There is a group of buildings occupied by the farm workers. The landscape is magnificent. Standing on the veranda of Anlestad one gets a glimpse of mountain, valley, sky and water. Through the valley below where the house is built flows the river Gansa. The view shows nature in her most picturesque dress—nature mingling at the same time with man's conquest over nature. Through the lands of the Bjornsons runs a tumbling brook, supplying a water power. The water power is captured and turned into electricity to illuminate not only the home, but also the stables and outbuildings.

Fru Bjornson is always close to her husband, which is wise in her or in any wife so long as she does not bore the husband. In beautiful Anlestad the housekeeping, whether for two or for twenty—the Bjornsons are noted for their hospitality—is perfectly ordered and moves without a jar. The pair always spend the summers there. In the winter Bjornson travels in some European country—Italy, France, Germany or England—or settles down in some artistic and literary capital. Here again the beautiful, gentle, wise wife is always with him. They have several children now grown. One daughter, Bergliot, is married to the only son of Ibsen, Dr. Sigurd Ibsen, Norwegian minister of state at Stockholm.

In times like these a married life such as the Bjornsons' is like a splendid flower blooming upon a rock in a stormy sea. SUSAN PEPPER.

Work of the Lette Verein In Germany

IN the year 1865 Adolph Lette, a Prussian statesman, read before a Berlin workingmen's society a paper calling attention to the lamentable situation in which German women and girls compelled to earn their own living found themselves.

Herr Lette prepared his address with German thoroughness and delivered it with the eloquence of a man who knew he was right and was in earnest. It attracted wide attention. It found an echo in the heart of an Englishwoman whom fate had called to high station in Germany, and she was Queen Victoria's daughter, her royal highness Crown Princess Victoria, afterward Empress Frederick.

Out of Herr Lette's paper grew a movement for ameliorating the condition of German workingwomen. Crown Princess Victoria, with the Englishwoman's fearlessness and independence, threw herself enthusiastically into the movement. She became patroness of the new enterprise which had for its object the training of German girls to earn their own living in the ranks of skilled labor. In 1866 was organized in Berlin the Union For the Industrial Training and Advancement of the Female Sex. Thus thirty-six years ago was founded the first technical training school for girls. It had a statesman and a princess royal for sponsors, and that gave it a noble send-off. The wave of trades schools for girls is now on in the United States. The Berlin girls' technical school, called the Lette verein, stands already as the model for such establishments in all countries. Lette is the name of the German school's founder. Verein means union, and it is pronounced fer-ine, accent on the last syllable, with the "i" long. The Lette was not added to the name of the union till after the death of its modest founder.

To begin, there were plenty of pupils for the new institution, but no house to put them into. Those that came first were actually accommodated in private schools, where the verein paid their expenses. Instruction in the verein itself has always been entirely free. That instruction includes common grammar and ordinary high school courses as well as the industrial training.

In spite of having nowhere to house his pupils, Herr Lette kept at his work till he did get a home. By 1867 a school of drawing, technical and otherwise, was opened, and so thorough was it that a year later three of its pupils successfully passed their examinations before the Royal Art academy. Next an employment agency was added to the departments of the institution, also, under the special auspices of the crown princess, a home for girl pupils. At this stage unfortunately the illustrious philanthropist Lette, who had been the head and front of the organization and its president from the beginning, passed out of life. This was in 1868. So thoroughly had he imbued the whole body of workers and managers with his spirit, however, that the enterprise continued as he had planned it. His daughter, Frau Anna Schepeler-Lette, was elected president in his place, and like him she served as such till her death.

The technical school for women grew apace, grew marvelously and extended its sphere year by year. At length, under the management of the Lette verein, there were a commercial school, a school of drawing and a trades school, in which all the branches of manual industry commonly pursued by women were taught, such as cooking, housekeeping, washing and ironing. There was also a school of art embroidery and art hand work. Besides these, there were the girls' home, the employment agency and a department for the distribution of money to deserving women temporarily in need of help. Now also other branches have been added, and bookbinders, typesetters and office clerks are perfectly trained for their work. Since 1884 an excellent restaurant has been conducted in this model female industrial school. There is now, too, a class for learning photography. In the whole school there are 2,000 pupils.

At last the establishment entirely outgrew its quarters. Then a magnificent new building was erected and opened Oct. 1, which with the garden and grounds about it constitutes one of the show places of Berlin. Emperor William himself gave $75,000 toward the new home for the Lette verein.

CHAPTER VII.

THE SPRING AT THE WOOD-EDGE.

"Where in the deuce did you slope to?" inquired Joe Becraft as Rossiter took his seat at the dinner-table when the meal was more than half through.

"I went for a walk," replied Rossiter. "I didn't see you anywhere about, and didn't know anyhow that you would care to go after our long tramp of last evening."

"I wish you'd waited an' come along with Jim an' me," said Becraft, "instead of pokin' off by yourself."

"Where did you go?"

"Over to Blue creek."

"Blue creek! where's that?"

"You follow the road that passes the house for half a mile or so, an' it brings you out over a big gulch through which the creek flows. It's a fine stream. Trout in it, too, they say."

"I'll go over with you next Sunday, if you like," said Rossiter, recognizing from the description the place where he had met Hart Dawson on Thursday night.

Joe had seemed rather hurt by Rossiter's desertion, but was appeased by his promise for the coming Sunday, and when they arose from the dinner-table they went together into the upper orchard for a smoke. They found a comfortable spot in the long grass, and stretched at full length, their pipes drawing just to suit them, the leaves rustled softly above them, a catbird in an adjacent thorn-bush scolding and singing alternately, they enjoyed in a brimming measure the lassitude of simply existing. By and by Becraft sought his cot for a nap, and Rossiter was left alone. Presently he caught sight of Jack Parmelee near the hop-kiln, and, hailing him, asked for the loan of something to read. Parmelee procured him a a paper and a cheap magazine, and with these in hand he strolled to the bottom of the large orchard. Not seeing any nook there that took his fancy, and being attracted by the woodland beyond the meadow, he loitered towards it along a clearly defined path that ran parallel to the fence for some distance and then swerved obliquely to meet an opening in the forest. As he neared the wood he discovered that the ground fell away quite abruptly, and at the base of the declivity near the gap in the trees (this proved to be the entrance to an old logging-road) was the most crystal of springs shaded by a gigantic willow. Beneath this had been placed a rustic seat.

"Jove!" he exclaimed, "I've hit upon it this time!"

There was a glass upon a flat stone at the brink of the spring, and Rossiter refreshed himself with a deep draught from the cool well-head. Then he took possession of the seat, tried several positions, and finally leaned back with a sigh of satisfaction. It had been days since he had read a line of print, and of reading he had been always passionately fond (indeed, in his rovings he missed books more than any other luxury), yet he was now in no hurry to open mazazine or paper. The spot appealed to him as so idyllic he preferred to enjoy its sylvan beauty. Just before him there was a short vista where the logging-road penetrated the forest. Soon this woodman's highway curved, however, so that he had no glimpse of the heart of the wood. The overflow from the spring, with its small, timbrel-like voice, followed the bend of the road, and on its edge, a few yards distant among the trees, a late cardinal-flower displayed its scarlet robe. A woodpecker struck up a loud tattoo, a squirrel suddenly grew garrulous and then lapsed into silence, and far away from remote swampy recesses came a faint wailing as though a plover cried.

Having brooded to his satisfaction on his wild environment, Rossiter turned first to paper and then to magazine. He was glancing with idle curiosity at the faces of some of the people of the day prominent in public view when he fancied he caught the sound of voices. Half rising, he listened with intentness. Yes, that was Miss Merton's merry chatter and Miss Densmore's answering laugh. He could not see them, for the ridge behind him hid them from view. They were doubtless coming to the very place where he had been reclining, and would be disappointed if they discovered the seat had an occupant. He could not retreat along the logging-road without being noticed, and he did not wish that they should observe him. Just at his left, however, was a hazel-copse that offered concealment. It occurred to him that he could slip into this, and then, by making a little detour, strike the woodman's track below where it curved. A stroll of exploration appealed to his humor, and he was quick to put his idea into execution, so when the two girls arrived at the spring they found their possession of its lyric seclusion undisputed. After they had ensconsed themselves comfortably upon the seat, Miss Merton opened the book which she had brought with her, uttering an instant later a cry of chagrin.

"How utterly stupid of me!" she said, showing the page to her cousin, "it's the wrong story."

"Oh, never mind!" said Miss Densmore.

"But I do mind!" cried Miriam. "It was so perfectly foolish of me not to look. I knew the two novels had exactly the same covers. I'm going back for the other. You'll not be afraid to stop for a few minutes alone?"

"Why do you trudge back through all the heat? It isn't worth while. Not that I care"—glancing about her a little doubtfully—"because I shall be left alone."

"It was so absolutely silly of me that I'm going," said Miss Merton, and she hurried up the slope.

Rossiter, in the meanwhile, had picked his way with much caution through the thicket, gained the more open wood, though everywhere there was considerable undergrowth, and come out upon the logging-road. He walked on for perhaps a hundred paces, when he emerged into a little glade where the rillet from the spring joined a larger brook. Here a fallen tree made so inviting a resting-place that he seated himself, intending to resume his wanderings after a few moments. As he glanced aimlessly about him he spied a small hickory sapling of arrowy straightness which he fancied he would like for a staff; accordingly he took from his pocket the large knife with which Jack Parmelee had supplied him for cutting hop-vines, snapped back the single blade, and approached the miniature tree. He had bent it over and made the first incision when a woman's scream—unmistakably a cry of terror—penetrated with startling clearness the forest quietude, and it came from the direction of the spring. So quickly did Rossiter leap back that the boughs of the released sapling had no time to whip his face. Into his pocket went the knife—he was sorry afterward he had not kept it in his hand—and he raced up the wood-road with the speed of the runner who overcame Atalanta. When he had compassed half the distance between the glade and the bend another scream rang out, more full of fright it seemed to him, than the first. In vain he strove to quicken his pace. He was already sprinting at the top of his bent. Just before he reached the turn he was conscious that someone was running towards him, but who it was he could not see, owing to the undergrowth. He heard gasps of labored breathing, and then Miss Densmore appeared before him, wild-eyed, her hair half unbound, her face, despite her exertions, as pale as bleached linen. Behind her, not more than ten feet distant, his repellant countenance exultant, rushed a man—"Whiskers!"

The girl on the instant recognized Rossiter, and a moan of despair escaped her. She slackened her speed for just a breath in her uncertainty, and Dawson's outstretched hand almost gripped her shoulder. Then it flashed upon her who this was before her, and with a glad cry she sprang towards him. Intent upon the girl, her pursuer had given Rossiter no heed, and suddenly found himself in that young man's grip and was hurled backward with such force that he stumbled and fell upon the sward.

"You damnable hound!" the pole-puller cried, standing over him with clenched fists.

"Whiskers" made no response, but returned Rossiter's infuriated gaze with a disgusting leer.

"Get up!" commanded the young man.

The vagrant rose slowly to his feet, let his eyes rove furtively first to one side and then to the other, as though it were his intention to take to his heels, and then suddenly sprang with an enraged snarl at Miss Densmore's rescuer.

"Want her yerself, do ye, Charlie? By God, ye sh'n't have her!"

So sudden was the onslaught that Rossiter would have been overborne had he not suspected some such movement on Dawson's part and been in a measure prepared. He shifted his position slightly to meet the attack, and swung out with a blow which, had it landed fairly, would have given the ruffian his quietus then and there. It was turned aside, however, by an uplifted arm, and the next moment Rossiter felt a steely clamp upon his throat. He tore away his assailant's hand by a desperate effort, but he had cause to remember those terrible fingers for days afterwards. The two men now stood eyeing one another, and as Rossiter moved a step to gain a firmer foothold, for the ground was uneven and spongy, he was conscious of Miss Densmore not far distant crouching against a tree.

"Don't stand there!" he cried to her. "Run, for God's sake!"

He had come to realize that, strong as he knew himself to be, the strength of the man confronting him was something greater. The searing grip upon his throat told its startling tale. And, moreover, he had not to deal with a creature moved by the ordinary human emotions, but with a roused and infuriated beast, terrible with a beast's unrestrained passions.

Do You Wish To Borrow Money?

In order to accommodate all classes of borrowers (those who cannot borrow at a bank, as well as those who can), the Mutual Loan and Investment Company, of 118 Market street, Newark, N. J., has a department for handling quickly and confidentially loans ranging from $10 to $300 on furniture, pianos, storage receipts, etc.

The security is not removed from your possession or in any way disturbed. The honest, careful and conservative borrower will try and decide two points before borrowing. First, where he can get the best terms. Second, where he can get fair and square treatment.

This company is in a position to give you by far the most satisfactory terms ever offered by any concern or individual negotiating this class of loans.

With this company you are assured of getting the lowest rates, easiest payments and longest time for repayment. The whole transaction from the time the application is made until loan is paid is entirely confidential. We give you another advantage in case you take the loan out for six months or a year, and wish to settle the same before the time expires: we charge you only for the time you have had the money. We also take up loans from other companies and advance more money.

Kindly call and let us explain our simple and up-to-date methods. If not entirely convenient for you to call, please write and our representative will call and give you any desired information. Remember it costs nothing to make application. Loans promptly made in Elizabeth, Plainfield, Westfield, Roselle, Rahway, Perth Amboy and all suburban towns.

Revival of a Fifteenth Century Morality Play

"Everyman," a Curious Relic of the Days of Henry VIII., Now Being Presented in This Country.

BACK in the reign of Henry the Eighth the stage really was made use of to inculcate lessons of morality. Whether or not men's hearts were more wicked than to-day it is hard to say, but surely the wickedness at that time, when the king was able to make way with spouse after spouse, by murder if it seemed to him best, was somewhat more flagrant. And those grim morality plays were written and played to people that were supposed to need sharp reminders of life's short day, rather than consolation and comfort.

As we enter the theatre, we see an interior very unlike the usual playhouse interior. The curtain is raised from the beginning, the scene left unchanged. There is no orchestra, but the solemn music of viols and organ greets our ears. Before us on the stage is shown the chancel of a cathedral, and for the most part the people in the audience comport themselves as though indeed they were in holy church. The eyes light first on lilies, gleaming pure and white, and then beyond the flowers, on a raised platform at the center of the back of the stage, an open grave is visible.

As the music dies away, a tall form in a black cassock mounts a flight of steps which extend out into the auditorium; Messenger, who is to tell us the manner of play that is now to be presented, and who bids us take careful heed of the lesson its purpose is to convey. Most impressively he speaks:

I pray you all give your audynce,
And hear this mater with reverence,
By a fygure a morall play:
The somonynge of Everyman, called it is,
That of our lyves and endynge shewes,
How transytory we be all daye:

As he ceases, the scene before us is suddenly lightened, and we hear a Voice speaking, inexpressibly sad and solemn. It is the voice of God, calling His Mighty Messenger Death to appear and summon Everyman to give his account, make his reckoning.

Into view glides, or shuffles, a grisly figure, clad in grisly gray, the design of a skull painted upon his face. In even, relentless tones It, Dethe, promises to seek out Everyman.

In contrast to the dreadful form, now appears, heralded by the gay refrain of a drinking song, a beautiful, blooming youth, decked out in all the pride and pomp of life, a musical instrument in his hand, from which he lightly, carelessly, gayly, brings forth melody. Death speaks to him, and this blooming youngster laughs and heeds not, but would pass on. Again Death calls, and the youth listens now. He is told that this day God will ask of him his reckoning. A chill creeps over Everyman; he begs for a little more time, a little period in which to set right his Book of Reckoning; but Death affirms there is to be no delay, advises that with all haste he make ready. Death then withdraws, advising Everyman to seek out his friends and see what help they will now prove to him.

The stricken Everyman sinks upon the steps of a raised platform (that on which yawns the open grave), and mourns his sudden fate. Presently, however, hope springs up, and he bethinks him of calling for help. To whom shall he turn? Why, to Good Fellowship, of course, and so he asks for him. In comes sprightly, bright-garbed Good Fellowship, who swears he is the most faithful, closest friend Everyman has, and vows he will follow wherever the former may lead. Poor Everyman tells of the long Journey he is to take from which there is no return, and begs that his friend accompany him on his lonely way. But not so, Good Fellowship has no appetite for such a pilgrimage, and, with light, laughing words on his lips, forsakes the one he has just sworn to follow even to the grave itself.

Hapless Everyman next calls for Kindred and Cousin, and in come, with all speed in response to the command of the rich and prosperous relative, a young woman and an old man. They, too, make protestations, but when they learn of Everyman's sore need they run with much haste from such trouble as his. Then Everyman thinks of Riches, the one he has loved best of all all his life; surely he will stay by him. But Riches is too busy counting his gold, too absorbed in his glittering treasures, to give heed to Everyman's agonized pleading. And he not only refuses to give him aid, but he mocks him, laughs at him, and tells how the love of Riches only helps a man on his way to Hell. He bids Everyman get started, assures the wretched, desolate creature that Riches is very busy, now will have some new one to serve.

There seems only one friend left, and to her he turns, to his Good Deedes. A curtain at the side of the stage is withdrawn, disclosing a wan-faced woman, lying on a bed, too weak to rise. In a very faint voice she tells Everyman she would aid him if she could, but that she can hardly stand, so bound is she by Everyman's sins. He cries his sad need of her, and she promises to come to his help and to bring with her her sister Knowledge, both of whom will support and strengthen him on his way.

The sisters enter; Knowledge is strong, and shining with precious jewels, Good Deedes symbolic of spiritual victory. They counsel Everyman, bid him seek out Confession and obey what the holy man commands. A priest now appears, and before him Everyman kneels and confesses his many sins, his few good deeds. The priest shows him a scourage, and tells him when with that he has made penance his troubles shall have lessened. The youth joyfully accepts Confession's teaching, and vows he will gladly strike out the lusts of the flesh with the rod before him.

Everyman's flesh is tender, his life has not had in it much of pain, and he shrinks as Knowledge comes to divest him of his soft apparel and make him ready for the cruel scourage. But Good Deedes and knowledge both sustain him, and he takes the scourage in his naked hand.

They wrap him in the cloak of Sorrow, and he retires from view to partake of the last sacrament. He returns, robed in a white garment, ready for the grave. For the continuance of his journey he desires other of his five companions; and to his side come Beauty, Strength, Discretion, and the Five Wits. They promise to be with him to the last, and, kissing each one, he thanks them for their aid. But at the very last, none is able to abide by him save only Knowledge and Good Deedes, who support his failing strength until he sinks from our sight into the grave.

It would, indeed, be a most depressing spectacle if this were the end of it all, but it is not. Though Everyman is saddened by the desertion of so many of his friends of earth, though his body is so weak it scarce can finish its pilgrimage, yet his soul triumphs at the last, and he sinks from sight, his face lightened with a great peace and glory.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

Two matches for the open pairs ten-pin tournament were rolled at the Park Club alleys and F. O. Ball and Dr. C. R. Thiers managed to retain their hold on the trophy. In the first match they defeated the challengers, John Valiant, Jr., and Frank Curtis, 330 to 321 and 319 to 232. In the second match they defeated Edward Overton and William Barlow, Jr., 241 to 262, 309 to 296, and 374 to 340. It was a narrow escape for the veterans.

DEATH OF WM. J. TAYLOR.

Member of the Well-Known Steel Firm at High Bridge.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, Feb. 18—William J. Taylor, aged sixty-five years, one of the active members of the Taylor Iron and Steel Works, at High Bridge, died last night after a short illness with pneumonia. He was taken ill last Friday and the disease spread from one lung to the other. Mr. Taylor was a very fine man of much ability and his death will be a distinct loss to the company with which he was associated. The best of medical skill was furnished, but proved of no avail.

FUNERAL OF MRS. BIRD.

Held From Her Home on Summit Avenue This Afternoon.

The funeral services of Mrs. Lewis R. Bird were held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the late home corner of Watchung and Summit avenues. Rev. Dr. Snodgrass, of the First M. E. church, assisted by Rev. Dr. W. C. Nelson, of the borough, conducted the services. There was a large attendance of friends, including many young people who were intimate with the departed. There were many floral tributes from relatives and friends. The interment took place in the family plot in Hillside cemetery.

Game Cancelled.

A. F. Conant, manager of the City High School basket ball team, received a telegram this morning cancelling the game scheduled for this afternoon with the Hasbrouck Institute team from Jersey City. No reasons were given and the management is awaiting an explanation.

A Little Loss

of flesh and strength, little barking, obstinate cough and a little pain in the chest may not mean galloping consumption, but they are signs that prudence will not neglect. A few doses of Allen's Lung Balsam cause a free discharge of mucus and so loosens the cough. It heals the inflamed air passages and all its beneficent work is accomplished without a grain of opium.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL GROWING.

Gratifying Reports Given at Trinity Reformed Teachers' Meeting.

The annual meeting of the teachers and officers of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school was held last evening, when reports for the year were presented. All of these reports showed advancement in the various departments. The report of H. E. Gayle, treasurer, showed a gratifying balance, and that of Mrs. George Saums, superintendent of the Home department, showed an increase in membership.

It was undecided just what date to select for the annual excursion. Thursday, July 30, is open and can be secured, and it is quite likely that that date will be chosen.

Attended Surprise Party.

A surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Levi C. Kline on Summit avenue, last evening. It was arranged by their daughter, Miss Reba Kline, and proved to be a very enjoyable affair. The evening was spent in playing games and in listening to recitations which were rendered by the various members of the company. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

At the Orange Dog Show.

J. D. James, of Sycamore avenue, has two fine collie dogs entered in the dog show which will open today at Orange. These dogs won two blue ribbons at the Madison Square Garden show in New York, recently, and in the Orange show he is also confident of winning a ribbon or prize. William L. Smalley, of the borough, also has some dogs entered in the show.

Freedom Commandery Elects.

Freedom Commandery, No. 5, Knights of the Golden Eagle held a meeting last evening when new officers were elected to fill vacancies. They are: Secretary, A. C. Hoagland; treasurer, A. H. Lewis; trustees, W. J. Allen, Dr. C. M. Luckey and Dr. J. H. Buchanan. The meeting was followed by a drill.

Funeral of Little Victim.

Funeral services over the remains of Anastasia O'Connor, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William O'Connor, who was burned to death Monday, will be held from the parent's home, 334 Bank street, Newark, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be made in St. Mary's cemetery, this city.

Pythians at Trenton.

The thirty-sixth annual convention of the Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias, is being held at Trenton today. The delegates from this city are City Judge William N. Runyon, Asa D. Pope and Charles McGinley, of Perseverance Lodge, and Jeremiah VanWinkle and Joseph Shepperd, of Unity Lodge.

'Possum Supper.

A 'possum supper was served last evening at the fire headquarters when only members of the department were invited. The 'possum was killed by one of the men while at Roselle and he brought it home. The supper of last night was cooked by some friends and the southern delicacy was enjoyed by the men.

SONG RECITAL PLEASING

LOUIS F. HASLANGER, BARITONE, AND MISS WOLFERT, VIOLINIST.

Their Selections Were Given in a Manner Highly Satisfactory to the Large Audience.

The song recital given at the First Baptist church last evening under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society, was a success in every detail. There was a large and appreciative audience, notwithstanding the extreme cold weather and the society will realize a fair sum as profit for its treasury.

The excellent programme was presented by Louis F. Haslanger, baritone, of New York, assisted by Miss Florence Wolfert, violinist, of this place. Mr. Haslanger's selections were principally given in the German. They gave him an excellent opportunity to display his fine voice which has been so well trained. In all Mr. Haslanger sang nineteen numbers, including three encores.

Assisting the baritone, Miss Florence Wolfert gave some of her best selections on the violin. Those who have heard this talented violinist before, listened again with great delight to her work last evening. She has exceptional ability and her several numbers gave abundant opportunity for a full display of it. Miss Charlotte C. Conger, of the borough, accompanied her on the piano and her work was very satisfactory.

Several of the young women of the society acted as ushers last evening, as follows: Miss Pauline Denton, president; Miss French, Miss Mae Batchelor, Miss Fountain, Miss Elizabeth Wilson and Miss Mabel Smith. F. W. Jones was the collector at the door.

AFTERNOON TEA.

Second of a Series of Delightful Affair at Mrs. McGee's.

A delightful afternoon tea was held, yesterday, at the home of Mrs. Henry A. McGee, of Orchard place, when there were a large number of people present. The house was tastefully decorated with greens and white carnations.

Those who assisted Mrs. McGee in receiving were Mrs. Clifford McGee, Mrs. A. V. Heeley, Mrs. James Jackson, Mrs. George Chapman and Mrs. Charles McCutchen. Those who assisted in the dining room were: Mrs. J. K. Meyers, Mrs. Martin I. Cooley, Mrs. Charles Horne, Miss Daisy Elsberg and Mrs. Edward Wilson.

The tea was the second of a series of three "at homes" which will be held by Mrs. McGee, the last of which will take place next Tuesday.

TAKEN HOME.

Remains of Miss Delia Haley Removed to Centralia, Pa.

The remains of the late Miss Delia Haley, who expired at the home of her sister, Mrs. D. F. O'Keefe, of West Fourth street, Monday morning, were removed to the home of her parents in Centralia, Pa., yesterday afternoon. The funeral services will take place at Centralia tomorrow morning and the interment will be in the cemetery in that city. Mrs. O'Keefe and a number of the young woman's relatives accompanied the body to Pennsylvania.

Death of Infant.

Francis Newland Sprowl, the seven-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Albert Sprowl, died at the home of the parents in New York, yesterday from croup. The funeral will be private. The parents were former residents of the borough, Mr. Sprowl having lived with his aunt, Mrs. Phillips, of Rockview Terrace, previous to his marriage.

New Signal Towers.

The new iron signal towers being erected along the New Jersey Central in this city are in position and the work of connecting them up and placing the signal boards on them will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

New York Society Tea.

Mrs. Rowland Cox, Jr., will give the last of a series of teas at her home in Madison avenue, New York, tomorrow. These functions have been attended by several society folk from Plainfield as well as New York.

A Weak Stomach

causes a weak body and invites disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures and strengthens the stomach, and wards off and overcomes disease. J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Chriesman, Tex., says: "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and run down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefitted me, and after taking four bottles I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health." L. W. Randolph.

7 KILLED ON A RUNAWAY TROLLEY

Car Filled With School Children Dashed Into D. L. and W. Train at Clifton Ave. Crossing, Newark, This Morning.

FIVE KILLED INSTANTLY, TWO DIED SOON AFTER AND THIRTY INJURED—ALL WERE HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Newark, Feb. 19—Seven persons were killed and thirty injured in a horrible crash between a runaway trolley car and an express on the D., L. and W. Railroad, at the Clifton avenue crossing, shortly after 8 o'clock this morning. Nearly all the dead and injured were young men and women on their way to the Newark High School.

The trolley car was cowded with 100 passengers when it reached the top of the Clifton avenue grade and, as it descended toward the railroad, the motorman was horrified to find his brakes would not work. The gates were lowered and though he saw the express bearing down a lightning speed he stuck to his post and made herculean efforts to prevent the catastrophe. It proved of no avail as the car broke through the gates and plunged directly into the locomotive.

Its load of human freight was scattered in all directions while many of the passengers were ground beneath the engine wheels together with the splintered remains of the conveyance. Five persons were killed instantly, two others died on the way to hospitals and others are expected to die before the day is over.

NO SHAM BATTLE.

City High School Cadets Give Up That Feature As Well As Entrance in Military Tournament

There was an important meeting of the officers of the City High School cadet battalion yesterday afternoon in the commandant's room. It was announced that, owing to the fact that no hall can be secured for Company D, the company which was recently raised to take part in exhibition drills, that company will not take part in the competitive drill in the Military Tournament to be held in New York City this spring. It was also announced that the sham battle between the companies, which was to have been held in the early part of April, would be omitted from the battalion's programme of events for the season.

Captain R. S. Lane, as chairman of the committee appointed for managing the June exhibition and competitive drill of the companies, made his report on the programme for that occasion. After some consideration, this programme was accepted as presented. The drill will take place in the early part of June, and the events, as last year, will include battalion evolutions, competitive company drill for prize banner, and competitive individual drill for a gold medal.

BELOW ZERO.

Coldest Weather of the Winter is Now in Full Sway.

The most severe cold wave of the season is here. According to the record of Weather Observer Neagle, the mercury fell to 2 degrees below zero yesterday morning and this morning it was reported to be a degree colder. To cap the climax, this morning, there was a brisk young wind out of the north west, which arrived in town last night and has been here ever since. It made the cold feel far more intense.

There is consolation to be found in the fact that the worst of it is over and that the weather is expected to moderate somewhat tonight and tomorrow. Another storm is reported approaching and is due to reach here Saturday.

Successful Operation.

PASSAIC SEWER BILL.

Reported to Assembly at Yesterday's Session—Governor's Appointments Confirmed.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Feb. 19—Gov. Murphy sent yesterday to the Senate these nominations:

Law Judge, Morris county, Alfred Elmer Mills.

Prosecutor, Morris county, Charles A. Rathbun.

Manager of the New Jersey Reformatory, Bruce S. Keator, Monmouth county.

Trustee of the State Home for Boys, John Guire, Monmouth county.

Adjutant-General, R. Heber Breintnall.

The Senate confirmed these nominations:

Circuit Court Judge, Charles W. Parker.

Judge of the Court of Errors and Appeals, George R. Gray.

District Court Judge, Jersey City, James S. Erwin.

The Senate adjourned until Tuesday morning.

The House committee on municipal corporations reported with amendment the Passaic pollution bill. The bill as amended, provides for the construction of a trunk sewer from Paterson along the Passaic river to New York Bay. It is estimated the sewer will cost about $9,000,000. The cost is to be borne by Newark, Paterson and other municipalities that will sewer into it, in proportion to their ratables.

The House passed the bill for the licensing of accountants and adjourned until Tuesday morning.

MUSIC HALL OPENING.

Mr. Sherman Says It Will Positively Take Place April 1.

According to the latest official statement, Music Hall will positively be opened by April 1. S. F. Sherman, the new owner, is authority for the date and is in this city today arranging matters for a continuation of the alteration work began many weeks ago.

Architect William Clum, of this city, is now in charge of the plans and is prepared to push the work to completion when the proper workmen arrive. These are promised by Proprietor Sherman within the next few days when the process of demolition and reconstruction will be pushed with renewed energy.

Cold Make Trains Late.

Owing to the severe cold weather trains on the New Jersey Central have been running behind time. The day after the storm a passenger engine was run in the pit at the turn-table at the Jersey City round-house and occasioned much delay in getting the other engines out of the house. Today the passenger trains are being operated nearly on time.

Miss Lou Piker, of West Front street, entertained the Lenox Euchre Club at her home Tuesday evening. There were six tables and the usual good time was had by all the members. The first and second prizes for the women were won by Mrs. Campbell, of Westfield, and Miss Lou Piker, of this city, while William Moore and Armstrong Mulford won the first and second prizes for the men. A social time and refreshments followed the evening's play. Mrs. Kelly, of East Second street, will entertain the club next Tuesday evening.

UNGER-FANWOOD TOWNSHIP MATTER PUT OFF UNTIL JUNE.

Plaintiff's Counsel Maintains That the Speed Ordinance is Unconstitutional.

A trial which is being watched with great interest by automobilists in this city and throughout the State, was brought up in the Supreme Court at Trenton, Tuesday morning. The case is one between Herman Unger, of Newark, and the township of Fanwood. It is the result of Mr. Unger being arrested for speeding his machine through that township and having contested its ordinance governing the speeding of automobiles. The clause says that a man may be sentenced by a justice of the peace to not more than three months in jail or fined for its violation.

Mr. Unger has been making a test case of this matter and is represented by Reed & Coddington, while counsel for the township is Codington & Swackhamer.

Reed & Coddington affirm that the ordinance is unconstitutional on the ground that it deprives a man of a trial by jury. It is claimed that the ordinance is void because it was made on a law which also is void. The case has been held over until the June term when it will be brought up again.

ATHLETIC TRAINING.

General Gilmore Directs Regimental Commander to Install Such a System.

The establishment of a department for athletic training in the National Guard is the latest advancement suggested for the betterment of citizen soldiery.

Brigadier-General Gillmore has directed the Third Regiment in Camden to obtain the services of an instructor. This order will likewise be made for the Second Regiment as soon as the Trenton Armory is completed.

Healthy exercise, the general says, is absolutely necessary to the proper physical development of a soldier.

He has long entertained the notion of providing an athletic course both for the officers and men, and now that it is learned that New York and Philadelphia maintain such departments without extra expense either to the guardsmen or to the State, there is to be no delay about the installation of the system.

The Criterion Dance.

At a meeting of the dance committee of the Criterion Club, which was held Tuesday evening, it was decided to hold the affair, which was planned for the evening of January 29, but which was postponed on account of the Westfield disaster, Thursday evening, March 5, at the Casino. Small cards will be sent out to those who have received invitations to the affair notifying them of the change in the date.

RAILROADS TO FIGHT MR. NEWCORN'S BILL

But Local Assemblyman is Hopeful That It Will be Reported Back to House.

RESULT OF THE INQUEST

THE BILL PROVIDES FOR A STATE RAILROAD COMMISSION.

Will be Composed of Four Persons at Salary of $1,500 a Year Each—The Other Details of Mr. Newcorn's Bill.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Feb. 19—A State railroad commission, with power to investigate, enforce laws and recommend railroad legislation, along the lines suggested in the finding of the coroner's jury in the Westfield accident, has been introduced in the House by Wm. Newcorn, of Plainfield. As a resident of Plainfield, where most of the accident victims lived, the Union county man has been deeply interested in the researches of the jury. Two weeks ago Mr. Newcorn introduced a resolution in the House asking for an investigation of the Central Railroad disaster and its causes by an Assembly committee. He said that the diligence and thoroughness of the cororer's jury investigation, he believed, made similar action by the Legislature unnecessary, and that he would not press the former measure.

Since its introduction the investigation resolution has slumbered in the possession of the House committee on railroads and canals. The commission bill was consigned to the same committee. That the railroad lobby and interests will be solidly arraigned against the proposition is regarded by those who know the situation as a foregone conclusion. Notwithstanding that fact, the Union county man has hopes of seeing his bill reported and given a chance for debate on the floor of the House.

The Newcorn bill provides for a commission of four persons, who must be experts in railroad matters or practical railroad men, to be appointed by the Governor. Of the first four names he proposes that two shall be for terms of two and two for terms of four years each. Their salaries are to be $1,500 a year each. After the first two years two members of the commission are to be appointed each year for two-year terms.

This bill proposes that the commission so formed shall have power to investigate all railroad wrecks in the State and their causes, and to recommend to the Legislature from time to time such laws as they may consider necessary to prevent repetitions of accident and to protect the lives and safety of the travelling public. The commission is also to be clothed with authority to enforce existing and future railroad laws governing the running of trains, equipment and operation of roads and the use of safety appliances. It is proposed to give the body jurisdiction over electric as well as steam railroads.

Beside looking after these matters the commission is to give especial attention to the capacity of the trackage of the several roads under its jurisdiction, is to pass upon the extent to which roads may be safely used in the number of trains operated, and is to at all times examine into the merits of such safety appliances of different kinds as are brought to its attention, and when it considers desirable recommend to the roads, or if necessary to the Legislature, the adoption of any devices calculated to add to the safety of the public.

Planning Straw Ride.

A straw ride is being planned by the junior class of the North Plainfield High School in honor of the seniors, Monday night. The party will comprise about fifty young folk and four bob sleds will be used. The trip will be to Rahway and while there they will enjoy a dinner after which they will return to this city. Fred Armstrong is the chairman of the committee of arrangements.

Carried More Coal.

The coal tonnage of the New Jersey Central for January exceeded that of any other month in the history of the company. Nearly 800,000 tons of anthracite were handled during the month without an accident of any kind.

Unity's Anniversary.

Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., will celebrate its twentieth anniversary on March 26 and not February 26 as was erroneously stated in The Daily Press Monday evening.

ENGINEERS TO PROTEST.

Said That They Assert Davis' Engine Was Defective.

Members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers at Philadelphia have taken steps to make a vigorous protest, at the next meeting of the organization, to be held Sunday, against the verdict rendered by the Westfield wreck jury.

They assert that the blame should not be placed upon Engineer Davis and insist that the ill-fated engine 27 had been condemned before the accident, as many of them had been in charge of it at odd times. The meeting Sunday will be attended by locomotive drivers form all parts of New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

WILL FIGHT A JUDGMENT

SEAMAN WILLIAMS AND CHARLES OVERBAUGH CLAIM NOTE WAS PAID.

Application Made at Trenton Yesterday for a Rule to Have the Judgment Reopened.

In the Supreme Court at Trenton, yesterday an application was made for a rule to show cause why the judgment against Seaman Williams and Charles Overbaugh, secured by John V. Boyd, should not be reopened. Williams and Overbaugh were represented by Reed & Coddington.

The case is an interesting one and involves an amount equalling $2,500. It seemed that Williams and Overbaugh owed Boyd some money and they gave him a promissory note. When it fell due, Williams and Overbaugh, it is claimed, instructed their counsel, Robert M. Clark, to mail the check for the amount. Mr. Clark declares he mailed the check as he was instructed. But ten days afterwards instead of receiving a recept for the amount Williams and Overbaugh were notified that as the note was ten days overdue judgment has been secured against them. Williams and Overbaugh immediately applied for the rule.

Boyd declares that he has not received the money and Williams and Overbaugh affirm that their lawyer sent the check. Their statement is substantiated by Mr. Clark.

VALUABLE PROPERTY.

Purchased in New Brunswick by Wm. R. Codington and L. L. Manning, of This City.

William R. Codington and L. L. Manning, of this city, have purchased a valuable piece of property in New Brunswick at the corner of Albany and Neilson streets. The property was purchased from George W. Metlar. About a year ago the place was partially destroyed by fire. Since then nothing has been done with the place and it has been the abode of tramps. The deed for the property will be passed this week.

L. L. Manning, who is the senior partner of the marble works of that name in this city, was in New Brunswick yesterday and stated that he intends to remodel the old building and make of it a store and apartment house. It has been stated that the new store will be occupied by Plainfield men, when it is completed.

Mr. Manning said that he and Mr. Codington had bought the property for speculation but would not state what the purchase price was. The corner has at different times been mentioned as a theatre site but Mr. Manning says that they do not expect to erect a theatre there.

PINK LUNCHEON.

Charming Affair Given by Mrs. G. Herbert Taylor Yesterday.

Mrs. G. Herbert Taylor, of West Seventh street, gave a pink luncheon yesterday for a small company of friends. The affair was an informal one but was attended with many pleasant features. Those present included Mrs. Edward Homer Ladd, Jr., Mrs. Edward M. VanBuren, Mrs. Theodore T. Wilson, Mrs. Joseph Shellabarger, Mrs. Joseph Sandford, Jr., Mrs. William E. Frenaye, Mrs. William S. Tyler, Mrs. H. C. Irons, Miss Elizabeth Stewart, Miss Maude VanBoskerck, Miss Annie Murphy and Mrs. G. Herbert Taylor.

IMPORTANT GAMES TONIGHT

PARK CLUB AND WESTFIELD TO ROLL IN THIS CITY.

Results Will Influence Final Standing in The Daily Press Bowling League.

Three games of decided importance in The Daily Press Bowling League will be rolled this evening on the alleys of the Park Club. The visiting team will be from the Westfield Club. The results of the games are likely to play a prominent part in deciding this year's championship.

As it stands now Westfield leads with eight victories and four defeats. Roselle Casino has also eight victories but its defeats number seven. The race for third place is close between the Park Club and Cranford Casino. Cranford Casino is slightly in the lead now but two games from Westfield tonight will put the Parks third and give Cranford the rear place. Two defeats for Westfield would be likely to make a final victory for that team considerably harder. Three straight for Westfield tonight will practically decide the tournament.

Westfield is going to send its strongest team but the Westfield bowlers were never very good in Plainfield while the local bowlers made the record for the league on their own alleys this season. Captain W. R. Faber, of the Parks, will be somewhat handicapped tonight as several of his best men will be unable to roll but he is going to put up as strong a team as possible and three hot games may confidently be expected.

HIS SUCCESS.

Remarkable Receptions Given to Ernest Thompson-Seton.

The success of Ernest Thompson-Seton, the famous animal writer and artist, who will be heard at the Casino, Monday afternoon and evening, on the lecture platform, has been phenomenal. During the past season he has spoken twice a day in order to comply with the demand for his services. Everywhere crowded houses have welcomed him, and always, on afternoon occasions, the greater portion of the audience has been children.

The charm of Thompson-Seton's art is in its simplicity, its novelty and the flavor of the forest which he imparts to all his descriptive work. Whether he is analyzing the habits of Indians, tracks of the hare, imitating the challenge to battle of the bull elk, or repeating the mocking bark of the pin gopher, he is all the time carrying his audience farther back from the foothills into the Rockies and getting them nearer to the true life of Nimrod. The whole human family is his public, because every human being loves wild animals.

On Monday afternoon he will lecture on "The Indians as I Knew Them," and in the evening, "New Adventures of Animal Friends," both new subjects. Tickets are on sale at Armstrong's Pharmacy.

NO NEW ONES LIKELY.

Council Will Probably Grant Only the Present Licenses.

The liquor license applications will be acted upon at the regular March meeting of the Common Council. So far as can be learned there is not a disposition among the Councilmen to grant many new licenses. It is barely possible that one retail and one wholesale license in addition to the regular number may be granted, although this is not positive yet. The Councilmen believe that the city has about enough places for the dispensing of liquor and it would not be surprising if the new applications should be refused.

Railroad Surgeons.

The New Jersey Central proposes to minimize the loss of life and injuries in accident by employing a number of surgeons who will reside along the line, and who may be reached at once if desired. Each physician will have charge of a section. The station masters will be kept posted as to the whereabouts of the physicians. These surgeons will also respond to calls where passengers are taken ill and attend employes.

A POINT OVERLOOKED IN WRECK VERDICT?

Howard C. Tracy Calls Attention to Responsibility of the Train Dispatcher.

A QUESTION OF RULES

BELIEVES DAVIS SHOULD HAVE BEEN NOTIFIED AT JERSEY CITY.

Thinks That the Rule of Company Could Have So Interpretated—So Mr. Tracy Blames the Dispatcher for Not Doing So.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—

There is one point in connection with the recent disaster on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the true significance of which seems, so far as appears from their verdict, to have entirely escaped the attention of the coroner's jury, but [which, from the point of view of the travelling public, should not, it seems to me, be allowed to pass without notice. I refer to the question of the responsibility of the train despatcher at Jersey City.

It appeared from the testimony of this despatcher himself as reported in the public press, and I know of no reason for assuming that it was not correctly reported, that he knew before the Philadelphia express left Jersey City that the side track usually taken by the Easton local at Cranford was occupied by a freight train, so that it would be necessary for the local to keep to the main track as far as Dunellen, but that he refrained from giving notice of this fact to the engineer of the express because of a rule of the company, which provided that orders should be transmitted to the point nearest where they were to take effect. He, therefore, transmitted the information to the telegraph operator at Cranford to be delivered to the engineer of the express after he had been stopped by signal. It may be properly assumed that the despatcher knew that the distance from Cranford to Dunellen is more than ten miles and that the express was accustomed to pass the local long before reaching Dunellen.

The question is at once suggested: What is the true construction of the company's rule above referred to? What is meant by the point nearest where an order is to take effect? Is it the nearest point at which a regular stop is made, or the nearest point at which an express train under full headway may be stopped by the exhibition of an unusual signal? It seems to me that the former is a reasonable, the latter an unreasonable construction of the rule. In fact the former construction was followed by the despatcher in question in transmitting his order to the Easton local on the fateful night. That order was sent to Elizabeth, where the local made a regular stop, and not to Cranford or even to Roselle; where it might have been stopped by signal. In view of the fact that the express was scheduled to make no regular stop after leaving Jersey City, east of the place where the collision occurred, it seems clear to me that the despatcher, having had an opportunity to deliver the necessary order to the engineer of the express at Jersey City, should have done so.

The unvarnished facts appear to be that the despatcher at Jersey City, knowing that the track beyond Cranford was blocked by the local train and that the engineer of the express, unless notified to the contrary, would rightly assume it to be open, deliberately permitted the express to leave Jersey City without giving its engineer the information which it was in his power to give him, and so to rush to certain destruction, trusting to the chance that the express under full headway would be stopped by an unusual signal. It seems entirely safe to say that had the despatcher followed the dictates of what would appear to be the most ordinary prudence, the catastrophe would not have occurred.

I do not seek to excuse the engineer for his failure to observe the signals displayed, but he has paid the penalty of his neglet, and the future safety of the travelling public requires that the negligence or misjudgment of those still living should not be passed over in silence. It is to be hoped that this question will not be allowed to escape the attention of the Grand Jury.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

It is noteworthy that, in their verdict holding Engineer Davis responsible for the wreck at Westfield, the Coroner's jury have no fault to find with the system of block signals employed on the Jersey Central Railroad and also on many other trunk railroads in the United States. These roads, says the jury, "have probably reached the limit in providing the best possible system for running trains by visual signals." The question is, however, Should not this system be supplemented by other mechanical safety devices intended to overcome the danger resulting from human fallibility? The "trip braking device," as it is called, consists of a small metallic arm alongside the track, which is operated simultaneously with the block signals. When a signal indicates danger this arm is thrown into a position where it will come in contact with another projection on the locomotive and set the brakes instantly. When the block signal indicates safety, the arm falls back, where it will not interfere with the train's passage.

We believe that on railroads in Europe where the trip brake is installed, the rule is that an engineer whose brakes are thus set automatically more than once is immediately dismissed from service, whether or not an accident occurs through his failure to observe the signals.—New York Sun.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

Fate in the nature of railroad accidents seems to hover over the Reighton family.

One night twelve years ago, Mr. and Mrs. George Reighton, the parents of J. Everitt Reighton, who died from injuries received in the Westfield wreck, were driving across the Pennsylvania railroad tracks at Iselin when an express bore down upon them. The rig was struck, smashing the vehicle and killing the horse. Both occupants were tossed to one side and were badly injured, though not maimed. Both were afterward paid heavy damages by the railroad company.

THEATRICAL.

The company appearing in John C. Fisher's and Thomas W. Ryley's revival of "Florodora" at the Academy of Music, New York, is practically the same that appeared in the original production at the Casino over two seasons ago. Robert E. Graham, as "Gilfain the millionaire;" Grace Dudley as "Lady Holyrood;" Helen Redmond as "Dolores;" Donald Brin as "Donegal;" Edna Hunter as "Angela;" W. T. Carlton as "Abercoed" and Philip H. Ryley as "Tweedlepunch" were all in the original production. As tuneful as ever, with new costumes and with new scenic equipment built especially for this revival, "Florodora" at the Academy has been successful beyond the fondest expectations of its owners and managers.

Wallack's Theatre, New York, has introduced a new policy for the accommodation of out-of-town patrons. George Ade's "Sultan of Sulu" has become such an enormous success that hundreds are being turned away nightly. Frequently large parties from nearby cities arrive at Wallack's only to find all seats sold and their evening spoiled by not being able to witness their favorite entertainment. Accordingly, the management at Wallack's has decided to inaugurate a mid-week suburban matinee on Wednesday afternoons, at which a large block of orchestra seats in the choice part of the house will be set aside and reserved exclusively for out of town theatre-goers. The management has also opened a mail order department at the box office and requests for seats containing remittances will receive prompt attention, reservations being made four weeks in advance.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—The Fortnight Whist Club will be entertained Thursday evening, February 26, by Mr. and Mrs. H. C. VanEmburgh, of Richmond street.

—Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Conkey, of Somerset street, are expecting to move to Elizabeth on or about the first of the month. Mr. Conkey was formerly employed at Griffen's hardware store on East Front street, but has now secured a position with the Elizabeth Hardware Company.

REPORT SENT BACK

House Promptly Rejects Army Bill Changes.

A LIVELY DEBATE IN THE SENATE

Introduction of Cloture Resolution Follows One by Quay Calling For a Vote on the Statehood Measure.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The house yesterday by a majority of two to one rejected the conference report on the army appropriation because of its provisions for the retirement of civil war officers at an advanced grade and permitting officers to deposit money with the government at 3 per cent interest. The house emphatically voted against both propositions and sent the bill back to conference. The proceedings on the conference report were enlivened by a sharp personal clash between Mr. Hull (Ia.) and Mr. Slayden (Tex.). The remainder of the day was devoted to the naval bill. Slow progress was made, only twenty pages being covered.

There was lively debate in the senate over Senator Quay's resolution declaring it to be the sense of the senate that there should be a vote on the statehood bill before the adjournment of congress. To this proposition Senator McComas reoffered Senator Platt's cloture resolution, introduced two years ago, and a motion was made to refer the whole proposition to the committee on rules. This was pending when the senate went into executive session. The discussion of the subject brought out the fact that the senate was strongly opposed to cloture in any form. The debate was very general, a dozen senators expressing their opinions on the subject. An executive session of three and a half hours followed, and then the senate adjourned.

Senator Mason from the committee on postoffices and post roads reported the postoffice appropriation bill. In addition to the amendment providing for the admission of Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico as states the bill makes changes relating to the conduct of the postoffice department. The statehood amendment is somewhat different from the statehood bill, as Arizona is the first of the territories mentioned in the amendment, whereas it is the last mentioned in the bill. The transposition was made in order to give Arizona the benefit of the first vote in case of a division of the question.

Notable Southern Wedding.

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 19.—One of the leading social events of the season was the marriage last evening at the Presbyterian church of Mr. Oswald Garrison Villard of the New York Evening Post and Miss Julia Breckinridge Sanford, a beautiful and accomplished young lady of Covington, Ky. It seemed appropriate that the marriage should occur in Athens, as it was in this city while attending the southern educational conference last April that Mr. Villard first met Miss Sanford. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. J. W. Walden.

No Trace of Wrecked Steamer.

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 19.—Steamboat men who arrived from Chowan river said there was not a vestige of the ill fated steamer Olive, which was struck by the cyclone Monday night fifteen miles below Tunis, N. C., while bound from Edenton to that town, when eighteen of the passengers were drowned. What little remained of the wreck was sunk to the bottom of the river. Every effort is making to recover the bodies of the victims, and divers probably will be sent from Norfolk.

Chicago Turf Concern Closed.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—The office of the Mason-Teller company, suspected of being a fraudulent turf investment concern, was visited by the police for the purpose of raiding the place. It was found, however, that the concern apparently had gone out of business and was preparing to move its office furniture. A circular was confiscated which showed that the company had been driven out of business by the publicity given the methods of turf investment companies by the recent raids.

Colombia Will Approve the Treaty.

PANAMA, Feb. 19.—Reliable information received here from Bogota indicates that the opposition to the Panama canal treaty considerably diminished on the publication of its full text. In official circles there it is believed that there will be no danger of the canal treaty not being approved by the Colombian congress.

Southern Fruit Crop Unharmed.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 19.—Reports received here from the fruit belts of Georgia and Florida say that the crop for this season has escaped injury from the recent cold wave. Information from the peach orchards of south Georgia is to the effect that all danger to peaches in that section has passed.

Heavy Stock Losses.

PIERRE, S. D., Feb. 19.—Alarming reports come from the snow belt on the range of losses of stock during the cold period. Cattle badly nourished have perished before the cold blasts, and the losses will be heavy on both sides of the river.

Woman Suffrage Defeated In Maine.

AUGUSTA, Me., Feb. 19.—On the question of allowing women the right to vote the senate cast a tie vote, 12 to 12. President Virgin broke the tie by voting against the suffragists.

PARIS, Feb. 19.—A dispatch from Rio Janeiro states that election riots have occurred in that city and that several persons have been killed or injured.

PROTOCOLS TO COME

A Third Set Will Deal With The Hague Tribunal.

A JOINT CONFERENCE TO BE HELD

Minister Bowen Will See That Venezuela's Rights Are Protected. He Is Not Likely to Attend the Court.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—In diplomatic circles and among state department officials considerable attention is being paid to the provisions of the third set of protocols, The Hague protocols, which will have to do exclusively with the setting in motion of the tribunal's cumbersome machinery. These protocols, in addition to defining the scope of the arbitration, also will stipulate the number of arbitrators to be selected.

In order that Venezuela may go to The Hague on the same footing as the peace powers having claims against her it is expected the rough draft of The Hague protocol will be decided upon at a joint conference between Mr. Bowen and the representatives here of the powers. Secretary Hay will represent the United States at this conference, and it is the wish of the other representatives that he shall preside. This meeting will not be called until all of the second set of protocols have been signed.

It does not seem at all probable at this time that Mr. Herbert W. Bowen, the United States minister to Venezuela, will go to The Hague in connection with the movement to have that tribunal determine whether or not the European allied governments which maintained a blockade of Venezuelan ports shall have preferential treatment in the payment of the claims of their citizens against Venezuela. If Mr. Bowen's pleasure in the matter were consulted the likelihood is that he would participate in the proceedings before The Hague tribunal, but he is not willing to resign his position as minister to Venezuela for that purpose, and the rules of the state department prohibit the granting of more than sixty days' leave of absence in any one year to diplomatic officers.

The impression also obtains that the state department is not overanxious for Mr. Bowen to attend, as his presence at The Hague might cause a belief that the United States is overzealous in behalf of Venezuela.

JUSTICE FROM VENEZUELA.

Supreme Court Grants Award to American Claimant.

CARACAS, Venezuela, Feb. 19.—The supreme court has just rendered its decision in the suit brought by the heirs of Henry Rudloff, an American citizen, against the Venezuelan government for damages for the annulment of a concession given in 1892 to build a market in Caracas.

Judgment was given in favor of Rudloff's heirs, admitting their claim for the large amount of $700,000, to be paid by the Venezuelan government. The United States legation watched the case very closely. Secretary Russell and Naval Attache Johnston attended the sessions of the court and followed the arguments.

This decision is interesting inasmuch as the German and British legations have maintained that justice for foreigners does not exist in Venezuela.

Germans Get Cold Shoulder.

MARACAIBO, Venezuela, Feb. 19.—The commander of the German cruiser Panther early yesterday morning sent a request to Fort San Carlos for authorization to enter the lake of Maracaibo. He was informed in reply that the matter would be referred to the Caracas authorities and that while awaiting their reply the Panther was to wait outside. This incident created fresh excitement here. At Porto Cabello the officers of the German cruiser Vineta went on shore and visited in carriages all the city. They then went to Fort Solano, which was shelled by them Dec. 13, and asked to be allowed to visit the interior. The officer in command of the fort received them politely, but informed them that to visit the fort an order from the president was necessary.

It Was Cold In New Hampshire.

LITTLETON, N. H., Feb. 19.—As usual in severe cold waves some startling temperatures were reported from the little valley towns of the White mountains. At the base of Mount Washington one thermometer reached 50 below zero. At Alderbrook it was 44 below, at Apthorp 36 and the same at Franconia, while the lowest in this town was 40 below.

Warmer In the West.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 19.—The weather throughout southern and eastern Wyoming is fine, and the snow is melting rapidly. The blockade six miles south of Cheyenne on the Denver Pacific and the blockade west of Laramie have been lifted, and trains are now moving.

Justice Shiras Resigns.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Justice Shiras of the United States supreme court has presented to the president his resignation as a member of that tribunal, to take effect Feb. 24. Former Secretary of State William R. Day of Ohio has been selected as the successor of Mr. Shiras.

Children Perish In a Fire.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Feb. 19.—Two very young children of Mr. and Mrs. Rocha were smothered during a fire in their home. The financial loss was small.

Weather Probabilities.

Fair; not so cold; west winds.

NEW BUILDING NEEDED.

Department of Commerce Without Headquarters.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Representative Mercer of Nebraska, chairman of the house committee on public buildings and grounds, has conferred with Secretary Cortelyou concerning a building for the new department of commerce and labor. The necessity for such a building is urgent, as the department will be one of the largest in the government. Figures have been prepared showing in detail the amount of floor space which will be necessary for the various bureaus of the department. These have indicated that a building suitable for the department is not available at present in the city.

A proposition has been made tentatively that the government purchase the handsome building of the Southern railway at the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Thirteenth street, which is one of the most commodious office buildings in the city. Southern railway officials are understood to be considering an offer to remove the general offices of the system to Atlanta, Ga. It is understood, however, that objection has been made that the building is not quite suitable either in size or style of architecture for the new department.

Chairman Mercer indicated his preference for a new building to be erected expressly for the new department. He thought that if fairly adequate plans were presented the authorization of the building might be obtained from the present congress. Temporary quarters will have to be leased, and it is not likely that the Southern railway building will be considered in this connection.

Robbed by Confidence Men.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Charles Bartholemei, a confectioner, was robbed of $7,378 by confidence men, who led him to believe that he was arranging for the adoption of the daughter of an Italian prince who eventually would bring him $50,000. The transaction took place in a down town hotel, and half an hour after leaving the agents Bartholemei discovered that he had exchanged a bag containing the above amount for a bag filled with paper. Detectives have searched in vain for the perpetrators of the fraud.

Death Followed Exposure.

MALONE, N. Y., Feb. 19.—William Labarge, a local violinist, was so badly frozen during a night's exposure that he died the following day. He had been playing at a small dancing party, but became ill and requested to be taken home. Instead he was taken to the home of his son and left alone on the piazza to gain admittance. He became unconscious before he could arouse the family and was found lying near the door when his son started to work the next morning.

A School to Honor Curry's Memory.

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 19.—At a meeting of the trustees of Richmond college it was resolved to establish a school of technology to be named in honor of Hon. J. L. M. Curry, who for thirty-five years was connected with Richmond college, first as one of its professors and during most of the time as trustee and president of the corporation. Dr. Curry was long an advocate for the establishment of such a school.

Arnold's Horses Disappear.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19.—The string of horses raced here by E. J. Arnold & Co. since the opening of the season has mysteriously disappeared. Tom Kiley, the trainer, left here suddenly, presumably for Memphis, with the string. Some days ago Kiley attached the horses for $400, and they were taken from the track at the request of the sheriff. Kiley paid the money to release the string and left on an evening train.

Jail For Careless Hunters.

ALBANY, Feb. 19.—It will no longer be an accident to shoot a human being by mistake for a deer if Assemblyman Matthews' bill, just introduced, becomes a law. Under its terms the killing of any person by a hunter in this manner becomes manslaughter in the second degree and to wound him thus without fatal results a felony punishable by imprisonment for five years or a fine of $500.

No Election at Dover.

DOVER, Del., Feb. 19.—The twenty-fifth ballot for United States senator resulted as follows: Long term—Addicks, 21; H. A. Dupont, 8; ex-Senator Higgins, 2; Edward D. Hearne (Dem.), 21. Short term—Addicks, 19; ex-Senator Higgins, 8; H. A. Richardson, 2; Judge W. C. Spruance, 2; J. Harvey Whiteman (Dem.), 21. No election.

Racing In Zero Weather.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 19.—The racing was excellent, with the temperature about 20 degrees below zero. The track was in good shape. None of the races was finished, as darkness set in too early.

Beresford Accepts Appointment.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Lord Charles Beresford has announced that he had been offered and would accept the command of the channel squadron.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

The lemon crop of California was badly damaged by the recent cold wave.

Two were killed and $100,000 damage done in an early morning fire in Port Huron, Mich.

Prince Komatsu, envoy of Japan at the coronation of King Edward, died at Yokohama.

Two men confessed at St. John's, N. F., to casting away a schooner to defraud Lloyd's of $40,000 insurance.

TO CONTROL ATHLETICS.

Bill Up at Albany Provides For a State Commission.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 19.—Senator Frawley has introduced a bill establishing a state "athletic commission" to supervise boxing. Within ten days after the act goes into effect the governor is to appoint three persons to constitute the commission to serve five years. Two must be residents of the First and Second judicial districts, but no two may be members of the same athletic club. They are to serve without pay beyond necessary expenses, and the entire cost of the commission, including salary of the secretary, must not exceed $5,000.

Any corporation or association desiring to conduct boxing or sparring matches must apply annually to the commission for a license, they must own the building in which the matches are to be held or must have leased it for at least a year. If it is an amateur athletic association, it must be incorporated under the rules of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States. The license is subject to suspension or revocation for cause.

For all contests there must be two judges and a referee for each event. A decision must be rendered in each contest, and each contestant before entering the ring must be examined by a physician.

No betting and no sale of liquor are allowed in the building, and all tickets must be sold at the box office at the regularly advertised prices. A tax of 5 per cent upon the gross receipts of every corporation or association is to be paid annually to the comptroller.

Trotting Club Makes Changes.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Radical changes in the plan of conducting trotting races have been made by the Empire City Trotting club of New York, according to its announcement made of conditions governing the stakes to be contested at the grand circuit meeting on the Empire City track, Yonkers, during the week beginning Aug. 10. Although increasing the value of its stakes, making them $25,000 in all, the Empire club announces that all races shall be best two in three heats, all horses that do not stand for money after two heats to be ruled off. In accordance with the general understanding at the stewards' meeting in Boston hoppled pacers without standard records will not be permitted to start.

Hurry Orders by Yacht Builders.

BRISTOL, R. I., Feb. 19.—Orders have been issued at the Herreshoff shops to have work rushed on the new yacht for the America's cup syndicate so that the hull may be completed by April 15. The boat is a trifle more than half built, and from now on work will go on both night and day. Extra riveters have arrived from New York. A quantity of plates, which from their appearance are believed to be of nickel steel, has also arrived. These plates will be used for the top sides. With nickel steel top sides and a bronze underbody the new yacht will be the first composition cup defender since the Defender. The latter had aluminium top sides.

Slosson Again Beaten.

PARIS, Feb. 19.—The attendance at last evening's game of the international billiard tournament between Slosson (American) and Louis Cure (French), held in the grand hall of the Grand hotel, was as large as ever, many of the spectators expecting that Slosson's recovery of his usual form, which was shown toward the close of Tuesday's game, would be continued. This at first seemed to be the case, but his play soon weakened, and Louis Cure rapidly forging ahead won easily in the twenty-fourth inning. The score was: Cure, 500, with an average of 20 9-10 per inning; Slosson, 219, with an average of 9½.

Manshak Won Carnival Stake.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 19.—Manshak, who landed the Carnival stakes, worth $1,045 to the winner, by a neck, was the only winning favorite yesterday. Backed from 6 to 5 to 9 to 10 and the favorite in the betting, the colt outbroke his field, showing all the early speed and, though tiring at the end, had enough left to land the prize. After the race the colt was run up to $2,000 and sold to Durnell & Herz.

Annual Squash Tournament.

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., Feb. 19.—Play in the fourth annual amateur squash championship tournament of America and for the $500 championship cup presented to the Tuxedo Tennis and Racket club by James Henry Smith will begin at the courts of the Tuxedo Tennis and Racket club at Tuxedo Park on Saturday, Feb. 21, and is open to all amateurs.

Princeton Won From Columbia.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 19.—The Columbia basketball five was defeated by Princeton in an intercollegiate game here by the score of 28 to 27. The game was hotly contested in the second half, Columbia showing stronger team work and being faster in passing the ball. The first half ended 19 to 9 in favor of Princeton.

Townsend Won at Billiards.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—In a fourteen inch balk line billiard match of 1,000 points which was played in four blocks of 250 points each Arthur Townsend of the Hanover club, Brooklyn, defeated Charles F. Conklin of the Chicago Athletic club by 82 points. The match began on Monday.

Racing at Ingleside.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19.—The feature of the racing at Ingleside was the last event at six furlongs. Orosius, the favorite, opened a big gap in his field, but in the last furlong the well played Royal Rogue caught him and won by a head.

ENJOINS BEEF TRUST

Judge Grosscup Grants a Temporary Order.

HAVE UNTIL MARCH 4 TO ANSWER

It Is Held That the Averments Made Are True and Form a Case Under the Sherman Act.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—The so called "beef trust" case has been disposed of by Judge Grosscup in the United States circuit court, the demurrer of the packers being overruled and a temporary injunction granted. The attorneys for the packers made no announcement of their intentions. They have until March 4 to discuss the matter with their principals. If they deny the facts upon which Judge Grosscup based his decision, the matter will go before a master in chancery, who will hear the evidence, and the case will again be argued before Judge Grosscup. An appeal may be taken in order to hasten the final adjudication of the case.

It is not believed likely that the packers will let the matter go by default, thus making the injunction permanent.

"Commerce," said Judge Grosscup in his decision, "is the sale or exchange of commodities. But that which the law looks upon as the body of commerce is not restricted to specific acts of sale or exchange. It includes the intercourse, all the initiatory and intervening acts, instrumentalities and dealings which directly bring about the sale or exchange. Thus, though the sale or exchange is a commercial act, so also is the solicitation of the drummer, whose occupation it is to bring about the sale or exchange. The whole transaction from initiation to culmination is commerce.

"When commerce, thus broadly defined, is between parties dealing from different states to be effected so far as the immediate act of exchange goes by transportation from state to state, it is 'commerce between the states' within the meaning of the constitution and the statute known as the Sherman act. But it is not the transportation that makes the transaction interstate commerce. That is an adjunct only, essential to commerce, but not the test. The underlying test is that the transaction as an entirety, including each part calculated to bring about the result, reaches into two or more states, and that the parties dealing with reference thereto deal from different states.

"For the purpose of clear exposition the facts set forth in the petition should be separated into two groups—those that are intended to bring the transaction within the body of interstate commerce and those that are intended to fix upon such transaction the character of unlawful combination and conspiracy."

The judge then outlines the mode of operations as conducted by the various packing companies and rehearses the averments made in the application for a restraining order.

"No one can doubt," says Judge Grosscup, "that these averments state a case of combination. Whether the combination be unlawful or not depends on whether it is in restraint of the trade.

"The general meaning of that term is no longer open to inquiry. It has been passed upon carefully by the supreme court in the Freight association case and in the traffic case. It is clear from them that restraint of trade is not dependent upon any consideration of reasonableness or unreasonableness in the combination averred, nor is it to be tested by the prices that result from the combination. Indeed combination that leads directly to lower prices to the consumer may within the doctrine of these cases, even as against the consumer, be restraint of trade, and combination that leads directly to higher prices may, as against the producer, be restraint of trade. The statute, thus interpreted, has no concern with prices, but looks solely to competition and to giving competition full play by making illegal any effort at restriction upon competition. Whatever combination has the direct and necessary effect of restricting competition is, within the meaning of the Sherman act as now interpreted, restraint of trade.

"Thus defined, there can be no doubt that the agreement of the defendants to refrain from bidding against each other in the purchase of cattle is combination in restraint of trade, so also their agreement to bid up prices to stimulate shipments, intending to cease from bidding when the shipments have arrived. Such agreements can be nothing less than restrictions upon competition and, therefore, combination in restraint of trade; and thus viewed the petition, as an entirety, makes out a case under the Sherman act.

"The demurrer is overruled and the motion for preliminary injunction granted."

The defendants against whom the injunction is issued are: Swift & Co., Cudahy Packing company, Hammond Packing company, Armour & Co., Armour Packing company, G. H. Hammond company, Schwarzchild & Sulzburger company, Nelson Morris & Co. (partnership), J. Ogden Armour, P. A. Valentine, Calvin M. Favorite, Arthur Meeker, Thomas J. Connors, Charles S. Langdon, Michael Cudahy, Edward A. Cudahy, Patrick Cudahy, Albert E. Boscherdt, Gustavus F. Swift, Lewis F. Swift, Lawrence A. Carton, D. Edwin Hartwell, Jesse P. Lyman, Frank B. Vogel, Louis Pfaelzer, William J. Russell, Albert H. Veeder, Henry Veeder, Edward C. Swift, Ferdinand Sulzburger and W. H. Noyes.

TROLLEY PROGRESS.

Hardly a week passes that we do not hear of some new move on the part of the trolley companies, whose lines gridiron this part of the State. Now it is said that the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company is aiming to build a line from Bonhamtown on its Metuchen spur and continue it to Perth Amboy. Already there is a trolley line between Perth Amboy and Metuchen owned by the Raritan Traction Company but this new extension would make direct connection between the county seat of Middlesex and the most important city in that county.

There is a special import to this proposed spur of the Middlesex and Somerset line which may not be recognized at first sight. Already the cars of that company run to South River and to South Amboy, which is just across the Raritan from the larger Perth Amboy. There is a bridge soon to be built over the Raritan at that point and while the right of way to it has been granted to the Raritan Traction Company by the Perth Amboy Council, there is reason to believe that the Freeholders are preparing to undo the work of the Council. If the Middlesex and Somerset Company extended to both Perth and South Amboy, a completion of the belt line by a track across the bridge would give that company an advantage which it would be hard to equal.

It would seem likely, therefore, that the company which makes its headquarters in New Brunswick is following out some carefully laid scheme and that it will not be very long before it furnishes the people of this part of New Jersey with something of a surprise. Having accomplished that end, it is hard to think that Mr. Radel and his backers will be content to rest idle and it may be that the Metuchen line will be extended this way. This line between Metuchen and Plainfield is something which has long been expected and much desired. At present, Plainfield and Metuchen are separated as entirely as are the Amboys by the Raritan but a connecting trolley link between the places in both cases would be of great value to all concerned.

A compromise measure, which appears to suit both the friends and the enemies of the automobile, has made its appearance. There isn't any doubt that some State legislation on the subject of automobiles is necessary. It is also requisite that the State should not put too heavy restrictions on the sport. There are many citizens of New Jersey who own automobiles and desire the right to operate them. Nobody can doubt their right to do so as long as they do not endanger the life and property of everyone else. Some of the automobilists have been in the habit, sorrowful to say, of speeding along without regard for anyone and it is to control these offenders that the Legislature is going to act.

"It's a shame to blame the engineer." That is what nine people out of ten will say when they speak of the verdict as to the cause of the Westfield disaster. And yet, when they talk it over, it is hard to find one who will not admit that the coroner's jury gave the only verdict possible considering the circumstances. The general opinion seems to be that the investigation was a thorough and complete one and that the findings were fair.

The success of last year's minstrel show at Hope chapel has encouraged the Young Men's Association of that chapel to prepare for a show this winter on a much more elaborate scale. Despite the fact that there has already been one amateur minstrel show here this winter, the Hope effort is awaited with much interest by the public.

It is said that the Common Council is going to approve of the police patrol system and prepare for its installation in this city. This is according to the recommendations of Mayor Jenkins as set forsh in his annual message.

SERMON HAD EFFECT.

Theatre Manager Promises to Avoid Using Suggestive Posters.

The stirring discourse by Rev. Dr. Schenck at Trinity Reformed church, Sunday morning, in which he referred to the cheap theatres and unsightly pictures on the billboards about the city, has had an effect. Mayor O. L. Jenkins has had a talk with Proprietor Dorber, of the local theatre on West Second street, and secured a promise from him that in the future an effort will be made to keep obscene pictures off the billboards.

It has been suggested that the Mayor go a step farther and see that the crowds do not hang about the sidewalk at the entrance of the theatre on West Second street, to the annoyance of men and women who have to pass that point. It has been the practice for men and boys to lounge about, obstruct and expectorate on the walk.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I have read an article regarding crusade by some clergyman of Plainfield, objecting to obnoxious posters advertising a "burlesque." Now in all justice to the clergy and law abiding citizens of Plainfield, I wish to extend an invitation to the Mayor, Chief of Police, and all clergy of Plainfield to view my performance of "The American Beauties," Monday evening, February 23, 1903. A box will be at their disposal, and if my musical comedy is not clean cut and instructive I am willing to accept advice from those gentlemen.

My object is to place before the public a play that any gentleman may bring his wife and children to and I hope and trust to have the hearty support of the press and people of Plainfield in my efforts.

Wm. M. Thompson,
Manager American Beauties.

EXHIBIT FOR ARCHITECTS.

Drawings Will be Shown at Newark From March 27 to April 4.

An exhibition that it is expected will prove of great interest to architects of this and adjacent cities will be given in the Free Public Library, Newark, beginning March 27, and concluding on April 4, under the auspices of the New Jersey Chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

The display will embrace drawing in plain, elevation, section, perspective and detail, as well as drawing of decorative works and models or photographs of executed or proposed work. All members of the profession in this State are free to send exhibits, Hugh Roberts, of Exchange place, Jersey City, being secretary of the exhibition committee.

To add interest to the event, a competition has been arranged, in which all architectural students or assistants to architects, who are residents of this State, can compete by submitting plans for a doorway to a private residence. There will be a prize of $20 for the first plan chosen, with prizes of $10 and $5 for the second and third selections.

Patent Cold Handle, Full Four Pint Size.

SPECIAL NOTE—Owing to the extremely low price we cannot accept mail, telephone, charge or C.O.D. orders. On sale Friday only and none will be sold to dealers.

THE LATEST—CREPE-DE-PARIS

Have you seen the goods? Have you heard the price? Do you know how immensely popular this, the prettiest of the new Spring Fabrics, has become? The goods are made of silk and wool, the weave gives a suggestion of crepe, has a beautiful sheen, comes in rich shades, is 44 inches wide and sells for 1.00 per yard. Mere words will not describe its beauty. See it, handle it, buy it, wear it, and life will take on a new meaning for you.

But this is not the only particularly desirable new fabric we are showing. Crepe-de-Voile is another extremely pretty weave. Comes in black only, is made of silk and wool with a pin spot woven closely throughout, is 44 inches wide. Price is 1.50 per yard.

Open weaves in Etamines, Voiles, Canvas Weaves, etc., we show in choice grades, and in reliable goods only. Zebalines, Broadcloths, Fancy Cheviots for skirts.

"Reides Lansdowne"—Too well known to need elaborate comment. Good trade is familiar with it, and constantly asks for it. We carry it in black, white and colors. Price the world over 1.25 per yard.

We are making a strong bid for the dress goods trade of this city. We are succeeding because we offer only the newest things at the best prices. We understand perfectly well the prejudice many ladies have against buying at home, but we find that feeling gradually being dissipated as they become familiar with our ways of managing the dress goods business. Exclusive styles, small quantities and low prices count for a great deal.

SUBURBAN NEWS

A Department Devoted to the Minor Events in Greater Plainfield's Suburbs by Our Own Correspondents.

DUNELLEN.

A number of the pupils of the ninth and tenth grades of Whittier school had planned to enjoy an old fashioned straw ride to Westfield last night in Osmun's "boxer," but owing to various reasons the affair had to be put off. The ride will probably be taken tonight.

Walter S. Shotwell has resumed business, having practically recovered from the shock received in the Westfield wreck. He is perfectly satisfied with the settlement made by the railroad company.

Appropriate exercises will be held tomorrow in the local schools in commemoration of Washington's Birthday, Sunday. The schools will be closed Monday.

The streets of the borough are mostly well cleaned off from snow. The snow plow was sent around on Monday and walking is possible everywhere now.

Many of Plainfield's young people were present Saturday afternoon at the original valentine party given by Miss May Shotwell, of this place.

Adam Dealaman has suffered a slight relapse and his condition is not now as encouraging as it was a few days ago.

Skin grafting was tried on Wilson Fredericks at the hospital Tuesday evening and so far has proved a success.

There was a good attendance at prayer meeting last evening in the local churches in spite of the cold.

P. M. Ising is keeping up a steady improvement and expects to return home in few days.

L. E. Powlison, of Martin's Creek, a former resident here, has been in town a few days.

Miss Janie Churchill has returned home after an extended visit in New York State.

A meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held this afternoon in their rooms.

Miss Edna Smalley, of East Orange, has been visiting Mrs. L. B. Nelson.

Mrs. Jacoby, of Pennsylvania, is visiting her sister, Mrs. George Craig.

J. B. Gorman, of Easton, returned last evening after a visit in town.

Miss Ruby Smalley, of Brooklyn, has been visiting friends in town.

A regular meeting of the band was held last evening for practice.

Henry Case spent this morning in Plainfield.

NEW MARKET.

The trains on the Lehigh Valley have been running a little late, owing to the snow, but have not been much off the schedule.

The band will meet for practice this evening, in the room over Rogers' coal office.

Ziba Osmun is now using a sleigh to convey passengers between here and Dunellen.

The public school will be closed Monday in honor of Washington's Birthday.

W. B. Smith was in Plainfield on business yesterday.

Miss Stella Sofield spent yesterday out of town.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Library Association has hit upon a plan for increasing the treasury. Each member of the committee writes a friend, asking for a contribution of 10 cents or more if the donor so desires, they in turn writing to three others asking for the same. The plan is meeting with encouraging success as nearly every one desires to at least do their small share towards supporting such a public improvement as the library.

The entertainment committee of Fanwood Council, R. A., is making great preparations to make the council smoker, which will be held in the council rooms Tuesday evening, one of the pleasantest Fanwood has ever held. Well-known New York talent has been engaged to entertain the members and their friends while they enjoy their pipes and cigars.

The borough tickets at the coming spring election, which will be held next month, will probably give the voters a chance to vote either for or against a borough lockup. As it now is when a prisoner is arrested, the township lockup in the Bucket and Engine Company's rooms is used but many of the residents want a jail of their own.

A pleasing programme has been arranged by the teachers of the public school for the Washington Birthday exercises which will be held in the assembly room Friday afternoon. The parents and friends of the school are invited to be present and enjoy the exercises with the school.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., will make a decided increase in its membership at tonight's meeting. Five candidates are to be initiated into the mysteries of the order, and a pleasant social hour will be enjoyed in honor of the event.

The prospects are there will be a number of changes among the residents April 1, but their will be no vacant houses. The demand for houses for $10 or $12 a month exceeds the supply each spring.

The boys of the Methodist church held one of their interesting weekly meetings in the church last night.

Dr. J. Ackerman Coles continues to improve from his recent severe illness.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The funeral of May Marconnier Randolph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Sumner Randolph, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Mrs. David Lord, of Westfield, formerly of this place, has been assisting in attending upon Mrs. Hoffman during her illness for several weeks.

The infant son of Wm. Riley died yesterday morning after three days' illness with pneumonia.

Edward T. Flynn, after four days' vacation, has returned to his work at the tower.

Harry Weaver has removed his family to South Easton, Pa.

New Cellar Completed.

The new cellar under the store of E. S. F. Randolph, corner of Watchung and North avenues, was completed yesterday and has been fitted up as a cold storrage place. The cellar is as long as the store and extends under the Watchung avenue sidewalk for about five feet. The new addition gives much more room in the store for the storage of goods.

Entertained Friends.

Miss Ernestine C. Smith, of Madison avenue, entertained a small company of friends at her home Tuesday evening. Duplicate whist was the feature of the evening.

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

T. S. Armstrong, the pharmacist at the corner of Park and North avennes, makes a specialty of fancy articles and soaps. He has some of the best stock to be found in this city.

Harry Werner's mid-winter sale of suitings and overcoats is still in progress. It affords an unequalled opportunity for men to fit themselves with the best raiment at "way below" prices.

To own a home is one thing; to have it properly furnished is another. The latter is easily accomplished when Powlison & Jones are consulted. Their stock of furniture admits of no excuse for not buying. Spring designs now ready.

In the matter of accurately compounding prescriptions, as well as keeping a complete line of the best drugs and medicines, Dudley S. Miller, of Park avenue, has established an enviable reputation. He is always ready to give the public the best service.

B. J. Schreiner, proprietor of the pharmacy at the corner of Park avenue and West Second street, makes a specialty of fine perfumes and toilet waters. He also has some of Lowney's choice candies which are acknowledged to be the best to be found anywhere.

The supply of groceries in the home is always an important item and when you can get first-class goods at the lowest market prices it pays to trade with a house giving this advantage. S. Scheuer & Company, of West Front street, sell the best quality of goods at the lowest prices.

A local young woman who purchased some of Fowler's chocolates a few days ago said: "I never tasted better, not even among the high-priced grades." That's about what everyone says when it concerns Fowler's confections. They are unequalled for purity.

In the large stock of jewelry at Charles E. Vail's store in Park avenue, you will find nothing but what the proprietor will guarantee to give the utmost satisfaction. Mr. Vail's motto is to give the best value for the money and whether you purchase diamonds, watches, silverware or clocks, the true value will always be found.

Thermometer Was 85.

C. B. Cliffton, who has been enjoying a trip to St. Augustine, Fla., left for home Tuesday. While away, he says, he has enjoyed reading The Daily Press which has seemed like an old friend among strangers. Mr. Cliffton says that the day he sailed for home the temperature was 85 and the oranges are showing some bloom. He likens the place to summer at home.

May Only Close Part of Day.

As Washington's Birthday will fall on Sunday, the holiday will be observed quite generally in this city on the day following, Monday. Some of the stores will close all day, while others will close at noon. This is done for the reason that Monday is usually a busy day in some lines of business and the merchants do not feel able to close for the entire day.

Walks Not Cleaned.

Complaints have been made that the walks over some of the county bridges, dividing Plainfield from North Plainfield, have not been cleaned off since the recent storm. It is said that it is the work of the city and borough officials to attend to this matter.

Date of Supper.

The supper to be given by the Young Men's Brotherhood of the First M. E. church will be held Friday evening, February 27, and not tomorrow evening as announced.

THOSE WHO COME AND GO

NOTES CONCERNING PLAINFELDERS AND THEIR MANY GUESTS.

Some of Those That Go to Make Up the Day's Budget of Arrivals and Departures.

Miss Jean Dunham, of West Front street, has recovered from a several days' illness.

Rev. W. T. Griffin, of East Seventh street, sailed yesterday for his post of duty at Limoges, France.

Wm. Feiring, the Park avenue tonsorial artist is detained at his home on Harrison street by illness.

Mrs. Edward H. Fickert, of Fairview avenue, is rapidly convalescing from an attack of typhoid fever.

Mrs. Aaron M. Higgins, of Liberty street, who has been very ill with pleuro-pneumonia, is much improved.

Mrs. N. W. Rappleye, of 44 Westervelt avenue, North Plainfield, has been ill for nearly two weeks with an attack of the grip.

Charles Yaeger, of Liberty street, who severely sprained his ankle some time ago, is now able to walk about with the aid of a cane.

Mrs. Wm. L. Saunders and Mrs. B. A, Hegeman, Jr., of Washington Park, are stopping at Haddon Hall, Atlantic City, for two weeks.

Mulford Estil, of Grove street, who is detained at his home with a severe attack of rheumatic gout, is slowly improving under the care of Dr. Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sandford, of East Front street, will sail Saturday for Havana. They expect to be away about five weeks enjoying warmer climes.

Miss Abbie VanCleef, of Plainfield avenue, who has been spending a week with her father and sister at East Millstone, is expected to return home today.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Northern Spies, Rhode Island Greenings and Baldwins are three of the varieties to be had at Neuman Brothers. Prices just right.

—Wetumpkah Tribe, No. 229, Improved Order Red Men, will meet this evening and consider important business. A full attendance of the members is desired.

—A regular drill of Crescent Company, No 13, U. R. K. of P., will be held in Democratic headquarters this evening, beginning at 7:45. All members are asked to be in attendance in fatigue uniform.

Temporary Night Chief.

Daniel Sullivan, a cousin of the once champion pugilist, is now stationed at the local telephone office as chief of the night force. The appointment is only a temporary one. Mr. Sullivan comes to this city from Elizabeth, where he has been in the employ of the telephone company for several years.

Clothing Company Formed.

Papers were filed today at Elizabeth by the Cashin Gough Company for the manufacturing and retailing of clothing. The capital stock is $20,000. M. J. Cashin is president of the company and Thomas F. Gough the secretary and treasurer. The company's place of business will be at 125 Park avenue.

Informal Dance.

An informal dance was given at the Park Club Tuesday evening under the direction of the entertainment committee. Music for the dancing was furnished by Prof. Garland, of New Brunswick. Those who received were Mrs. J. H. Howell and Mrs. Samuel Townsend.

No Risks Taken.

All the inmates of Battle Row have been vaccinated and a strict quarantine is maintained. The Board of Health does not expect that there will be any additional cases of smallpox in that locality, but no risks will be taken.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 22, "The Christian Man In Public Life"—Text, II Chron. xvii, 3, 4; xxix. 20-27-29; Rom. xiii, 3, 4.

It is easy in the world to live after the world's fashion. It is easy in private to follow your own. The hard thing in life is to so mingle with men as to have influence among them and still to keep virtue unsullied and the heart sweet.

The Christian is not distinguished from other men by his opinions of any sort. He is Christian because, and only because, he recognizes and follows moral obligations as defined by Jesus Christ. He holds to truth. He cannot deny it. He will not compromise it. He must do right—right as he sees it at the time and under given circumstances, wherever it may lead and whatever the consequences. And this not obstinately, not fanatically, but with firmness and reasonably. Courteous to all men and tolerant of opinions differing from his own, he holds his own position none the less tenaciously and yields only to conviction of truth and right.

Whatever difficulties may lie in the way of a pure and devoted Christian life in private, that is a very simple matter compared to living a consistent, earnest Christian life in public. Difficulties multiply. The opinions and wishes and actions of other people must be considered and unavoidably affect us. We meet customs and traditions which have almost the force of law, but which are different from and in some cases contradictory to our previous notions and accustomed ways of life. Whether we ought to conform to, openly oppose or try to silently ignore these new conditions and requirements taxes the soul to decide.

Sometimes an old proverb or maxim learned in childhood has great influence—such as, "When you are in Rome, do as the Romans do"—or it may be a red light danger signal flashes up on the track ahead, and we remember, "My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not."

All the truth stored in the soul in private in communion with God and all the rules of life learned from His word and in practice become invaluable as aids in the wider experience of public activity, whether in business, political, professional, industrial or social life, but all must be newly adjusted in application to new circumstances and unfamiliar requirements. The doings of others cannot be our guide without careful examination.

Good citizenship requires that we have opinions based on our own examination of the questions at issue, that we act as we believe to be right and not merely as one of a crowd. No association with any party can obligate a person to do what is morally wrong for him to do as an individual or justify him in such action. Every one is held everywhere and at all times to tell the truth and do the right so far as he can know it. Officeholding can never make it right for a person to secure his individual gain by violation of his trust.

Fraud and deceit have been all too powerful in public affairs in times past. A hopeful sign of the times is a demand for more rigid ideas of duty. Every Christian must be Christian in public as well as in private.

Earthly Trials.

The earthly trials that come to us are God's means of securing our heavenly joy. They lie upon the road we have to travel, and they help us forward. As means of sanctification they make us "meet for the inheritance." If Christ prepares mansions for His people, it is by preparing them for the mansions. The affliction is not merely light compared with the weight of glory, but it actually worketh that very glory and secures it. It holds a chief place among the "all things" that work together for good.—Sunday at Home.

Christ Near Us.

I cannot but think that the average Christian life of this day woefully fails in the simple, conscious realization of this great truth and that we are all far too little living in the calm, happy, strengthening assurance that we are never alone, but have Jesus Christ with each of us more closely, more truly, in a more available fashion and with more omnipotence of influence than they had who were nearest Him during the days that He lived upon earth. —Christian Endeavor World.

A Perfect Model.

It is a great thing for a painter or a sculptor to have a perfect model. God has presented to us a perfect model that we might fashion our lives after Him. It cannot be wrong, therefore, for men, with all their limitations, to endeavor to be like Him, and we are not forbidden to hope that through all the countless ages of eternity we may approach nearer and nearer to His adorable likeness. The very condition of seeing Him is to be like Him.—Independent.

Following Christ.

Following Christ brings some uphill climbs, but victory and holy joy await us at the top. Crosses then will turn into shining crowns. Coming to Christ must not end with the coming; it is those who follow His leading and endure to the end who will be saved. "Abide in Me, and ye shall bear much fruit." And that is the one sure way to be delivered from the curse and infamy of a barren life.—Theodore L. Cuyler, D. D.

The Right Road.

For right is right, since God is God,
And right the day must win.
To doubt would be disloyalty;
To falter would be sin.
—Parish Messenger.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 22—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—An evening with home missions. —Acts i, 6-8.

The general missionary command of Christ to His disciples was, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature," but just before His ascension He specialized this general worldwide mission by setting forth the order in which it was to be performed. And by Christ's suggested method mission work was to be begun at home. "Ye shall be witnesses unto Me both in Jerusalem and in all Judæa and in Samaria and unto the uttermost part of the earth." First Jerusalem, the home city; then Judæa, the home country; then Samaria, the first contiguous country, and thence the whole world. And the book of the Acts is the record of the preaching of the gospel (1) in Jerusalem, (2) in Judæa, (3) in Samaria and (4) throughout the world.

Christ therefore laid special stress upon home missions. "Beginning at Jerusalem" the disciples were to evangelize the world. They were not, however, to stop at Jerusalem. Home mission work is not all. "There is enough to do at home" is no excuse for lack of interest in foreign missions. Samaria and the world need the gospel as well as Jerusalem and Judæa, and they were included in Christ's instructions. But mission work is to begin at home, and the desire of every American Christian Endeavorer should be to win America for Christ.

Home missions for us include missions in every part of the United States. But some one may ask, Is not our nation Christianized? Yes and no. We can claim that we are a Christian nation and yet beneath our flag and in our own land there are millions who need the gospel. In the great west there are many destitute and needy districts that can only have the gospel through the missionaries. In the south there are 9,000,000 of colored people and 2,000,000 of poor mountain whites who need the labors of Christian missionaries. Then there are millions of un-Christian foreigners, 300,000 Mormons, 250,000 Indians, 300,000 Mexicans and the Alaskans and islanders. These are the exceptional populations of our country, the vast majority of whom are un-Christianized, and they call to us for the gospel.

With such a mission field at our very doors it need scarcely be argued that we should enthusiastically support home missions. Yet, let us ask, why? 1. Because of Christ's command. This of itself should be sufficient. American cities are our Jerusalem, and the American nation is our Judæa. Christ commands us to witness in them for Him, and He should be obeyed. 2. Patriotism should make us home missionaries. Our national interests demand that our nation be entirely Christianized. The race problem of the south, the Mormon and Indian problems, the problem of the foreigners in our land, will be best solved by the evangelization of all these peoples. Nothing will so add to our national stability and so insure our future well being as the evangelization of the entire nation. 3. Worldwide evangelism should make us home missionaries. Our nation occupies a unique place in the world. God seems to have destined it to be the bearer of Christian truth to the nations of the world. If this be true, the sooner America is evangelized the sooner the world will be evangelized.

But what can we do for home missions? 1. Pray for them. The power must come from God's spirit. 2. Study the field and its needs. Information arouses interest and zeal. 3. Advocate home missions. 4. Give liberally to their financial support. The gospel is free, but it costs money to send it to those who have it not.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xxxiii, 10-22; cxxii, 6-9; cxxxvii, 5, 6; Prov. xiv, 34; Isa. lii, 7; Nah. i, 15; Matt. xxiii, 37; Luke xxiv, 45-48; Rom. ix, 1-5; x, 14, 15.

The Sanity of Christian Endeavor.

It is my deliberate conviction that the thing about the whole Christian Endeavor movement that has made it so acceptable in all branches of evangelical Christendom and that accounts for its superb and unparalleled success is its evident and pre-eminent sanity. It is a reasonable, sensible, workable method of doing Christ's work in the church. This is why the church of Christ has taken Christian Endeavor to its bosom everywhere.—Rev. J. A. Francis, Pastor Clarendon Street Baptist Church, Boston.

Two Good Rules.

There are two good rules which ought to be written on every heart—never to believe anything bad about anybody unless you positively know it to be true, never to tell even that unless you feel that it is absolutely necessary and that God is listening while you tell it. —Dr. Henry Van Dyke.

Pledging and Paying.

"There is nothing in promise; it is all in fulfillment," once remarked President Roosevelt. This might well serve as a new motto for the Christian Endeavorer. The only true Endeavorer is the one who lives up to his pledge.

COFFEE COATS.

Jaunty Little Models Made of Brocade and Lace.

The shorter and more frivolous type of tea jacket is now known as a coffee coat, and here the actual coat is quite short in empire form and is completed by plisse frills of chiffon or full flounces of lace.

The coffee coat of lace or net is lavishly adorned with insertions or incrustations of lace. Sequined passementerie is much used on black lace or net.

Very dainty coffee coats can be made from short lengths of pompadour or brocaded silk and tinted lace. The neck is left open in a small V, and a collar of lace or a fichu arrangement of chiffon and lace encircles the opening. The close fitting top portion of the sleeve is very short and completed by a deep frill of lace or a full Turkish sleeve of plisse net is attached to the silk upper part.

These little coats are generally worn over a plain slip or blouse, and much variation can be arranged by the aid of colored slips, removable chemisettes and smart choux of crape or chiffon.

The furore for black and white has by no means departed, and some of the smartest demitoilet blouses are of black lace net or chiffon elaborately trimmed with fiselle lace.

The cut shows a coffee jacket of ecru lace. JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE TREND OF FASHION.

What Is and What Will Be Worn During the Coming Season.

Brocades today are really lovely. They are mostly copied from old French patterns.

Satins are much used for evening gowns, particularly of a rather thick make with a soft finish. Fancy gauzes, too, always make charming and inexpensive frocks. No matter how small a remnant may be, provided it is good, it will never come amiss. Lace will be used more than ever, especially on headgear.

GOWN OF YELLOW CHIFFON.

Furs will later on give place to wide stoles of marabou and feather trimming of every kind.

Tassels and fringes as trimmings cannot be surpassed, and they lend an air of softness to the most severe costume.

Bodices are becoming more trimmed than ever, but a distinct effect in outline is aimed at. A very wide effect should be given across the shoulders. Skirts are becoming fuller, and so are sleeves.

The little accessories of dress, berthas, fichus and rosettes are responsible for the success of more than one gown.

The picture shows a gown of yellow chiffon, outlined here and there by thin lines of sable. JUDIC CHOLLET.

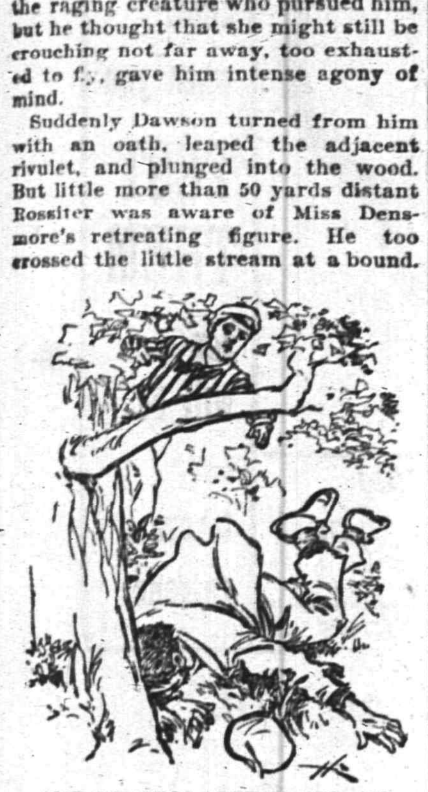
The sound of Miss Densmore's footsteps was the signal for Dawson to renew the attack. His hairy face was lowered, and seemed to sink between his shoulders. With powerful arms outstretched, he hurled himself towards Rossiter like a hideous ourang-outang. There was no mistaking the gleam in his eyes. In his present mood to come within the grasp of those arms meant a speedy closing to life's chapter.

"Run!" cried Rossiter once more to the girl.

He would at least so manage the encounter that Miss Densmore would have an opportunity to get beyond the clutches of this monster, provided she would avail herself of the brief respite he could offer her. Had the reaction from her fright rendered her incapable of fleeing? He did not dare look about as he leaped agilely now this way and now that, eluding the raging creature who pursued him, but he thought that she might still be crouching not far away, too exhausted to fly, gave him intense agony of mind.

Suddenly Dawson turned from him with an oath, leaped the adjacent rivulet, and plunged into the wood. But little more than 50 yards distant Rossiter was aware of Miss Densmore's retreating figure. He too crossed the little stream at a bound.



AND HE COLLAPSED INTO AN INERT MASS.

Dawson flung a look back over his shoulder. In the race he had perhaps 15 feet the advantage, but Rossiter was the more nimble, and the gap between them speedily narrowed. Soon the two men were not more than five feet apart, and then Dawson tripped and sprawled headlong. The root upon which he caught his foot, like a wary wrestler, flung him sideways. His crown crushed against a tree-trunk, and he collapsed into an inert mass. The pole-puller, thinking him dead, bent over him, to discover that he was only stunned.

Stooping above the repulsive and evil face, an itching crept into Rossiter's fingers to seize the hairy throat and choke out the foul life once for all. Then a question smote him, and he started back. Would the path he had followed until so short a time previous ever have led him to become such a loathsome thing? He shuddered. With this later thought that which had cried "murder" in his ears slipped from him. Now he recalled Miss Densmore, and glanced quickly about. A score of yards away stood the girl, her figure tense, her eyes burning upon him in the green gloom. He hastened towards her.

"Is he dead?" she asked, almost in a whisper, as he drew near.

"No," he returned, "and more's the pity!—though perhaps I shouldn't say it,—he's only stunned."

She made no reply, but began walking forward by his side unsteadily. He saw that she was shaking from head to foot, and he did not know what to do or say. Would she bear up? he wondered. It was sheer grit that was keeping her from giving way, that was evident. Why didn't her cousin appear? Where was she all this time? If she had returned to the house for any reason, it was taking her unconscionably long to make the trip there and back, it seemed to him.

All at once Miss Densmore turned her drawn face, into which the blood now flowed, towards Rossiter.

"Oh, I can't thank you," she began, "there are no words—"

He cut her short.

"I did nothing," he said. "Fate, or whatever you like to call it, protected you. But how did you chance to be alone?"

"Miriam—Miss Merton—went up to the house for a book. We had come down to the spring at the wood-edge to read, and by mistake she brought the wrong novel. She insisted on going to change it."

"Sylvia! Sylvia!" a voice, in which there was a note of alarm, cried at this juncture.

"Yes, here I am," responded Miss Densmore, and an instant later she and Rossiter stepped into the logging road a short distance from the spring and its shielding willow-tree, beneath which Miss Merton was standing.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE HOP-DANCE.

That Miss Merton should regard her cousin and Rossiter with amazement was but natural. On both their faces something unusual was written, on Miss Densmore's exhaustion and the lingering traces of a dreadful fear, on Rossiter's a mingled sternness and solicitude.

"What has happened?" Miss Merton cried.

"Your cousin has had a terrible fright," said Rossiter, quickly.

He paused and glanced at Miss Densmore. He had spoken thus that she might be saved an explanation if she did not feel that she could make one just then. She gave him a grateful look as she sank upon the seat before the spring. For a moment she gazed at the welling water, then she put her hands to her face and began to sob softly. In an instant Miss Merton's arms were about her cousin, and Rossiter, turning his back upon them, moved a few paces away. If the ghost of a longing that it might be his right to comfort the distraught girl came into his heart, he put it quickly from him. She was not for such as he to soothe with any endearing or assuring words. Though he had no fear that the motionless form in the woods would recover to molest them, he fell to watching every bough-sway and every leaf-stir intently.

"Mr. Rossiter!" called Miss Merton, presently.

"Yes," he replied, swinging about and facing her.

"Will you walk back with us?"

"Certainly, if you wish it."

"It would be so good of you," said Miss Densmore, who looked as though the least jar might snatch her from consciousness. "I am not quite sure of myself."

Miss Merton upon one side of Miss Densmore and Rossiter upon the other, they slowly climbed the slope towards the orchard. For some moments nothing was said. Gradually, however, Miss Densmore regained her self-control, and at length she turned to Rossiter.

"Will you tell me how you chanced to be in the wood?" she asked.

"I had strolled down from the house with a newspaper and magazine which Mr. Parmelee lent me," he replied, "and was sitting in a little glade a short distance down the logging-road when I heard you cry."

"I must explain to you——" she began.

"Don't Sylvia, don't now!" interrupted Miss Merton, and Rossiter added a gentle remonstrance.

"Yes," said Miss Densmore, "I must, then we'll not refer to it again. I was watching the water ripple away into the wood when I fancied I heard a footstep. I was so startled that I sprang up, and there was that man. He could not have been more than 30 feet from me, he had crept up so noiselessly. I have no idea from which direction he approached, but when I first saw him he was standing behind me in the path by which we came. He began to move towards me, and I cried out to him to go on about his business. He gave no heed to this, so I ran to the other side of the spring, putting the depression and the water between us. He was grinning at me, and oh, his face!—I am afraid I shall dream about it, and if I do I shall go mad."

She seemed about losing her power of restraining her feelings, and both Miss Merton and Rossiter again begged her to say no more, but she would not heed them.

Do You Wish To Borrow Money?

In order to accommodate all classes of borrowers (those who cannot borrow at a bank, as well as those who can), the Mutual Loan and Investment Company, of 118 Market street, Newark, N. J., has a department for handling quickly and confidentially loans ranging from $10 to $300 on furniture, pianos, storage receipts, etc.

The security is not removed from your possession or in any way disturbed. The honest, careful and conservative borrower will try and decide two points before borrowing. First, where he can get the best terms. Second, where he can get fair and square treatment.

This company is in a position to give you by far the most satisfactory terms ever offered by any concern or individual negotiating this class of loans.

With this company you are assured of getting the lowest rates, easiest payments and longest time for repayment. The whole transaction from the time the application is made until loan is paid is entirely confidential. We give you another advantage in case you take the loan out for six months or a year, and wish to settle the same before the time expires: we charge you only for the time you have had the money. We also take up loans from other companies and advance more money.

Kindly call and let us explain our simple and up-to-date methods. If not entirely convenient for you to call, please write and our representative will call and give you any desired information. Remember it costs nothing to make application. Loans promptly made in Elizabeth, Plainfield, Westfield, Roselle, Rahway, Perth Amboy and all suburban towns.

PAID FOR HIS MEAL.

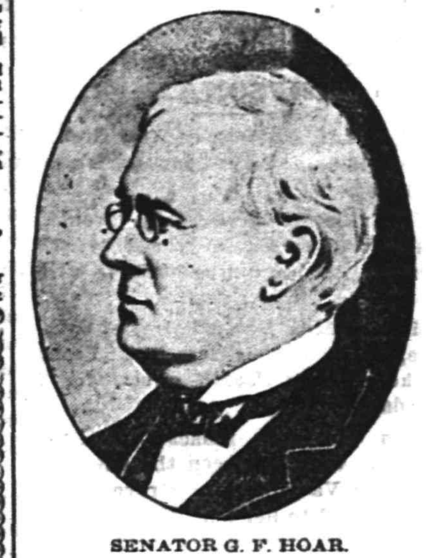
Senator Hoar Is Averse to Deadheading His Way Through This Strenuous World.

An elderly and dignified man appeared one morning recently in the office of a railway passenger agent in the city of Boston, according to the Brooklyn Eagle. The official he wanted to see was out.

"Perhaps," suggested the visitor to the lordly office boy, "you can direct me—"

"No," replied the magnate thus addressed, "I kin do nothin'. No one here gives passes 'cept the boss. You'll have to wait until he comes in."

At this juncture one of the clerks recognized the caller as Senator Hoar and offered his services.



SENATOR G. F. HOAR.

(One of the Grand Old Men of the Country We All Love.)

"I wish to ascertain," said the senator, "to whom I owe the price of a meal for which I forgot to pay yesterday when I left the dining car at Worcester. Some one had to pay for what I ate and I want to reimburse him."

"Oh, that's all right, Mr. Hoar," returned the clerk. "I guess we need not bother about the matter."

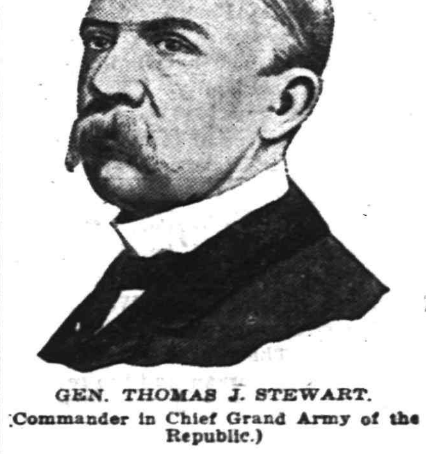
"No, it isn't all right and we will bother about it," replied the senator. And he made the clerk search the office records, with the result that the name of the waiter responsible for the collection of the check was duly ascertained. Then, with as much evident satisfaction as though he had succeeded in getting an important bill through congress, the senator paid the clerk $1.50, to be credited to the waiter.

GRAND ARMY INAUGURAL.

Commander in Chief Thomas J. Stewart Asks the Cooperation of All Comrades.

Thomas J. Stewart, who was elected commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic at the national encampment of that organization recently held at Washington, D. C., has issued a general order announcing that he has formally assumed the duties of his new office. In his inaugural address to members of the veteran organization he says:

"The active aid and cooperation of every comrade in the organization is invoked to the end that the Grand Army of the Republic shall continue to encourage patriotism and love of country, shall keep alive and strong the fraternal ties of comradeship and thus by individual earnestness and activity be a power for good in the land and be helpful to those of our comrades who may need and are entitled to our aid and encouragement."



GEN. THOMAS J. STEWART.

(Commander in Chief Grand Army of the Republic.)

Commander Stewart announces the following appointments to his staff:

Adjutant general—John W. Schall, post No. 11, department of Pennsylvania.

Quartermaster general — Charles Burrows, post No. 28, department of New Jersey.

Assistant adjutant general—J. Henry Holcombe, post No. 51, department of Pennsylvania.

Commander Stewart has designated Independence hall, Philadelphia, as his headquarters.

First Aid to the Injured.

Novel first-aid-to-the-injured boxes are to be scattered in the streets of Paris. Outwardly the apparatus resembles a lamp-post letter box, and it contains a small medicine-chest, a folding stretcher and a telephone for signaling the nearest ambulance station. Access to the box is gained by breaking a glass panel.

Space Cleared by Racers.

TUSKEGEE CONFERENCE ON.

Booker T. Washington Speaks on the Work to Be Done.

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Feb. 19.—The twelfth annual Tuskegee negro conference has begun its sessions at Tuskegee Normal and Industrial institute. The conference was organized by Principal Booker T. Washington. President Washington in his opening address said in part:

"From the first it has been the main work of this conference to confine itself to a simple and informal consideration of the methods and means of securing homes, the freeing of ourselves from debt, the saving of money, the encouragement of intelligent production, the payment of taxes and the cultivation of habits of thrift, honesty and virtue, the building of schoolhouses and churches, the securing of education and high Christian character and friendship between the races. Throughout the entire race we must keep alive a feeling of hope and encouragement. We have seen darker days than those through which we now seem to be passing."

The conference adopted resolutions setting forth various methods by which the conditions of the colored agriculturist can be improved and concluding with the declaration that "prosperity and peace are dependent upon good relations between the races."

Powell Refuses to Resign.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 19.—Governor Murphy and Major Carl Lentz, chairman of the Republican county committee of Essex county, had a conference yesterday over the matter of Sergeant-at-arms George Powell of the house, whose name has been mixed up with the proposition to return vestments stolen from Grace church, Newark. The governor is in favor of insisting upon Mr. Powell's resignation. Mr. Powell was asked by Major Lentz to resign, but refused to do so. At the afternoon session of the house Powell presented a petition stating that he had been accused in the newspapers of an indiscretion of which he was innocent. His motives, he said, had been misconstrued. In order that he may set himself right before the members of the house he asked that a committee be appointed to make an investigation. Mr. Boyd, the Republican leader, after a caucus of the Republican members, offered a resolution for the appointment of an investigation committee. The resolution was adopted.

Telephone Exchange Burned Out.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., Feb. 19.—Fire which broke out shortly after 6 o'clock last evening completely destroyed the two story brick structure occupied by the Glen Telephone company in Johnstown. The local exchange, consisting of over a thousand phones and newly instituted and valuable apparatus, is ruined. The telephone girls were cut off from escape and were rescued by firemen from the second story. The damage is placed at between $15,000 and $20,000, which is practically covered by insurance.

Four Trains Snowbound.

SANTA FE, N. M., Feb. 19.—Four Rock Island passenger trains are snowbound twenty miles north of Torrance, on the El Paso and Northeastern railway. A force of shovelers has gone from Torrance to clear the tracks. All the telegraph wires are down. The weather is clear and warm at present over the entire territory.

Geer Gains In Oregon.

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 19.—Ex-Governor Geer gained two votes yesterday in the ballot for United States senator. The ballot resulted as follows: Fulton, 32; Geer, 27; Wood (Dem.), 16; Williams, 5; scattering, 5; absent, 5.

SPORTING NEWS

WINTER SPORTS.

With the arrival of ice on the local ponds, hockey is again starting up at the City High School. This afternoon at 3:30, the class team of the class of 1904 will meet the varsity in a game on Tier's Pond. This game will prove a source of practice for the varsity players in preparation for the game on Saturday morning with the Montclair High School, at Montclair. On Saturday afternoon, the team will meet the Norwood Athletic Club, of this city in a game on Hyde's Pond.

ON THE DIAMOND.

The North Plainfield High School Athletic Association is arranging a baseball schedule for the coming season. The dates so far secured are: Pingry High School, of Newark, May 6; Plainfield High School, April 13; Morristown team, May 13. Games are now being arranged with Rutgers Prep. School, of New Brunswick, Port Richmond High School and other out-of-town clubs.

HOCKEY.

As soon as Kenneth Robbie, of the Y. M. C. A., returns from his southern trip, much attention will be paid to field hockey, which has been such a pleasing feature to many of the members of the boys' department of the association.

T. A. B. ENTERTAINED.

Regular Monthly Dance Held in T. A. B. Hall Last Evening.

T. A. B. Hall was filled with a merry crowd of 200 young people, last evening, when the regular monthly T. A. B. dance was held. It proved to be one of the most successful affairs the popular organization has conducted the past season. Suhr's Imperial orchestra was in attendance and furnished music of a high standard.

The committee in charge consisted of Thomas and Michael O'Keefe, Patrick Melvin, Edward Lynch, Richard Birmingham, David Doyle, Thomas Mack, Clinton Shaunn, Clem Powell and Thomas Carty.

Snow Spoiled Ice.

The local ice dealers do not expect to increase their supply of ice this winter. The recent snow storm has spoiled the chances of getting ice as a result of the cold snap. However, the ice houses are about filled and there should be no ice famine next summer.

Dance Not Postponed.

The dance, which has been arranged by the Levering and Garrigues Company's employes will be held as planned tomorrow evening at Bound Brook. It has been erroneously stated that it has been postponed but this is denied by the committee in charge.

Too Cold.

The kindergarten department of the borough schools was closed yesterday and today on account of the cold weather.

PERSONAL.

Edward M. Daniels, of West Eighth street, is detained at home with a severe cold.

C. E. Bloom, of Mountain avenue, has gone to California, where he will spend a year combining business with pleasure.

Mr. and Mrs. David Barry, of Syracuse, N. Y., are visiting Mrs. Frank Burke, of West Fourth street, for a few days.

Miss Gertrude Smack, of Long Branch, who has been the guest of Miss Ada VanHorne, of Grove street, has returned to her home.

Mrs. George H. Babcock, of West Eighth street, will leave for Washington Monday to attend the National convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

DEATH OF MRS. SHAFFER.

Passed Away at Midnight From a Complication of Troubles.

The death occurred exactly at midnight last night of Mrs. Hannah Shaffer, wife of Frank E. Shaffer, the tailor, of Duer street. Mrs. Shaffer has been suffering from a tumor for some time and recently complications of heart trouble began to develop.

The funeral will be held Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock from her late residence, 27 Vine street, and at 9 o'clock from St. Joseph's church. The interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Plainfielder is Postmaster.

Word has been received from George M. Parks, who formerly resided on Duer street, but who is now located at Emerson, Georgia. Mr. Parks left this city fifteen years ago and has recently been appointed postmaster at Emerson which is a thriving little town. Mr. Parks was very well known in this city as well as in the borough. His father was the foreman who had charge of the erection of the Pond Tool Works buildings.

Masons Furnish Skin.

The work of grafting skin on the burned portions of Wilson Fredericks' body is being carried on at Muhlenberg Hospital. Members of the Masonic Order, to which the patient belongs, are submitting their cuticle for the operation. The process is not a new one as was stated in a local paper, last night, and has been accomplished at Muhlenberg many times.

Jolly Three Entertained.

The dance of the Jolly Three which was held at the Bound Brook Hall last evening proved to be a very delightful affair. The music was provided by Prof. O'Reilly. There were thirty couples from this city present at the dance. Most of them went up on the trolley and returned by way of the railroad.

Sacred Concert.

A sacred concert will be given this evening at the Swedish Pilgrim church at the corner of West Sixth and New streets for the benefit of the organ fund. The church has recently secured a new organ and the recital will be given by Prof. J. A. Hultman, of Worcester, Mass.

Funeral of Little Child.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock over the remains of Daniel, the one-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Rielly, who died at the home of his parents in South Plainfield, on Wednesday morning. The interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

CONSOLIDATION COMING SOONER OR LATER

Elizabeth Journal Cleverly Sums Up the Greater Plainfield Question.

IT TELLS THE TRUTH

DISCORD IS BOUND TO CONTINUE UNTIL THE CHANGE IS MADE.

Unique Situation of Plainfield and North Plainfield is Clearly Explained — The Trouble Between North Plainfield and Somerville.

A great deal has been said about the Greater Plainfield question but the situation has not been presented in a fairer or more truthful way than in an editorial, with the caption "Consolidation, Sooner or Later," recently published by the Elizabeth Journal. It summarized the problem completely and presents the facts for the benefit of the outside public just as they are with all personalities eliminated. The editorial, which is well worth careful consideration by everyone, is as follows:

"The subject of the repealing of the Greater Plainfield bill is one which requires and deserves more careful and thorough consideration than it seems to be receiving. It should first be stripped of all extraneous matters, such as personalities and charges and counter-charges of secret motives of local leaders, and then examined with a view solely to ascertain the causes which underlie the movement and create discord. When these causes of discord are determined then they should be removed, for until this is done the irritation will never be allayed.

"It is confidently asserted that the real source of trouble is two-fold. First, the line between Union and Somerset counties divides a municipality which in everything but government is really one—and which, beyond doubt, should in fact and in law be one—into two parts, and thus the material welfare and advancement of both are injured and retarded. This is so absolutely true that no disinterested stranger can visit this community without being struck by the absurdity of the dual governments, and suggesting they should unite.

"This cause, therefore, being always apparent and constantly thrusting itself into notice will continue to assert itself and breed trouble, until it is removed. It appeals to the citizens of both Plainfield and North Plainfield, and in repealing the laws under consideration the Legislature would be going directly against the wishes of the people of Plainfield, as expressed by the unanimous resolution of its Common Council, to say nothing of the unanimous protest of the boards of trade of both places.

"The other underlying source of trouble, and the one which up to this time has caused bitterness, is the political jealousy existing between North Plainfield and Somerville. The latter being the county seat, centrally located and always, until within the past ten years, the largest town in the county, dominated the county in political matters. It nominated county candidates, controlled the Board of Freeholders, decided where the county money should be spent, and considered itself entitled to dictate.

"North Plainfield, growing up by the overflow from Plainfield into Somerset county, about ten years ago reached Somerville's size, and naturally began to demand recognition. Located in the extreme corner of Somerset, and being really part and parcel of Plainfield, its interests and those of Somerville radically differed. The jealousy and strife which followed were inevitable. North Plainfield demanded recognition as the largest town in the county. Somerville naturally resisted the loss of its long-held power. Factional differences tore the Republican party and increased the desire of North Plainfield to unite with Plainfield. These differences will continue to exist so long as the two towns remain in the same county.

"They are inevitable, and the way to remove the source of trouble is to remove the county line. That barrier once removed, the two Palinfields will unite just as certainly as if one removes the dam the water will flow out of the mill pond. Until that line is changed the trouble will never cease. Political leaders should look this situation in the face and not be misled into prolonging the struggle. The people of Plainfield are waking up, and demanding that the repealer bill now before the Legislature be killed. Plainfield's Republican majority is too important to be trifled with. Plainfield's voters are the friends and intimate associates of those of North Plainfield, and contagious diseases spread rapidly. The merits of the case are all with the advocates of Greater Plainfield. Is it not then clear that the Legislature should not deprive these people of their vested rights, but rather assist them to remove the line which not only breeds discord, but hampers their material welfare."

TOURS TO LOS ANGELES

ON ACCOUNT OF THE PRESBYTERIAN GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Under the Personally-Conducted System of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

For the Presbyterian General Assembly at Los Angeles, Cal., May 12 to June 1, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has arranged three transcontinental tours at extraordinary low rates. Special trains of high-grade Pullman equipment will be run on desirable schedules. A tourist agent, chaperon, official stenographer, and special baggage master will accompany each train to promote the comfort and pleasure of the tourists. All Sunday travel will be avoided. The Pennsylvania Railroad is the only railroad that will run tours to Los Angeles on this occasion under its own personally-conducted system.

MISS KNIGHT BADLY HURT.

Daughter of Court Stenographer Injured in Accident at Newark.

Herbpert W. Knight, the Union county court stenographer, while in court at Elizabeth, this morning, received a great shock when he was informed that his daughter, Miss Emily Knight, was one of those killed in the accident at Newark. He immediately called his home by telephone and learned that she was not killed. One leg suffered a compound fracture and the other one was broken. The girl who sat next to her in the trolley car was killed instantly.

He Must Pay for Sidewalk.

The borough authorities have laid a flag stone sidewalk in front of the house of Richard McDonald at Watchung and Summit avenues, which is occupied by Homer J. Wightman. The Council has several times notified McDonald to lay the walk but he has ignored their demands so the sidewalk has been laid and the bill will be sent to him.

More Investigation.

The special committee from the Grand Jury, of which J. W. Murray, Jr., is chairman, met this morning to continue its work of investigating the causes of the Westfield wreck. The committee refuses to say what was done, but a report will be submitted to the Grand Jury on Wednesday, February 25, to which time an adjournment was taken.

GRADE CROSSING PROVED DEATH TRAP FOR EIGHT

Newark Is Horrorstruck by Dash of the Trolley Car Filled With School Children Into Passing D. L. and W. Train.

SOME FURTHER DETAILS OF YESTERDAY MORNING'S DISASTER AT CLIFTON AVENUE CROSSING, NEWARK.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Newark, February 20—Appalling as were the first reports of the terrible collision between a trolley car on the North Jersey Traction Company's Orange avenue line and the Bernardsville express on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, at the Clifton avenue grade crossing, yesterday morning, the full horror of the situation is now being realized. Eight jolly, laughing High School pupils, seven of them girls, are dead as the result of the trolley car sliding down grade on ice covered rails, while thirty others are maimed or disfigured for life.

The complete list of killed as compiled by the police is as follows:

ALMA LOEHNBERG, sixteen years old, 211 Littleton avenue; body badly mangled.

MAUDE BAKER, 562 High street; head crushed, both legs and right arm broken.

EVAN L. EASTWOOD, died at German Hospital fifteen minutes after having been admitted.

ELLA WERPUPP, nineteen years old, 199 South Sixth street; skull fractured. Died at City Hospital.

VIOLA ILL, aged seventeen years, 43 Stirling street; identified by Dr. Edward Ill, an uncle, at Holle's morgue.

ERNESTINE P. MUELLER, fifteen years old, 144 Fairmount avenue; head crushed. Body identified by sister at Holle's morgue.

MABEL KARSCHNER, 41 Humboldt street; died at St. Michael's Hospital.

ROSETTA KOHN, 51 James street; identified by relatives at Mullin's morgue.

Of the injured now in the various hospitals, Peter Brady, motorman of the ill-fated car; Oscar Barcliff, engineer of the express, Margaret Commerford, 19 years old; Fred Lindsay, 16 years old; and Jennie McLelland, 16 years old, will probably die. The remainder are suffering from brain concussion, broken limbs and internal injuries.

Responsibility for the disaster seems likely to be placed upon the motorman of the trolley car, just as the brunt of the blame for the Westfield horror, was saddled upon the engine driver, James Davis, who died protesting his engine was defective. Brady is likely to make the same kind of an excuse if he survives his injuries.

The crucial point of the wreck seems to be whether the motorman could have stopped his car if its equipment had been perfect. Several of the trolley road officials declare the sand box was two-thirds full. Others at the scene of the wreck immediately after the accident say that if the rails had been sanded, the slipping could have been prevented. Mounted Policeman Stuckey, who witnessed the crash and who helped his own daughter from the ruins, emphatically declares Brady was frantically working the sand rod at the same time he was applying the brake. Miss Marion Price, a passenger who was on the front platform, also says the motorman could have stopped the car if any sand had been in the box.

The Lackawanna Railroad seems to be absolved from any criminal liability by the local officials. It had protested vigorously when the trolley road established a grade crossing at Clifton avenue. The guard rails were down to stop the trolley car from crossing at the time of the crash and trains move slowly at that point before coming to the Broad Street station, four blocks away.

The worst feature of the affair is the fact that this grade crossing has long been described as a death trap. Mayor Henry M. Doremus, upon taking office a few weeks ago, in his first message to the Newark Common Council, used prophetic words. He declared that this particular crossing was especially perilous for the pupils of the High School, to those on their way to the Branch Brook park and to drivers and passengers in trolley cars. In conclusion he called the crossing a disgrace to the city.

PYTHIANS AT GRAND LODGE

PLAINFIELD'S DELEGATION RETURNS FROM SESSION AT TRENTON.

Past Chancellor Chas. McGinley Appointed District Deputy for This District.

City Judge William N. Runyon, Joseph C. Blimm, A. D. Pope, Charles McGinley, Jeremiah VanWinkle and Joseph Sheppard returned home from Trenton, last night, after a two days' attendance at the thirty-sixth annual convention of the Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias. They were greatly pleased with the session with the exception of the defeat of their candidate for grand outer guard, Past Chancellor Savidge, of Harrison. A spirited election resulted in the honor being conferred upon John Klemner, of Paterson.

Past Chancellor Charles McGinley, of this city, was appointed district deputy of district No. 47, succeeding Jeremiah VanWinkle, of Unity Lodge. Asa D. Pope, of Perseverance Lodge, was made a member of the committee on laws and supervision. The proposition to appoint a committee on an annual field day was favorably considered and $200 was appointed for the purpose.

The session yesterday afternoon was devoted to special exercises in honor of the thirty-ninth anniversary of the order. Among the most enjoyed numbers of the programme was a solo by City Judge William N. Runyon.

SACRED CONCERT.

Given at Swedish Pilgrim Church for Benefit of Organ Fund.

A sacred concert was held last evening at the Swedish Pilgrim church for the benefit of the organ fund. It was largely attended. It was conducted by Rev. J. A. Hultman, of Worcester, Mass., from whose church Rev. O G. Norseen has accepted a call. He sang selections in Swedish and English.

Violin solos by Martin A. Korff, accompanied by Miss Charlotte Conger, at the piano, were a pleasing feature. Rev. O. G. Ellstrom, pastor of the Swedish Pilgrim church of Brooklyn, was present and made a short address on "Angels."

The committee having in charge the arrangements for the concert were: Rev. O. G. Norseen, Joseph Tingloff and Miss Matilda Gustavson.

WANTS RECEIVER.

Frank Linke Asks That One be Appointed for Eastern Bottling Co.

Through his attorney, Craig A. Marsh, Frank Linke, of this city, made application, yesterday, to Chancellor Magie at Trenton, for a receiver for the Eastern Bottling Company. The applicant is the sole local member of the firm, the others being employes or representatives of the Ballentine Brewing Company, of Newark. The petition will be given a hearing at the State House in Trenton on March 3.

By Sleigh to Elizabeth.

One of the largest sleighing parties which has left this city in some time was that of the Orange Field Club, Wednesday evening when fifty members and friends enjoyed a trip to Elizabeth and back. At Elizabeth supper was served and the entire trip was enjoyed by all.

FROM THE ENGINEERS AFTER THE DISASTER

What They Had to Say to Vice President Besler and the Superintendent.

A TOUCHING INCIDENT

HOW THE EMPLOYES OF THE JERSEY CENTRAL RAILROAD FEEL.

Conference Was Postponed and the Officials and Committee of Engineers Joined in the Common Sorrow With the Community.

The Railroad Employe, one of the best journals published in the interest of railroad men, contains an article in its last issue which will be read with no little feeling by persons associated with railroads and those who are not. It refers to a recent meeting of a committee from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers on the New Jersey Central and Superintendent Huntington, relative to asking for an adjustment of the wage scale. The article is as follows:

"The day following the recent wreck on the New Jersey Central at Westfield, General Superintendent Huntington and Vice President Besler were in conference in Mr. Huntington's office at Jersey City, when Mr. Huntington's clerk announced that the general committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers were outside and desired to see him, as Mr. Huntington inferred, in reference to the matter of a new wage schedule, upon which he had an appointment with the committee on this particular day, and which he had intended to postpone on account of the additional work involved upon him incident to the Westfield calamity.

"Mr. Huntington passed to the room adjoining his private office, where the committee was assembled, and before he could get a chance to suggest a postponement, the chairman of the committee stepped forward, and laying his hand on the general superintendent's shoulder, said: 'Mr. Huntington, we have called today, not to keep our appointment, but to postpone it to any date that will suit your convenience, and right here we want you to understand that we all feel as badly as you do over this terrible accident, and we desire you and your associates to feel that we, as the committee representing the engineers of your system, appreciate your feelings and that your sorrow is ours also.'

"Another member of the committee, an old and tried veteran of the service, who had just arrived on his run at Jersey City, walked over to where Mr. Huntington was standing, and with the tears coursing down his cheeks, grasped the general superintendent's hand in both his own grimy ones, and blurted out: 'I want to add my endorsement to what our chairman has just said, and I want you and Mr. Besler to understand that while my hands may be black from the smoke and dirt of my engine, and my clothes soiled and greasy, my heart is white, and I appreciate the treatment you people have given me and my associates since you have been our officials, and I say right here that it don't make any difference whether this committee meets with you on the matter of wages next week, next month or next year, or whether we ever meet. We leave all that to you. We have called to assure you that your trouble is our trouble and that the engineers and every other employe of New Jersey Central Company feels for you and the present management and that we are with you to a man.'

"In the meantime Vice President Besler had entered the room and overheard the conversation, and as the engineer concluded every person present suppressed a sob, and silence, more eloquent than words, reigned supreme as the committee with bowed heads and sorrowful countenances took their departure."

Plainfielders Assisted.

Miss Charlotte Conger, pianist, Martin Korff, violinist, and Will Carleton, the poet, assisted the authoress, Mrs. Marion Harland, at her concert given Wednesday afternoon in the ballroom at Delmonico's, New York. Mrs. Harland gave a very interesting talk on "Looking Westward."

WHIST TROPHY STILL STAYS IN PLAINFIELD

Plainfield Camera Club Defeats Elizabeth Chess and Whist Club.

MAKES FOURTH VICTORY

NEXT CHALLENGERS ARE FROM COSMOPOLITAN WHIST CLUB, NEW YORK.

Camera Club Team Has Now Held Metropolitan Trophy Four Successive Matches—Last Night's Match Was Won 8 to 7.

The whist four from the Plainfield Camera Club scored its fourth consecutive victory for the Metropolitan whist trophy, last eveinng, when it defeated the team from the Elizabeth Chess and Whist Club. It was a great victory, the game being won by a score of 8 to 7. The next challenger for the trophy is the Cosmopolitan Whist Club, of New York, and a team from that club will visit Plainfield some time next week and make a determined effort to take the trophy home.

The Camera Club team is making a record of which any club might feel proud and has thus far defeated some of the best teams in the Metropolitan district. The first victory was in the game against the Brooklyn Whist Club, when the team from across the bridge was defeated by eleven tricks. After this game the trophy was brought to Plainfield and it has been here ever since. The next challenge was the team from the Newark Bay Boat Club and the home team defeated the visitors by eight tricks. The third game resulted in a defeat of the Jersey City Whist Club team by two tricks and the fourth game, last evening, brought victory again to the local team. The Cosmopolitan Whist Club team has the reputation of being one of the best in the country, but the Camera Club team believes that it can give the New Yorkers a good run for the trophy. These two teams have played before when the Cosmopolitan Club team won by the narrow margin of one trick. At that time the local team was short one of its regular men.

The representatives of the Elizabeth Chess and Whist Club playing here last evening were J. H. Martinson, A. P. Roberts, Mahlon Morey and W. M. Laing. The Camera Club team consisted of A. F. Freeman, F. H. Freeman, Ralph T. Willis and W. J. R. Hegeman, Jr.

In the first round the home team scored four points and the visitors drew a blank. In the second round the visitors scored four points and the local team two points. In the third round the Elizabeth team scored three points, while the Camera Club team made two points, making a total of eight points for the home team and seven for the visitors.

TO LECTURE AGAIN.

Mr. Thompson-Seton Will Undoubtedly Attract Many Here.

Ernest Thompson-Seton, who is coming to lecture at the Casino, Monday afternoon and evening, has always met with great success in this city and his coming appearance will undoubtedly be hailed with much pleasure.

He is a born story teller and carries his audience along with him in breathless interest, oblivious of time. Now it is a laughable story of how a cat held off a bear to protect her family of kittens, then it is the pathetic story of Lobo, the wolf, which reduced others besides the little ones to tears, and then again his wonderful Indian stories.

His stereopticon pictures add much to the effectiveness of his talk and delight the children. But the most unique feature is the lecturer's imitation of animal cries and calls to their little ones. They are quite indescribable, and give one an eerie sensation of wildness and remoteness from civilization.

On Monday afternoon, he will lecture on "The Indians as I Knew Them" and in the evening, "New Adventures of Animal Friends," both new subjects. Tickets are on sale at Armstrong's pharmacy.

BASKET BALL LEAGUE GAME THIS EVENING

Y. M. C. A. and I. C. T. Club Meet In Latter's Gymnasium on North Avenue.

GOOD GAME PROMISED

WHILE Y. M. C. A. OUGHT TO WIN, I. C. T. WILL MAKE IT INTERESTING.

Both of the New Teams Have Surprised Everyone by Their Excellent Showing—They Only Need More Practice.

PLAINFIELD AMATEUR BASKET BALL LEAGUE.

	Won.	Lost.	Ave.
Hope Y. M. A	1	0	1.000
Y. M. C. A	1	0	1.000
I. C. T. Club	0	1	.000
Reform Club	0	1	.000

When the fine showing made by the Reform Club five against the Y. M. C. A. veterans Monday night and the recent defeat of the Reformers by the I. C. T. Club are taken into consideration, there is every prospect that the meeting between the teams of the Y. M. C. A. and the I. C. T. Club, in the I. C. T. Club rooms this evening will be an interesting one. Y. M. C. A. should win. Its players have recovered from numerous games of last week and should be in good form. The I. C. T. boys will be playing in their own gymnasium and while this is only their second real game, they are expected to give the association team something to do.

Two games have been played so far in the Plainfield Amateur Basket Ball League. Each game was a surprise in that the new teams played a much stronger game than anybody expected. In both games, the novices showed an aptitude for the sport which promises much for the future. The I. C. T. boys are not all new to the game and several of them have had training in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. While they played a good fast game against the Hopes, they showed some effects of the pace before the game was over and lacked the snappiness which characterized their play at the start. Steady practice will soon get the players in condition to stand two complete halves without tiring.

There is much good material on the Reform Club team. The boys held their pace against the Y. M. C. A. Monday and their chief trouble seemed to be in lack of knowledge of the fine points of the game. Failure to cover their opponents was a noticable fault in the first half which was corrected in the second. They were not accustomed to the game, however, and got in each other's road or tossed the ball to an opponent by mistake. Practice will cure them of those faults. With a few more games as training, the Reform Club may be looked to as one of the coming teams of the city.

At the last meeting of the executive committee of the league, held previous to the first game, the managers of the four teams presented their lists of players. None others will be allowed to play in league contests. All the teams except the Y. M. C. A., took advantage of the full quota of fifteen. The Y. M. C. A. presented eleven.

The lists, as now on file with the secretary, are as follows:

Y. M. C. A., William Heinecke, Walter Cahoone, Arthur Denton, Percy Hand, William E. Neal, Raymond Smith, Harry Scull, Chas. Zimmer, R. H. Collins, Frank N. Marcley and Chas. Peterson.

I. C. T. Club, Arthur Caleen, Chas. T. Overbaugh, Harry Blimm, J. Wm. Waters, Wm. Reynolds, George Cose, H. C. Drake, Jr., C. H. Bilyeu, C. Suhr, Archibald Hacquer, E. Sherwin, V. W. Nash, Jr., A. Beekman, Walter McNaughton and C. Heardle.

Reform Club, J. A. Nichols, W. O'Loughlin, J. J. Scott, John McClelland, Fred. Keading, A. Perry, J. Townley, Gus. Feiring, Harry Montross, E. Taylor, R. O'Neil, Jos. Higgins, Jos. Galbrath, A. E. Smith and Edward Smith.

Tonight's game between the Y. M. C. A. and the I. C. T. Club will be played in the I. C. T. rooms in the Taylor building, North and Park avenues. The entrance is on North avenue, next to Dunn's grocery. The game is scheduled to start at 8:15 o'clock. Ample accommodations will be provided for the spectators.

IMPROVES ITS HOLD ON DAILY PRESS CUP

Westfield Club Won Two Out of Three in the Last Series With the Park Club.

SOME GOOD BOWLING

LAST OF DAILY PRESS BOWLING LEAGUE GAMES IN PLAINFIELD.

Parks Won First Game Cleverly, But Couldn't Hold the Pace—A Hot Windup in the Concluding Contest—The Scores in Detail.

The "crack" bowling team from the Westfield Club visited the Park Club, last evening, and, in The Daily Press Bowling League tournament, won two out of the three games rolled. If the Parks had continued the work started in the first game, the visitors would have gone home minus victory.

In the first game the home team bowled more like veterans and won with fifty-eight pins to the good. In this game, as well as in the other two games, F. O. Ball was high man for the Parks. His scores were 180, 201 and 915. The other members of the team rolled well, but at times they displayed weakness and right there the visitors took advantage by holding together and improving their opportunities.

In the second game the Parks did not make as large score as the visitors did in the first game and they lost by 104 pins. The third game was more exciting, the Westfields only winning by twenty-eight pins. At one time it looked as though the Parks would win out in the third game, but too many splits and breaks at the critical moment lost the contest and the visiting team finished winners quite easily.

For the visitors, Hegeman was the high man. His high score, 213, was made in the second game. The next high man was Chauncey D. Smith, who rolled 190 in the third game. Every Westfield man rolled a good score, the lowest being made by Smith in the first game, when he rolled 122. By winning two games, the lead of the Westfield team is materially increased and their hold on the trophy made more secure.

The summary of the games follow:

NEW POLICE.

Candidates Examined Physically and Mentally for the Two Vacancies.

Because the Mayor and Police Board are planning to secure two additional regular men for the police force, examinations were held on Wednesday. The first examination, a physical one, was given at the Y. M. C. A. by Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood to John A. Connolly, W. G. Messler and John Huff, and in the evening a mental examination was conducted by George B. Wean, city stenographer, in the Common Council rooms.

There were three candidates examined, but only two will be chosen at this time. It will be remembered that the force has lost several men through sickness and resignation and it is the purpose to fill these vacancies gradually and carefully. It is very difficult for the present force to cover the entire city satisfactorily, although the proposed Gamewell police patrol system when installed will be of incalcuable value in this matter. The result of the examinations will be made known later.

A New Fountain.

Dudley S. Miller, the Park avenue druggist, has placed an order for a handsome new soda water fountain. It will be much larger than the one now in use and will be made mostly of Mexican onyx. In every respect it will be of the latest pattern and adapted to the increasing soda water business at this attractive pharmacy.

UNCLE SAM AFTER THEM

Revenue Officers Say They Will Prosecute Alleged Illegal Sellers Who Plead.

EIGHT CHANGE PLEA

Only One of Alleged "Speak Easy" Keepers Will Go to Trial—Others All Change Their Pleas to Non Vuit—They Will be Sentenced Next Wednesday.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 20—At the hearing of the Plainfield liquor cases which came up in the county court, yesterday, more trouble loomed up for the defendants. The government revenue officers were in attendance and declared that when the police were through with the cases, the violators would be held to answer Uncle Sam's men for selling without the revenue tax.

Those who pleaded non vult, yesterday, and their attorneys are Lorenzo Paoli, 128 North avenue, V. W. Nash, Jr.; Antonio Buono, 921 South Second street, V. W. Nash, Jr.; Hillard Everitt, Somerset street, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr.; Tony Lusardi, West Front street, William Newcorn.

This morning the same plea was entered by Mrs. Carrie Carbone, 222 Park avenue, Hetfield & Hetfield; Frank Margentino, 128 Park avenue, Hetfield & Hetfield; Nicholas Martone, Somerset street; Hetfield & Hetfield; Patsy Rosso, 826 Park avenue, Hetfield & Hetfield. All these will be sentenced Wednesday.

But one of the defendants, Julius Mastrodonato, of Liberty street, near Third, has refused to withdraw his plea of not guilty and his trial has been set for Wednesday. He is to be represented by Codington & Swackhamer.

OBSERVED TWO BIRTHDAYS

PATRIOTIC EXERCISES IN BOROUGH SCHOOLS TODAY.

Held in the High School at Noon—Primary Department in the Afternoon.

Patriotic exercises were held in the North Plainfield High School this morning and afternoon in honor of Lincoln's and Washington's Birthdays. The exercises were arranged by some of the teachers and were very cleverly rendered by the pupils:

The exercises in the High School were held this noon at 12 o'clock and those who took part were: The Misses Edith Griscom, Grace Miller and Marion Overton; Arthur Humble, Carl Steiner, Clarence Hand, Jed Smalley and others.

The exercises in the primary department were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock and those who took part were Bernice McClintock, Eddie Schorb, Flora Krausse, Belle Tunison, Ellen Doughty, Alberta Daly, Bessie Conroy, Ralph Martin, Raymond Kline, Walter Walker, Chauncey Stewart, Eddie Allen, Howard Debele, Hattie Nischwitz, Agnes Mantz, Gertrude King, Agnes De Camp, Joe Kiederling and Judson Smalley.

Jolly Sleighing Party.

A party of young men and women connected with Warren chapel enjoyed a sleighing party to Westfield and back last evening. The party assembled at Hodges' pharmacy at the corner of Watchung avenue and East Front street and the start was made at 8:30. The committee which had charge of the arrangements comprised Charles Boyan, Charles Windham and Arthur Drake.

Many Want to Play.

At a meeting of the North Plainfield High School Athletic Association, held recently, William Nischwitz was elected captain of the baseball nine. There are forty-six candidates for enlistment on the nine this season and from this number the management hope to pick a strong team.

To New Home.

Mrs. Sophia Denckian and family will remove to the home of Mrs. J. Beckman, of Fairview avenue, in the course of a week or two. The house formerly owned by Mrs. Denckian, which is believed to be the oldest on East Second street, was sold the first part of this week.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE DOING

SOME BRIEF PARAGRAPHS OF A PERSONAL NATURE.

Many Folk of Greater Plainfield Are Entertaining or Being Entertained.

Letter-carrier J. W. A. Bauersachs has recovered from an attack of the grip.

N. W. French, of West Fourth street, is recovering from a serious illness.

Miss Leighton, of the local telephone office, is kept at her home by illness.

Miss Kate Bodine, of Woodhull & Martin's store, is enjoying a vacation of one week.

Miss May Duckworth, of Duer street, is convalescing from a recent severe illness.

Miss Clara Smith, of the local telephone office, is detained at her home in the borough by illness.

Miss Stella Apgar, of Woodhull & Martin's store, is detained at her home in East Front street, with a severe attack of the grip.

Superintendent Charles E. Ball, of the Prudential Insurance Company, has returned from a business trip through Hunterdon county.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—The members of Mizpah Lodge, No. 1, U. O. of I. O. L., will hold a supper Monday evening.

—At its regular meeting, this evening, Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., will confer the third rank upon one candidate.

—The talent for the next two entertainments in the Y. M. C. A. Star Course will cost the Association more than any of the others.

—Boice, Runyon & Company, of Park avenue, have lost one of their valuable horses. The animal was one of a team and it will be exceedingly difficult to replace him.

—When the monthly meeting of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society, of the First Baptist church, is held today there will be a report of the committee on song recital which was held this week.

—George Bolsterli, of the borough, has resigned his position at the Safe Works to return to his old trade, that of a wall-paper cutter. This will make him ineligible to play baseball this summer with the team from the Safe Works.

NO EMPLOYES' PASSES.

Lehigh Valley Discontinue Them to Persuade Employes to Live at Railroad Centres.

According to a recent order issued by the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company the privilege of quarterly passes to employes in all branches of the service and permitting them to live at such places as suit their convenience, is discontinued. In a few instances employes will reach their places of duty by purchasing commutation tickets, but it is said that the company will discourage that practice, as the object is to get the men centralized at the several terminals.

The chief reason for this is to free the few passenger trains from a congesting and overcrowding of deadheads, as well as to meet the views of merchants and business men of the town where terminals are located, who complain that they are getting practically no benefit from locating at a seemingly large railroad centre.

THEATRICAL.

"I am Yours, Sweetheart, Forever," is the title of the new song which the popular baritone of the Casino, New York, VanRensselaer Wheeler, is now singing in "A Chinese Honeymoon." Unlike most songs with such a sentimental title it is a poetical gem and redundant with catchy melody. It has been a hit from the first with the critical Casino audiences, and sung in Mr. Wheeler's manly way it is destined to live long in popularity.

The management of the Grand Opera House, New York City, ever on the alert to furnish something novel for its patrons, feels that it has hit the "bull's eye" in announcing for presentation there next week a Weberfield show. Not the original company, of course, but one which is in all respects worthy of taking up where the Broadway constellation of dramatic stars have left off. The selection of the most successful of the productions ever put on at the Broadway house is also commendable. "Fiddle-De-Dee," it will be remembered, enjoyed the longest run of any of the offerings of Weber & Fields.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

Jerry Foss, the Park avenue seafood dealer, is giving away a valuable little pamphlet dealing with the fish and oyster question in all its phases. Drop in at the store and secure one.

Of all the dainty things in linen no one is showing a more attractive line than Peck, of West Front street. His stock of laces, handkerchiefs, and new spring dress goods is attracting much attention from the women.

Some of the choicest flowers which are seen at receptions and funerals are those which come from the florist store of C. L. Stanley on North avenue. He keeps on hand always a fine lot of potted plants and ferns for house decorations.

This is the proper weather to use Powers' Honey, Coltsfoot and Tar to withstand the winter blasts. Powers' Somerset Pharmacy have sold over 15,000 bottles under their guarantee that money will be refunded if the cold is not relieved.

A little judgment in buying meat sometimes means a considerable saving. It's always the case if J. W. VanSickle's North avenue market is the objective point. At that establishment, the best of meats at the lowest cash prices is the invariable rule.

Years ago it was only the select few who could afford to own a piano, but today it is possible for nearly every household to contain one. G. H. Kenyon, the West Front street piano dealer, will gladly explain his method of obtaining a piano on the installment plan.

Ask any young woman in the city where she would prefer to select toilet articles and perfume and nine times out of ten the reply will be "Nagle's." The reason is plain. Nagle's stock is complete in every detail; all the standard makers are represented, but there is no overcharging for the name. It pays to deal at Nagle's.

The women shoppers of Plainfield say that the new spring goods at Woodhull & Martin's store include some of the prettiest of the new fabrics. The "crepe-de-Paris" is the latest. The goods are made of silk and wool and comes in rich shades. There are other goods just as attractive and the prices will astonish you. This firm is also holding its great mid-winter furniture sale at reduced prices. An inspection of the goods is invited.

Shake Off the Wintry Blasts.

The months of January and February are the most disagreeable to the northerner and delightful are they for the Florida tourist. The trip to Jacksonville is through a section as historic as it is picturesque, and the service to that point via the Royal Blue Line is the best The New Jersey Central is going to run an excursion to Jacksonville on Tuesday, March 10. Train leaves New York, foot Liberty street, at 8:30 a. m., arrive Washington at 2:10 p. m., same day; leave Washington at 7 p. m., March 11 and arrive Jacksonville at 1:20 p. m., March 12. The round trip rate from New York and vicinity is $50, and includes also sleeping car berths, meals en route, transfer and hotel accommodations in Washington on southward trip, passengers making their own arrangements for the northward return trip. The arrangements are such that the care and worry of the journey are in the hands of the railroad company, and the tourist has the entire time for enjoyment. The New Jersey Central has issued "A Little Yellow Book" on this Florida trip; if you want it send a postal to C. M. Burt, general passenger agent, New York. It's free for the asking. 2 18 6 eod c 3

CORNER MADISON AVE AND FRONT ST.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

TO Smith Gibbons, Charles S. Runyon and Mrs. Charles S. Runyon, his wife, Katharine Hodgdon, Henry W. Hodgdon, William Sexson, Elizabeth Sexson, Mary Utter and Samuel Utter, her husband, and Albert L. Runyon and Mrs. Albert L. Runyon, his wife.

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the day of the date hereof in a cause wherein Francis Wood, Mary Anna E. Wood, Alexander C. Wood, William Haden and Mary Anna E Wood, Jr., Trustees under the last Will and Testament of Richard Esterbrook, decd, are complainants and Hattie L. Gibbons and others (including yourselves) are defendants, you are required to appear, plead, answer or demur to the comp ainants' bill on or before the fourteenth day of March, next, or in default thereof such decree will be made against you as the Chancellor shall think equitable and just.

The said bill is filed to foreclose a mortgage given by John B. Mills and Annie B. Mills, his wife, and Francis S. Runyon to Mary Esterbrook, Francis Wood, Mary Anna E. Wood, Alexander C. Wood and William Haden, trustees under the last Will and Testament of Richard Esterbrook, deceased, (the said Mary Esterbrook having since died, and the said Mary Anna E. Wood, Jr., was substituted as Trustee in her place and stead), said mortgage dated March 11, 1899, and recorded in Union County Clerk's office in Book 156 of mortgages for said county on pages 404, etc., on lands in the City of Plainfield, in Union County, New Jersey.

And you, Charles S. Runyon, Katharine Hodgdon, William Sexson, Elizabeth Sexson, Mary Utter and Albert L. Runyon are made defendants because you are some of the heirs at law of Francis S. Runyon, who died seized of an undivided one-half interest in said lands, and thereby claim to own an interest in said mortgaged lands.

And you, Samuel Utter are made defendant because you are the husband of Mary Utter one of said owners of said mortgaged lands and you may thereby claim an interest in the same.

And you, Henry W. Hodgdon, are made defendant because you are the husband of Martha E. Hodgdon, deceased, who was one of the owners of said mortgaged lands, and you may thereby claim a right of curtesy in the same.

And you, Smith Gibbons, are made defendant because you are the husband of Hattie L. Gibbons who owns a portion of said mortgaged lands and thereby may claim an interest in the same.

And you, Mrs. Charles S. Runyon, are made defendant because you are the wife of Charles S. Runyon above named and because you claim an inchoate right of dower in and to your husband's share in said mortgaged lands.

And you, Mrs. Albert L. Runyon, are made defendant because you are the wife of Albert L. Runyon above named, and because you claim an inchoate right of dower in and to your husband's share in said mortgaged lands.

President Insists on Panama and Cuban Treaties.

A NIGHT SESSION IN THE SENATE

Morgan and Quay Block Way to a Vote on the Canal Treaty—House Passes Naval Appropriation. Many Amendments Offered.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The senate met at 11 o'clock, but spent only an hour and twenty minutes in open session. This time was devoted to routine business and passing bills of no great general importance. Senator Bailey by a vote of the senate secured consideration of the Sabine Pass port bill, which has been the subject of considerable controversy, but a vote on the measure was not reached.

At 11 o'clock last night the senate without concluding consideration of the Panama canal treaty took a recess until 11 o'clock today. Just before the close of the session Senator Cullom sought unanimous consent to fix a time for a vote next Saturday, but Senator Morgan objected. Senator Quay also said that he would object unless an agreement to vote on the statehood bill also could be obtained.

The announcement of President Roosevelt that he will call an extraordinary session of the senate of the Fifty-eighth congress unless both the Panama canal and the Cuban reciprocity treaties are ratified at the present session has caused a mild sensation. The president declared his intention to several senators during the day, and he made it as emphatically and unequivocally as he was capable of making it.

It is deemed likely by officials of the administration and by many senators that both treaties will be ratified before March 4, but the necessity for their early ratification is regarded by the president as so urgent that in the event of the failure of either one or both at the present session he will issue immediately his call for an extra session.

It is said that there are grave reasons of state why both treaties should be ratified as soon as possible. These have induced the president to make the announcement to senators of his determination.

At the end of a protracted session the house passed the naval appropriation bill. A great many amendments were offered to the provisions relating to the increase of the personnel and the authorization of new ships to be built. The most important amendment adopted was one to authorize the secretary of the navy in his discretion to purchase or contract for submarine torpedo boats after investigation of their merits and appropriates $500,000 for that purpose. The amendment was in the language of a bill introduced by Mr. Hill (Conn.), and it was stated on the floor that it had the support of all the members of the naval committee. It was adopted practically without debate. The words authorizing the construction of the new ships "by contract" were stricken out.

As passed the bill provides for three new battleships, an armored cruiser, two steel training ships and one wooden brig for training purposes, in addition to the submarine boats discretionally authorized. The increase in the personnel of the navy went through as reported by the committee, an effort to limit the increase to two midshipmen for each senator and representative to the period between now and 1911 having been voted down.

The Seminole's Mission Hopeless.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Feb. 20.—The United States revenue cutter Seminole, which is on her way to the Bay of Islands for the purpose of releasing the icebound American fishing schooners, made another attempt to reach her destination after lying in the harbor at Channel for a week. When she started, a northwest gale was blowing, and the conditions were decidedly unfavorable. The gale increased to a blizzard at noon, forcing her to abandon the attempt, and she returned to the harbor. The Seminole succeeded in escaping from the storm only by feeling her way for a few miles around Channel Head back into the harbor, otherwise she would have probably been crushed by the floes driving against the coast. It is now generally conceded that the Seminole's mission is hopeless.

Cotton Spinners' Strike Settled.

DOVER, N. H., Feb. 20.—The strike which has existed at the mills of the Cocheco Manufacturing company for a week and which has affected about 2,500 operatives has been settled. It grew out of the claim that machinery was started a number of minutes before the time set for the operatives to go to work, with the result that these operatives actually worked as overtime two hours a week, for which they were not paid.

Steel Bond Conversion Soon.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—The finance committee of the United States Steel corporation will in all probability announce the long projected bond conversion plan at an early day. There are no longer any legal barriers to the consummation of the plan, which will be carried out, it is said, as originally proposed—namely, the retirement of $200,000,000 7 per cent preferred stock and the issue of $250,000,000 of 5 per cent bonds.

Honolulu Bank Officials Won.

HONOLULU, Feb. 20.—Judge Debolt has defeated W. T. Summers and Colonel George V. MacFarlane, et. al., in their attempt to oust the present officers of the First American Savings bank. This decision was made on a demurrer filed by the officers to a petition filed by Summers, et. al., for their removal.

THE EXTRA MAN.

According to the popular view, one of the most important improvements that the railroads of New Jersey could make would be to place an extra man in the cab. That the engineers themselves would be glad of the change was taken for granted. It was admitted that the railroads might object to the change, however. This same question is now being considered by the New York Legislature before which a bill is now placed providing for the third man in the cab. At a hearing on this same bill, some interesting and rather significant facts were brought out by various engineers who were placed on the stand.

Of the expert enginemen placed on the stand, there was not a single one who even showed a disposition to favor the extra man in the cab. To a man they declared that as far as they were personally concerned, they would be much opposed to any legislative action which would provide for an assistant engineer or extra fireman on engines of the Wooton type. Furthermore the opinion was expressed that such action would not prevent any accidents but would rather work to the detriment of the system by reducing the individual responsibility and increasing the chances of diverting the attention of the engine driver from the duty before him.

All this simply goes to prove that there is no easy method of solution of the question which is constantly before all the railroads of the country, how to increase their efficiency and decrease the chance of accidents. At first sight it may seem very easy to answer the question but a careful probing into details brings out the truth that it is a very complex problem, of many of the details of which the public at large is entirely ignorant. It was with a view to get at these true facts and act according to them that the coroner's inquest recommended a State railroad commission and that now Assemblyman Newcorn has given its recommendations form in the shape of a bill introduced into the lower house of the State Legislature.

When the New York Tribune made an informal canvass on the proposition of the State railroad commission, it was shown that there was no overwhelming desire to formulate one on the part of the legislators. Public opinion and the newspapers have it within their province, however, to make a demand that will be listened to and heeded by the politicians.

Another awful catastrophe is added to the list of Jersey happenings. A trolley car, filled with pupils of the Newark High School, got beyond the control of the motorman and crashed into a passing express on the D., L. and W. Railroad yesterday morning. Five were killed instantly, two died soon after and the list of injured numbered over thirty. The railroad cannot be blamed in this instance save that the accident would never have been possible had there been no grade crossing. Plainfield may indeed feel thankful that the grade crossings were abolished here years ago.

While the present Common Council has pretty well demonstrated that it believes in high license, there has been no evidence of the fact that the City Fathers think there is any need for more saloons in the city limits. The efforts of the enemies of the saloons are therefore devoting their efforts to prevent the granting of the new applications for licenses. From what has been said in the past, it does not seem likely that the number of drinking places in the city will be increased this year.

Instead of being strung out through the winter months, the really severe weather this winter has been confined to two short periods when there has been no doubt at all that the winter was here. Otherwise the season has been an unusually mild one. One of those periods is now with us and the whole city has fully realized the fact.

Another game in the Plainfield Amateur Basket Ball League will be played this evening. This series of games has already attracted much attention and the interest in that indoor sport is on the boom in Plainfield.

WHY JUDGEMNT WAS TAKEN

AFFADAVIT FAILED TO ARRIVE, BUT NO CHECK FIGURED IN TRANSACTION.

Correction of Facts Regarding a Local Case Which is Before the Supreme Court.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—In your edition of the nineteenth instant you published an article concerning a judgment which had been entered in the Supreme Court in the case of Boyd versus Williams and Overbaugh on contract in which certain statements were made that are absolutely untrue and without foundation in fact.

In the article in question it is stated that Messrs. Williams and Overbaugh instructed their counsel, Robert M. Clark, to send a check for $2,500 to Mr. Boyd in payment of that certain promissory note upon which the suit in question is based, that Mr. Clark asserts he mailed the check and that Mr. Boyd claims never to have received it. All of this statement is absolutely untrue. Mr. Clark was never instructed to mail any check nor did he, nor was he expected to mail any check to any one in the matter.

Judgment in the above case was entered by default because an affidavit of merits failed to reach the Supreme Court clerk's office. Mr. Clark drew the papers in the case upon which application was made for a rule to show cause why the judgment should not be opened and upon which the rule was granted. Furthermore Mr. Clark is the attorney of record in the matter for Messrs. Williams and Overbaugh, has been actively engaged in taking depositions in the case in conjunction with us and argued before the Supreme Court at Trenton on Tuesday for an extension of time upon the rule.

The defense in this case is not payment by check or otherwise but fraud and false representations used to procure said note. No payment has been made or ordered made by check or otherwise in the matter nor will any be made until such payment becomes necessary by order of court. Any statement concerning any payment either made or ordered to be made is entirely without foundation.

We are engaged in this case as counsel and are working on the same in conjunction with Mr. Clark and request you to insert this article in your paper in order that justice may be done Mr. Clark.

Dated, February 20, A. D. 1903.

FROZEN TO DEATH.

Paddy McGee Wandered Away From Rahway Half Clothed—Found in a Drift.

Paddy McGee, well known to the Middlesex county authorities, was found frozen to death in a field near Stelton on Tuesday and was identified Wednesday at the office of Coroner Quackenboss, in New Brunswick, by Sheriff Carman.

The man had stopped at a Rahway hotel the night of the heavy snow storm and had left the place during the night leaving behind his underwear and stockings. A search was made for the missing man and his body was found near Stelton half buried in a snow drift. The man is believed to have been demented.

The body was interred yesterday in the Potter's Field in New Brunswick.

COURT SCHEDULE.

Announcement of Dates for Sittings of Justices in State Courts.

In the recent announcement of State Court sittings and the assignments of justices, it is learned that in the fifth district Justice Garretson will preside at Somerville, April 3, September 4 and December 4, while in the ninth district, which includes Union county, Justice VanSyckel will preside at Elizabeth, May 1 and October 1. The Chancery Court will sit May 3 and October 3; Supreme Court, June 1 and November 1; Court of Errors, March 1, June 3 and November 3; Prerogative Court, May 3, October 2 and February 1; Court of Pardons, March 2, June 3 and November 3.

Ten Games to be Played.

There are still ten games to be played in the quoit-pitching tournament, being held under the auspices of Franklin and Somerset Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., and it expected that the tournament will be concluded next week Thursday evening. There were no games at the meeting of Franklin Council, last evening, as there was an initiation of a member. Somerset Council now holds the lead by four games.

Best Wall Plaster
.....ON THE MARKET.....
CONTAINS NO SAND OR LIME. One of its most important parts is fibrous wood pulp, made by a patented process, that retains the fiber and strength of the wood. This fibrous wood gives to the plaster
Elasticity, Toughness, Lightness and Strength, and imparts to the plaster the many known valuable properties of the wood itself. The other ingredients give Hardness, Firmness, Smoothness and Durability. The combination makes a plaster that has no equal.

SUBURBAN NEWS

A Department Devoted to the Minor Events in Greater Plainfield's Suburbs by Our Own Correspondents.

DUNELLEN.

Quite a number of the members of the ninth and tenth grades of Whittier school enjoyed an old fashioned straw ride to Westfield last evening. John Dayton drove the party. Refreshments were taken along and a merry time was had by all. A short stop was made at Westfield. Those who went were the Misses Elsie Peters, Alice Apgar, Lillie Kennedy, Irene Ayres, Edna Vail, Mamie Snyder and Ethel Clum; Clarence Carmen, Arthur Bogardus, Robert Lowrie, Harry Ising and Harry Kenyon.

The Junior Auxiliary Missionary Branch, of Holy Innocents' church, has organized a reading and study class with nine members. The officers are: Director, Miss Emma Nelson; secretary, Miss Zella Kelly; librarian, Miss Tabb.

An adjourned meeting of the Borough Council was held in the hall Wednesday evening. It was recommended that $3,000 be raised for borough purposes for the coming year, $100 for the poor and $600 for police protection.

Friday, Feb. 27, an auction sale will be held of the personal goods of the late Hulda Randolph from her late residence on Front street at 1 o'clock p. m.

The young son of John Guenhahl has recovered from an illness with diphtheria and the quarantine has been removed from the house.

A literary meeting, under the auspices of the Epworth League, will be held at the home of Mrs. George Schenck, Monday evening.

A W. C. T. U. parlor meeting will be held next Thursday at the home of Mrs. Edmund Teel. Mrs. Robinson, of Paterson, will speak.

Isaac Stites has declared his candidacy for the collectorship and will make a good fight for the Republican nomination.

The Craig Manufacturing Company sent a number of finished orders to New York yesterday.

Miss Virgie Tunison has been spending a few days with her parents in Glen Gardner.

Cottage prayer meeting will be held this evening at the home of Eugene Runyon.

The directors of the Building Loan Association held a meeting last evening.

Miss Eva Vliet, of Philipsburg, is visiting Mrs. William Shiverley.

The Board of Registry will meet in the Council room on March 3.

Colin Campbell is away on a business trip through the south.

The W. C. T. U. held a regular meeting yesterday.

NEW MARKET.

A large party from here enjoyed a straw ride in John Dayton's big box sled, to Scotch Plains, Wednesday night. A stop was made there and refreshments and a dance enjoyed before the return home was made. The ride was made merry by singing and playing on various musical instruments.

Justice VonMinden, of this place, is likely to go to Plainfield soon to open a law office as an opening has been made by the removal of a Plainfield lawyer.

The sleighing throughout the township is the best it has been in several years.

A meeting of Lakeside Council was held in the hall last evening.

The band met for regular weekly practice last evening.

Herbert Pierce was in Plainfield on business yesterday.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

As soon as the weather permits, Anthony Alberts will begin making a number of improvements on the baseball grounds. Several more lines of bleachers will be built back of the line erected as an experiment last season. The rear seat will be elevated so that it will be possible to see every play on the diamond. This improvement will be a welcome one for the fans as many who attended the games last season complained of the lack of seats, and will gladly pay the little extra change for the privilege of enjoying the game with comfort.

Wm. Guest, George Keuhn, Edw. Mooney, Bryant Johnston and John Maguire were initiated into the mysteries of the Jr. O. U. A. M., at the weekly meeting of Twilight Council last night. At the close the members enjoyed refreshments and a social hour over cigars.

Mrs. Ann Dobbins and family, who have been residing at Kearney for the past two years, will remove back to the village April 1, occupying Mrs. Dobbins property on Front street.

The smoker of Fanwood Council, R. A., will be held Wednesday evening of next week and not Tuesday as announced in last night's Press.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Vincent, of the borough, entertained the teachers of the Baptist Sunday-school at their weekly meeting last night.

Sleighing through this village and out on the county roads is the best that the lovers of the sport have enjoyed this winter.

A number of the young people of this village and Fanwood enjoyed a straw ride to Milburn, last night.

The Brookside Gun Club will hold a membership shoot on its grounds Monday afternoon.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The funeral service of Mrs. Mary A. Hoffman was held at her home yesterday morning, and was conducted by Rev. J. A. Cubberley. Mrs. Charles Brantingham, Mrs. David Lord, Mr. and Mrs. David Blackford, and Clarence Hoffman, accompanied the remains to Lebanon.

The Ladies' Aid Society met at the home of Mrs. R. B. Manning yesterday afternoon. The annual election of officers was delayed until the next meeting.

Miss Nellie Manning has been obliged to omit her school duties this week on account of illness. Miss Meta Soper is teaching in her place.

The funeral service of Miss May Randolph was held this afternoon, conducted by Rev. J. A. Cubberley. Interment was at Westfield.

The evangelistic meetings at the Baptist church will begin March 15 instead of March 1 as stated recently.

The interment of the body of David Vail took place at South Plainfield cemetery yesterday afternoon.

Conover Thorn, of Plainfield, visited his brother, Oscar, yesterday.

David Blackford made a business trip to Lebanon Wednesday.

COMMITTEE SURPRISED.

Didn't Know Its Efforts Were Generally Known About.

The special committee of five from the Grand Jury that is investigating the causes for the wreck on the New Jersey Central at Westfield, consists of John W. Murray, Jr., of Plainfield; Peter Tillman, of Rahway; Robert Houston, of Elizabeth; William R. Stanbery, of Scotch Plains, and Col. G. H. Sweet, of Linden. This committee met yesterday and considered additional evidence regarding the wreck. When approached for information concerning their deliberations, the members said that they disliked the publicity already given to their actions. The committee seemed greatly surprised to learn that it was generally known that such a committee was appointed for the purposes mentioned.

Changing His Store.

Among those who are making changes in their business locations in the borough is C. M. Sill, who recently established a branch paint store on Somerset street where Spencer H. Hall was located. He will move to 39 Somerset street where he has a larger store. This move is necessitated by the fact that he has recently closed his large paint and supply store in Rahway and intends to combine both interests in the borough.

THOSE WHO COME AND GO

NOTES CONCERNING PLAINFELDERS AND THEIR MANY GUESTS.

Some of Those That Go to Make Up the Day's Budget of Arrivals and Departures.

Miss Grace Emmons, of Jackson avenue, has returned from a visit with her sister in Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bushnell, of Central avenue, returned home yesterday after an extended absence.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Matthews, of Grove street, have returned home after spending ten days in New York.

J. Beckman, of Fairview avenue, has gone to New York on business and will be gone for a week or ten days.

William Pangborn, of Chatham street, has about recovered from his severe illness and is gradually gaining strength.

Daniel DeHart, janitor of the Taylor building, corner of Park and North avenues, is detained at home with a severe attack of the croup.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—There will be initiation at the regular meeting of Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., to be held in their rooms on West Second street, tonight.

—There will be an important meeting of the finance committee of the State Ancient Order United Workmen at Camden Monday. Grand Master Workman V. W. Nash and J. W. A. Bauersachs, of this city, will attend.

Best Wall Plaster.

What is claimed to be the best wall plaster on the market is now being sold in this city by Boice, Runyon & Company. It is called "Elastic Pulp" plaster and contains no sand or lime. A fibrous wood pulp made by a patented process imparts to it properties possessed by no other material for wall making. Other facts are given in an advertisement in this paper, or information will be furnished at the office of Boice, Runyon & Company.

Meeting of Young Men.

A meeting of the young men of Warren chapel was held Wednesday evening at the home of Charles Windham, of Fairview avenue. Important business in connection with the church was transacted and after the business meeting a social time was enjoyed when refreshments were served. Music was a feature of the evening's entertainment and some of the members present rendered vocal selections.

Rutgers Glee Club Coming.

The committee, which had the arrangements for the securing of the Rutgers Glee Club for an entertainment in this city for the benefit of the athletic association of the North Plainfield School, has made its report. The committee announces that the club will be in this city March 26 and will entertain in Y. M. C. A. Hall.

Sale at Stock Farm.

The personal property of the Plainview Stock Farm, owned by Mrs. Charlotte E. Wright, will be sold March 3 by Auctioneer William N. Pangborn. Mrs. Wright is selling out because she desires to retire from the business.

A Weak Stomach

causes a weak body and invites disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures and strengthens the stomach, and wards off and overcomes disease. J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Chriesman, Tex., says: "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and run down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefitted me, and after taking four bottles I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health." L. W. Randolph.

A FAMILIAR FACE HAS GONE

JACOB TINGLEY, OLD RESIDENT, HAS PASSED AWAY.

Was a Well-Known Carriage Maker in This City for a Number of Years.

In the death of Jacob Tingley, which occurred at his home in Washington Park, Wednesday, another one of the best known citizens has passed away. Mr. Tingley, who was in the eighty-sixth year of his age, lived in and near Plainfield all his life.

He was born in Washington Valley and for many years was a well-known carriage-maker, in which business he was successful. His home for a number of years was on West Fourth street, where Dr. Anderson now resides. A few years ago he sold the property to the physician and took up his residence in the borough. His health had been poor for a long time and his death was not unexpected. Mr. Tingley was a member of the Seventh-Day Baptist church and when able always attended services there.

The deceased is survived by a wife and daughter, the latter being Mrs. Chappel. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

Y. M. C. A. Athletics.

A meeting of the physical work committee of the Y. M. C. A. was held yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. building at 5:30, when Chairman John Valiant presided. Important matters were brought up for discussion.

Taking Father's Place.

Dr. T. H. Tomlinson is confined to his home by the grip and during his illness his son, Dr. Rolland D. Tomlinson, is caring for his patients. Dr. R. D. Tomlinson is from Atlantic City.

EIGHT WERE KILLED

Terrible Results of a Trolley Crash at Newark, N. J.

A SCORE SERIOUSLY INJURED.

Express Train Ran Into Car Filled With School Children at a Grade Crossing—Icy Tracks the Cause of the Tragedy.

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 20.—The official report places the number of dead in yesterday's terrible crossing accident at eight and the injured at nineteen. It is almost certain that several of those in the hospital cannot survive.

The accident occurred at the Clifton avenue crossing of the Lackawanna and Western railroad. A fast express cut through a trolley car crowded with school children, demolishing the car and scattering the inmates in every direction. Some of them were ground under the wheels of the engine. The motorman of the car, who stuck to his post, will die, and the engineer of the express was so badly hurt that there is little hope of his recovery.

Both the express and the trolley were on steep grades, going at right angles. The express was signaled and the crossing gates were lowered while the trolley car was yet halfway down the hill. The motorman shut off the power and applied the brakes, but almost immediately the car began to slip along the icy rails. It gained tremendous momentum and at the bottom of the hill crashed through the gates directly in the track of the oncoming train. The locomotive plowed its way through the trolley, throwing the children in every direction.

The dead are: Viola Ill, seventeen years; Maude Baker, sixteen years; Ernestine F. Mueller, fifteen years; Mabel H. Karschner, seventeen years; Alma Loehnberg, sixteen years; Rose bud Kohn; Ella Werpupp, nineteen years, and Evan L. Eastwood, Jr., sixteen years.

The accident happened within three blocks of the high school building, and in the car at the time were nearly 100 pupils. As many as thirty others had managed to throw themselves from the car before the crash came. The trolley was one of the specials which every day bring the children to school. It had more than its ordinary load owing to the cold. It contained every child that could squeeze inside, and others stood on the rear platform. Because this car had been so crowded many who were waiting for it before the hill was reached could not get on, although some climbed on the front platform with the motorman.

A score or more children were compelled to walk, and they followed the car afoot. They say that when the car was still less than halfway down the hill the railroad gates began to drop. Peter Brady, the motorman, promptly shut off the power and applied the brakes. The speed of the car was checked, but it continued to move slowly down the incline. There was no thought of danger. Then it began to move faster and faster. The ice covered rails afforded no hold for the wheels, and, although Brady jammed his brake harder and then swung on the reverse, the momentum of the car grew at every yard, and the car shot down toward the railroad.

When it was right at the gates, the express thundered into view. Warned by the cries of those afoot and by their own sense of danger, those on the platforms began to throw themselves off into the snow, and as the car sped along the few remaining feet toward the rails perhaps one-third escaped death or injury in this way, but there was no time for those within the car to do more than rush toward the rear door. The gates were swept aside like toothpicks and before the cracking of the gates died out came the crash. For thirty seconds before the air was filled with the frantic cries of those who saw death dashing down upon them.

The wreck of the trolley car was complete. The pilot of the engine struck it almost amidship and turned it partly around, and then the ponderous engine cut it in two. The upper part of the trolley car was reduced to fragments under the drivers of the locomotive. One-half of the car was thrown to one side and lay on the tracks. The other section was hurled some distance away. In every direction lay the injured and the dead. The engine was brought to a standstill, and from the train and from nearby houses men rushed to the rescue. The spectacle was appalling, and many who started to work had to give up unnerved.

Mitchell Refuses $4,000.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 20.—President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers has refused $4,000 by serving notice that he would not appear this year on the Chautauqua circuit. During the anthracite strike the Chautauqua alliance sent a representative to Mr. Mitchell to book him. At that time Mr. Mitchell held out some hope, and he was booked for twenty nights at $200 a night. He received the first place on the programmes of all the large assemblies, including Chautauqua and Wiconia. It is these engagements which he has canceled.

Record Temperature In New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Two degrees above zero was the low mark of the thermometer here. The weather bureau declares the day the coldest Feb. 19 on record. Poor people were the principal sufferers, the reports from the tenement districts showing much genuine distress. It is estimated that 1,000,000 cubic yards of snow have been carted from New York streets in the last few days.

THE NEW UNDERWEAR.

Corsets For Stout People—Full Corset Covers.

The corset should be tolerably high in the back, but slope off gradually until it is quite low in the front.

The front should be straight. This type of a corset if properly arranged draws in below the waist and sets out at the top, and, although the actual measurement of the waist is increased yet the figure looks smaller and the back and sides of the corset fit as closely as ever.

The new corset covers generally all show a very full blouse in front.

Petticoats of heavy black moire wear well and are serviceable for cool weather. They are fitted bell shape, with no extra fullness.

The newest stockings match the gowns with which they are worn and are very much embroidered.

The picture shows a dancing gown of white crepe de chine. It has the latest thing in skirts, wide folds from waist to hem, headed by fagoting.

EVENING DRESSES.

Sequined Effects Popular—The White Berthas.

Sequined gowns are quite popular this winter. One gown of white net had exquisite designs in mauve sequins and steel beads. Another, seen at the same dressmaker's, was in black and steel with incrustations of Paris lace and beautiful tiger lilies in black and white velvet.

The new veilings of white lisse with velvet patches are charming worn with black velvet toques having a drooping feather in white or black and white and a wisp of lace at the back caught with a pretty ornament in paste or steel.

The wide bertha and the fichu are in the height of style, but they are so arranged that they give a square appearance to the shoulders instead of the slope which, so alluring where it suits, makes some women appear so terribly dowdy.

The evening dress shown is of black chantilly lace over white chiffon and silk. JUDIC CHOLLET.

How to Relieve Toothache.

Equal parts of salt and alum or even salt alone placed on a piece of cotton wool and put in the aching tooth will often give relief when other means have failed.

A Knight of the Highway

By CLINTON SCOLLARD,

Author of "A Man at Arms," "The Son of a Tory," Etc.

Copyright, 1901, by J. B. Lippincott Company. All rights reserved.

"No," she exclaimed, "let me tell you and have it done with! He began maneuvering now so that I should not run towards the house, and he succeeded, for my foot slipped as I was leaping the outlet to the spring, and he would have seized me had I not fled down the logging-road."

She paused, and Rossiter caught at the opportunity to end all talk on so distressing a theme.

"I chanced to be in the logging-road, as you have heard me say," he put in quickly, addressing Miss Merton; "there was some scuffling between myself and Miss Densmore's pursuer, who finally stumbled and struck his head against a tree, where we left him unconscious."

They had reached the orchard by this time, and paused a brief space to let Miss Densmore rest. A few hop-pickers were lounging beneath the trees, munching the mellow fruit. They stared at Rossiter curiously, seeing him with the two girls, and exchanged idly speculative comments.

"Well, if that chap ain't a slick one!" one remarked. "I wonder how he worked it?"

"Give it up," said another. "I wish he'd tell us."

"He won't, never you fear. It's too good a thing."

"Suppose you ask him how it's done."

"An' git a smash in the 'mug?' Not much!"

The three were now walking on, and the observant pickers noted that they paused as they came to the hop-kiln.

"You'll hardly need me farther," Rossiter was saying, with a smile, for all had been making an attempt at gayety.

Miss Densmore extended her hand.

"Don't thank me!" he exclaimed, fearing she might try to frame some expression of gratitude.

Her lips quivered, and though she did not speak, he read in her eyes her unuttered feeling.

"Father and mother will have to know, but it will be better, I think, that no one else should," said Miss Merton.

"I should not dream of mentioning the matter unless you wished it," Rossiter said, and with a grave salutation he left them.

As he had walked by Miss Densmore's side he had determined that as soon as he saw the girls in safety to the house he would tell Jack Parmelee what had happened, and with him, and perhaps Joe Becraft or some other, return to the wood and secure Dawson, if he were still unconscious, or give pursuit in case the vagrant had recovered and taken himself off. But he now recognized Miss Merton's wisdom in desiring that the affair be kept quiet. The publicity which would, of necessity, be given to it all in case Dawson were caught and haled back to the farm would only serve to keep what had occurred fresh in Miss Densmore's mind, and that she might speedily recover from the shock it was best that nothing in connection with the scene in the wood be reverted to.

Towards evening Mr. Merton sought him out, and poured upon him a stream of grateful and, to Rossiter, embarrassing praise for his conduct. It was only when he launched upon a perhaps excusably profane denunciation of Dawson that the late wanderer began to feel comfortable in his presence. Gratitude in any form, as has been previously indicated, Rossiter was very far from being accustomed to. Whenever he was able to render a service it was his nature to do so free-heartedly, and neither to ask nor to desire a recompense of any sort. He knew, generally speaking, that he had little to give, but to that little anyone in need was wholly welcome. This was one of the man's most attractive characteristics. Yet in time gone by it was this very quixotic open-handedness that was in a measure responsible for his downfall.

During the next two days neither Miss Merton nor her cousin appeared in the hop-yard. On Tuesday, as he was coming from dinner, Rossiter chanced to see the former standing alone upon the porch, and ventured to inquire for Miss Densmore.

"She's feeling much better today," Miss Merton said. "Sunday night we were very anxious about her, fearing a return of the fever from which she recently recovered, but I'm sure there's no danger now. We shall be out shouting 'Hop-pole!' to you again very soon."

Miss Merton's prediction proved to be true, for on the following afternoon Rossiter saw the two girls coming towards the yard.

"Your holiday's over now," said Joe Becraft, near whom he chanced to be standing, with a little grin, "but I don't s'pose you mind."

Rossiter laughed good-humoredly, and hastened away to have a pole in readiness for the returning pickers. Indeed, he did not mind. Quite the contrary. Though he would hardly admit it to himself, the hours had many of them dragged sadly since Miss Merton and her cousin had been absent from the hop-field, and he felt a thrill of pleasure at their approach which it was useless to attempt to repress. Whither was he drifting? he asked himself.

Both girls greeted him with frank friendliness, and though he endeavored to maintain his former reserve, neither of them would have it so. Miss Densmore seemed quite herself, and as for Miss Merton, she was in the gayest of gay moods.

"Of course you've heard about the hop-dance!" she exclaimed. "It's to be one of the largest we have ever had. Sylvia's never seen one, and she's very curious about it. You're familiar with hop-dances, I suppose, Mr. Rossiter?"

"No," said Rossiter, "I can't say that I am."

In his college days a number of his companions were in the habit of attending these rustic frolics, but it chanced that he never had accompanied them.

"What! Why, how funny! But I forgot, you're not a farmer, are you? Well, you'll have a chance to see what a hop-dance is like. I've asked a few friends up from Hintonville, and we are going in for a grand good time, aren't we, Sylvia? We are expecting you'll ask us to dance, Mr. Rossiter."

"Dance!" cried Rossiter in bewilderment. Was the girl making game of him? Apparently not, for she seemed wholly in earnest.

"Certainly," she said in reply to his exclamation. "You dance, do you not?"

Rossiter was compelled to admit that he had danced.

"Then we shall feel very much slighted if you do not dance now, and if you neglect us," she added. "Won't we, Sylvia?"

"I am sure Mr. Rossiter is not accustomed to slight his friends," said Miss Densmore.

"But I haven't danced in a number of years, and—" began Rossiter.

He had heard the gayeties of the following night talked about among a number of the younger pickers—Mamie Becraft was in a twitter over them—but the gossip had meant nothing to him. He dance! It was absurd. Not that he lacked skill in the art. Once he had been considered the most accomplished, a partner who was welcomed by all whom he sought, but that was in another existence. He was surprised that Miss Merton and her cousin proposed joining in the free-and-easy rollickings of the hop-dance, but evidently the two girls were bent on a lark, and Miriam was doubtless eager to show Miss Densmore all the phases of the hop-harvest.

"You haven't completed your sentence," said Miss Merton. "That 'and' does not mean because you haven't danced in some time you won't dance now, I hope."

The pole-puller glanced down at his clumsy shoes and at his attire.

"People don't wear their finery at hop-dances," said Miss Merton.

Do You Wish To Borrow Money?

In order to accommodate all classes of borrowers (those who cannot borrow at a bank, as well as those who can), the Mutual Loan and Investment Company, of 118 Market street, Newark, N J., has a department for handling quickly and confidentially loans ranging from $10 to $500 on furniture, pianos, storage receipts, etc.

The security is not removed from your possession or in any way disturbed. The honest, careful and conservative borrower will try and decide two points before borrowing. First, where he can get the best terms. Second, where he can get fair and square treatment.

This company is in a position to give you by far the most satisfactory terms ever offered by any concern or individual negotiating this class of loans.

With this company you are assured of getting the lowest rates, easiest payments and longest time for repayment. The whole transaction from the time the application is made until loan is paid is entirely confidential. We give you another advantage in case you take the loan out for six months or a year, and wish to settle the same before the time expires: we charge you only for the time you have had the money. We also take up loans from other companies and advance more money.

Kindly call and let us explain our simple and up-to-date methods. If not entirely convenient for you to call, please write and our representative will call and give you any desired information. Remember it costs nothing to make application. Loans promptly made in Elizabeth, Plainfield, Westfield, Roselle, Rahway, Perth Amboy and all suburban towns.

ONLY THE BEST

Paint is usable. To be worth putting on it must be durable, and to be durable it must be top quality. The general war of wind, sun and rain upon houses knows no cessation or truce. Paint is the main defense. Put your faith in something that will not fail you. A reliable article at a top price is cheaper than something else sold way down.

SHAMROCK III.

New Yacht Approaching Completion. Some of the Points.

GLASGOW, Feb. 20.—Large gangs of workmen are rapidly pushing the completion of the Shamrock III. The challenger is designed to carry less sail than any challenger since Valkyrie III. All efforts have been turned toward the production of a yacht which will drive easily in all weathers, especially in turning to windward through a head sea, the lack of which quality proved fatal to Shamrock II. With this aim in view the challenger will be more shallow, fuller bodied, with a trifle more beam, wider aft and less overhang forward.

All the hollow steel spars are practically finished. The riggers are preparing the running and standing gear, and finishing gangs are working on the hull. The preparations for the launch are well under way.

No More Contract Jumping.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 20.—Over thirty baseball teams of Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey, New York and the District of Columbia were represented at the initial meeting in this city of the National League of Independent Baseball Clubs, the purpose of which is to prevent players from jumping their contracts. M. C. Rhone of Williamsport was elected president and Jesse M. Frysinger of Harrisburg secretary and treasurer. An agreement was entered into by all the clubs in the league not to offer inducements to each other's players to jump contracts. The first violation of this agreement will subject a club to a fine of from $50 to $100, and for the second offense the club is expelled, and no other club can play the offenders.

Ice Trotting at Glens Falls.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Feb. 20.—In spite of zero weather a good sized crowd attended the weekly race matinee on Lake George at Caldwell yesterday afternoon. The track was in fine condition. In the free-for-all Wyreka (Clothier), Glens Falls, won in three straight heats; Carrie D. (Crandell), Warrensburg, was second, and Vinco (Cunningham), Sandy Hill, third. Best time, 2:30¾.

Scotch Curlers Won.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Dr. John Kerr and his twenty-odd Scotch curlers, representing the Royal Caledonian Curling club of Scotland, defeated a combination of New York, Boston and Jersey City club representatives at the Hoboken skating rink, Hoboken, N. J., by a margin of eight shots. Five rinks in all were played, the total scores being: Royal Caledonians, 70; Americans, 62.

Racket Results.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—In the semi-final round of the amateur racket championship of the United States at the Racket and Tennis club Payne Whitney and Quincy A. Shaw, Jr., were the winners. In the first match Quincy A. Shaw defeated Lawrence Waterbury, and in the second Whitney showed his superiority over Morten S. Paton.

Harriman, who has been a prominent factor in the advancement of horse interests in this section of the state, announces that he will retire from the turf May 1, when his lease of the Orange County Driving park at Goshen expires. Ex-Senator John McCarty will succeed him at the park.

The Day at Ingleside.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 20.—There was a number of upsets at Ingleside. Only one favorite scored. Fine weather prevailed and the track was fast. Memoriam, the even money favorite in the two-year-old race, ran away from her field and broke the track record for three and a half furlongs by covering the distance in 41½ seconds.

Old Hutch and Sweet Alice.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Feb. 20.—The University of Pennsylvania basketball team was defeated last night by the Washington Continentals by a score of 15 to 14 in a hard fought fast game.

Goodwin Was a Defaulter.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20.—J. Gardner Cassatt, head of the banking house of Cassatt & Co., has given out a statement in which he says that Howard T. Goodwin, formerly confidential clerk of the firm, who committed suicide last December, was a defaulter to the extent of from $60,000 to $80,000. Goodwin killed himself in the company's office, and the cause of the act was never made public until now. Mr. Cassatt in his statement says that "Goodwin's downfall was due to his love of books. He was an enthusiast over rare editions and expensive bindings.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The "junior five" from the Park Club visited the Y. M. C. A., last evening, and won three straight games in a return bowling match. The first game was won by fifty-two pins, the score being 652 to 600. In the second game the home team tried very hard to win, but the youngsters held their own and won out with eighty-three pins to spare, the score being 792 to 709. In the third game the juniors won with thirty-five pins to spare, the score being 647 to 612. The visiting team was composed of J. Barlow, Curtis, W. Barlow, Overton and Rogers, and the representatives for the Y. M. C. A. were Long, Kirch, Koons, Spicer and Hummer. After the tournament there was a social hour and refreshments were served.

A CLUB HOUSE FOR ELKS

NEW BRUNSWICK LODGE PLANS TO HAVE ONE.

The Present Quarters Are Not Large Enough—Talk of Buying the Library Property.

Local members of the Lodge of Elks at New Brunswick will be interested in the movement now on foot to secure a club house of their own. This decision was arrived at at a meeting of the committee of fifteen which was held at the home of Edward Radel in New Brunswick Tuesday evening. Although there were various plans discussed no definite action was taken in the matter.

It was the consensus of opinion among the members of the lodge that a club house should be secured, whether to build or rent one is yet to be decided. The committee seems to favor buying a house. If such a course is followed the house will be fitted up with a bowling alley, billiard room, reception rooms, baths and, in fact, with everything which is to be found in an up-to-date club house.

The committee in charge of the matter consists of the past exalted rulers, chair officers and a few others. As the site and building now occupied by the Free Public Library of that city is for sale, it was decided to put in a bid for the property. This property is situated at the corner of George and Paterson streets and is an ideal location for such a club house. The lodge now meets on the top floor of the Tapkin building at the corner of Neilson and Church streets. They have richly furnished the rooms and they have one of the handsomest club rooms in this section of the State. Their present quarters are too small at present and it is necessary to secure larger rooms.

Painters Ball.

There was a good sized crowd last evening at Saengerbund Hall when the first annual ball of the Local No. 480, of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America was held. The music was furnished by Prof. O'Reilly and was very fine. The committee which had the arrangements in charge comprised: W. C. Tracey, chairman; George Garey, treasurer; E. T. Thomas, C. R. Hart and C. Trotter.

AUTO MEASURE THAT SUITS BOTH SIDES

Assemblyman Scovel Has a Compromise Bill for the Control of Autos.

INTRODUCED THIS WEEK

NEW MEASURE APPROVED BY AUTOMOBILE CLUB OF NEW JERSEY.

Provides for Careful Registry of Machines, But Eliminates Examination and License Features—The Other Provisions.

A compromise bill for restricting and regulating the speed of automobiles has been agreed upon and has been introduced this week by Assemblyman Scovel, of Camden, as a substitute for his measure now in the possession of the House committee on municipal corporations.

The bill was drafted and approved by the Automobile Club of New Jersey. The new bill defines and designates all motor vehicles, excepting trolley and steam cars and bicycles, as carriages within the meaning of the law, and gives them all the road and highway rights of other carriages, excepting as otherwise restricted by the measure.

This clause would allow of the running of autos in the Essex county public parks, where they are now excluded by the park commmissioners. No automobiles are to be allowed on speedways.

The original bill required all automobilists to pay a State license fee of $5 a year, and to pass an examination showing their efficiency in controlling the machines, before a State board, as a preliminary to the granting of licenses.

In the new bill no provision is made for any examination or license, the owner of an auto being required simply to file with the Secretary of State a written statement containing his name and address, with a description of the machine, and to pay a registration fee of $1.

A numbered certificate is to be issued to the owner, and a record is to be made in the office of the secretary of State, giving the name and address of the owner, his certificate number and the description of the machine.

The certificate number of the owner is at all times to be conspicuously displayed upon the side or back of the machine in letters at least three inches high.

A speed of ten miles an hour is to be allowed in sections where the houses are less than 100 feet apart, and twenty miles where the houses are less closely built. In the original bill it was proposed to restrict the speed on all streets and highways to fifteen miles an hour. No limitation is to be placed upon speed in the case of surgeons or physicians answering professional calls.

Every auto is to carry two white lights in front and a red light behind at night, and is to be equipped with proper brakes and horn, bell or other danger signal. Upon signal from any driver of a restive horse or horses, every auto driver is to stop his vehicle and remain stationary so long as may be necessary for the animal or animals to pass.

The bill provides a $50 fine for the violation of any of its sections, to be imposed by any justice of the peace, recorder or police magistrate. In default of the payment of fines, the convicted auto driver may be committed to jail. An appeal to the Court of Common Pleas is to be allowed to persons convicted under the act. All money collected from fines is to go to the support of the poor.

Final Social Affair.

Under the auspices of St. Mary's Guild of St. Stephen's church, Netherwood, the last social of the season, prior to Lent, was held in the rectory last evening. The affair was an informal one and was purely social. There was a good attendance of members of the parish. During the evening refreshments were served. The socials and entertainments will be continued after Lent.

The Easy Pill.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers do not gripe nor weaken the system. They cure biliousness, jaundice, constipation and inactive livers, by arousing the secretions, moving the bowels gently, yet effectually, and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach, liver and bowels that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely. These famous little pills exert a decided tonic effect upon the organs involved, and if their use is continued for a few days there will be no return of the trouble. L. W. Randolph.

ARMORY FOR COMPANY K

Assemblyman Newcorn's Bill Provides for Such Armory at the State's Expense.

COUNTY TO GIVE SITE

Bill is Now Before the Lower House of the Legislature—Limit of Cost of Armory Fixed at $50,000—Substance of the Newcorn Bill Now Before the House.

A most important bill has just been introduced in the lower house of the State Legislature by Assemblyman William Newcorn, whereby Plainfield is to have an armory to house Company K, provided the bill becomes a law. Assemblyman Newcorn hopes to secure the passage of the bill by proving that Plainfield's military company should have a proper place to drill. It is quite safe to presume that all of the Union county represenatives will vote for the bill when it comes up in the Assembly. While the measure is intended to take in the whole State, it principally applies to Plainfield.

It is an act to provide for the acceptance of sites for and the erection and equipment of a company armory in cities, towns, boroughs, townships and all other muncipalities of this State wherein is or hereafter shall be located the headquarters of a company of the National Guard of this State. It further provides that where a site for such armory is given in fee-simple suitable for a company armory, it shall be lawful for and the members of the military board of the State of New Jersey are appointed and authorized for the purposes of this act to accept on behalf of and in the name of the State, without expense to said State, a plot of land suitable for the erection of such armory.

The act further provides that the county collector in any county of New Jersey shall, whenever a written notice shall be served upon him by the military board, setting forth that a title to such property has been acquired, notify the Board of Chosen Freeholders of said action and the latter body shall set apart for the use of the military board out of the county money such amount as is required by the military board to meet the appropriation for the proposed armory. It gives the Board of Freeholders the right to issue bonds at a rate of interest not to exceed 4 per cent. per annum. This money is to be used in the equipment and maintenance of the armory, and it shall not exceed $10,000.

The measure still further provides that the military board shall obtain by competition or otherwise plans and specifications for the construction of such armory, the same not to exceed in cost $50,000. Before this expenditure is made there must be given a title of the land showing it to be free from all incumbrances, certified by the attorney-general. After suitable plans are procured by the State Military Board, this body is empowered to proceed with the erection of such armory. The work is to be done by contract awarded to the lowest bidder after not less than two weeks' public notice of the time and place when and where bids therefor will be received. The bids are to be opened publicly, but the military board shall have the right to reject any or all bids and advertise anew for bids. The military board is also given the power to employ proper and capable persons to superintend the erection of any such works and such clerical and other aid as it may need.

The comptroller of the State is authorized to draw his warrants on the State treasurer and the latter shall pay the same from time to time as the military board shall certify to the comptroller to be necessary, but not more than $50,000 in any one year shall be drawn, provided no money shall be paid from the State treasury for the purposes aforesaid until the warrants shall be placed in the yearly appropriation bills.

Mock Trial.

Something novel as well as instructive is being planned for the entertainment of the members of the Retail Clerks' Association, Monday night. A mock trial will be the principal feature of the evening. Who the judge will be and what the nature of the trial is is a matter of conjecture among the clerks. No one will know who is to be called upon as a witness or judge until the meeting is called.

WRECK VICTIMS STILL CONFINED TO HOMES

Several Are Reported to be Still in a Very Serious Condition.

THE OTHERS IMPROVING

MISS SIMONSON AND MISS EVERETT ARE STILL IN SERIOUS CONDITION.

Miss Pangborn is Improved, But Not Yet Able to be Out—Many Are Still Suffering From the Shock of the Wreck.

It is now almost a month since the great railroad wreck at Westfield occurred and still some of the victims who received injuries are confined to their homes. Yesterday afternoon a reporter of The Daily Press visited the homes of some of those who were injured with a view of ascertaining their condition.

Miss Evelyn Simonson, of 151 Duer street, who received injuries which were at first thought to be trivial has been confined to her bed ever since January 27. She is suffering from an injury to the spine and is still unable to see anyone.

She has been placed in a plaster of paris cast and is said to be in a serious condition. Mrs. Simonson said when the reporter called that her daughter had not been able to see any of her friends and that, while she is somewhat improved, she is still not out of danger.

Miss Carrie Pangborn, who received bruises and cuts and who has been confined to her home on Linden avenue since the wreck, is now able to be up but she is still suffering from the shock. She still complains of pain in the right shoulder and feels the nervous shock sustained. She expects to be able to be out again by the first of the month but it will probably be several weeks longer before she is able to attend to her duties in New York.

All the other patients, who are at their homes, are reported as doing nicely although they are suffering from the shock and from the effects of the injuries sustained.

Miss Mildred Everett, of Somerset street, is said to be in a serious condition and is still weak. She has received, it is believed, internal injuries.

WEDDED HERE.

Miss Beulah Waters Became Wife of John Raleigh, of Westerley, R. I., at Quiet Ceremony Yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Erwin Waters, of East Third street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Beulah May, to John Raleigh, of Westerley, R. I. The ceremony was performed, yesterday morning, at the home of Rev. L. R. Howard, of West Fifth street. The only attendants were Mrs. Howard and Miss Gussie Klinsman, a friend of the bride.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Raleigh left for Westerley where they will make their home. The groom has been an employe of the Scott Press Works and prominent in local athletics.

Attended Mr. Taylor's Funeral.

Nearly all of the officials of the Hibbard-Rodman-Ely Safe Works, as well as those from the Taylor Iron and Steel Works, of High Bridge, attended the funeral services of the late W. J. Taylor held at Bound Brook yesterday afternoon. Mr. Taylor was one of the active members of the Taylor Iron and Steel Works and he was highly esteemed by all who knew him.

Another Class Necessary.

Owing to the overcrowded condition of the new public school at East Bound Brook it has been found necessary to establish a new class. Miss Bessie Tappan, of Piscataway, has been engaged as the teacher for the new class. This school was only recently started by the consolidation of several others in New Jersey.

Matinee for Boys.

The matinee to be given for the benefit of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., Monday afternoon, will be under the direction of Martin A. Korff. The entertainment will consist of music by members of the Y. M. C. A. orchestra, vocal and instrumental solos and chorus work.

—Miss Leighton, of the local telephone office, returned to her position yesterday after being detained at home several days by illness.

SMALLEY WILL BE NOMINATED

No Question Now As to Renomination of Present Mayor by Borough Republicans.

ISSUES HAVE CHANGED

Friends of Mayor Smalley, For and Against Annexation, Demand His Nomination—"Antis" May Have a Candidate on the Democratic Ticket—The Situation.

Here is the borough election only a trifle more than two weeks off and not a candidate named by either side. There is plenty of talk, has been for over a month, but neither side has seemed over-anxious to take the initiative. A month ago it was quite evident that Mayor N. B. Smalley would be a candidate for re-election, now it is positive that he will be chosen. From the way in which events are shaping themselves it is not out of the way to predict that he will receive the nomination from the Republicans with practically no opposition at the hands of his enemies in his own party.

Although nothing has been done in the past month to formally select a candidate, the borough of North Plainfield has been a busy place. When the election of a mayor to succeed Mr. Smalley was first talked of this winter, the general idea seemed that the lines would be drawn similarly to those of the special election on annexation. The possibility of the "antis" securing a majority at the Republican primary was even discussed and it was said that, in that event, there might be an independent ticket. There have been changes, however, since that time and no independent ticket is thought of now. It seems generally conceded that the Republicans of the borough will demand the renomination of Mayor Smalley.

The cause of all this is that while there are a number of Republicans in the borough who did not agree with Mayor Smalley on the annexation question, they are still of the opinion that he is the best man for the place and that he should be returned in order to carry to a successful culmination the plans he has already started. Although he may differ with them on the one question, they believe that he has the interests of the borough at heart and that he will administer its affairs for its best interests, no matter the fate of the greater city scheme. Then there are a number who have changed their minds regarding the annexation question and have come over to take the Mayor's view of the situation. All these things have combined to bring about this change.

With this change in feeling it is natural that the issues should change as well. Annexation is not going to be the preeminent feature. The fight will rather hinge on the personality of Mayor Smalley and the record he has made during the four years he has been Chief Executive of the borough. Of course, there is no doubt that the bitterness engendered in the annexation campaign will come to the fore in some cases. But there were many who opposed Mayor Smalley in that fight from honest conviction and without hard feeling. They are now perfectly willing to line up for him on this occasion as they have done so many times before.

There will be a Democratic candidate for mayor. From present appearances the choice rests with two men although a "dark horse" is always a possibility. Early in the winter, the name of David J. Carney was mentioned for the place. He has been talked of since that time and it was generally understood that he would accept the nomination if tendered to him. While there would be little chance of election against Mayor Smalley with only two men in the race, the nomination would give him considerable political prestige in the county.

Since it has been realized that the lines drawn in the annexation fight would not split the Republican party against itself and give the "antis" a fair chance of capturing the primary, some of the "anti" Democrats have felt that their party should nominate a man particularly identified with the opposition to the greater city scheme with a view of rallying to their standard those Republicans who would be willing to oppose Mayor Smalley on annexation lines. For these bor-

OVERCOME BY COAL GAS

Three Young Women, Employed at Brookside, Had Narrow Escape From Death.

WHILE THEY SLEPT

New Engineer Was Not Accustomed to Furnace, and Allowed Gases to Pass Through Conduit Into the Building Occupied by the Young Women.

Three young women, in the employ of the Brookside Sanitarium, had a thrilling experience early Friday morning and had it not been for one of the number being awakened by a slight noise, all three would have probably been asphyxiated by escaping coal gas while they slept.

The apartments of the servants are in a separate building from the Sanitarium. Heat is supplied to the rooms by means of an underground conduit which is connected with the furnace in the main building. A new engineer was employed at the sanitarium recently and he was not accustomed to the manipulating of a furnace of the kind used.

In banking the fire the gases were sent up through the flues and into the rooms occupied by the servants. Two of them were almost suffocated by the poisonious gases when the third awakened and alarmed the rest of the household. She then lapsed into unconsciousness.

When the alarm was spread Dr. T. S. Davis was called and he worked for some time over the unconscious forms of the suffocated ones until signs of life appeared. All are progressing favorably. The names of the servants would not be given out at the sanitarium this morning.

ITHACA ASKS QUESTIONS

WANTS TO KNOW WHO INSTALLED PLAINFIELD'S WATER SYSTEM.

Telegram Received From Ithaca Daily News Making Inquiries As to Local Plant.

Plainfield's famous water supply and the system used in obtaining it is well-known throughout the east, and further evidence of this was given yesterday in the following telegram received in this city from the Ithaca Daily News:

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 1903.

Superintendent Plainfield Water Works,

Please wire at once name and address of engineer who installed your water system.

Ithaca Daily News.

There is much consternation in Ithaca over the water supply and the prevalence of typhoid fever, and it is the opinion of the officials of the water company in this city that Ithaca learned of Plainfield's system indirectly through a sermon preached last Sunday by Rev. Cornelius Schenck, wherein he referred to Plainfield's water supply.

Louis L. Trebus, of New York, had charge of the construction of the Plainfield system, while E. C. Bridges was the resident engineer. Mr. Brush, of New York, who installed the system, has since died.

Entertained Her Friends.

Miss Tina Voehl entertained a number of young people at her home on Somerset street, last evening, and the hours were pleasantly spent in playing games and listening to music. Refreshments were served during the evening. The party comprised a sleigh load from Elizabeth, which was arranged by Wm. Miles, of that city.

He Preaches Again.

Those who heard Rev. Clarence Gallup, of Albany, preach at the First Baptist church last Sunday, will be pleased at the opportunity to hear him again tomorrow. Mr. Gallup is a talented divine and his sermons last Sunday have attracted considerable attention.

The Only Increase in Borough Budget Fixed Last Night by the Borough Council.

THE SEWER QUESTION

Annual Reports Received at Last Session of the Retiring Council—Discussion of Questions of Interest to the Borough—Fixing of the Tax Budget.

The reading of annual reports, making up the ensuing year's budget and discussing matters of interest to the municipality occupied the attention of the Borough Council at an adjourned meeting, last evening. While several of the latter were of importance, pertinent remarks in regard to the borough's need of a sanitary sewer, made by Mayor Smalley, took precedence and resulted in many favorable opinions being given. They were put in such a light that the Council will undoubtedly take decided action, once reorganization is effected after the coming election.

According to the report of the clerk the total receipts for the year were $78,361.31 and the disbursements for all purposes $78,233.43, leaving a balance of $127.88. Briefly the other reports as submitted by the respective chairmen of the committees were as follows: Streets, disbursements, $5,-227.67, receipts, $155.47; poor account, disbursements, $900; police department, salaries, special marshals, meals and committments, clothing, repairs and sundries, $3,031.20; fire department, $1,320.86; fire department, $1,320.86. In connection with the police report, Chairman Lee stated that during the year there had been 122 arrests, eight had been committed to Somerville and two deported to Ireland and $226 in fines had been collected.

The salaried officers of the borough were given as follows: George F. Brown, collector, $1,200; Elston M. French, assessor, $600; Frank Rowley, clerk, $500; Charles A. Reed, counsel, $350; Albert Pittis, physician, $125; Thomas Doud, recorder, $200; W. G. Debele, overseer of the poor, $150.

With one exception, in preparing the budget, the amounts asked for were practically the same as last year and they were readily granted. Chairman Arnold, of the street committee, asked for $6,000, an increase of $1,000. Several of the councilmen were inclined to demur until he explained that it was the purpose of his committee during the coming twelve months to open up Watchung avenue from its present terminus further northward, and macadamize Pearl and Stone streets and Steiner place, beside making considerable repairs. His request was granted.

The budget complete amounts to $20,800 and Mr. Nichols proposed that the amount be raised by taxation. The details follow: Fire, $2,000; streets, $6,000; lights, $5,000; water, $1,300; poor, $1,000; incidentals, $1,-000; Watchung avenue bonds, $1,000; police, $3,000; Somerset street widening, $500.

Borough Counsel Reed reported to the Council that he had been informed that all appeals in regard to the dispute over assessments on bank stock had been withdrawn from the State Board of Taxation and that the borough would be saved any law suits. It was the concluding item of business and the Council adjourned.

IMPROVING STORE.

B. J. Schreiner Making Plans for Extensive Improvements to Place.

Bert J. Schreiner, proprietor of the drug store at the corner of Park avenue and Second street, is about to have the place entirely renovated and redecorated. The contract has been awarded to the New York Painting and Decorating Company and it will commence work Monday.

The interior of the store will be decorated with white and gold and the ceiling will be of the stencil variety. It will be one of the most completely decorated places in this city.

Disposed of Household Goods.

Auctioneer Latourette disposed of all the household goods at the home of the late Ethan Lanphear, corner of Central avenue and Fifth street, this week, obtaining good prices. The sale was very largely attended.

NEVER RECOVERED FROM SHOCK OF DISASTER

Miss Julia Simonson, Sister of One of the Injured, Died at Her Home Last Night.

HAD HEART TROUBLE

SHOCK OF ACCIDENT AND HER SISTER'S INJURY AGGREVATED THE TROUBLE.

Young Woman, of Borough, Passed Away Last Evening—Was Active Worker in Holy Cross Church—Leaves Sisters and Brothers.

Miss Julia A. Simonson, sister of Miss Evelyn Simonson, who was seriously injured in the wreck at Westfield on January 27, died at the home of her parents at 151 Duer street, last evening at 8:45. Death was caused by heart trouble aggravated by the terrible railroad catastrophe and the shock sustained when her sister was brought home injured.

Miss Simonson was the eldest daughter of Mrs. C. A. Simonson. She was formerly employed in a large banking concern in New York but on account of her illness she was obliged to resign her position recently. While in good health Miss Simonson was actively interested in the work of the young people at The Church of the Holy Cross, of which she was a member.

She is survived by her mother, two sisters and two brothers, who are: Evelyn, who received severe injuries in the wreck and who is still confined at her home; Laura, Cornelius E., and John Simonson. She was twenty-five years of age and was very well-known in this city as well as in Staten Island where she formerly lived with her parents.

The funeral will be held Monday evening at 8 o'clock and will be private. The interment will be in Fairview cemetery, West Brighton, S. I., Tuesday morning.

NEW SCHOOL.

Somerville at Last Votes Funds for the Erection of a New School House.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 21—It really looks at last as if Somerville is to have better school facilities, which are so much needed. At a citizens' meeting called Thursday night by the Board of Education it was voted 119 to 48 to appropriate $24,000 for the erection of a brick school building in the rear of the large school house on High street and to make necessary repairs to the present structure.

Another proposition, to buy a lot and erect and furnish a school house in East Somerville at a cost of $10,-000, was voted down by 96 ballots to 62.

Wm. V. Steele was chairman of the meeting and John Eick, secretary.

JURY COULDN'T DECIDE.

So Question Between Landlord and Tenant Remains Unsettled.

A twelve man jury in Justice Moffett's court, Thursday, failed to agree as to whether Mrs. Louisa Apgar should vacate premises occupied by her and owned by Charles H. Hand. It is understood the jury stood eight to four in favor of Mrs. Apgar.

The case is a novel one and involves a question of the landlord living up to an agreement. Mrs. Apgar alleges that when she took the premises it was with the understanding Hand was to furnish the fuel and heat. She declares that was not done and doing it herself, she withheld a month's rent. Her counsel was S. S. Swackhamer while I. P. Runyon appeared for Hand. The case will be re-tried.

OLD RESIDENCE MAKES BIG FIRE

A Defective Chimney Starts a Blaze That Causes $6,000 Damage Before Put Out.

FOUR PEOPLE ESCAPE

Netherwood Home of R. B. Potts, on East Seventh Street, Caught Fire Late Yesterday Afternoon—Roof All Ablaze When Discovered—The House Gutted.

More than the usual number of thrilling incidents attended a fire which broke out at 4:45, yesterday afternoon, and practically destroyed the large two story and attic dwelling on East Seventh street, owned by Mrs. H. A. Lozier and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Potts. It was only after great difficulty and by doubling teams that the department apparatus made its way through the snow to the scene and while fighting the conflagration several firemen, including Chief Doane, narrowly escaped with their lives through a falling chimney. Three hours were required to conquer the flames and by that time the damage had reached $6,000, one-half of which is on the furniture of the family.

The blaze evidently originated from a defective chimney, which ignited the dry timbers in the attic. It had been burning for a long period despite the fact that plumbers were working on the second floor and was discovered from the outside just as they were leaving. The alarm was sent in from box No. 28 by Peter Uhdal.

When the department arrived after an unusually hard run, the road being uphill and the streets filled with snow, the entire upper part of the building was in flames. The chemical did effective service and two lines of hose, one with the steamer attached, threw water into the building.

Driver Fred Breem and Callman James McLean had ascended to the second story with the chemical stream when Chief Doane noticed a chimney which seemed likely to fall in their direction. He hurried to the second floor and warned the men of their danger. He ordered them to the head of the stairs when he thought they would be safe. Descending again, the Chief met Assistant Chief Jennings in the hall and directed him to take command of the efforts being made in the rear of the house. The two men had just passed out, one at the front door and the other at the rear, when the chimney fell and carried down with it the entire second floor hall.

Chief Doane had supposed that the beams in the hall ran cross wise and that the two firemen would be safe if they stood beyond the range of the chimney. It so happened, however, that the beams ran the length of the hall and the falling chimney carried the entire hall down with it. Just after Chief Doane had left the men on the upper floor, they noticed a light in a side room and stepped in there. No sooner were they inside the door than the chimney came down. The hose was dragged from their grasp. They made their exit by a window and a ladder.

The men supposed of course that Chief Doane had been buried beneath the ruins while he thought that his orders had sent the men to their death. There was a scurrying on the part of the survivors to dig out the supposed victims. It was a joyful surprise to all concerned when they met face to face while looking for assistance to dig each other out of the debris.

Several of the other department members had narrow escapes while but few escaped without cuts and bruises from falling bricks. It was shortly after 8 o'clock before Chief Doane sounded the reall.

Mr. and Mrs. Potts were in New York at the time but on learning of the fire by telephone hurried to this city. They have been married but a short time and all their furniture was valuable wedding presents. But little was saved, the articles that were taken out being the property of Mrs. Lozier, who is now in Phoenix, Arizona. Mr. Potts places his loss at $3,000 on which there is $2,600 insurance. This does not include considerable jewelry which has not yet been located.

The loss on the building is at least $3,000 and may be more. It is partially covered by insurance. It was known as the Meeker property and was about 150 years old.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE DOING

SOME BRIEF PARAGRAPHS OF A PERSONAL NATURE.

Many Folk of Greater Plainfield Are Entertaining or Being Entertained.

Miss Cora Hand, of Elmwood place, has about recovered from her recent illness.

J. E. Townsend, of Fifth street, has returned home after a week's stay in Boston.

Edward Shearer, of West Front street, is detained at home with an attack of the grip.

Mrs. Robert Zerkibel, of Warrenville, is quite ill at her home. Dr. Zeglio is in attendance.

J. B. Higgins, of West Front street, is confined to his home by an illness bordering on pneumonia.

A. C. Hoagland, of Park avenue, who has been enjoying a week's vacation, will return to his duties Tuesday.

Peter C. Wagner, of Clinton, who is visiting his daughter, Mrs. John Apgar, of East Front stret, is ill with the grip.

Miss Mabel Symons, of the local telephone office, was again taken ill, yesterday, and was obliged to go home. She has the grip.

Muhlenberg Hospital physicians report the condition of John Schenck as being much improved. He is slowly returning to full consciousness.

J. B. Higgins, of West Front street, is quite ill with pneumonia. Mrs. Higgins is also detained at home by illness, having an attack of the grip.

William J. DuMont, of Passaic, is the guest of friends on West Fourth street. He leaves shortly for the south where he will spend the summer on a large tobacco plantation.

William Heffernan, of New Brunswick, was in this city, Wednesday evening and visited his friend, Patrolman James Totten. Mr. Heffernan is a special police officer in New Brunswick and is very well known in this city where he has visited on numerous occasions.

THEATRICAL.

Even with the extra matinee on Lincoln's birthday that was given the past week at Wallack's, that cosy theatre where George Ade's megry "Sultan of Sulu" is proving the strongest operatic magnet on Broadway, was unable to accommodate the immense crowds that wanted to see clever Frank Moulan as droll Sultan Ki-Ram. It is the talk along Broadway that "The Sultan of Sulu" is one of the greatest successes in New York in years. This week will close the second month of the engagement and the house has been packed to the doors every night since "The Sultan" began his popular reign last December. There will be another holiday matinee Monday for Washington's birthday.

Many great theatrical successes have been made in New York during the past five years, but none of them has approached, either in magnitude, merit or public interest, Klaw & Erlanger's colossal production of the Drury Lane spectacle, "Mr. Blue Beard," now running at the Knickerbocker Theatre. Since its opening performance, Wednesday evening, Jan. 29, it has played to the utmost capacity of the house with the largest advanced sale ever known in New York to its credit. "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast," its predecessor, presented in New York last year, made a tremendous hit, but every indication points to "Mr. Blue Beard" eclipsing even its wonderful record for attendance. The latter production is larger, both in the number of people employed and in scenic equipment, and is far more spectacularly gorgeous.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

In the last issue of the Railroad Employe, there appears the following item bearing on the recent wreck at Westfield on the New Jersey Central:

"Vice President and General Manager Besler of the New Jersey Central, in a letter written recently to the clerk of the Westfield, N. J. fire department, expresses the appreciation of his company for the services rendered by the department in the recent fatal wreck at that place, and extends an invitation to the members and their wives to a trip to some point along the line in the spring as the guests of his company.

"To those who know the Central's genial vice president best, this act is entirely in keeping with the methods he employs in every day life and is a practical way of showing appreciation where appreciation is due, and this is only one of the many kind things he is continually doing, both as relating to his connection with his subordinates in the Central's service and the general public. Mr. Besler is, as predicted by the Employe when he first assumed charge of New Jersey Central affairs, essentially the right man in the right place."

In Case of Accident.

Accidents will happen. Mother strains her back lifting a sofa. Father is hurt in the shop. Children are forever falling and bruising themselves. There is no preventing these things, but their worse consequences are averted with Perry Davis' Painkiller. No other remedy approaches it for the relief of sore strained muscles. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'.

Asked If He Would Fight Corbett, Champion Behaves Queerly.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 21.—James J. Jeffries received a telegram here asking him if he would accept a proposition to fight James J. Corbett at Carson City for the heavyweight championship of the world, the division of the purse to be decided on later.

As soon as the champion had read the telegram he said that it was the first direct proposition for a mill with Corbett that he had received. He then jumped on a train and left for Richmond, Ind., saying that he might have something to say later.

Jeffries' action made a very unfavorable impression among the local sporting fraternity. The impression prevails that the champion, in sporting parance, is "ducking."

Vignaux Won Sixth Game.

PARIS, Feb. 21.—Vignaux (French) won the sixth game in the international billiard championship tournament played here last evening, defeating Louis Cure (French) in twenty-one innings. The score was 500 to 403. Vignaux's victory was greatly applauded, but makes him, Sutton and Cure even, as each has won two games and lost one, necessitating a final series, which will be played on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday next.

Scotch Curlers Won.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—By a total score of 72 to 54 the visiting curlers from the Royal Caledonian club of Scotland defeated a combination of American players from Boston, New York and Jersey City clubs in their farewell bonspiel at the St. Nicholas Skating rink. Eight rinks were played, most of which consisted of nine heads, and of these the Scotch experts won five and lost three.

Many Accidents at Ingleside.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21.—The steeplechase at Ingleside was a chapter of accidents, only two horses finishing. The race was between Mike Rice, the favorite, and Dagmar, the first named winning handily. Imperious fell at the last jump, but the boy remounted and took third money. Bear Catcher won the two-year-old race in the fast time of 48 seconds. Only one favorite won.

Gould to Coach Naval Eleven.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 21.—The Naval academy athletic association has selected Charles Gould, left end and captain of Yale's 1901 team, as head coach of the academy football eleven for 1903. Other coaches will be selected later by approval of Mr. Gould, who will have full charge of the team.

New Orleans Races.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 21.—Wealth, Old Hutch and Carl Kahler were the winning favorites. Chickadee, favorite in the fifth, was beaten by Pollock's weak ride. Stratton II. was claimed out of the last race by F. Gering, Jr., for $1,385. Weather cloudy and cool; track fast.

Ice Racing at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 21.—The ice races yesterday consisted of a special race and a 2:35 pace and trot. Both were well contested. The 2:35 was won by Dan Phinister (J. Aldores), Fenelon Falls, N. Y., and the special race was unfinished.

Pennsylvania Defeated Hamilton.

CLINTON, N. Y., Feb. 21.—The basketball team of the University of Pennsylvania defeated Hamilton college by the score of 36 to 9.

Girl Stricken With Blindness.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Annie Collins, fourteen years old, a pupil in the high school in Flushing, was suddenly stricken blind while sitting at her desk. The girl was apparently reading a book when she suddenly dropped her head on her desk. She remained in that position for some moments and when asked what was the matter replied without raising her head, "Oh, I cannot see." A physician stated after making an examination that he could not tell whether the girl would be permanently blind or not. Her affliction is believed to be the result of overstudy.

Freight Wreck Blocks Central.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 21.—Train traffic south and north on the New York Central was completely tied up for more than an hour by a wreck here. Two fast freight trains met in a head on collision, and five cars and two engines were completely shattered, while one car flew into the Hudson river. No one was hurt.

Pacific Coast Blockade Raised.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 21.—Transcontinental trains between Omaha and the Pacific coast are running again on schedule time after one of the worst battles with blockades ever experienced.

Forest of Vallombrosa Afire.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—According to an agency dispatch from Florence the forest of Vallombrosa is on fire. The Villa Medici has been destroyed.

Weather Probabilities.

Increasing cloudiness, fresh east winds.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

A new wage schedule was issued by the Wabash.

A fire at Houghton, Mich., caused a loss of $180,000.

A negro desperado who barricaded himself in a house at New Orleans and defied arrest was killed by the police.

Two members of the freshman class were expelled from Princeton for violating honor system in examinations.

A gift of $350,000 to the Columbia Teachers' college in New York city from Mrs. Frederick F. Thompson was announced.

THE TREATY HOLDUP

Morgan and Quay Block Senate's Progress.

A CLOSURE RULE SEEMS PROBABLE

Night Sessions Abandoned by Steering Committee—Leaders of Statehood Willing to Assume Responsibility of Extra Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The senate spent the entire day in executive session considering the Panama canal treaty and at 5:25 p. m. took a recess until today at 11 o'clock. No vote was taken on any of the amendments which have been prepared by Senator Morgan.

After Senator Morgan had spoken for an hour or more he gave way to Mr. Quay, but before the latter had well begun Senator Carmack moved that Senator Morgan be allowed to discuss the canal question in open senate. In support of the motion he said that the question was of general importance and that the country should be placed in possession of the details.

The motion brought on a general debate, in which the rules of the senate, the advisability of closure, the necessity of maintaining in the senate a forum of free speech and many other kindred topics were discussed. Among those who spoke were Senators Spooner, Teller, Depew, Hale and Bacon, most of whom opposed Mr. Carmack's motion for open doors on the ground that it was not expedient to air our relations with other countries before the world at large. The speakers differed widely, however, as to the expediency of the policy of delay which it was freely charged is now being pursued in connection with the Panama treaty on the one hand and with the statehood bill on the other.

Some of the senators avowed themselves advocates of a rule of closure. Others expressed the conviction that prolongation of the present situation would lead to the speedy adoption of such a rule.

At this point Mr. Quay rose and, expressing impatience with the interruption, asked leave to proceed with his speech. No one objected, and the course of the controversy was shifted without putting Mr. Carmack's motion to a vote.

Mr. Quay's speech consisted of a long report on the isthmian canal question. This reading he asked the clerk at the desk to perform, but objection was made, and the matter was submitted to a vote. The result was adverse to Mr. Quay's request, the vote standing 20 to 34. He then began the reading of the document himself and continued for two hours or more.

At 5:30 o'clock, in accordance with a decision of the steering committee, Senator Cullom moved a recess, and the motion prevailed.

This decision of the steering committee against a night session was reached at a meeting of the committee held during the afternoon at the request of Senator Cullom, who has the Colombian, otherwise known as the Panama canal, treaty in charge.

Inquiry about the senate made the opposition apprehensive, though not convinced, of this claim, and in the committee they said that should such be the case it would mean an extra session of congress, and the appropriation bill with the statehood rider would be defeated. It also was found that leaders in the statehood fight were willing to assume the responsibility for this outcome.

With this situation before them the steering committee began to discuss the possibility of a compromise. Senators Quay and Elkins and other Republicans who have been favoring the statehood bill were called in and the matter canvassed at some length, but without approaching an agreement.

The house passed the fortifications appropriation bill, adopted the conference reports on the bill for the protection of the president and on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill and then spent three hours wrangling over the Fowler currency bill.

President Signed Elkins Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The president has signed the Elkins rebate bill. With the signing of this measure the administration's antitrust programme for this session of congress is completed.

Compromise on the Santa Fe Line.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 21.—It appears now that the Santa Fe will be able to make a compromise with the conductors and trainmen, who seek an increase of wages. The men demand an advance of 20 per cent. It is understood that the company is willing to give 12 per cent, and the probability is that a compromise will be effected and the men will be given an increase of 15 per cent.

Fatal Explosion in Granite Quarry.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 21.—A premature explosion at Stewart's granite quarry, two miles south of this city, caused the death of three negro workmen and the injury of several others. The force of the explosion was so great that it shook every house in Columbia, although the city is on a bluff 100 feet above the level of the quarry.

Costly Blaze in Duluth.

DULUTH, Minn., Feb. 21.—The shops of the Northwestern boiler works have been burned. They were owned by M. A. Ryan, whose loss is $100,000, without insurance.

No Choice in Oregon.

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 21.—The twenty-eighth ballot of the joint session for the United States senator resulted as follows: Fulton, 33; Geer, 28; Wood, 7; scattering, 10.

LEO'S JUBILEE KEPT

Twenty-fifth Anniversary of Pontificate Celebrated.

BRILLIANT SCENE AT THE VATICAN

Congratulations From All Parts of the World Showered Upon His Holiness—Rich Gifts Accompany Addresses.

ROME, Feb. 21.—The twenty-fifth anniversary of the election of Leo XIII. to be the head of the Roman Catholic church was celebrated in the Vatican hall of the Beatification.

Admission was only by ticket, and about 5,000 persons were present. The majority of these stood in the Regia hall and Ducale hall. The ceremony consisted in the pope receiving delegations of pilgrims from all parts of the world. This was followed by the presentation of gifts to his holiness, chief of which was a magnificent triple crown, the offering of Roman Catholics throughout the world.

As the pope looked from a window of his apartments in the morning into the sunlit piazza of St. Peter's he exclaimed:

"It seems impossible that it is twenty-five years since I have been there."

This was the pontiff's only reference to his long term of self imposed imprisonment in the Vatican. Since his elevation he has not gone beyond the palace grounds and St. Peter's, which is considered to be part of the Vatican.

POPE LEO XIII.

"What a glorious morning for the jubilee of my pontificate!" the pope added as he proceeded, with pleasure, to peruse many of the 13,000 telegrams of congratulation received from all parts of the world.

There was a long and tedious wait before the ceremony commenced, and the audience in the hall of the Beatification was growing restless when suddenly a great roar of "Long live Leo!" and "Long live the pope-king!" announced the arrival of the pontiff. His holiness was borne in the sedia gestatoria on the shoulders of eight men habited in red brocade. The pope himself wore gorgeous robes and had the triple crown on his head. He bestowed his benediction right and left as he passed through the cheering concourse, whose enthusiasm was so great and whose desire to touch the hem of the pope's gown was so intense that the presence of the guards seemed really necessary for his protection.

The pope was accompanied by Cardinals Mocenni, Perraud, Ferrari, Satolli, Respighi, Boschi and Macchi and escorted by the much admired Noble guards in their new red state uniforms, which they had never worn since the fall of the temporal power.

Cardinal Respighi, vicar of Rome, read an affectionate Latin address, expressing loyalty and devotion, and offered the gold-tiara, the jubilee present of the Catholic world, which cost $25,000, and $40,000. Cardinal Ferrari, archbishop of Milan, in behalf of a pilgrimage from Lombardy, presented an address of felicitation to the pope and gold, silver and bronze commemorative medals, on the obverse of which was the head of Leo XIII., and on the reverse was graven the figure of the Redeemer, surrounded by the apostles in the act of conferring on St. Peter the supreme pontifical power.

The pope thanked the Lombardy pilgrims and gave them his benediction. Cardinal Boschi read a third address and presented to his holiness the symbolic keys, one of gold and the other of silver, accompanied by an offering of $40,000 in gold coins. The Roman committee for the jubilee fetes presented a rich parchment volume which contained the signatures of all who had contributed to the offerings, with another $40,000 to be devoted to the restoration of the Basilica of St. John Lateran, which is under the care of Cardinal Satolli. Other committees followed with addresses and offerings.

The pope expressed his gratification and admiration a the artistic designs and workmanship of the various offerings and then charged Mgr. Bisleti, his master of the chamber, to read a Latin speech addressed "to my venerable brothers and beloved children." In this address his holiness expressed satisfaction at the manifestation of which he is the object on the part of the whole Catholic world. For the second time in a century, continued Pope Leo, Christ has wished to glorify his vicar on earth by allowing him to reach the years of St. Peter.

After bestowing the apostolic blessing the pope returned to his apartments amid the enthusiastic plaudits of the multitude. He completed the functions of the jubilee without undue fatigue.

The pope retired at 10 o'clock at night, saying to his valet, "I am really satisfied with the day's work."

POSTOFFICE SITE CHOSEN.

New York's New Government Building to Be Near Herald Square.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The committee appointed by the president to select a site for the proposed uptown postoffice in New York city has practically accepted the proposition of the Pennsylvania railroad to sell the site on Eighth avenue running from Thirty-first to Thirty-third street, directly west of the site of the proposed terminal station of the Pennsylvania railroad. The commission will meet in a few days to take final action.

In addition it probably will recommend the erection of a similar postoffice building on a site directly over the underground system of tracks of the New York Central railroad to take the place of postoffice station H, which is adjacent to the Grand Central station. The New York Central people have not yet submitted a definite proposition, but it is expected they will make one later on that will be acceptable to the government.

The site of the building contemplated near the Grand Central depot is part of the New York Central's right of way. The Pennsylvania railroad's site is part of the right of way of that road. The latter site occupies 460 feet front on Eighth avenue, running back 500 feet on Thirty-first and Thirty-second streets, and faces the proposed Pennsylvania depot. It is calculated by the committee, which consists of the secretary of the treasury, the postmaster general and the attorney general, that if these plans are carried out half to three-quarters of an hour will be saved in the transmission of all the incoming and outgoing mail on Manhattan Island.

The price of the Pennsylvania railroad site has not been finally agreed on, but it is stated that it will be at least one-half less than the amount that the government would have to pay for the property across the street from the site selected. The Pennsylvania railroad will make the necessary excavations on the property, its proposition being for the sale of the land already prepared for the building itself.

TRAVELERS IN PERIL.

A Hundred Persons Snowbound in Newfoundland Railway Cars.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Feb. 21.—Two passenger trains are frozen in snowbanks in the almost uninhabited interior of Newfoundland. They have nearly a hundred persons aboard, who are short of provisions. One train, the farthest from relief, has only two days' food. The relief trains are also blocked. One relief engine was ditched, and most of the working party of thirty men were frostbitten. The chief trouble is that the relief parties are unable to venture far from their own trains because of the blizzard which has been raging during the past week.

An expedition with dog sleds laden with food started at daylight today in an endeavor to reach the distressed passengers. Snowbanks twenty feet high extend for miles, and the cuts made by the engines fill again almost instantly. During a whole day one train made only two miles.

The whole railway service is paralyzed. The trains, having consumed all their coal, are now burning the wood fences and trees alongside the tracks. No mail has come in or gone out of the colony for over a week.

Last of the Shinnecocks Dead.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—John Waters, a chief of the Shinnecocks and believed to be the last full blooded representative of the tribe, is dead in his cabin at Little Neck, N. Y. Waters was a descendant of the Mohawks, but by intermarriage at the time of his great-grandmother his ancestors became Shinnecocks. His great-grandmother, a Shinnecock princess, had three sons. One of these, Waters' grandfather, married the famous Libby Martin of the Shinnecocks. Waters was in possession of wampum belts and other insignia handed down as tokens of his descent. It was his wish that these be buried with him.

Typhoid Still Spreading.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 21.—Ten new cases of typhoid fever are reported in town, of which eight were among citizens of Ithaca, one that of K. Dawson, an instructor in Cornell faculty, and the other Max Rothkugel, a student, of Schlesien, Austria. Four students were sent to their homes with symptoms of some illness, and fifty others left town. One death occurred, that of a child in the city. The university authorities will immediately establish on the campus pure water depots, where the students can obtain water which the university authorities guarantee to be uncontaminated.

Porto Rico's Ex-Mayor on Trial.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Feb. 21.—The trial of ex-Mayor Egozcue began yesterday before the district court on the charge of destroying the records of the city water receipts which, it is alleged, constituted the only evidence of extensive peculations and embezzlements. The defense admits the destruction of the records, but maintains that they were valueless, as they concerned taxes which had not been paid. The prosecution, however, introduced certain receipts which it is claimed prove that the contrary was the case.

Rough Rider Gets an Appointment.

DENVER, Feb. 21.—Sherman M. Bell, a member of Roosevelt's rough riders during the Spanish-American war, has been appointed adjutant general of the Colorado national guard by Governor Peabody.

Maine's Oldest Woman Dead.

BATH, Me., Feb. 21.—Mrs. Helen C. Nagle, who had the distinction of being the oldest woman in Maine, is dead, aged 106. She was born in County Clare, Ireland, and had lived here eighty years.

PATTON PAINT CO. Sunville, Sun.
Gentlemen:
I've been shining now for ages
On the paints that people use,
And my pleasure is to spoil them,
But methinks I've got the blues;
For I struck a kind this morning
That would not grow quickly faint,
And I found by asking Venus
That 'twas Patton's Sun-Proof Paint."

Why, I shone and shone upon it
So's to make the paint degrade,
And I nearly had a sun-burst
O'er this stuff that you have made.
When I saw my work quite useless
Then I called on every Saint;
But they, too, could not affect it—
'Twas your "Patton's Sun-Proof Paint."

And now, sirs, here's my order:
Fifty gallons send to me,
Of your brightest golden color,
And please send it C. O. D.
You see the Sun needs painting
And I wanted something quaint!
So I thought I'd send an order
For your "Patton's Sun-Proof Paint."

Yours truly,
The Man in the Sun.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Transportation Delayed by Storm. Railway Earnings Increase.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Just as the railway congestion began to give way before the vigorous efforts of traffic managers the situation became further complicated by the worst snowstorm of the season, and the movement of merchandise was again interrupted. Latest figures of gross earnings show the usual gains, February thus far surpassing by 17 per cent last year, when unusual delay was caused by severe storms, and 1901 by 15.5 per cent. Increased cost of operation, however, necessitated further advances in rates.

Trade was interrupted to a considerable extent by the inclement weather, except in certain seasonable lines, notably heavy wearing apparel. Wholesale houses dealing in staples have received liberal orders and much forward business has been placed. Jobbers urge quicker shipments on old orders, while travelers send in many new contracts.

Bids are invited for extensive building operations, giving strength and activity to materials and supplies.

Despite the approaching triple holiday speculation was dull, and sales of stocks fell far below the same week in the preceding years. This accounts for the increase of only 2.7 per cent in bank exchanges at New York and the loss of 3.4 per cent compared with 1901. At other leading cities there were gains of 7.3 and 23.4 per cent respectively.

Failures for the week numbered 247 in the United States against 250 a year ago and 26 in Canada compared with 31 last year.

CAUGHT IN DEATH TRAP.

Ten Killed, Forty Injured in Cedar Rapids Hotel Fire.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Feb. 21.—A large force of men are digging in the ruins of the Clifton hotel for remains of the fire victims. At least eleven persons were burned to death and nearly forty were seriously injured in the fire, which entirely destroyed the hotel. There were eighty guests in the hotel when the fire broke out, and most of the dead were buried in the debris.

The fire originated in the basement, presumably from a crossed electric wire. Night Clerk Wilson was on the third floor at the time. The flames were discovered by a bellboy and had already gained considerable headway. By the time the clerk had been notified and the work of sounding the alarm had begun escape was cut off from the ground floor.

Instantly there were several faces of guests clad in their nightrobes at every window, wildly calling for help. The facilities of the fire department were meager, and each moment's delay increased the panic that already prevailed.

One after another the terrified guests were seen to hurl themselves from the windows and dash against the pavement below.

The state Y. M. C. A. convention was in progress at Cedar Rapids at the time and also a district Knights of Pythias convention. Delegates to these conventions constituted most of the injured and missing.

Death of General Doolittle.

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 21.—Major General Charles C. Doolittle is dead at his home here, death ensuing as the result of a complication of diseases, especially heart trouble superinduced by inflammatory rheumatism contracted during the civil war. He is survived by a widow and five children, two of whom are professors in the Oberlin Conservatory of Music and another a missionary in Syria. The deceased enlisted with the Fourth Michigan volunteers at the outbreak of the war and rose to the rank of brigadier general, commanding a brigade at Knoxville. At the close of the war he was regularly brevetted major general.

Severe Punishment For Lynchers.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 21.—The house has recommended for passage a stringent law against lynching. It provides that a sheriff permitting a prisoner to be taken from him shall immediately forfeit his office. Any person participating in a lynching may be punished by death or imprisonment for life, and any member of a mob at a lynching, whether he participates in the deed or not, may be imprisoned in the penitentiary for twenty-five years.

SEIZED SHIPS ARE NOT RETURNED

Revolutionary Army Within Twenty Miles of Caracas—Government Forces Confident of Victory. Both Hold Strong Positions.

CARACAS, Venezuela, Feb. 21.—The morning papers here publish a protest directed to Venezuela, the United States and the European nations, as follows: "In order that the public may know how Germany, Great Britain and Italy execute their engagements we call attention to the grave fact that up to today the ships taken by the three powers have not been delivered to the government of Venezuela, as stipulated in the protocols."

The German commander has notified the authorities at Porto Cabello that the Venezuelan gunboat Restaurador, which was captured by the Germans, will be returned to Venezuela on Monday, Feb. 23, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, "and not before."

A revolutionary army estimated at 2,800 men has reached a point about twenty miles south of Caracas. The revolutionists and the government troops both occupy strong positions.

The revolution organized by General Matos during the course of the blockade of the Venezuelan coast by the allied warships was reorganized and three armies formed. One, under the command of Antonio Fernandez, numbering 1,800 men, was routed near Calabozo, in the province of Miranda, 120 miles southwest of Caracas, several days ago, and its chief is now fleeing in the direction of the river Apure.

The second army, led by Generals Mantilla and Selagnie, 1,200 strong, was defeated last Wednesday near Franchicbe, province of Lara, 140 miles west of Caracas.

The third army, commanded by Generals Rolando Penaloza and Vidal, which was expecting to meet the first two armies, arrived Thursday by way of Santa Lucia and Guarenas at a point about ten miles from Petare, which is situated ten miles southeast of Caracas, after having lost 800 men from desertion en route. The strength of this third army is estimated at 2,800 men. It has taken up a strong position, and the troops sent against it by the government are also strongly placed.

The revolutionary army is not believed to be strong enough to attack, and if a few days are allowed to elapse without the rebels taking the offensive against President Castro, who since the conclusion of the blockade has been receiving re-enforcements, it is regarded as certain that they will be defeated.

World's Largest Ship Arrives.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The new White Star line steamer Cedric, the largest vessel in the world, has just arrived from Liverpool and Queenstown after her maiden transatlantic voyage. The passage from Daunt's Rock, off Queenstown, to this port was made in 8 days, 8 hours and 16 minutes. She brought 742 passengers, of which number 430 were steerage. The external dimensions of the Cedric are identical with those of her sister ship, the Celtic of the same line, but by reason of structural differences to provide increased passenger accommodations the gross tonnage of the former vessel has been slightly exceeded. The Cedric is 700 feet in extreme length, 75 feet in breadth and 49 feet 4 inches deep, with a gross tonnage of 21,034 tons.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Musicale.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—A large number of guests attended a musicale given by Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House yesterday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. The affair was given under the direction of the Washington Symphony orchestra, Mr. Reginald de Koven conductor. Among those present were Governor and Mrs. A. B. Cummins of Iowa, the Rev. Thomas J. Conaty, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Denby and Miss Denby, Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, Mrs. Garret A. Hobart and Mr. Garret A. Hobart, Jr., and Sir Charles and Lady Ross.

London Boys See "Wild West."

LONDON, Feb. 21.—There was a great scene of enthusiasm at Buffalo Bill's show in the afternoon when over 3,000 boys from the London schools attended the performance carrying little American and British flags. They vociferously sang the "Star Spangled Banner" when Colonel Cody appeared in the arena. The colonel made a patriotic speech and predicted that the two flags would continue to wave in London and that the peace of the world would thereby be maintained.

Fire In an Indiana Town.

LOOGOOTEE, Ind., Feb. 21.—A fire started here from an overheated gas stove in the three story brick block occupied by the hardware firm of M. J. Carnahan & Co., causing a loss of $70,000. Several business firms were burned out in addition to the central office of the local telephone company. The insurance will not cover one-third of the loss.

New York's Growth.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The department of health in a report just made estimates the population of Greater New York at 3,732,903. The United States census for 1900 gives the population of the city as 3,437,202. The apparent increase in two and a half years is 295,701.

Counties Named Roosevelt and Quay.

SANTA FE, N. M., Feb. 21.—Both houses have passed the bills creating Roosevelt and Quay counties. Governor Otero will sign the bills.

A LEADING ISSUE.

There has probably been no administration in North Plainfield that has been subjected to such careful scrutiny and criticism as the present one. With Mayor N. B. Smalley as the active leader of one faction in the recent annexation fight, it was but natural that his opponents should watch his every act with the hope of discovering something from which to make campaign material. That he has brought the borough through this eventful period in its career and, with the assistance of the Borough Council, completed the municipal year so successfully, speaks particularly well for the Chief Executive. And it is this record made under such unusual circumstances which will probably figure as the chief issue in the municipal election which is to be held in North Plainfield next month.

While there will be some people who will be influenced by the annexation fight, it looks now as if the record made by the present administration was going to be a very important feature of the fight. It certainly should be. However the Mayor and the members of the Borough Council have felt on the greater city question, they have relaxed no effort to give the borough the best possible government. Some idea of what they have done may be obtained from the reports which were presented at last evening's meeting of the Borough Council. It must be said that they have done well.

While there have been some changes in the personnel of the Borough Council, the present administration has practically been in power for the past four years. During that time Mayor Smalley may be said to have dominated it. While there was no disposition on the part of the Mayor to interfere with the rights of the others, his direct aggressive policy has appealed to the men in the Borough Council and his ideas have very generally been carried into practice with success. So it is that several of the borough's chief improvements are directly traceable to Mayor Smalley.

There seems to be no doubt that Mayor Smalley will be renominated by the borough Republicans. Even many of those who opposed him in the annexation fight are just as anxious now that he shall remain at the head of borough affairs. Thus is given practical evidence that the chief issue of the coming election is going to be the past record of the present administration. However he may think on certain important questions, no one can truthfully say that Mayor Smalley has failed to attend to his duties and has worked at all times for what he believed were the best interests of the borough. And the way he has governed is going to settle whether or not he will be returned to that office. His position on the greater city or annexation questions is going to cut little figure, despite the efforts of his opponents to turn the fight in that direction.

New Jersey has long been known as one of the strongholds of the good roads movement and State aid in the construction of stone roads has been in operation in this State for some time past. Now another bill has just passed the lower house of the Legislature increasing the amount of State aid from $250,000 to $350,000. This will permit the road building to go forward faster than ever. Under the present arrangement, the State furnishes one-third of the amount necessary to build the roads. Somerset conty's Board of Freeholders recently made a plea to the Legislature asking that the State supply half the funds but there is little chance of the request being granted.

It will be just a year ago tomorrow night that this part of New Jersey experienced one of the most disastrous storms that even the "oldest inhabitant" could remember. Telephone, telegraph and other wires were dragged down by the ice which formed on them and the city was for a time practically without communication with the outside world. Fortunately so many of the wires in this city were underground that it did not take very long for the local systems to get in working order again. Other cities, however, did not recover from its effects for months after.

Every friend of Company K would be well pleased to see passed the measure now before the Legislature and providing for the building of an armory at State expense. It is a question, however, whether the other legislators will take the same view of it.

Washington's birthday falls on Sunday, this year, so it will be legally observed on the following Monday, February 23. The Daily Press will not be issued that day. The banks will be closed and most of the local merchants will observe the holiday.

oughites, Former Mayor John H. Van Winkle, Sr., was considered an ideal candidate. He was the first mayor of the borough, a property owner and a man whose integrity is known throughout the borough. Mr. Van Winkle has never been after the nomination but some of his friends believe that he can be persuaded to accept it if he sees that there is a united demand from the combined Democratic and "anti" forces.

According to law, the nominations must be made ten days before election so it will be seen that there is no time to be lost in selecting the candidates.

TEACHERS IN SESSION.

Mid-Winter Meeting of Somerset County Teachers' Association Held This Morning.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 21—The mid-winter meeting of the Somerset County Teachers' Association was held here in the High School buildiding this morning. An interesting programme was arranged.

Among the discussions which were a feature of the session was "What is being done in my school to increase the language power of my pupils." Those who took part in the discussion were Principal S. C. Strong, of Peapack; Miss Garretta Q. Genther, of Belle Mead; and Miss Mary G. Wilson, of Franklin Park

An informal discussion followed the addresses. J. J. Savitz, A. M., of Westfield, spoke on "Experience, the All Around Education." One of the most interesting addresses made at the session was the one by Prof. S. I Kreemer, of the High School at West Chester, Pa. His topic was "The Feasibility and Advisability of Teaching Drawing."

DUNELLEN.

The exercises held yesterday in Whittier School in honor of Washington's Birthday were quite extensive and a number of friends of the pupils were present. Several special songs appropriate to the occasion were sung and patriotic selections were spoken by a number of pupils. Rev. N. J. Sproul gave an interesting talk about the "Father of the Country." He was followed by Rev. S. K. Doolittle who also gave an enjoyable talk. L. T. Titsworth also said a few words for the Board of Education.

As election approaches the question of political supremacy in the borough becomes a doutful one. Although neither ticket is settled upon as yet several names have been mentioned as candidates. It is said that the Democrats propose to run John Moynihan for mayor if he will accept while the Republicans are talking of running Henry Garretson.

The ball given last evening in Bound Brook Hall by the Beneficial Society of Levering & Garrigues factory was a great success. The dancing floor was thronged all the evening.

Exercises in honor of Washington's Birthday were held in the Lincoln School, yesterday. The programme consisted of singing and speaking pieces by the children.

Work on the Lasher-Pray Color Company factory has been stopped since the bad weather set in but was resumed this morning.

More skin grafting was tried upon Wilson Fredericks at the hospital last evening. He remains in about the same condition.

Another meeting will be held this afternoon in the guild room of the recently formed Girls' Society of Holy Innocents' church.

A jolly party of young people from here went on a sleigh ride to Westfield last evening, returning at a late hour.

Adam Dealaman does not show any improvement now from his illness and his condition is not quite so good.

The quarantine has been removed from Greenhahl's house as the case of diphtheria has recovered.

The ice is strong enough for skating on the local ponds but is very rough.

The borough schools will be closed Monday on account of the holiday.

Howard Craig spent this morning in Montclair.

Mayor Swackhamer is confined to his home by a slight illness.

Wesley Blaine was in Plainfield on business this morning.

NEW MARKET.

George W. Leonard is recovering from a severe illness.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Very pleasing exercises to commemorate the birth of the father of his country, George Washington, were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the assembly room of the school. An entertaining programme appropriate to the day was enjoyed by the pupils and a number of the parents and friends of the school.

An enjoyable dance was held in Excelsior Hall last night by a number of the younger element of the village and a number from Plainfield. Music was furinshed by Carpenter, of Plainfield. At midnight refreshments were served. The pleasant affair was enjoyed by all until a late hour.

The residents of the village are beginning to wonder if a decision will ever be rendered by the Supreme Court in the automobile case of the Township against Unger. Tuesday it was again postponed until June. This makes several times it has been carried over.

Monday will be observed as a holiday by all in the village. The stores will close for half the day. The Gun Club will hold a membership shoot on its grounds during the afternoon.

A. J. Brace, who has been conducting a meat market in town for several weeks, has been obliged by ill health to close his market and return to his home at Perth Amboy.

WOMEN AS FARMERS.

English Educational Experiment of Vast Importance.

New Avenues of Support Opened to Bright Girls by Lady Warwick —Her Model School at Reading.

[Special London Letter.]

THE problem of suitable employment for women and girls is one that has engaged the serious attention of European sociologists for many years. In England as well as on the continent women can find ready employment as clerks in stores, it is true, but the wages paid are so small that absolute self-support is out of the question. Many thousands are employed as telegraph operators, teachers and governesses, but the fields of endeavor are necessarily limited and consequently overcrowded.

Some 40 years ago the British house of commons appointed a commission for the purpose of investigating in how far agriculture might prove a suitable occupation for women and children. The report of the commissioners was radically unfavorable, as might have been expected from the then prevailing methods of farm tillage, which consisted principally of plowing, harrowing, digging and hoeing; rough work totally at variance with progressive ideas of woman's work.

But since then conditions have changed materially. In the first place, agriculture is conducted along entirely different lines, especially in England. Grain raising no longer pays, the cost of producing a crop having increased from year to year; to say nothing of the competition with the cheap wheat of countries where labor can be had for almost nothing or where cultivation is conducted on a vast scale and by improved methods. Consequently, unproductive English soil is being used for pasturage for cattle, while the good soil is given over to the raising of flowers, fruits and vegetables. And for the latter kind of rural work women are quite as well adapted as men. As auxiliary industries they can take up poultry raising, apiaculture and dairy work. Moreover, the really deplorable condition of agriculture which has prevailed for a long time has driven thousands of men from the country to the cities and towns. In other words, the prospects of a woman who adopts agriculture as a profession—either as manager or employe—are better today than ever before. Another point to be considered is the extraordinary surplus of women in England. Large numbers of boys emigrate to the colonies every year, in the hope of bettering their condition, but the girls remain at home. The various professions open to women in cities are overcrowded, and only the most fortunate can expect to secure desirable positions.

To effect a general change in existing conditions will, of course, require years of patient endeavor. For women of the laboring class the problem is a simple one; they require no preliminary or preparatory education. All they need is a place to work, where the remuneration shall be fair and adequate. But such positions it will be almost impossible to find until women of a higher grade take up agriculture as an occupation and work on farms as managers or overseers; and in order to fill such responsible positions they must, as the prime essential, have a thorough theoretical and practical education.

In order to meet this educational demand, Lady Warwick, famous at home and abroad as a philanthropist and a courageous advocate of the rights of women, has established, in the little city of Reading, a practice school in which girls of unblemished reputation and of good families can learn everything appertaining to scientific horticulture, floriculture, vegetable growing, poultry raising, bee culture and butter and cheese making. When Lady Warwick opened her training school in 1898, an agricultural college had already been established in Reading, and the teachers of older institutions were engaged to instruct the girls in all the branches mentioned. A house, now known as the Lady Warwick dormitory, was furnished completely and opened, in October, 1900, with 12 boarders. Even during the first year of its existence the school made great progress and the dormitory had to be enlarged to house the growing number of students. The 12 pupils have increased to over 60, and instead of the two acres which were to be cultivated over 11 acres are given to experimental work. Every country in Europe is represented among the scholars and several have come all the way from Canada and the United States.

The course, which comprises a complete education in all branches of agriculture, lasts two years; and part of that time pupils are sent to model farms where they are supposed to learn all about dairy management and the feeding of cattle.

The setting out and replanting of vines, small fruits and flowers, grafting, pruning and laying out of orchards are taught theoretically as well as practically. The sowing of vegetable seed and the subsequent starting of the plants, and especially the culture of mushrooms, are exemplified; and wonderful success has attended the practice classes in bee culture. The sorting and packing of fruits and vegetables for the market has lately been added to the curriculum, and this year the cooking and preserving of fruits and the manufacture of fruit juices is to be made a special study.

Work on the experiment farm begins at 6:45 a. m., and ends at 5 p. m. Immense greenhouses have been erected in which are raised magnificent flowers which find a ready sale in the London market.

So successful has been Lady Warwick's experiment that a number of landowners have already engaged several graduates of the school in the capacity of "lady gardeners," dairy managers and heads of small preserve factories. In short, many new avenues of support have been opened to women by this new movement; and now it has been proposed to still further encourage those graduates, who have but a small income or are possessed of limited means, by purchasing for them, in their own names, small farms for which they can pay in easy installments. To make this idea popular it is the intention of the managers to establish colonies and build houses in which the girls can live alone or together, as the individual fancy may dictate.

Whatever the future may have in store for the graduates of this school, so much is certain: they will prove of great benefit to their country and never be without the means of making a comfortable and pleasant living.

In connection with Lady Warwick's school an agricultural society for women has been founded, whose purpose is to assist women who are in any way connected with agricultural work with advice and money. A second object of the society is to find suitable positions for the graduates of the school.

When the deplorable condition of many women in large cities is considered, this grand movement to ameliorate their condition appears doubly grand; and it is not surprising that other countries are taking steps to follow the example set by England, through the magnanimity of Lady Warwick. In Prussia especially has the movement been studied with painstaking care and several schools have already been established, similar in character and scope to the Reading institution. The Prussian schools are supported, partially at least, by the department of education, and have been placed in charge of women noted not only for their educational qualifications, but for their social standing as well. One of them is under the direction of Baroness Barth-Harmating, the other under that of Miss Dr. Castner. Both of these continental establishments train young ladies between the ages of 18 to 24 to become expert gardeners. Another school, located at Proshau, is devoted exclusively to the teaching of dairy work.

DROOPING EFFECTS.

All the Lines In Dress Give That Effect.

The present fashions all tend to give a drooping effect. Blouses, bodices and tea jackets have deep frills from the bust, and corsets are made so low in front that they only affect the waist and do not raise the figure at all.

Deep godet berthas worn quite off the shoulders give a gradual slope, and the sleeves add to this effect, as all the fullness commences at the elbow or just above it.

Another mode which accentuates this downward fashion is the wide, flat stole which is worn off the shoulders and is accompanied by the large granny muff of bygone days.

Hats are even flatter than ever, and their lace brims and draperies are certainly suggestive of the old pictures.

The deep berthas and long frills on the fronts of bodices are very becoming to some figures.

Tight lacing is undoubtedly less in favor than formerly, and the figure is altogether more natural and the waist larger in consequence. The present mode really favors the woman with too ample a figure, if she will only consent to more freedom at the waist. Tight lacing raises the bust and gives an unsightly increase below as well as above the waist.

In the picture is shown a wide scarf of mink banded with embroidered velvet stripes. JUDIC CHOLLET.

DAINTY NOVELTIES.

Fringes of Silk Beads and Sequins. Skirts Fuller.

The most noticeable novelties in evening gowns are the lovely fringes of silk beads and sequins which droop gracefully from the decolletage. Plisse frills and lace flounces are used in the same fashion.

Black evening toilets still glitter with steel or silver cup sequins and black paillettes. It is quite impossible to have too many frills below the knees.

FLANNEL BLOUSE.

Skirts are much fuller, but the width is more actually due to the trimmings, as the sheathlike effect is still preserved around the hips.

The newest veilings are of lisse, with large spots widely scattered, and black spots on a white ground form quite the most chic veils of the moment.

Originally introduced for motoring, this lisse has been found so protecting and becoming that it has quickly been adopted by smart women.

The blouse shown is of flannel trimmed with oriental embroidery.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Fashionable Fringes.

Fringes in chenille and jet are very fashionable, and it is possible to obtain them in all widths and lengths and a great many soft jeweled roses and other flowers made in chiffon intended to be applied in relief, with the accompanying leaves and satin and chiffon forming a galloon. These are sometimes made of white satin and chenille interblended with cloth in pink chiffon, with green satin leaves outlined with gold or all white and silver, and they are extensively used on evening dresses.

WHAT IS WORN.

Popular Short Sack Coats—Stoles of Feathers.

The short sack coat is extremely popular. It is shown with a very deep collar partially overlaid and with the fronts faced to correspond. Much strapping of the material and slight touches of velvet are salient features of this little coat.

It is quite fashionable to have the coat or blouse without a neckband or high collar and to wear a chemisette, but with the flat stole this is totally inadequate in this weather. Indeed, worn fashionably on a cold day the stole has quite an unsuitable effect.

The stoles will be pretty in feathers for spring wear with gowns of light cloth or frieze and are already shown in marabou with large flat muffs to match.

The picture shows a dainty skirt of figured net with many ruffles and a crosswise effect in ribbon.

SMART COSTUMES.

Models For the Sunny South—Fancy Boas.

Many toilets are being designed for the sunny south, and light, delicate colorings undoubtedly predominate.

The very light zibelines are extremely smart and are so soft and supple that a trimming of Irish lace is by no means out of place, and both chiffon and embroidered galloons are used on this fabric.

The coat and skirt costume is invaluable for cool days, and many toilets with a bolero or blouse coat are shown in cream or ivory white, the softly colored vest a mass of lace and the revers and facings finished with tiny gold cord or touches of embroidered galloon bordered with narrow strappings of the cloth.

The smart afternoon or evening gown is worn with the large, flat stole and muff of soft feathers, the lighter type of furs or the elaborate arrangement of velvet lace and chiffon decorated with tasseled grelots and lovely flowers, which are so eminently desirable for bright spring weather.

The picture shows a coat of fawn cloth lined with squirrel.

Mrs. Perfume—Indeed?

Mrs. Chatterton—Yes. Our chauffeur is so high toned he won't associate with our cook.—New York Times.

And yet Rossiter would not promise. Much as he knew the pleasure would be to him, this more intimate and friendly association with the two cousins, he had a feeling that their gratitude prompted them to urge him, and, moreover, he shrank from meeting, in his coarse garb, Miss Merton's Hintonville friends. The girls renewed their attack the next morning, but without avail.

"I'm too rusty," Rossiter plead as an excuse. "I should be treading on everyone's toes!"

It chanced that afternoon that Miss Merton had left the yard for a few moments, and Miss Densmore was picking alone. Rossiter was passing, and she called to him.

"My cousin is sadly put out," she said, "because you are so obstinate. She is very anxious, as you must have seen, to arrange a set by ourselves. There are three men and two girls coming from Hintonville, and Jack (that's Mr. Parmelee, you know) can't dance all the time, for he's got everything to look after. Don't you realize how much you could help out if you only would?"

This put the matter in quite a different light.

"I will do what I can," said Rossiter, simply. "I didn't quite understand."

"Thank you," and her smile carried more real joy to him than anything he had experienced, it seemed to him, since he could recall.

Evening came, and all preparations for the gayeties had been made. The floor of the large hop-house had been cleared and the room lighted with lamps and lanterns. About the walls festoons of hops had been hung, a small platform erected for the musicians, and seats placed for the dancers when they were not on the floor. Before eight o'clock the music, two fiddlers and a celloist, arrived, and soon the pickers from two or three adjacent farms drove up in large hop-wagons. Then shortly Miss Merton's little party from Hintonville appeared, and by half-past eight the dancing was in full swing.

Rossiter did not join in the merriment at the outset, but stood in the background near the door watching, with not a little amusement, the antics of some of the rustics. Several men would occasionally launch into sort of a break-down, and the sound of their energetic efforts, usually in excellent time, would be heard above the combined shuffle of all other feet and the rise and dip of the music. Swains grasped the waists of their dulcineas, as they "swung partners," and whirled them with gay abandon. Though the attire of the men was commonplace in the extreme, that of the women was as extraordinary as it was varied. Bright colors predominated, and not a few of the combinations would have been likely to afflict the artist's eye with an acute optical disturbance.

The leader of the orchestra, if it be permissible thus to dignify the music, especially entertained Rossiter. His black hair and whiskers had evidently been elaborated for the occasion, and shone with a luster which was unmistakably oily. He handled his bow with an exaggerated ease and called the changes with a delicious gusto. One particular change in the quadrille appeared to be a great favorite with him, and he always preluded it with a grand sweep across the violin strings. His voice gathered more than common animation, and he broke into something like a tune:

"First lady balance to the right-hand gent, with the right-hand round, the right-hand round, the right-hand round; balance to the next with the left-hand round; lady in the center and seven hands round. A-la-main to your partners!" And with what a magnificent flourish came the close!

There were no waltzes or galops, but the lancers followed the Virginia reel, and the money-musk the quadrille. By and by, when there was a lull in the music, Jack Parmelee sought Rossiter, and presently the whilom vagabond found himself chatting to a pleasant-faced maiden who called Hintonville her home, and then, ere he realized it, he was upon the floor dancing. It came to him naturally, and when there was a general change to a bar of waltz music—they were engaged in a quadrille—and the others waltzed, he followed suit, with his vis-a-vis, who chanced to be Miss Merton.

"You must let me thank you," she said. "And to think that you tried to make out that you were 'rusty'! Why, one would imagine you did nothing but 'trip the light fantastic'!"

"If it's true that men are deceivers ever," he returned, "women are certainly flatterers ever."

Once the ice was broken, Rossiter enjoyed himself thoroughly. Miss Merton's friends apparently ignored his rough garb, and after a little he himself in a large measure forgot it. Joe Becraft occasionally observed him with a mingled admiration and wonder, and so the evening wore on.

Between eleven and midnight refreshments were served—new cider and some of Mrs. Merton's unapproachable doughnuts. While the repast was in progress Rossiter managed to absent himself, though when the music struck up he was again on hand to be chidden by Miss Merton for running away. He had danced twice with Miss Densmore, and now ventured to ask her to favor him for a third time. Money-musk had just been called.

"Will you not wait for a quadrille or the lancers?" she suggested. "I should like to rest a little longer. I'm not very strong, you know."

He lingered at her side for a moment, not seeming to be inclined to seek another partner.

"If you are not intending to dance," she said, "perhaps you will take me into the orchard. I should very much like a breath of air."

Just without under the trees rustic seats had been placed, and above, in the branches, Japanese lanterns hung. They found a seat that was unoccupied and sat watching the dancers through the open door. There was a singular unreality about the whole scene. The music, softened a little by distance, lost none of its blithesomeness, but took on a mellow charm that it had not within. The flitting figures, crossing the space visible through the door-way, were like a succession of pirouetting puppets. Out of the night came the clearly chorded cricket thrumming.

It was impossible not to be touched by the subtle combination of light and sound, and Rossiter let go of the tense hold he had kept upon himself. The girl beside him seemed like a rare exotic in whose presence he was permitted, by an inscrutable chance, to linger for a brief space. Why should he not, he asked himself, enjoy the exquisite sense of beauty that her personality exhaled? Into what surge and plunge of life he might soon be carried it was idle to conjecture. At least he would bear with him one fragrant recollection, one drop of a precious attar to sweeten what might be a desert future.

THE OLDEST NEWSBOY.

Although 93 Years of Age He Rises Every Morning at Four to Meet Early Trains.

A familiar figure seen around the Chicago & Alton depot at Joliet, Ill., every morning when the Kansas City train arrives at 6:55 a. m., is the oldest newsboy (or rather newsman) in the United States. Mr. Orsamus Page has been selling newspapers in Joliet since the world's fair, in 1893, never missing a single day, or failing to meet the early trains. Page was born in 1809, being 93 years of age, and retains his vigor to such an extent that he is able to rise every morning at four o'clock and deliver 30 or 40 papers before the early train arrives. This is particularly remarkable, from the fact that this "newsboy" has but one leg. Mr. Page comes from very long-lived parents and grandparents—his father dying at 89, his mother at 98, while his grandfather lived to be 102, and his grandmother 105.

He began life as a farmer, then engaged in driving stock east from Iowa, as early as 1848. He then turned his attention to railroad work, and had several contracts for grading on the Chicago & Alton railway, near Springfield, Ill., in 1857. After working a number of years on the railway, he again went to farming, and it was at this time that he lost his leg, it being crushed in a threshing machine.

Just before "retiring" to sell newspapers, by which means he is able to support his family, he was engaged in selling coal at Joliet.

WILL RELIEVE CHAFFEE.

Gen. George W. Davis Designated Commander of American Army in the Philippines.

When Gen. Adna R. Chaffee is relieved of the chief command of the American forces in the Philippines he will be succeeded by an officer amply competent to fill the position. The coming new commander is Gen. George Whitefield Davis, who was promoted some time ago to be major general. Gen. Davis, who is 63 years old, will have but nine months to serve as head of the army in the archipelago, as he will be retired for age in July, 1903. The general is one of our successful soldiers who never had a West Point education. He enlisted in the volunteers during the first year of the civil war and in 1866 was mustered out with the rank of major. The next year he secured a captaincy in the regular army, and from that time until the Spanish-American war his advancement was slow. He made a reputation, however, as an engineer. On the outbreak of the conflict with Spain he was appointed a brigadier general of volunteers and was elevated to the like rank in the regular service in 1900. He was military governor of Porto Rico in 1899-1900 and made a good record in that post. He is the author of several monographs on Porto Rico. Gen. Davis was ordered from Porto Rico to the Philippines, where his work has been highly commendable.

Dead Head Mail Matter.

It was disclosed by examinations made in the Washington city post office, covering a period of about two and a half months, that 979,820 pieces of paid matter and 5,900,000 pieces of unpaid (or "franked") matter of all classes went through, the unpaid matter on some days running as high as 135,000, 127,000, 126,000, 125,000 and 122,000 pieces, while the percentage per day would often go to about 90, crawling up as high as 93 per cent. on a single day, and averaging 85¾ per cent. every day.

BASKET BALL GAME PLAYED IN THE LOCAL LEAGUE.

Defeated I. C. T. Club in Latter's Rooms Last Night by Score of 36 to 5.

Another game in the Plainfield Amateur Basket Ball League was played last evening in the I. C. T. Club rooms when the team from that organization was easily defeated by the Y. M. C. A. boys. The game was more one-sided than had been expected. The I. C. T. five did not play up to its usual game and proved an easy proposition.

In the first half, the play was very one-sided. The visitors seemed to understand the carom shots necessary to make the baskets and scored repeatedly. The half ended with the score 22 to 0 in favor of the Y. M. C. A.

A distinct brace was made by the home team in the second half. The guarding was better and the goal throwing more accurate. I. C. T. had several chances to score in the first half but poor throwing prevented. Roy Smith was very accurate in his shooting for goal and did all the scoring in the second half.

While the floor was very slippery and there were many tumbles, the game was a clean one and but few fouls were called. The Y. M. C. A. boys showed up in their best form and played well together. They were much stronger than in their other game. Their improvement in goal throwing was particularly noticeable.

The teams lined up as follows:

I. C. T. Club.		Y. M. C. A.
Reynolds	right forward	Hand
Callen, capt.	left forward	Smith
Sherwin	centre	Denton, Collins
Blimm	right guard	Neal
Overbaugh	left guard	Heinecke, Denton

Score—Y. M. C. A., 36; I. C. T. Club, 5. Goals from the field—Reynolds, Callen, Hand (2), Smith (11), Denton (4), Neal. Goals on fouls—Callen. Fouls—I. C. T., 3; Y. M. C. A., 4. Referee—Charles B Morse, of Hope Y. M. A. Umpires—Edward P. T. Smith, of the Reform Club; George McCombe, of Hope Y, M. A. Timekeepers—George Whitley, of Hope Y. M. A. Scorers—John H Doane, of Y. M. C. A., and V. W. Nash, of I. C. T. Club.

Gave Them a Surprise.

Thirty friends of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carson, of Belmont avenue, tendered them a pleasant surprise party at their home, Thursday evening. Dancing and selections upon the phonograph together with vocal solos were the features of the gathering and continned until an early hour yesterday morning. A collation was served at midnight.

Funeral of Mrs. Shaeffer.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Frank E. Shaeffer was held this morning at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock. The funeral was largely attended and many handsome floral tributes were arranged about the casket. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery. The services were conducted by Rev. Father Miller.

EVENING WITH THE POETS

EPWORTH LEAGUERS ARRANGE PLEASANT LITERARY EVENING.

Members Read Short Sketches of American Poets—Selections From Their Works.

"An Evening in the American Poet's Corner," was arranged for last evening by the literary committee of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church. The affair was held in Vincent chapel and attracted a large number of members and friends. Miss Gertrude Snodgrass, as chairman of the literary committee, was in charge. The programme arranged was very unique. On the first page of each programme was a picture of one of the famous poets or his home.

Inside the programme were a list of these poets, opposite which was the name of a member of the league. These members read short sketches of the lives of the poets, after which James R. Joy read favorite poems the work of the poets. The poets and those who gave a sketch of their lives were as follows: Bryant, Miss Gertrude Snodgrass; Emerson, Miss Fenno; Longfellow, Miss Jerome; Whittier, James A. Stafford; Poe, Mrs. Arthur Crone; Holmes, Miss Gillette; Lowell, Miss Elizabeth Stafford; Lanier, Miss Smith; Field, Ralph Lane; Riley, Miss Draper.

A feature of the affair was a solo by Elmer D. Cutting, who sang "Star of the Summer Night," from a "Spanish Students' Serenade." The rest of the evening was spent in a social way and refreshments were served by the committee from the league.

THOMPSON-SETON'S LECTURES.

He Will be the Attraction at the Casino Washington's Birthday.

It is seldom that an author-artist is also gifted with the ability to entertain upon the lecture platform, but Ernest Thompson-Seton, who will be the attraction at the Casino, Monday afternoon and evening, is as clever with his voice as with his pen and pencil. All of his writings and drawings descriptive of the personality of wild animals and Indians are enhanced many fold by his inimitable description of them from his own lips. He has wonderful powers of narrative, and as his lectures are principally composed of stories, mostly drawn from his own experience, they are attractive for this cause alone, but when illustrated, as they are, with camera and pencil, they are a rare treat.

The matinee lecture, "The Indians as I Knew Them," will be particularly pleasing for the juveniles, and the evening lecture, "New Adventures of Animal Friends" will be found most interesting. Reserved seats and tickets are on sale at Armstrong's pharmacy.

EARLY CLOSING.

Local Ministers Will Preach on Subject at Request of Clerks.

The prominent ministers of this city have been visited by a committee of the Retail Clerks' Association in regard to the early closing movement and they have promised to assist them in every way possible. Sermons will be addressed from the pulpit on this subject by many of the ministers in the hope that public sentiment against the keeping open of stores in the evenings may be aroused.

Trip to Pacific Coast.

If you want to spend a pleasant evening Washington's Birthday night go to Trinity Reformed church and join the host of others who are going on that air-ship trip to the Pacific coast, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of the church. The start will be made Monday evening at 8 o'clock and, as the affair will be a novel one, all who go will be pleased. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Salvation Army Meetings.

Special meetings will be held at the Salvation Army barracks, East Front street, tonight and all day tomorrow. The meeting will be opened this evening at 8 o'clock and will be conducted by Envoys Rothbloom and the "Three Jewish Sisters." They will give their experiences and tell why they are Salvationists.

On Way to Japan.

Miss Emily Tracy, of West Eighth street, has received a cablegram from her sister, Miss Tracy, who is on her way to Japan to take up missionary work. The cablegram was sent from Honolulu.

By Fourth Street Entrance.

All persons who attend the Lewis-Spencer wedding reception, to be held Tuesday afternoon at Trueli Court, are requested to enter the court from Fourth street.

A Little Loss

of flesh and strength, little barking, obstinate cough and a little pain in the chest may not mean galloping consumption, but they are signs that prudence will not neglect. A few doses of Allen's Lung Balsam cause a free discharge of mucus and so loosens the cough. It heals the inflamed air passages and all its beneficent work is accomplished without a grain of opium.

TO INCORPORATE WESTFIELD

A BILL BEFORE LEGISLATURE THAT WOULD MAKE IT A TOWN.

Hearing on the Bill Set for Tuesday Afternoon, When Many Will Go to Trenton.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Feb. 21—The proposition to make this place an incorporate town is now engaging the attention of all thoughtful citizens. A bill providing for such action was introduced in the Assembly at Trenton Monday and referred to the committee on boroughs and townships, and arrangements have been made for a hearing on the bill Tuesday afternoon in the State House.

During the past few days several prominent citizens have been working on a petition asking for a referendum clause in the bill, claiming that by the action taken at the public meeting on January 29, the people were to have the right by ballots to decide whether or not the township shall be incorporated as a town. The bill introduced contains no such clause. However, the committeemen claim that such a clause would not be in accord with the resolution passed at the pubic meeting appointing them to take the necessary steps to incorporate Westfield as a town. For this reason it is earnestly hoped that all who can will attend the hearing at Trenton on Tuesday and express their views for or against the measure.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—The postoffice will close at 10 o'clock Monday morning for the day.

—The Rasores Club will meet Tuesday morning with Mrs. I. C. Pierson, 733 Watchung avenue.

—Neuman Brothers handle Philadelphia Sharpless print butter. Just the thing for the table. Special low price.

—The Union Bible class, taught by Rev. D. M. Stearns, will meet at the Y. M. C. A. Hall Tuesday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock.

RICHTER BACK AGAIN.

Police Gathered Him In and Are Going to Send Him Away.

Like the famous cat in the popular song of a few years ago, demented Paul Richter continues to come back to Plainfield. He has been jailed and arrested several times and a few days ago Overseer Alex. Ayres escorted him to his former home in Monticello, N. Y. Yesterday he turned up as chipper as ever and the police again took him into custody. He is now being held at headquarters until some means for his permanent disposal can be devised.

WOULDN'T LEAVE.

Peter Uhdal Arrested for Remaining About Scene of Fire.

For his refusal to leave the scene of the East Seventh street fire, last evening, Peter Uhdal, of South avenue, was arrested by Patrolman Lunger. Orders had been given by Mr. Potts to allow no one, not in authority, in the near vicinity, as quantities of valuable furniture were scattered about the premises. In the city court, this morning, Uhdal explained that he had been asked to remain by the coachman. Sentence was suspended.

Coffee for Firemen.

While the firemen toiled amid heat and cold, water and debris at the East Seventh street conflagration, last evening, their flagging energies were recuperated by cans of hot coffee made for them by Mrs. Stewart, of Wood land avenue. On account of the long time required to put the fire out and the disagreeable conditions, her thoughtfulness was greatly appreciated.

More Juniors.

At its regular meeting last evening Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., initiated one candidate and received four propositions. No report was read by the committee in charge of the recent fair, as several matters yet remain to be settled.

Found a Pearl.

While dining in a New York restaurant, Thursday, Miss Etta MacMurray, of this city, found a pearl of large size in an oyster. She placed it in the hands of a jeweler and with a little expert work it will be made quite valuable.

Purchased Business.

Mr. Stone, who has been the manager for Gernert's photo studio on East Front street, has purchased the business and will continue the same at the old stand.

TOURNAMENT GAMES.

Members of the Friday Night Club Kept Busy Last Night.

The members of the Friday Night Club turned out in large numbers, last evening, at the Casino and enjoyed a varied programme of sports. The first and second rounds of the badminton tournament were played and this as well as the pool tournament will be concluded next week Friday night.

In addition to the above two tournaments, there was general bowling and ping-pong play and this afforded no end of amusement for those participating. Thomas K. VanBoskerck was in charge of the programme and he kept things going in lively fashion.

Celebrated Two Birthdays.

Appropriate exercises were held at the City High School, yesterday morning, in celebration of the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln. Patriotic songs were sung by the school and there were declamations by Francis K. Anderson and Alden E. Moore.

GRAND JURY TO HEAR WITNESSES

Preparing to Further Investigate Causes of Disaster at Session Tomorrow.

IN A SECRET MEETING

New Testimony Will Be Along Two Lines, Why Davis Was Not Notified Sooner and Condition of His Engine—W. R. Stanbery's Trip to Philadelphia.

Not satisfied with the verdict of the coroner's jury, which investigated the cause of the Westfield disaster and decided that the blame rested on Engineer Davis with mitigating circumstances, the Grand Jury of Union county is trying to see if it can throw any more light on the responsibility for the wreck. In order to secure more evidence, a steering committee was appointed and that committee has been doing a little investigating on its own account. The results of its efforts will be brought before the Grand Jury which will convene at the court house at Elizabeth tomorrow morning. A number of witnesses, both in this State and Pennsylvania, have been subpoenaed and will testify. As is customary, the hearings before the Grand Jury will be secret and the public will not know what evidence is brought forth.

Part of the testimony will be as to the duties of the train despatcher and the reasons why Engineer Davis was not notified that his track was not clear when it was known at 4 o'clock that afternoon that the mishap had occurred to the freight train, necessitating the Easton local going on the main track from Cranford. It is regarding that point which, it is alleged, the members of the Grand Jury are particularly anxious to discover some new facts, if possible.

There has been a lurking suspicion in the minds of some of the Grand Jurors that there were certain of the engineers of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad who could throw some light on the condition of the fated engine No. 27, which would have an important bearing on the subject. With that idea in view, two members of the steering committee were delegated to go to Philadelphia and make a little investigation independent of the railroad or coroner's jury.

Everything was done very quietly but somehow the Philadelphia newspapermen learned that W. R. Stanbery, of Fanwood, was one of the party and an account of his visit was published in yesterday morning's papers. Mr. Stanbery admitted that he had been to Philadelphia but refused to divulge any of the information that he secured. He vigorously denied, however, having made any such statement as he is quoted as having made to the effect that the verdict of the coroner's jury was unjust and that he was in Philadelphia to obtain the evidence needed to clear Davis. His object was simply to secure any more evidence if that were possible. The other man was not discovered by the reporters so his identity remains undiscovered.

It is believed that the Grand Jury will make a strong effort to get certain of the Reading engineers and firemen on the stand. How well they will succeed remains to be seen. It is known that Mr. Stanbery visited several while he was in Philadelphia and also saw the widow of Engineer Davis. The result of his conferences is not known.

HORSE KICKED HIM.

Wm. Kennedy Laid Up by Sudden Encounter With Horse's Heels.

William Kennedy is confined to his home on Harrison street with injuries of a severe nature received from a fractious horse. He was putting the animal in its stable back of the Crescent Hotel, last Thursday night, when it suddenly threw its heels up and kicked him in the forehead. He was rendered unconscious and a gash three inches long was inflicted. He was attended by Dr. Dundon and afterward removed to his home in a cab.

Quarterly Conference.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Grace M. E. church will be held tomorrow evening at the church on Park place and Somerset street. Rev. Dr. Halleron, the presiding elder of the Newark district, will be present and will make a few remarks.

COMMERCE AND CIVILIZATION

SUBJECT OF FIRST OF SERIES OF UNIVERSITY EXTENSION LECTURES.

Given by Prof. Chas. Zueblin at Y. M. C. A. Hall Saturday Evening.

The first of a series of six university extension lectures on "Work and Wealth," was given before a large audience in Y. M. C. A. Hall, Saturday evening, by Charles Zueblin, B. D., professor of sociology in the University of Chicago.

His subject was "Commerce and Civilization" and in his own forceful manner, he related how close the two are to each other. He traced the effect of commerce on civilization and declared the condition of society at the present time was due to the trading of nations. His illustrations were timely and withal the lecture was greatly enjoyed.

The lectures are to be given on successive Saturday nights, the next one to be "The Right to Work." The series is being given by the following patrons and patronesses: H. M. Maxson, James Patterson, J. H. Manning, Frederick Pierce, Rev. L. R. Howard, P. H. Phillips, Mrs. J. K. Myers, W. F. Oliver, Miss Tweedy, Miss Sarah Van Boskerck, William L. Gloak and Frank Templin.

WHERE WAS WILL SIGNED?

CORIELL WILL CASE BRINGS OUT SOME CONTRADICTORY TESTIMONY.

Some Saw It Signed in Wagon and Others Swear 'Twas Signed in Vail's Office.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 24—Nearly all of Friday in the Orphans' Court here Judge Schenck was busy taking testimony in the celebrated Isaiah Coriell will case and when an adjournment was taken it was decided to hear the arguments of counsel in the matter Friday morning next at 10:30 o'clock. Coriell was an eccentric farmer who lived in Warren township and before he died he made a will leaving all his property to his nieces and nephews living at the time of his death. The grand nieces and nephews objected to this and filed a caveat against the will. As there are many on both sides, proponents and caveators, the array of legal talent is an elaborate one. A list of counsel, some ten or dozen of the most noted lawyers of Somerville and Plainfield, has been published in The Daily Press.

The proponents claim that the will was duly executed in the office of J. T. Vail at Plainfield. It was drawn in the offices of Charles J. McNabb on the second floor and as Mr. Coriell did not feel able to go upstairs to sign it, it was brought to an office on the first floor. The caveators claim that the will was signed by Mr. Coriell as he sat in his wagon on Somerset street, North Plainfield, as he was feeling too feeble that day to get out and go in the offices.

The two star witnesses Friday for the different sides were John Wendell, a farmer of Warren township, and Charles VanWinkle, a twelve-year-old boy. Wendell testified that he saw Mr. Coriell sign a paper while sitting in the wagon.

The youth, who had accompanied Mr. Coriell on his trip to Plainfield on this day in question, told a very straightforward tale. He declared that Mr. Coriell did not do any writing while in the vehicle, but that they went into the office and he saw his "uncle," as he always called Mr. Coriell, sign the will there. This was on July 19 last.

A number of other witnesses testified, corroborating the testimony of either Wendell or young VanWinkle.

Kept Conductor Busy.

The conductor of car No. 43, of the Netherwood-Dunellen line, had troubles of his own, Saturday, in preventing it from being consumed by fire. A defective stove pipe persisted in falling to the floor, each time setting the woodwork afire and threatening the entire conveyance. The blaze was checked and by dint of hard work between fare collecting the car was gotten where it could be repaired.

Quarantine Raised.

The quarantine has been raised at Battle Row, where several suspected cases of contagious disease were discovered by the Board of Health. It is now believed that the danger point is passed.

BADE FAREWELL TO HIS PRESENT CHARGE

Rev. O. G. Norseen Preached Farewell Sermon at Swedish Church Sunday Night.

A LARGE CONGREGATION

HE GOES TO WORCESTER, MASS., AS AN ASSISTANT PASTOR.

His Place As Pastor of Swedish Pilgrim Church Will be Filled by Rev. L. T. Lindholm, of North Easton, Pa., Next Sunday.

Rev. O. G. Norseen preached his farewell sermon to his congregation Sunday evening at the Swedish Pilgrim church. There was a large attendance.

Rev. Mr. Norseen took as his text "Rejoice that your name is written in Heaven," and from these words he shaped a sermon which was full of wholesome advice to the members of the newly-organized church. He advised the membe s to pray for each other and to help bear each other's burdens. By following this advice the pastor said that there would be no internal trouble in the church.

Incidently he touched upon the growth of the church during the first year of its existance, which is just closing. He showed that from the twenty three charter members the membership has grown to forty and a church has been built.

Rev. Mr. Norseen goes to Worcester, Mass., where he will be assistant rector to Rev. J. A. Hultman. His successor will be Rev. L. T. Lindholm, of North Easton, Pa., and he will preach his opening sermon Sunday morning.

The music at Sunday evening's service was especially fine. The church orchestra rendered several selections on stringed instruments and those who thus took part in the services were: Rev. O. G. Norseen, Miss Hulda Peterson, Christina Oleson, guitars; J. Tingloff, violin; Miss Anna Lindmark and Miss Judith Johnson, mandolins.

HOTEL CHANGE.

John D. Bailey Retires From Management of Park Avenue Hotel—Trouble Came to Head Saturday.

John D. Bailey has given up the management of the Park Avenue Hotel. For some time his management has not been satisfactory to the Park Avenue Corporation, of which Augustus J. Brunson is the president and owner of a controlling interest. According to contract, Mr. Bailey had been notified that his services as manager would cease April 1. One of the chief causes of the trouble was said to be the failure to furnish the monthly statements of the business.

The trouble came to a head Saturday morning when Mr. Brunson was refused the combination of the safe by William H. Bailey, the cashier and a brother of Manager Bailey. Mr. Brunson discharged Wm. H. Bailey but the latter refused to go, claiming that he was hired by, and was responsible to his brother only. When Mr. Brunson attempted to take possession of the office, he says that the cashier assaulted him without provocation. Mr. Bailey claims that Mr. Brunson had no right to take possession, while Mr. Brunson says that both Mr. Bailey and his brother, the manager, were salaried employes subject to discharge for any good cause.

A new manager will be installed in a few days and in the mean time the hotel is running as usual in charge of Mr. Brunson.

GREAT TASK.

Will Require Skin From a Hundred Men to Supply Necessary Amount.

The work of skin-grafting in the case of Wilson Fredericks, who is at Muhlenberg Hospital, continues with considerable success. Last Saturday evening one man, a resident of this city, furnished twenty-two inches of skin to be placed on Mr. Fredericks' body. This is the largest amount yet taken from any one person. It is believed that it will require at least one hundred men to complete the delicate task.

Musicale at Somerville.

Under the direction of W. E. MacClymont, of the borough a musicale will be given in St. John's church, Somerville, this evening. Mr. MacClymont is organist at the above church. He will be assisted by Edwin H. Lockhart, bass soloist at Holy Trinity church, New York.

GREAT COUNCIL AT TRENTON

THE RED MEN ASSEMBLED IN ANNUAL SESSION YESTERDAY.

Plainfield Represented by Delegates and Other Chiefs of Prominence.

The annual session of the Great Council, Independent Order of Red Men, was held in the Trenton Y. M. C. A. building, yesterday. The delegates from this city were Harry Coddington, of Wetumpkah Tribe, and Peter Sheridan, of Miantonomo. Past Great Sachem William Newcorn, Past Sachem William Westphal and many others were also in attendance.

The reports made show the order to have made rapid strides within the past year. The total membership in the State is now 21,662, of whom 279 are in Plainfield. The total increase for the year was 1,766. The total receipts for the twelve months were $208,292 from which was paid out $59,287 for funeral benefits and $33,000 in death claims. For other purposes $95,273 were expended. The combined wealth of the order is now $377,940, an increase for the year of $33,500.

SERVED HIS COUNTRY TWICE

SAMUEL WILSON, COLORED VETERAN, DIED AT HIS HOME.

Was One of Plainfield's Best Known Colored Men—Funeral Held From Calvary Baptist Church.

Samuel Wilson, one of Plainfield's oldest and best known colored residents, died at his home on West Third street, Saturday morning. He had been ill for several weeks with a complication of troubles.

Wilson was born in Virginia in 1830 and although but a boy, took part in the Mexican War and also served the entire four years of the War of the Rebellion. He came to this city soon after the latter was over and lived here since. For many years he was employed by Ivins & Company. He leaves three nieces and two nephews in Washington, D. C.

The funeral services were held yesterday from the Calvary Baptist church, of which he was head deacon. They were in charge of Rev. Scott Wallace, assisted by Rev. Messrs. Crudup and Tildon. The edifice was filled to the doors and the floral tributes were especially numerous. Samuel Codwell, James H. Brooks and George H. Jones acted as honorary pall bearers while the casket was borne by Scipio Willington, John Scott, Harrison Branch, Spencer Conway, Patrick Reed and Hamilton Tabasco. Interment was made today at Washington, D. C.

A FINE PROGRAMME.

Large Crowd Thoroughly Enjoyed the Star Course Entertainment at Y. M. C. A. Hall.

The Star Course entertainment at the Y. M. C. A. last evening was one of the best yet given and was attended by a very large audience. The programme was given by the Dunbar Bell Ringers and Male Quartette Company, consisting of George King, first tenor; Ralph Dunbar, second tenor; Harry Dunbar, baritone and Ralph Parland basso, assisted by Miss Evalina Du-Bois Benton, reader.

The work of the quartette was especially noteworthy and the vocal selections, as well as those given with the bells, called forth the heartiest of applause. At times the selections were of a humorous character and the audience was convulsed with laughter. Miss Benton's work was fully appreciated and the selections were some of her best ones.

Good Skating.

Large numbers of young people enjoyed the skating on Tier's pond Saturday afternoon. The ice was never in better condition than it was then and skaters took advantage of it. The skating was good on most all of the other ponds although on the Watchung pond ice was being cut and consequently skating was spoiled there.

Class Sleigh Ride.

The graduating class at the Whittier School enjoyed a sleighride, Saturday night. There were nearly thirty young people in the party. The trip was to Fanwood and return.

Police Board Met.

There was a meeting of the City Police Board last evening to further consider the plans for the installation of the Gamewell police patrol system, which is now proposed.

GAY THRONG GATHERS AT MASQUERADE BALL

Annual Event of Gesang and Turn Verein Sees Another Great Success.

A LARGE CROWD THERE

GRAND MARCH LED BY THE COMMITTEE IN COSTUME.

Two Hundred Took Part in the Grand March—Some of the Conspicuous Costumes Seen on the Ballroom Floor.

Resplendant with gay costumes and colored lights, and the very walls ringing with gay music and peals of merry laughter Saengerbund Hall presented an animated picture last evening when the Gesang and Turn Verein held its fifteenth annual masquerade ball.

The grand march started at 10:30 with no less than two hundred people in line. C. F. Meyer, Sr., led the march. The music for the dancing and for the grand march was provided by Prof. Suhr's full orchestra. He introduced several musical novelties into the different airs. One of these was the thunder and lightning lanciers. The lights were dimmed and while flashlight powder flashed forth artificial thunder was produced with realistic effect.

Some of the most conspicuous costumes upon the floor were as follows: Miss Lillie Toie, Evangeline; Miss Beatrice Raymond, Folly; Miss Clara Webber, ping-pong; Miss Evera Heuster, red domino; Miss Jennie Jacobs, Mother Hubbard; Misses Jennie Devine, Bertha Bremmer and Nettie Diem as "Three Little Girls in Blue;" Miss Ella Daly, card costume; Miss Anna Maloney as "Day;" Mrs. Charles Meyers, of Scotch Plains, "Night;" Mrs. John Wirth, female student; and Miss May Wigman as Columbia.

Some of the costumes worn by the men were very clever: John LeMaire, clown; E. B. Mehlenbach, of Somerville, Parisian peasant; Fred Kroulter, jester; Oscar Schwarb, Indian; Bert Firstbrook, sailor; James Keasley, sailor; Thomas O'Keefe, Philipino; George Schlick, school boy; Charles Pawson, German soldier; George Herring, clown, and Harry Harris, of Newark, as a clown.

The committee were all attired in Hohenzollern costumes with hat plumes. They headed the march. The committee comprised: Prince Carnival, A. Barre; floor manager, C. F. Meyer, Sr.; assisted by John Wirth, C. F. Meyer, Jr., John Retzer, P. Blaicke, F. Wurster and A. Wolf.

There were four women who assisted with the refreshments. They were: Mrs. Mathias Mensenbach, Mrs. John Retzer, Mrs. Carl Felber and Mrs. Henry Haurand.

QUIET WEDDING.

Miss Mary Tripney and Ferdinand Dencklau Were Married at Home of Rev. L. R. Howard.

In a very quiet manner, Ferdinand Dencklau, of East Second street, and Miss Mary Tripney, sister of Mrs. Walter Bradford, of West Third street, were married Saturday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. R. Howard at his home on West Fifth street. There were no attendants.

The young couple afterward left for a wedding trip of a few days after which they will reside until spring with Mrs. Bradford. The groom is an employe of the New Jersey Central.

DEATH OF MRS. SMITH.

Former Plainfield Woman Passed Away at Somerville.

The death of Mrs. George Smith, a former Plainfield resident, occurred at her home in Somerville, early Saturday morning. She was the daughter of the late Frederick VanLiew, of East Seventh street, and was twenty-five years of age. She leaves a daughter and one brother, Fred VanLiew, formerly of this city but now of Philadelphia.

The funeral services were held from her late home on High street, yesterday afternoon. Interment was at Somerville.

Preparatory Service.

There will be a preparatory service at the Crescent Avenue church, tomorrow evening, which will be in charge of Prof. Thomas C. Hall. The subject will be "Communion With God." The regular communion service will be held Sunday morning.

NEW BRUNSWICK DAY HERE

BRUNSWICK'S Y. M. C. A. ENTERTAINED BY LOCAL MEMBERSHIP.

A Short Address, Two Basket Ball Games and a Lunch Were the Chief Events.

Saturday was "New Brunswick day" at the Young Men's Christian Association when about twenty boys accompanied by General Secretary F. R. Buckalew and Physical Director George R. Borden came to this city by trolley and were royally entertained until late in the afternoon.

Shortly after they arrived at 10 o'clock an address was made by Mr. Buckalew in which he gave them a talk on the "Butterfly," making of the topic a spiritual application. Two basket ball games followed when the honors were divided. In the first game New Brunswick won, the score being 7 to 1. In the second game, which was played by the older members of the two Y. M. C. A.'s, the visitors suffered defeat, the score being: New Brunswick, 3; Plainfield, 21.

A refreshing swim in the pool followed the basket ball games after which luncheon was served. The visitors brought their lunch but hot coffee was served here by the local lads. The visitors departed about 4 o'clock after they had enjoyed the privileges of the Y. M. C. A. here during the afternoon.

ABANDON CENTRAL CONTROL

AN IMPORTANT FACT TOLD TO STATE CHARITIES CONFERENCE.

Friday's Session of State Conference at Trenton—Many Plainfielders There.

The second State conference of Charities and Corrections was attended by a large delegation of people interested in the various Plainfield philanthropies, among who were, the Overseers of the Poor Alex. D. Ayres and Wm. G. Debele, Miss Emma L. Adams, librarian; Mrs. Dexter O. Tiffany, manager of the State Charities Aid Association; Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, president of the Relief Association; Miss Rafferty, State Secretary of the King's Daughters, of New Jersey; H. M. Maxson, president of the Organized Aid Association; and Miss VanBoskerck, its general secretary.

The subject of Friday's session was State Supervision addresses by F. L. Wines, former secretary of the Illinois Board of Charities on "Methods of Supervising Penal and Charitable Institutions," and by Jas. Heg, former member of the Wisconsin Board of Control on "What Type of Supervision does New Jersey Need," was followed by a lively discussion opened by Wm. H. Allen, Ph. D., general secretary of the State Charities Aid Association, on a Board of Supervisors, serving gratuitously as opposed to a board of control of officials paid by the State. The concensus of opinion made for the volunteer board, as against a paid board of control.

Announcements were made at this session that Governor Murphy will appoint a commission for a woman's reformatory in New Jersey and that the member from Essex had withdrawn his bill proposing five members of a board of control, salaried each at $5,000 a year, to supercede the present boards of managers of State charities serving without recompense.

FOR THE BOYS.

Patriotic Programme Given at Y. M. C. A. Yesterday Afternoon.

An entertainment for the benefit of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., was given in the association hall yesterday afternoon. Martin A. Korff was in charge of the affair and under his direction the association orchestra rendered a number of patriotic selections.

There was a soprano solo by Miss Cornelia Miller and a duet by Miss Miller and Miss Beatrice Miner, contralto, and a contralto solo by Mrs. Charlotte M. Ross. The programme included the trombone solos by Kenneth Shupp, clarinet solos by Otis Ballard, baritone solos by George Cathers, and the singing of patriotic airs by a chorus of young women. The programme was concluded with singing by the chorus "Home Sweet Home," and Emmetss Lullaby simultaneously.

TO MISSION STATIONS ON AN AIR SHIP

Altogether Novel Trip Arranged by Endeavorers of Trinity Reformed Church.

MADE NUMEROUS STOPS

WENT TO PACIFIC COAST AND BACK IN ONE EVENING.

Met at Stations by Distinguished Personages Who Told of Their Work and What They Had Accomplished There.

A trip which would have opened the eyes of the author of "Around the World in Eighty Days" was enjoyed last night by the members of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church. A tour was made of the various towns and cities where Endeavor churches had been established, in the airship "Imagination."

The airship started on its journey with Miss Lillian A. Force at the helm. The first stop was made at Hudson, N. Y., where the third Christian Endeavor church is located. At this town A. L. Force, representing Rev. Charles Park, welcomed the voyagers and introduced Miss Clapper, president of the Senior Society, represented by Miss Minnie Wyman, who told of their work. Miss Pultz, impersonated by Miss Katherine Bodine, told of the junior department.

New Zealand, Mich., was the next stop. Rev. DeLong, represented by William F. Oliver as pastor of the C. E. church, told of the work there. Mr. DePree, represented by Charles M. Doliver, related the story of the Endeavor Society and Mrs. Pruim, through Miss Randall, told of the juniors and their work.

Leoto, Minn., was sighted and H. P. Seader, as Rev. Mr. Printopol, pastor of the C. E. church there, welcomed the visitors and told of the wonderful progress made.

From Leota the airship was pointed towards Colony, Oklahoma, where Mr. S. Crouse, as Rev. Mr. Wright welcomed the visitors. Together with Miss N. Krietling as Mrs. Wright, Mrs. H. S. Potter, as Mrs. Page, and Miss May Randolph as Miss Jensen, the story of the work among the Indians was told.

Fort Sill was the next stop and there Miss Adkinson, through Miss S. Searing, told how successful had been the work of converting the Indians. Miss McMillan, represented by Miss A. Pugh, Miss Ewing, represented by Mrs. Trembath and Mrs. Hawkins, impersonated by Miss J. Hockridge, told of the accomplishments of the church there.

Rev. Ties Mulder, represented by Chas. Zimmer and Mrs. Mulder, represented by Mrs. H. S. Crawford, were at Liberty, Oklahoma, to welcome the voyagers when they arrived. Both told of some of the difficulties under which the work was carried on there.

A brief stop was made at San Francisco and from there the airship sailed to Yokama, Washington, where Rev. S. J. Harmsburg, represented by Clarence Rittenhouse, told of the work there. The return trip was made as the crow flies, to New York, where Chauncey F. Colthar as Rev. A. DeWitt Mason, president of the Christian Endeavor Mission League told of the work done by the League in establishing churches throughout the country. Rev. Cornelius Schenck led in a closing prayer after the secretary read the roll call.

Those who had the affair in charge were: Miss Lillian A. Force, Miss Helen H. Bogart, Miss C. J. Smalley, Miss Jessie Hockridge, Samuel Crouse and William F. Oliver. These formed the missionary committee and they were assisted by the temperance committee: H. P. Seader, H. E. Gayle, Charles Zimmer, Frances Bach and William LaTourette.

FORTY CLAIMS SETTLED.

There Are Still Nearly Sixty Claims Against the Railroad Company.

Thus far John K. Large, claims agent for the New Jersey Central Railroad, has effected a settlement with forty persons who were injured in the railroad wreck at Westfield and one death claim has been paid. There are still nearly sixty claims to be settled and Mr. Large believes that most of them will be adjusted inside of two weeks. Most of the claims settled are minor ones.

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

A removal sale is now going on at the New York Bargain Store on West Front street, and some of the most attractive bargains in the line of men's clothing are to be found there.

W. W. Warnock, of West Front street, continues to make a specialty of charlotte russe, eclaires and cream puffs. Nothing in the confectionery line is nicer. They are made fresh every day.

John H. Doane, the West Front street shoe dealer, is meeting with great success in the sale of the Sorosis shoe for women and the Ralston health shoe for men. The quality is the best and the price very reasonable.

A great clearing sale is now going on at the store of I. H. Boehm, on West Front street. Some of the most astonishing bargains in sheeting, dress gingham, men's cambric shirts and underwear are to be found at this store.

At the Oriental Tea Room on West Front street, P. G. Dubois is showing an unusually attractive line of chinaware in the favorite blue design. He also keeps in stock a large assortment of delicacies and favors for parties and social events.

In addition to the handsome showing of new spring dress goods at Hill & Shupp's store, the firm is also showing a most desirable stock of white goods at the muslin wear counter. Specials are being offered in men's shirts, hosiery, millinery and many other departments are filled with bargains.

The problem of what to send as a wedidng present is quickly solved by a visit to Gavett's on West Front street. There is a host of pretty things in china, silverware and cut glass—everyone of them a suggestion A new lot of recently received bric-a-brac for wall decorations is gaining popularity.

Shake Off the Wintry Blasts.

The months of January and February are the most disagreeable to the northerner and delightful are they for the Florida tourist. The trip to Jacksonville is through a section as historic as it is picturesque, and the service to that point via the Royal Blue Line is the best The New Jersey Central is going to run an excursion to Jacksonville on Tuesday, March 10. Train leaves New York, foot Liberty street, at 8:30 a. m., arrive Washington at 2:10 p. m., same day; leave Washington at 7 p. m., March 11 and arrive Jacksonville at 1:20 p. m., March 12. The round trip rate from New York and vicinity is $50, and includes also sleeping car berths, meals en route, transfer and hotel accommodations in Washington on southward trip, passengers making their own arrangements for the northward return trip. The arrangements are such that the care and worry of the journey are in the hands of the railroad company, and the tourist has the entire time for enjoyment. The New Jersey Central has issued "A Little Yellow Book" on this Florida trip; if you want it send a postal to C. M. Burt, general passenger agent, New York. It's free for the asking. 2 18 6 eod c 3

Lewis DeCamp, of West Sixth street, is very low with pleuro-pneumonia.

William DeMeza, of West Second street, spent yesterday with friends in Philadelphia.

The condition of J. B. Higgins, of West Front street, who is ill with pneumonia, remains the same.

William Shacht, of Somerset street, has returned to his former home in New York where he has accepted a position.

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder.

If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood is sent coursing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the entire body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each.

Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders.

I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I endured. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now, while I keep a bottle handy, I seldom need it, as it has cured me.

ITHACA'S EPIDEMIC.

President Schurman of Cornell Issues a Statement.

CONTAMINATED WATER THE CAUSE

Fifteen Students and Sixteen Citizens Have Already Succumbed to the Typhoid—Five Hundred Are Now Ill.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 24.—In reply to a request for an authoritative statement concerning the origin of the typhoid fever epidemic as it has affected Cornell university, its cause, the number of cases and deaths and the steps that have been taken to remedy existing conditions at the university President Jacob G. Schurman has given out the following:

"The cause of the epidemic of typhoid is generally believed to be contamination of the water of Six Mile creek, which, along with Buttermilk creek, furnishes the water supply of the city of Ithaca, by a band of laborers who were engaged in the fall and early winter in the construction of a dam in that creek for the Ithaca Water company. This belief is confirmed by an investigation which in behalf of Cornell university has been made by Dr. V. A. Moore, our bacteriologist, and Dr. E. M. Chamot, our taxicologist, and which they have just completed.

"They say a study of the various ways by which typhoid bacilli are disseminated will show that in our present epidemic we should look to but two of the channels of dissemination—namely, milk and water—for source of infection. A careful inquiry into distribution of routes does not show or give reason to suspect that milk has been a source of infection. This leaves us with but one possible source for the infection, the water.

"The water supply of the university comes from Fall creek, which is a different source from the water supply of the city. No case of typhoid fever is known to have occurred among those who used exclusively the water supply of the university campus. No person at Sage college, in which more than 200 women students board and lodge and which is supplied by this water, has had typhoid fever, and no case of typhoid has occurred in the families of professors living on the campus. Typhoid fever has developed among those students only who lived in other portions of the city which are supplied by the Ithaca Water company with water from Six Mile creek and from Buttermilk creek.

"The university authorities have made arrangements to enable students to secure pure water duly inspected. Artesian water has been placed in all the university buildings, where students may draw it freely. Distributing stations have also been established both on and near the campus, and students have been officially informed that they may have pure water in any quantity desired at the expense of the university.

"To insure pure water for the city and university not later than Sept. 1, this year, the board of trustees has authorized the expenditure of $150,000 for the installation of a complete and adequate filtration plant."

From a gentleman who has visited Ithaca for the purpose of ascertaining the actual facts regarding the situation we are enabled to print the following statement:

The death roll among the students of Cornell university from the scourge of typhoid fever has already reached alarming proportions, and there are now no less than fifty-four cases the outcome of which is uncertain. Fifteen student deaths have been recorded within sixteen days, four of these occurring within the last twenty-four hours.

Up to the present only one young woman student, Miss Charlotte E. Spencer, has fallen a victim to the fever plague.

Despite the fact that the university authorities are inclined to the belief that the crisis is past there is no denying the fact that the situation is appalling. Every day brings forth its dread list of new cases, and the physicians of Ithaca are toiling night and day in their efforts to bring relief to the suffering.

Confined as this fever pestilence is to so small an area and so limited a population, it is nearly as sweeping in its destruction of life as the "black plague" of India. The fearful swath that has been cut in the student ranks has led to a panic of fear at the university. Already nearly half of the 2,900 students have fled from the pest ridden place.

The situation outside the university is equally alarming. Sixteen of the townspeople have died of the fever, and the death rate is increasing at an appalling rate. Five hundred others are stricken down, and among these there are certain to be many deaths.

Registration For Nurses.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 24.—Senator Armstrong has introduced a bill providing for the registration of trained nurses under the auspices of the regents of the university of the state of New York. The bill provides that a certificate shall be granted to nurses graduated from training schools connected with recognized hospitals and giving a course of at least two years, according to them the title of "registered nurse" and authorizing them to use after their names the initials "R. N." to that effect.

To Join American Navy.

VIENNA, Feb. 24.—The former Archduke Leopold Ferdinand, the brother of the former crown princess of Saxony, has telegraphed to his parents at Salzburg that he intends to become an officer in the United States navy.

BLACK AND COLORED DRESS MATERIALS FOR 1903

The new Spring shades in French Voiles have been awarded the decision of correct style by that erratic lady "Dame Fashion," and as the decree is absolute, "her subjects" will do well to make a study of these materials.

This new store of ours is a splendid school in which to pursue this pleasant and profitable vocation, for our stock is resplendent with all the latest innovations as well as staple novelties, and a comparison of prices makes it all the more interesting.

WHAT ARE FRENCH VOILES?

There may be a few that are perhaps unacquainted with this fabric, and for their edification we would say that this material is quite "sheer," and of this family of Spring dress goods the most practical. Its wearing qualities are splendid and a peculiarity of its manufacture eliminates, owing to this fact, many disagreeable features of kindred lines.

We are showing all the new Spring shades—the cream and the black as well. As an extra special inducement we shall place a limited quantity on sale at a very narrow margin of profit—nearly at the cost of today's production.

45-inch Voiles in all the new spring shades—a sheer and crisp fabric, perfect in weave and colorings, including cream, white and black, at per yard

1.00, 1.25, 1.50, 1.75, 2.00

45-inch All-wool Etamines, complete line of spring shades, round twisted cord, very popular for shirt waists and costumes, white and black, at, per yard.

75c, 85c, 1.25, 1.50, 1,75

45-inch Silk and Wool Crepe de Chine, in all the new shades—a fine, soft fabric, has the appearance of all-silk crepe de chine, at per yard

1.00, 1.25, 1.50, 1.75, 2.00

45-inch Crepe de Paris, in choice line of shades—one of this season's choicest fabrics for street and evening wear, also black, at per yard,

1.25, 1.50, 2.00

45-inch Crepe Eolienne, silk and wool. This line includes all the new and most popular shades for evening wear, at per yd 1.75, 2.00, 2.50

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN GRASS MATTINGS?

The season for the Hygienic Floor Covering is rapidly approaching, and this big store of ours contains a very great assortment. The Spring lines are now ready. They're pretty, indeed, employing all the novelties of manufacture that modern mechanics can produce. Here are a few sample prices:

Grass Mattings, 1 yd wide, per yd - - 38c
Grass Mattings, 1½ yds wide, per yd - - 60c
Grass Mattings, 2 yds wide, per yd - - 80c

Mr. Cortelyou's Estimates For New Department.

OVER HALF A MILLION FOR SALARIES

Nearly $1,000,000 Additional Required For Other Expenses, Besides $7,000,000 For a Building Exclusive of the Site.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—A scheme for the organization of the new department of commerce and labor has been laid before congress by Secretary Cortelyou in the estimates transmitted to that body through the secretary of the treasury. In addition to the twelve branches of the public service transferred to the new department from other departments which have been appropriated for Secretary Cortelyou asks for appropriations for salaries aggregating $669,690. The salaries cover the secretary's office, the bureaus of corporations and manufactures and subordinate divisions, as follows:

Secretary's office, twenty salaries, $38,020; under the chief clerk, seventy-one salaries, $61,900; appointment division, twenty salaries, $26,160; division of mails and files, twenty-one salaries, $21,300; division of stationery, nine salaries, $12,360; library, seven salaries, $8,340; office of solicitor, eleven salaries, $18,100; bureau of corporations, 116 salaries, $150,000; for compensation of special examiners in the field, $296,960; bureau of manufactures, twenty-one salaries, $30,980; in connection with the new duties imposed on the bureau of statistics, $5,570.

In addition to the salaries are estimates of $75,000 for rent, $150,000 for contingent expenses, $150,000 for traveling expenses of examiners, $600,000 for printing and binding, including $250,000 for the census office.

In his recommendation for a building for his department Secretary Cortelyou urges that the future growth of the department be considered. He says it "should be so planned in advance as to be not inferior in convenience or beauty to the structures which commercial and financial houses at the great centers of American trade are erecting for the transaction of their daily business." He states it should have at least one hall suitable for conferences or congresses, international or national, and dwells on the present inadequacy of the present department buildings. He asks for $7,000,000 for the building, exclusive of the site.

Hoar Speaks In Chicago.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—The anniversary of the birth of George Washington was generally observed in Chicago, the principal celebration being that under the auspices of the Union League club in the Auditorium. Senator George F. Hoar of Massachusetts was the orator of the day and delivered a eulogy upon Washington before an audience of 4,000 people. In the evening the principal event was the banquet at the Union League club, where Senator Hoar was the guest of honor. Other speakers of the evening were President Bancroft of the Union League club, President Eliot of Harvard college, the Rev. Frank W. Gunsaulus and Bishop Galler of Tennessee.

Strikers Beat a Fellow Workman.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Albert O. Schumacher, a horseshoer, was beaten into insensibility last night by a number of striking horseshoers and blacksmiths while he was looking for work. George Lowden, a manufacturer of Fort Wayne, Ind., interfered and in his effort to rescue the man was roughly handled. He then called a policeman, but Schumacher's assailants escaped. The injured man was taken to the hospital, where it was feared that he was fatally hurt.

Miners Idle Since May.

HAZLETON, Pa., Feb. 24.—According to information given out by the mine workers, about 300 men in the Seventh district who went on strike last May are still idle. The mine workers say that most of the strikers for whom no places have yet been found live in the Panther Creek valley and were formerly in the service of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company.

Matthews Won at Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 24.—Matty Matthews of Brooklyn secured the decision before the Allegheny Athletic club over Tom Couhig of Dunkirk, N. Y., after ten rounds of fast fighting. Matthews had the better of the bout throughout.

Russian Governors For Finland.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 24.—The czar has dismissed four Finnish governors for opposing the policy of Russia. The remaining three provinces of Finland will in future have Russian governors.

COMING EVENTS.

February 24—Adjourned meeting of Common Council.

February 24—Meeting of Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital.

AN EVER PRESENT DANGER.

At this evening's meeting of the Common Council, the police committee will report on the cost of the proposed police patrol system. It is generally understood that the system, which has been recommended by Mayor Jenkins, meets with the approval of the members of the Council. It also seems probable that the Council will provide for its installation tonight.

No one can question for a moment the need of such a system. It will afford Plainfield infinitely better police protection which could not otherwise be obtained save by the addition of many more men to the present force. But one thing must not be forgotten. It costs money.

This Council has been providing for the additional expenditure of the city's funds in a number of ways. There are increases in salaries in both police and fire departments. Then this police patrol system. Several other changes, which cost money, are under advisement. This city is growing in wealth but will that increase keep pace with the increase in expenditures? It is a question which the members of the Council do not want to forget.

With practically the same body of men in power year after year, there is always a tendency for extravagance which must be carefully guarded against. We do not say that the present Council is extravagant but we do urgently beg the members of that body to weigh with great care any proposition that is likely to increase the cost of living to Plainfield property owners.

CELEBRATED LECTURER.

Ernest Thompson-Seton Gave Two Delightful Talks at the Casino Yesterday.

America's authority on its animals, Ernest Thompson - Seton, delighted good sized audiences at the Casino, yesterday afternoon and evening, with two of his newest lectures. The effect of his graphic descriptions was greatly enhanced by stereopticon views from photographs taken by himself.

In the afternoon his lecture was "The Indians as I Knew Them" and it did much to dispel the false notions people have of the red man, both of the present day and of Fenimore Cooper's time. He delighted the younger element of the audience by building a fire on the stage in traditional savage fashion without matches, simply by rubbing two sticks of wood together.

The evening lecture was "New Adventures of Animal Friends" and dwelt mainly with the "freezing" or standing still habit, practiced by wild animals when frightened.

PERSONAL.

Seamon Williams, of Sandford avenue, is out again after a severe illness of over two weeks.

S. T. Sarson, of Watchung avenue, has been confined to his home for several days with an attack of the grip.

R. F. R. Huntsman, of Westervelt avenue, was able to go to business today, after several days' illness with the grip.

Fire in Oil-Soaked Rags.

Spontaneous combustion in a bunch of oil-soaked rags resulted in a slight fire at the home of Mrs. David Vail, of Park avenue, Saturday afternoon. Chief Doane was notified by telephone and responded with the chemical engine and No. 2 hose wagon. On their arrival the blaze had been extinguished. There was no damage.

HOPE BESTED REFORM CLUB

LEAGUE BASKET BALL GAME PLAYED LAST EVENING.

Hope Y. M. A. Defeated Opponents 25 to 13 in An Interesting Game.

An enthusiastic but not very large audience witnessed the league basket ball game between the Hope Y. M. A. and the Reform Club teams at Reform Hall, last evening. The game was an exciting one from start to finish, although the Hope team appeared a little too much for its opponents.

Taylor was the star man on the home team, while Scott and O'Loughlin played a close second. The opposing team played well together and individually and the defense showed improvement. The Hope team had another advantage, besides practice, that of substituting other players in the second half. The first half ended with the score 18 to 6 in favor of Hope and the finish showed a score of 25 to 13 in favor of the visiting team.

In the first half the Hope team threw six goals from the field and six from fouls, and in the last half they threw two goals from the field and eight from fouls. The Reform Club team threw two goals from the field and two from fouls in the first half, and one from the field and four from fouls in the last half.

The teams lined up as follows:

HOPE Y. M. A.		Reform Club.
Dilks	RF	Scott
Porter	LF	Taylor
Whitley, Cose	C	Nichols
Roseberry, Evans	RG	Higgins
Chamberlain, McComb	LG	O'Loughlin

Referee—W. C. Geiger. Umpires—H. M. Hoffman and M. W. Munger. Scorer—G. E. Firstbrook. Timer—Walter C. Dobbins.

SOCIETY AT EUCHRE.

Progressive Euchre Was Last of Series of Events of the In and Out Club.

A progressive euchre formed the last of a series of four events given during the past few months by the In and Out Club, and was held last evening at the home of Miss Edna Strong, of Central avenue. The affair was a delightful one and the playing was spirited throughout.

The prize winners were Miss Ethel Boyd, first; Miss Florence Huntington, second, and Miss Fanny C. Cox, third. Miss Helen Bushnell won the women's consolation prize. Henry C. Wells was the winner of the first prize and Thomas R. Van Boskerck was the winner of the second while Howard Huntington was the winner of the third. Mr. Calkins captured the men's consolation prize.

The affair was conducted under the supervision of a committee comprising: Miss Edna Strong, Miss Maude Van Boskerck, Miss Dorothy Waldo, Miss McCurdy, Miss Florence Huntington, Miss Annie Murphy and Mrs. James Blake.

ASH WEDNESDAY.

Services at Grace Episcopal Church for Beginning of Lent.

Tomorrow being Ash Wednesday, the Lenten season will begin at that time. According to previous custom there will be special services in the Episcopal churches. The services to be held at Grace P. E. church will be as follows: 7, Holy Communion; 10, morning prayer and Holy Communion; 12, penitential office; 8, evening prayer and sermon, by Rev. James E. Freeman, rector of St. Andrews church, Yonkers, N. Y.

Message of Sorrow.

Mayor Doremus, of Newark, yesterday received a telegram from Mayor N. B. Smalley, of the borough, in which the latter expressed his sympathy and sorrow for the people of Newark in their late bereavment. The telegram was a return of the expression given by Mayor Doremus recently, when so many Plainfielders lost their lives in the railroad wreck at Westfield.

On Day of His Birth.

A birthday surprise was tendered William Brown last evening at his home on Stone street. There were thirty present and the evening was pleasantly spent until a late hour when refreshments were served. Music was rendered by several, both instrumental and vocal.

Interesting services were held in the First Baptist church Sunday, when Rev. Frank Fletcher preached a Washington Birthday sermon.

A sleigh ride party was scheduled by the young people here for last evening, but owing to the poor sleighing not much of a ride was held.

Sheppard Randolph expects soon to return to Cornell University, now that the typhoid scare is abating.

The holiday was spent very quietly in town yesterday, there being no excitement of any kind.

John Nelson, of Rutgers College, spent the holiday at his home in this place.

Paul Meyers spent yesterday with friends in Plainfield.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Rev. G. M. Shott preached his fourth anniversary sermon as pastor of of the Baptist church Sunday morning. Mr. Shott's four years' pastorate has been a profitable one for the church. During that time the Citizens' League was organized, by means of which all will admit, even if they do not agree with the League in all questions, that much has been accomplished. At one time Mr. Shott was acting as pastor of the church and superintendent of the Sunday-school. A number of improvements have been made in the church work and service. The individual communion service has been adopted. In many ways Mr. Shott has endeared himself to his parishioners and both are looking forward to another year of successful work.

Fanwood Council, R. A., will hold its semi-monthly meeting in its rooms tonight. A full attendance of the members is desired as business of importance will be transacted. The Council smoker, which is be to held in Excelsior Hall tomorrow night, promises to be one of the most enjoyable affairs the Council has ever held. Well known New York talent has been engaged to provide the entertainment for the members and their guests while they linger over their cigars and pipes.

A stereopticon entertainment, "A coal mine 1,000 feet below the ground," was given at the Methodist church last night. The views shown were excellent, being taken from a mine in active operation. A fair sized audience enjoyed the programme. Proceeds were for the benefit of the church.

The Brookside Gun Club has been very active at the traps of late. A weekly shoot was held Saturday afternoon and yesterday afternoon the members and a number of their friends enjoyed an afternoon shoot.

Every sleigh in town that could be hired or borrowed yesterday and Sunday was out. Those who enjoy the sport report it as being the best sleighing of the winter.

Mrs. Wm. Bacon and Mrs. Wm. Demarest, both of Plainfield, have been visiting at the home of their sister, Mrs. Joseph Schwalbach, of Westfield avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Stillger and children, of Roselle, have been visiting at the home of Mr. Stillger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Stillger, of Front street.

The weekly Epworth League meeting held Sunday evening in the Methodist church was in charge of Rev. Mr. Bayliss, pastor of the church.

The K. O. G. Society, composed of a number of Netherwood young people, will hold an invitation dance in the Fanwood fire house tonight.

The Misses Marsh, of Park avenue, have been entertaining friends from out of town for a week.

A young son has arrived to brighten the home of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Munroe.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

In the recent fake Mexican lottery scheme which was invaded by detectives in New York, it is alleged there were some victims not far from here.

The personal property of Mrs. Charlotte E. Wright, residing on the road leading from Park avenue to Alton, will be sold on Tuesday, March 3.

A red, white and blue social will be held by the Christian Endeavor Society in the lecture room of the church tomorrow evening.

Mrs. Sisty and family are about to move to Roselle on account of better railroad accommodations.

A large company attended the sale of Charles Hazel's goods yesterday.

Funeral of Miss Simonson.

Funeral services of Miss Julia Simonson, who passed away at her home on Duer street, Friday night were held last evening. Rev. H. Montgomery Downey, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, conducted the services at the house which were attended only by the near relatives of the deceased. Interment will be in the cemetery at New Brighton, S. I., today. At the services at the house Elmer Runyon sang "Lead Kindly Light."

Verdict for Zimmerman.

Justice Huff has rendered a verdict for the plaintiff in the case of Zimmerman against McVey. He allowed the plaintiff $180.99.

GATHERED IN FIVE.

Borough Police Raided a House on Race Street Last Night.

On complaint of neighbors the police made a raid on a house on Race street, last night at 11 o'clock and arrested five colored people who were causing a disturbance. It is stated that the real cause of the raid was to close a disorderly house. Officers Winn and Wise arrested Al Saunderson, of Bound Brook; Walter Carter, Maggie Bell Jackson, Rosy Jackson, and Eva Carter. The prisoners will be given a hearing this evening.

Mock Trial Postponed.

The mock trial arranged for the meeting of the Retail Clerks' Mutual Aid Association, last evening, was postponed for the present. Arrangements are now being made for the anniversary celebration on March 9.

COMPROMISE PLANS.

Proposition For Two States Submitted to Minority.

DEMOCRATS ARE LIKELY TO REJECT

Republican Leaders In Senate Agree on Spooner Scheme to End Long Statehood Fight—Last Supply Bill Passed by House.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—A large crowd was attracted to the senate yesterday, most of them visiting Daughters of the American Revolution. Washington's farewell address was read by Mr. Dubois of Idaho. The omnibus public building bill was passed, and the postoffice appropriation bill was considered without final action.

Mr. Tillman spoke for nearly two hours, principally in reply to Mr. Spooner, on the Indianola (Miss.) postoffice case. He said that if the policy of the administration in regard to the equality of the negro was carried on and Booker Washington should be appointed to the cabinet he would vote for his confirmation. He did not conclude his remarks.

All day there was talk of compromise on the statehood bill. It was generally understood that what was known as the Spooner compromise, being the two state bill drawn by the Wisconsin senator, would be satisfactory to the Republicans. The terms of this compromise have been given heretofore save that the provision for the state of Montezuma provides that before Arizona can be set off as a separate state the population of Montezuma must be 700,000, of which 300,000 should be in Arizona.

There was an earnest conference in the senate chamber after adjournment participated in by Senators Aldrich, Quay, Hanna, Foraker, McComas, Beveridge and Kean, when it was definitely decided that the proposition for a compromise on two states should be submitted to the Democrats. Senator Quay presented a memorandum of the important features of the compromise to Senator Bate, who will present it to a conference of Democrats today. It is expected that the Republican proposition will be rejected and a counter proposition made. Democratic leaders say that they cannot accept the compromise suggested, and the Republicans say that no further concessions will be made.

The house passed the general deficiency appropriation bill, the last of the regular supply bills. It carried $13,698,781. The only amendment of importance was one appropriating $1,000,000 to replace the stores and storehouse at the Rock Island arsenal recently destroyed by fire. The bill to amend the railroad safety appliance act was sent to conference, and the conferees were instructed not to insist on that portion of the house amendment giving the interstate commerce commission power to reduce below 50 per cent the number of cars equipped with patent airbrakes.

Senate Confirmations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The following confirmations have been made by the senate: William R. Day, Ohio, associate justice of the supreme court of the United States; John K. Richards, Ohio, circuit judge for the Sixth judicial circuit, and Henry H. Hoyt, Pennsylvania, solicitor general.

Dominica Will Settle.

SANTO DOMINGO, Feb. 24.—The Dominican government has notified the United States minister, Mr. Powell, that it has reconsidered its intention to send an envoy to Washington to make representations there against the Ros and Clyde company's claims and that it will accept Mr. Powell's proposition in regard to the Ros claim and has requested further time to consider the claim of the Clyde company. The treasury officials here have paid Minister Powell $18,750 as the first installment in the payment of the Improvement company's claim, amounting to $4,500,000. The Dominican government has agreed to pay during the first year $225,000 in monthy installments of $18,750.

Gales Fan German Fires.

BERLIN, Feb. 24.—Severe gales have swept over Germany, and a series of destructive fires spread by the wind occurred. In the village of Huertgen, near Dueren, ninety-two houses were burned, and at Kleinenberg, Rhenish Prussia, forty-four buildings were destroyed. Smaller fires were reported elsewhere, with some casualties. At Dolina, across the frontier in Galicia, upward of a hundred houses were destroyed.

Gore Jewels Missing.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 24.—Mrs. P. T. Dickinson of Alameda has received a letter from Paris which states that before the effects of Mrs. Ellen Gore, her niece, who was shot and killed in the apartments of the Russian singer, Rydzinski, on the night of Nov. 19, left the American consulate for New York it was discovered that jewels to the value of more than $5,000 had been stolen.

Miners Did Not Celebrate.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 24.—The anniversary of the birth of Washington was not observed by the coal mine workers of the Wyoming valley. Every mine was working full handed all day. The Stanton colliery resumed yesterday after being idle for a year on account of being flooded. Fully 600 men and boys were given employment.

Receiver For Telephone Company.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 24.—The Union Trust company of Detroit has been appointed receiver for the Michigan Telephone company by Judge Swan in the federal court here on application of the Old Colony Trust company of Boston.

THE SPORTING WORLD.

Bowlers Choose Cleveland For 1904. Scott Retains Squash Trophy.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 24.—The American bowling congress in session here has adopted the recommendation of the executive committee that the maximum weight of bowling balls shall not exceed sixteen and a half pounds.

Cleveland was selected for the next national congress. The vote was: Cleveland, 91; Milwaukee, 85; Louisville, 49. Officers will be elected Thursday.

The decision on the weight of balls was a compromise. Balls may be loaded up to the maximum weight specified. There is no talk of a split in the congress, and all danger of such a result seems past. The committee on revision of the constitution will make its report Thursday.

Secretary Sam Karpf and Treasurer G. M. Stearns made their annual reports. Mr. Karpf made one important suggestion along the line of increasing the membership and revenues of the congress. It was that bowling clubs be admitted to membership and that their dues be placed at $1 a year.

Winners at Boston Dog Show.

BOSTON, Feb. 24.—Rev. Father O'Gorman's champion Irish terrier Celtic Badge by taking three blues in the novice open and winners classes gave a notable opening to the annual exhibition of the New England Kennel club at the Mechanics' building. Father O'Gorman was warmly greeted as he brought his terrier into the ring, and the applause had a vociferous echo from one of the largest collection of valuable canines ever brought together in New England. Mrs. James Kernochan, with her champion bitch Ermine, was almost as successful as Father O'Gorman, and in addition she won the club prize for an exhibit of four and another for the best bitch puppy. In this same breed Mrs. Richard Harding Davis, with her Iroquois Muddle, won the prize for the best American dog.

Good Day at Ingleside.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 24.—In the presence of the largest crowd of the season Claude at 3 to 1 won the California Derby at Ingleside, with Gold Van second and Epicure third. To a good start Durazzo and Epicure went out in front. The order was not changed to any extent until shortly before the head of the stretch was reached. There Claude moved up and, passing Epicure, assumed the lead and won handily from Gold Van. Epicure, affected by the early pace, tired badly when the pinch came. The event was worth $3,400, of which $2,590 went to the winner. The mile race aroused more enthusiasm than the Derby, Kenilworth winning by a neck from Cunard. The race was run in 1:41.

New Baseball Rules.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—Peace reigned supreme at the joint meeting here of the American and National leagues and the National Association of Minor Leagues. The purpose of the meeting was to arrange a set of playing rules and a schedule. When the gathering adjourned last night, a uniform four strike rule had been adopted, a new section added to the rule regarding the makeup of the diamond and an amendment added to the balk ball rule. With these changes and a few others of minor importance the committee decided that the rules were as perfect as could be.

Scott Retains Squash Trophy.

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., Feb. 24.—The finals in the squash championship of America were played off yesterday afternoon at the courts of the Tuxedo Tennis and Racket club and resulted in a victory for George I. Scott of New York, winner of last year's championship, who easily defeated B. Wendell, Jr., the Harvard crack, in three straight games. The finals did not prove to be the battle that was anticipated, Mr. Scott showing decidedly the better form. By this victory he gets a second lien on the $500 J. Henry Smith trophy.

Grant Won Tennis Championship.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Wylie C. Grant, the expert of the New York Lawn Tennis club, won the national indoor lawn tennis championship in the singles on the board courts of the Seventh Regiment armory. Paired with Robert Le Roy of Columbia university Grant also won the championship honors in the doubles. Both contests were well played before a large gallery.

Chess at Monte Carlo.

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 24.—Pillsbury has won his unfinished game with Maroczy. The tournament scores up to the present are: Pillsbury, 7 points; Teichmann, 7½; Marco, 6½; Mieses, Schlechter and Tarrasch, 6; Maroczy and Mason, 5½; Taubenhaus and Wolf, 4½; Albin, 4; Marshall, 3½; Reggio, 2½; Moreau, 0.

Fought Six Rounds With McCoy.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 24.—Jack McCormick of this city stayed six rounds with Kid McCoy last night at the Washington Sporting club. The bout was something of a farce, as McCormick was entirely outclassed. He took the count ten times and only once succeeded in landing on McCoy.

Crowds at Lake George Races.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Feb. 24.—The holiday racing on Lake George at Caldwell drew one of the largest crowds of the season. The track was perfect. The named race was won by Mary McGregor (Biggart, Glens Falls). Best time, 2.27½.

Poor Card at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 24.—The Stewardess and Major Mansir were the only winning favorites on yesterday's very ordinary card. The weather was fine and the track fast.

It Is Near at Hand to Hundreds of Plainfield Readers.

Don't neglect an aching back.

Backache is the kidney's cry for help.

Dire disaster, diabetes, Brights disease, follow.

Profit by a Plainfield citizen's experience.

Mr. Charles Giese, cigar manufacturer, of 25 Elm place, says: "I was subject to attacks of kidney complaint for two or three years. Most of the pain was in my back and hips and I could not stoop or straighten without feeling sharp shooting twinges. When I sat for any length of time I grew stiff and sore and was compelled to get up and move about. I grew so bad I had to do something for it. I had read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills being such good medicine for kidney troubles so I got a box of them at L. W. Randolph's drug store. I used them according to directions and after two or three days I felt better. I continued their use until the pain disappeared."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Best Wall Plaster

.....ON THE MARKET.....

CONTAINS NO SAND OR LIME. One of its most important parts is fibrous wood pulp, made by a patented process, that retains the fiber and strength of the wood. This fibrous wood gives to the plaster

Elasticity, Toughness, Lightness and Strength,

and imparts to the plaster the many known valuable properties of the wood itself. The other ingredients give Hardness, Firmness, Smoothness and Durability. The combination makes a plaster that has no equal.

COLD WEATHER WRAPS.

Velours and Lyons Velvet, Trimmed With Mink and Chinchilla.

Very handsome wraps of velours and Lyons velvet are trimmed with mink and chinchilla, but lace is rarely absent and is even used to outline a silk or satin lining and to form a border inside loose sleeves. The new snowflake and zibeline mantle cloths have been eagerly welcomed, and very smart coats and wraps are shown in these materials.

Light colors are much patronized, and cream white serge and zibeline are used for long wraps of the kimono and sack order. These are generally trimmed with beaver, mink or skunk fur. The little sack coats which reach to the hips are greatly in request to put over Russian costumes in severe weather as an extra wrap.

SABLE COAT.

The three-quarter coat of white cloths are combined with heavy lace and skunk or sable tails.

The picture shows a coat of sable with a front of brocade. The hat is of sable, chiffon and ostrich feathers.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

DRESSY BLOUSES.

Transparent Effects—New Modes In Hairdressing.

The semitransparent necks of some blouses are cut extremely low, but veiled by a deep plisse tucker of net arranged on the slip. The long, plain sleeve of net or lace is now rarely seen, but Turkish and balloon shapes are popular, and so is the bell shape put on in godet above the elbow and supplemented by balloon cuffs and with banded wrists.

Combs for the hair grow more ornate, and the latest are set with large turquoise or closely studded with tiny stones in paste or turquoise. Sprays of paste are also used on back combs, and the side combs with little balls of pearl or turquoise standing along the edge are very charming.

CHILD'S FROCK.

One of the newest of the simpler everyday coiffures is not at all difficult. It consists in brushing the hair into a loose pompadour and doing the rest into a soft inverted figure 8 at the nape of the neck.

A bow of black velvet placed carelessly a little to one side completes the girlish effect.

The child's frock here shown is of spotted silk point d'esprit over white silk. The sash is of pink satin with a scarf of the same draped over the bodice. JUDIC CHOLLET.

CHAPTER IX.

IN THE ORCHARD.

"This is vastly more entertaining than any ball I ever attended, even my first," said Miss Densmore, after they had sat several moments in silence, Rossiter dreamily looking and listening, and she in a somewhat similar mood.

"I suppose," Rossiter replied, "that this is as much like a contra-dance as anything we have in this country. It's a pity that the men are so dreadfully unpicturesque."

"A contra-dance? Yes, I should say so. It is certainly quite as amusing. You have visited other countries, Mr. Rossiter?"

Before his previous remark such a thing as his having been a traveler would hardly have occurred to her.

"Yes, I crossed the ocean once. I was thinking just now—this scene brought it back to me, I expect—of a festa I witnessed one April day at Turn-Severin. Were you ever there?"

"No, I never was."

He then told her how he had, at one time, been ascending the Danube, had chanced upon a holiday gathering at the Roumanian river town, and had stopped off to witness it. He described the scene graphically, the peasants dancing on the sward, the fantastic music, the bright costumes of the women, and their curious headdresses, some of the maidens wearing strings of tinkling coins—their dowries—upon their plaited hair.

Miss Densmore was deeply interested.

"It must have been quite like something I once saw in Suabia,' she said.

"Yes, very likely."

What a strange puzzle this man was, Miss Densmore could but think. Not only did he pique her curiosity, but something more—she began to feel attracted towards him. For the first time in her life it had been brought home to her that clothes do not make the gentleman. Born and reared in an old and conservative society, she had had small opportunity to see, through personal contact, aught but the silks and velvets of existence. She had been often at the Merton farm, it is true, but never before to know anything of the real farm life, and elsewhere she moved only among those favored like herself.

She had been more or less intimately acquainted with many men; had had many admirers, as a girl of her attractiveness was likely to have. Two or three men she had at different times fancied she loved, but the fancy had somehow been dispelled before any irretrievable step was taken. Though she had passed her twenty-fifth year and had seen much social life, she still kept before her mental vision some of those rainbow dreams of youth that, with many, vanish ere the age which she had attained is reached.

Rossiter was with her a decidedly new experience. Before the Sunday afternoon in the woods she had regarded him somewhat wonderingly as a man out of place. Once it had occurred to her that he might be masquerading, but she put this thought aside. Now, since she had come to know him better, she began to see that he had a history, that he was not simply one who had chanced to pick up this and that from books, and through his power of adaptability make cunning use of what he had read. No, he was to the manner born, a person of good breeding and of education; but why, with his pleasing address and his talents, was he occupying the position of a pole-puller in her uncle's hop-yard?—honest enough work, but not just what a man of Rossiter's tastes and acquirements would seek by choice.

Her few moments conversation with him since coming into the open air revealed him in still another light, and only caused her to greater marvel. He had shown her more of his real self, minus the radical weakness of his character, than he had betrayed to anyone since he had quitted the world of his birth. To the natural attraction aroused by the element of mystery encompassing him was added the deep sense of gratitude which Miss Densmore felt towards him, despite the fact that he had so strenuously repelled any expression of it on her part. Her dreadful experience at the spring by the wood was to her like an evil dream, through which Rossiter passed in the guise of a knight subduing the ravening dragon. Though he had only acted as any man of ordinary feeling and courage would have done under similar circumstances, she could not but invest him with a certain halo of heroism. This, however, was in no wise patent in her demeanor towards him, and her cousin had several times upbraided her because she did not show in a greater degree an appreciation of Rossiter's services. Perhaps for more than anything else she admired and respected him for his attitude towards herself and her cousin. Never once, that she could recall, had he presumed upon his position to advance his acquaintance with them, although it was perfectly evident that he found pleasure in their society and conversation. Herein, more than in aught else, she told herself, he revealed his innate gentlemanliness.

The talk between Miss Densmore and Rossiter having touched upon foreign lands, it naturally turned upon places that were in common familiar. He spoke with freedom and ease upon remote scenes and customs, of the delights and discomforts of travel, but it was largely in an impersonal way. Whenever she tried to draw him out in regard to himself, which occasionally she made an effort to do, she met with but little response.

"How different," she said at length, "the life of a traveler is, the experiences one passes through, from the life one takes up on returning home! I was at first sorely discontented after my first year of wandering and study to come back to so much that is humdrum and trivial. And you, Mr. Rossiter; I can hardly connect the happy pilgrim which you evidently were with the——" She hesitated for the word with which to complete her sentence, for she did not wish to give offense.

"With the pole-puller!" he exclaimed.

"Yes, with the pole-puller, since you put it so," she said.

"Why try to connect them?" he asked. "I have felt all the time I have been talking with you as though in comparing reminiscences with you mine were those of another person."

"I have heard it advanced as a theory that all people pass through several existences in living one, but I have always regarded that notion as a vagary of the visionary."

"It is a theory to which I can heartily subscribe."

"Well, I am inclined to think my hop-picking experience may convert me to your view. I suppose one garners something from these various stages, each with its new set of experiences."

"If it were only the good that one gathered, the agreeable that one recalled!"

"Isn't that a matter of the will, at least in part? I'm sure I do not mean to carry away from my hop-picking existence aught but its happy phases."

Rossiter, though looking at her in the flickering and dying lantern-light, for the boughs obscured the moonbeams, and catching the outline of her delicate profile, the poise of her head, and the witchery of that straying lock of hair, told himself that among his gleanings from the hop-fields there would certainly be one golden memory.

The music ceased suddenly, evidently in the midst of a measure. There seemed to be a commotion within. Then Jack Parmelee appeared at the door, followed by three or four men.

"You go that way, some of you," he said, pointing towards the upper corner of the kiln; "I'll take the lower side."

He was off as he spoke, while two of those who had accompanied him were quick to do his bidding. A third followed hard after Parmelee.

"I can't imagine what has happened," said Rossiter, "but I think it might be well to go in."

Miss Densmore clung rather nervously to his arm as they walked to the door of the kiln. Within they found the dancers gathered in groups, and Rossiter led Miss Densmore towards those with whom Miss Merton was standing. She was glancing about her anxiously.

"Ah, here you are!" she exclaimed, when she caught sight of her cousin. There was a decided note of relief in her tone.

"What was it?" asked Rossiter.

"Oh, a horrid creature stuck his head in at the window over there and frightened some of us," replied Miriam, glancing a little apprehensively at her cousin.

Miss Densmore's cheeks grew all at once unwontedly pale.

"I'm thankful I was not here," she said, with a little, forced laugh.

Do You Wish To Borrow Money?

In order to accommodate all classes of borrowers (those who cannot borrow at a bank, as well as those who can), the Mutual Loan and Investment Company, of 118 Market street, Newark, N. J., has a department for handling quickly and confidentially loans ranging from $10 to $300 on furniture, pianos, storage receipts, etc.

The security is not removed from your possession or in any way disturbed. The honest, careful and conservative borrower will try and decide two points before borrowing. First, where he can get the best terms. Second, where he can get fair and square treatment.

This company is in a position to give you by far the most satisfactory terms ever offered by any concern or individual negotiating this class of loans.

With this company you are assured of getting the lowest rates, easiest payments and longest time for repayment. The whole transaction from the time the application is made until loan is paid is entirely confidential. We give you another advantage in case you take the loan out for six months or a year, and wish to settle the same before the time expires: we charge you only for the time you have had the money. We also take up loans from other companies and advance more money.

Kindly call and let us explain our simple and up-to-date methods. If not entirely convenient for you to call, please write and our representative will call and give you any desired information. Remember it costs nothing to make application. Loans promptly made in Elizabeth, Plainfield, Westfield, Roselle, Rahway, Perth Amboy and all suburban towns.

GERMANS RESTORE SHIP.

Venezuelans In Possession of Captured Gunboat.

PORTO CABELLO, Venezuela, Feb. 24.—The Venezuelan gunboat Restaurador, which was captured by the Germans, was handed over by them to the Venezuelan authorities here yesterday.

At 11 o'clock in the morning Commander Chalbaud of this port, accompanied by an interpreter, and the German commodore, Scheder, went aboard the Restaurador, which is now lying in this harbor, in order to effect the delivery of the ship to Venezuela. At 11:30 o'clock the German flag was lowered, the German cruiser Vineta firing a salute as the colors were brought down. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the Restaurador hoisted the Venezuelan flag and was then handed over to Commander Chalbaud by Commodore Scheder. The Vineta immediately afterward steamed out of this port.

General Olivares, at the head of the government troops from Barcelona, attacked at Tacarigua the rear guard of the revolutionist force commanded by General Caribe Vidal. After a fight lasting ten hours the rebel force abandoned the field, leaving a number of wounded, among them Vidal and another rebel leader named Flores.

General Olivares is continuing his march on Caracas in order to take the revolutionist army under General Rolando between two fires, as the government will shortly take the offensive in the direction of Guarenas.

GERMANY STILL HAGGLES.

Tries Another Tack In Effort to Get Immediate Pay.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Having failed in the effort to obtain from Mr. Bowen the immediate payment in cash of the £5,500 which it was provided in the protocol of Feb. 13 should be paid to Germany thirty days from that date, Germany yesterday requested Mr. Bowen to give a draft for the amount payable in Caracas on the latter date. This latter request was made in behalf of the German embassy by Herr Baltazzi, formerly charge d'affaires at Caracas, but who has since come to Washington and has been assisting the embassy in the pending negotiations.

Mr. Bowen was again forced to decline this request, which he did politely, at the same time reminding Herr Baltazzi that he was bound by the terms of the protocol, which provided that the £5,500 should be paid at Caracas on the 15th day of March to the diplomatic representative of Germany.

Just what reason was given by the German representative for making the request is not known. Such a draft, however, it is presumed, would be negotiable, and the result would be that the Germans could immediately obtain the money it called for.

Mr. Bowen has prepared and handed to the diplomatic representatives of the blockading powers the drafts of the protocols for submission of the question of the determination of preferential treatment to The Hague tribunal.

NEW YORK POSTOFFICE.

Appropriation For Purchase of Site to Be Made Soon.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—It is expected that an appropriation of not exceeding $2,000,000 for the purchase of the site of the new uptown New York postoffice building will be provided for in an amendment to be offered in the senate to the sundry civil bill in a day or two.

The amount to be asked for the building itself has not been determined, but it is likely to be in the neighborhood of $2,000,000. The Eighth avenue front will be devoted to public purposes, the Thirty-first street wing to incoming mails and the Thirty-third street wing to outgoing mails. The building proposed will have a floor space of 145,000 square feet.

The New York Central authorities have given informal notice that they will submit a definite proposition later for a site for a postoffice building over their tracks.

Both postoffices are intended to be in the nature of branch offices, the present main office near the city hall to be retained.

Colored Editor Gets Damages.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 24.—In the United States court here a jury has awarded $500 damages to Rev. Henry P. Johnston of Camden, a colored man, who sued the Pullman Car company for $10,000. Johnston is editor of the Christian Advocate and on March 25 last while riding in a Pullman car between Richmond, Va., and Washington sought service in the dining car. He claimed that he was refused food by different subterfuges, notwithstanding he applied three times. Finally, when all the passengers had been served and the employees were eating, he said he was offered food.

Snowbound Travelers Relieved.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Feb. 24.—The trains which were snowbound in the interior having secured relief are now moving backward to their starting points, where ample food and accommodation for the travelers are available. It was impossible for the trains to attempt to cut their way through the snowdrifts across the summit of the island. Another fierce gale has raged, adding to the snowdrifts.

Sullivan Gets a Respite.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 24.—Governor Odell has granted a two weeks' respite to James P., alias "Whitey," Sullivan, who was to have been executed at Clinton prison today for the murder in 1901 of Night Watchman William P. Wilson of Cobleskill.

Freight Depot at Saratoga Burned.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Feb. 24.—The Delaware and Hudson railroad freight depot has been damaged by fire to the extent of $13,000. Freight in the depot valued at $10,000 was also burned.

SPORTING NEWS

WINTER SPORTS.

The hockey game played Friday afternoon on Tier's Pond between the teams of the classes of 1904 and 1906 of the City High School, resulted in a tie. The score was 0-0.

An exciting hockey game at Montclair, Saturday, between the teams from the Montclair High School and the City High School resulted in a score of 1 to 1. The scoring was done in the second half. Early in the half the Montclair boys shot a goal and some time later Rocap, of the High School, forced the puck through the goal making the only point for the city boys. The play was strong and fast on both sides and the High School boys were especially strong on the defensive. Bock, as goal, made some clever blocks and was on the alert throughout the whole game. The teams lined up as follows:

Montclair.		Plainfield.
Young	F.	Rocap
Solomson	F.	Ulrich
Ryan, (Capt.)	F.	VanAuken, (Capt.)
Jenkins	F.	Craig
Webster	F.	Tweedy
McDonough	CP.	Long
Waldron	G.	Bock

Both teams are anxious to arrange a return game to be played in this city, and the managers are considering dates.

ORDER ON STREET CARS

CITY JUDGE RUNYON SAYS ROWDYISM MUST STOP.

One Offender Arraigned This Morning and Was Fined $10 When Found Guilty.

City Judge Runyon has announced himself as an advocate of the police attempt to stop rowdyism on the local street cars. He made this emphatic when Carl Eskeland, a Swede, was arraigned before him, yesterday morning, on a charge of using profane language and boisterous conduct on a West Front street car, Sunday night. He imposed a fine of $10 and declared that similar offenders would be severely dealt with.

At this morning's session of court, John Goodman and William Kennedy were arraigned for violating the hack ordinance. Both paid fines of $2. William Packer was discharged and sentence was suspended on James Ross, both of whom were arrested for disorderly conduct. The case of Arthur Kyle against M. F. Duffy was adjourned for one week.

FUNERAL OF JACOB TINGLEY.

Services Held From Seventh-Day Baptist Church Saturday.

The funeral services of the late Jacob Tingley were held Saturday afternoon from the Seventh-Day Baptist church, where a large number of friends gathered. Rev. George B. Shaw, pastor of the church, conducted the services, assisted by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis. There were three selections by a vocal quartette consisting of Miss Nan Randolph, Miss Cornelia Miller, David E. Titsworth and L. T. Rogers. The interment took place in the Seventh-Day Baptist cemetery on Eighth street and those who served as pall-bearers were Dr. Frank S. Wells, W. D. Randolph, T. C. Smith, F. A. Dunham.

New Superintendent.

A. C. LaBoyteaux, who has for some time past been superintendent of the Sunday-school at the Congregational church, resigned his position yesterday owing to ill health. The vacancy was filled by the election of Alexander Millar, with Frank A. Weeks as assistant superintendent. Mr. LaBoyteaux's resignation was accepted with much regret.

New Teacher.

Miss Nellie Maxfield, of Bloomfield, entered upon her duties in the North Plainfield High School this morning as instructor in music to succeed Miss Ethel Whalen, recently resigned on account of illness. Miss Maxfield was a teacher of music in one of the schools in Bloomfield.

Change in Choir.

WANT WOMAN AS INSPECTOR

LABOR ORGANIZATIONS ARE AGITATING APPOINTMENT OF ONE..

A Pressure Is Being Brought to Bear on the Governor to Appoint One.

The present agitation for a woman factory inspector in New Jersey is not coming so much from the clubs and women's societies of the State as from the labor organizations.

About two years ago a petition was sent to the Governor by the women's clubs, setting forth the need of such an officer and urging an appointment, but no result followed. Last year, however, the New Jersey Legislature enacted a law empowering Governor Murphy to make the appointment, but, so far, nothing has been done. The trade unions, notably the United Silk Workers' Association, are now agitating the matter, and that organization has issued two circulars, one addressed to the Senators and Assemblymen and one to "All Trade Unions," urging the appointment and recommending Mrs. J. P. McDonnell, wife of the editor of The National Labor Standard, of Paterson. An appeal will also be sent to the Governor.

Mrs. McDonnell appears to be a favorite candidate for the place. The Passaic Daily Herald says: "She is, perhaps, the woman, both by nature and training, best suited for the position. . . . She has had business experience enough not to be fanatical in the matter, and would use conscientious discretion in all cases."

In the appeal to the trade unions from the headquarters at Paterson of the United Silk Workers the following paragraph occurs: "It is asked by the female and male wage-workers of New Jersey, and is required on moral, mental and physical grounds. Its necessity is apparent to all, especially to those who work in factories and shops where women and girls are employed."

The appeal to the Legislature says: "We desire to say that if the Governor thoroughly understood the situation that exists, he would, we believe, not only make the appointment promptly, but also recommend the passage of a law providing for the appointment of several female factories inspectors."

The clubs are making no movement at present to urge the matter, although Mrs. McDonnell could undoubtedly obtain considerable support among them. Among other names mentioned for the place is that of Miss Mary Philbrook, attorney for the Legal Aid Association.

While no action has been taken, Governor Murphy is probably giving the question consideration.

DEATH OF MISS LAING.

Passed Away After a Three Days' Illness With Pneumonia.

After an illness of but three days from pneumonia, Miss Mary Laing died at her home on East Fifth street, Sunday afternoon. She had not been feeling well for several weeks previous but her death was unexpected.

Miss Laing was forty-five years old and had been a resident of this city nearly all her life. She leaves two sisters, Mrs. O. N. Ulrick, of East Fifth street, Mrs. Staats, of Elm place, and one brother, Voorhees Laing, of East Front street. Another sister, Mrs. J. P. Homan, died a few months ago.

The funeral will be held from Mrs. Ulrick's home, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be in the North Plainfield cemetery.

Worry Drove Him Insane.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, Feb. 24—Worriment over the recent small-pox scare in this vicinity drove William Ayers, one of Bound Brook's wealthiest land owners, violently insane, Sunday night. He attacked his wife and Dr. Fisher and was restrained with great difficulty. He has been sent to the State Hospital at Trenton.

Judge Performed Ceremony.

Miss Rose Alice White and Henry Greer Garrett, both of the borough, were married, last evening, at the residence of Mrs. Grant, of 125 Westervelt avenue. The ceremony was performed by City Judge William N. Runyon. Only a few intimate friends and relatives were in attendance.

Miles Ross Gone.

Miles Ross, who was known throughout the State as one of New Jersey's shrewdest politicians, died at his home on Livingston avenue, New Brunswick, late Sunday evening. Complications of pneumonia caused his death. The funeral arrangements will be made later.

Social Gathering.

A social gathering was held last evening at the home of Theodore Vroom, of Lincoln place. There were twenty-five people present and a very delightful evening was enjoyed.

ANOTHER TROLLEY.

Surveyors Laying Out Route for Middlesex Company From Bonhamtown to Perth Amboy.

There appears to be some hope that a trolley line will in the near future be in operation between Bonhamtown and Perth Amboy. Surveyors are now at work for the Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company on this proposed line and it is said that nearly the entire right of way has been secured. The line will pass through private land and will branch off at Bonhamtown, near the present line. It will then run to the Raritan river and follow that stream to Perth Amboy, not crossing the Raritan Traction Company's line until it reaches Keasbey. The distance is about four miles shorter than the present line between New Brunswick and Perth Amboy. The company also proposes to establish a line between Perth Amboy and Metuchen.

The company's aim is to have a belt line both sides of the Raritan river, touching all important places. There will be a reduction in fare from twenty to ten cents between Perth Amboy and New Brunswick. This would make a round trip between this city and Perth Amboy fifty cents.

LICENSES TONIGHT.

Expected That the Common Council Will Grant Them at This Evening's Meeting.

For several good reasons it is believed that the question of awarding a contract for the Gamewell police patrol system will not be settled this evening at the adjourned meeting of the Council. There are a few matters to be arranged and all of the bids will not be in for this evening's meeting. The matter will probably be decided at the regular March meeting.

The various applications for liquor license will be disposed of this evening. The present licenses expire March 1, which falls on Sunday, and the regular meeting would not be in time to cover the lapse of time. In that case the saloons and the hotel bars would have to close on Monday.

HOLIDAY SUPPER.

Odd Ladies Entertained Its Friends in Pleasant Way.

In honor of the holiday occasion, yesterday, Mizpah Lodge, No. 1, U. O. of I. O. L., gave a Martha Washington supper in its rooms on West Second street. It comprised many of the most liked New England dishes and was greatly enjoyed by many attendants.

During the evening a programme was rendered consisting of contributions from Mr. and Mrs. John Manley, Mrs. Andrew Cox, Mrs. Hattie Gibbon and the Misses Lydia and Lillian Edgar. The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. Joseph Randolph, Mrs. Andrew Cox, Mrs. Hattie Gibbon, Mrs. H. W. Angleman and Mrs. Samuel Terry.

CAR TRACKS DID IT.

Frightened Horse Upset W. M. Brown and Then Ran Away.

The scraping of the runners on street car tracks frightened a horse driven by Wallace M. Brown, Sunday night, at the corner of Grant avenue and Fourth street, and it ran away, overturning the cutter. Brown and a companion were thrown out but neither was hurt.

The horse ran to Clinton avenue where it turned to West Front street and then continued its mad flight back to the centre of the city. It was captured at the corner of Park avenue and Front street when it was almost exhausted. The cutter was partially wrecked.

Resigned From Committee.

John McLaughlin, of the borough, has resigned as a member of the Somerset County Republican executive committee. No reason is given by himself or friends for the move.

For Her Guest.

Miss Helen Shupp informally entertained a few friends at her home on Madison avenue, Saturday evening, in honor of her guest, Miss Cora Davenport, of Plymouth, Pa.

Infant's Death.

Clara, the seven-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Babbitt, of East Front street, died Sunday afternoon. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Walter Raynolds, of Jackson avenue, who has been detained at his home by illness, is in a critical condition.

—A dinner and conference of committeemen of the Y. M. C. A. will be held this evening.

GALBRAITH WAS TURNED DOWN, LICENSE FOR TURNER AFTER FIGHT

Decidedly Sensational Features Developed When Common Council Came to Act on the License Applications.

FOUGHT IN CAUCUS FOR TWO HOURS

THEN THE FIGHT WAS CARRIED TO THE FLOOR OF THE COUNCIL, WHERE MANY EXCITING THINGS WERE SAID.

The Council Was Unanimous in Refusing Galbraith's Application—Galbraith Was Active Worker for Senator Kean Against Fowler in Last Campaign—Question of Legality of Turner's Application Was Raised—Was Strongly Opposed by Councilman Tyler.

The question of granting the various liquor applications assumed grave proportions at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last evening, that being the principal business under consideration. It was predicted that there would be a lively time before the applications were granted, but even the most pessimistic did not anticipate the trouble that was in store.

All of the members were present except Mr. vanHerwerden, and it was nearly 8:30 o'clock when President Buckle called the meeting to order, the time previous to that being taken up in conferring with legal representatives of the applicants for licenses. Soon after the members convened, Mr. Murphy asked for the privilege of reconsidering the resolution adopted at the last meeting fixing the salary of Corporation Counsel Marsh. That resolution provided for a salary of $1,200, but did not make provision for extra services.

After the reconsidering of the resolution, Mr. Murphy offered another one fixing the salary at $2,000, the same as last year, and including all services for the year, comprising also the work of attending to the suit of the American Sewage Disposal Company, of Boston, against the city, now in litigation, and services for the Board of Health. The new resolution was adopted.

Immediately following the transaction of this business, the real trouble began. It was moved that a recess of twenty minutes be taken. No one would have objected to that in the least, but the fact that the members remained in the committee room for nearly two hours, gave cause for serious apprehension on the part of the friends of the hotel and saloonkeepers, as well as the proprietors themselves, who were represented by someone.

As the Councilmen continued in secret session various reports were in circulation, some even going so far as to intimate that a combination of certain circumstances might tend to close every saloon and hotel bar in the city for at least a month. It was soon evident that the disturbing factor was the application of E. P. Turner, of the Eastern Bottling Company, for a saloon license in West Third street, opposite the saloon now conducted by Daniel Galbraith. Mr. Turner had one application in for a wholesale license for the association he represents, and the application for a saloon was a new one.

It was subsequently learned through statements made by the chairman of the license committee, Mr. Tyler, and others, that originally Mr. Shay, who is a driver for the Eastern Bottling Company, had made application for this saloon license, but the fact that he had never taken out his naturalization papers was reported and to save the application Mr. Turner took hold of the matter and substituted his name for that of Shay. It was even hinted in open Council that Mr. Shay had made the transfer for a consideration. These facts had a tendency to make a division of opinion among the members as to whether Mr. Turner should have the license. Then it was stated that some of those who had signed the application of Mr. Shay, notably Thomas Lyon, had requested through an affadavit to have his name withdrawn, claiming that the application had been changed and that he did not intend signing for Mr. Turner.

Here is where Mr. Tyler, in the name of honor and justice, pleaded most earnestly that the application be denied.

In addition to this the chairman of the license committee had in his possession two petitions, one from thirty residents of the Fourth ward asking that the application be granted, and another from a less number of citizens that it be refused. Still another statement was in Mr. Tyler's possession showing that Thomas Lyon desired Mr. Turner to have a saloon license. The objection to this statement was that it was not written by Mr. Lyon, but by some one else, and was not made under oath. Mr. Murphy asserted that the statement was made in his presence in his office and he would vouch for the truth of it.

All of these facts were threshed out in the committee room during the two hours' recess and finally, the members not being able to agree on a concerted action, they returned to open Council, where later in the evening there was a free expression of opinion, much to the amusement of the large crowd in the lobby. At times, when Mr. Tyler became very earnest in his argument in support of his position several persons representing the Monroe Avenue church, applauded his remarks.

In voting on the various applications Councilmen Buckle, Daniel, Tolles, Gloak, Randolph, Lee, Murphy and Tyler voted for all the licenses, with the exception of the application of E. P. Turner for a saloon, the Eastern Bottling Association for a wholesale license, Morris Snyder for a wholesale license on North avenue and Daniel Galbraith. In the first exception, Councilmen Tyler, Garrigues and Pray voted in the negative and in the second exception all the members voted in favor of withdrawing the application and in the case of Mr. Galbraith the application was denied by a unanimous vote. Mr. Garrigues and Mr. Pray voted against all saloon license applications, casting their vote only for the applications for inns and taverns.

The successful applicants are as follows: Frank Linke, wholesale, 227 West Front street; Christian Klockner, saloon, corner Front and Somerset streets; A. D. Findlay, inn and tavern, 133 East Second street; John Rafferty, saloon, 213 Park avenue; Charles Schantz, saloon, 216 Park avenue; J. A. Staats, inn and tavern, 107-109-111 North avenue; Henry Windham, inn and tavern, 142-144 East Front street; Henry Haurand, inn and tavern, 117 East Front street; Michael F. Watson, inn and tavern, 211 Grant avenue; Bernard Clark, inn and tavern, 456 West Third street; Jacob Blimm, inn and tavern, 37-39 Somerset street; A. B. Rosell, inn and tavern, Park avenue and East Second street; Eastern Bottling Company, wholesale, West Second street and Central avenue; E. P. Turner, saloon, 542-544 West Third street.

When Mr. Turner's application was read by the clerk, Mr. Tyler moved that the same be not granted, whereupon Mr. Murphy moved that it be granted. This led Mr. Tyler to make some remarks, in which he reviewed the question relative to Thomas Lyon signing the application for Mr. Shay, but not Mr. Turner. He said that the Council could not afford to wink at evasions of the law and if the application was granted it would be on a forged application. He considered two saloons in the vicinity of Liberty and West Third streets sufficient and a third one would be a curse to the families in that section. Mr. Tyler said that the idea of the Council had been to concentrate the saloons in the business district and he did not believe that this rule should be broken. Lots of good would result in refusing the license, while much harm would come if it was granted. Mr. Tyler appealed strongly to his colleagues not to vote for the application and urged as one important reason that there were not ten signatures to it.

At this time Mr. Lee asked Mr. Tyler to read the statement made by Thomas Lyon urging that the application be granted, and to this Mr. Tyler replied that the statement referred to was not made under oath, while the affadavit asking for the privilege of withdrawing Mr. Lyon's name was. The second statement finally was read. This was made on Monday last and expressed the wish of Mr. Lyon that his name should not be withdrawn. Mr. Tyler then emphasized the fact that the statement was written by another person besides Mr. Lyon and was not under oath.

Mr. Garrigues took a part in the discussion and stated that while he was generally opposed to licenses he strongly opposed the particular one under consideration for reasons mentioned by Mr. Tyler. He said that he had been credibly informed that the transfer of the application was made to Mr. Turner for a consideration.

Mr. Murphy supported the application and said that the people of the Fourth ward had decided that they wanted a saloon run in a right way by a good party and he urged the granting of the application.

Mr. Tyler added that the second statement made by Mr. Lyon did not contradict the affadavit made by him and he knew of his own knowledge that the facts in the affadavit were true. He expressed the hope that the Councilmen would not allow themselves to be used as a cat's paw and that they would continue to represent the people in an honorable and fair manner.

Mr. Lee caused some excitement when he stated that the applications were printed in the official papers of the city for two weeks and that any person having knowledge of anything wrong had plenty of time to state his objections.

"Do you know why these people did not object before?" replied Mr. Tyler.

"I only know what you told me in the committee room," was Mr. Lee's answer.

Mr. Tyler plied his same question several times to Mr. Lee, intimating that there were suspicious reasons why objection was not made before the time of the meeting.

Mr. Randolph made a few remarks in support of his position in favoring the application. He said that until a man was proven guilty he should not be declared so. He could see no wrong-doing in granting the application and would vote for the application.

Mr. Tyler gave a sharp reply by saying that it is the duty of the Council as well as the license committee to ascertain any reasons why a license application should not be granted and he considered it Mr. Randolph's duty, according to his oath of office, to vote against the application and give the people the benefit of the doubt, inasmuch as he did not know of his own personal knowledge that the facts in the case were not true.

After a few remarks by Mr. Daniel against the application, Mr. Murphy moved that the license be granted. Councilmen Gloak, Lee, Murphy, Randolph, Tolles and Buckle voted for it, while Councilmen Daniel, Garrigues, Pray and Tyler voted in the negative.

In denying the application of Daniel Galbraith, it was generally considered a return compliment by the lobby. It will be remembered that at the last election Mr. Galbraith worked openly for the success of Senator Kean as against the interest of Congressman Fowler and it was generally believed that the politicians were simply paying their former worker for his action. Some interest was shown in the matter by the presence of Robert Rushmore in the lobby. He is known as a warm supporter of Senator Kean and during the long recess he had a lengthy conference with Mr. Galbraith, as did also several other prominent people who were interested in his case.

RECEPTION TO FRIENDS AFTER QUIET WEDDING

The Marriage of Miss Eva M. Lewis, of Plainfield, and B. W. Spencer, of Milwaukee.

MARRIED AT HER HOME

RECEPTION, WHICH FOLLOWED, WAS HELD AT TRUELL COURT.

Ceremony Performed by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, Father of the Bride—Those Who Received at Reception—Will Reside in Milwaukee.

The marriage of Miss Eva Minnette Lewis, daughter of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Lewis, and Bennett William Spencer, of Milwaukee, Wis., was celebrated very quietly yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, 633 West Seventh street. The ceremony was witnessed only by the immediate members of the families. There were present the parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. William Spencer and Mr. and Mrs. Mark W. Shaw, of Evanston, Ill.; Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kimball and daughter, of this city. The bride's mother, although an invalid, was present.

The ceremony, which took place in the library of the home, was performed by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, father of the bride. The bride's gown was of white silk mull and she carried white English violets. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party went to Truell Court, where a reception was held from 4 to 6 o'clock. Those invited to the reception comprised a great many close friends of the bride and groom in and out of the city, also many relatives.

The bride and groom were assisted in receiving by the groom's parents, the bride's father, Mrs. B. F. Langworthy and Mrs. J. R. Truell. The drawing room, where the bridal party received, as well as the dining room, was in green and white. In the dining room Mrs. J. E. Kimball and Mrs. Mark W. Shaw were assisted in pouring by Ms. Robert T. Johnston and Mrs. J. I. Taylor, of Plainfield, and Mrs. C. B. Williams, of Jersey City. The young women who served were Miss Adeline Lyon, of Jersey City; Miss Bessie Baldwin, of Brooklyn; Miss Evalina DuBois Benton and Miss Bessy Fitz Randolph, of Plainfield.

The bride received many handsome and costly presents from relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Spencer left last evening on a wedding trip, after which they will take up their residence in Milwaukee, where the groom is engaged in business. The couple has arranged to hold several "at homes" upon their return to Milwaukee.

MRS. McGEE'S TEA.

Third of a Series Given by Mrs. H. A. McGee at Her Home on Orchard Avenue.

The third and last of the teas given Tuesday afternoons at the home of Mrs. Henry A. McGee, of Orchard avenue, was held yesterday afternoon between the hours of 3 and 7 o'clock. The house was tastefully decorated with orchids, giving an attractive color effect of white and yellow.

Mrs. McGee was assisted in receiving by Mrs. James R. Joy and Mrs. Townsend Rushmore. In the dining room were Miss Helen Bushnell, Miss May Waring, Miss Sadie Mae Howell and Miss Elsie Horne. Mrs. Samuel Townsend and Mrs. E. H. Ladd, Jr., poured tea.

After the tea a dinner was prepared for ten which comprised the receiving party. This was a delightful part of the afternoon's event.

Holiday Social.

A social was held Monday afternoon and evening in the rooms of the Plymouth Brethren on East Front street. During the afternoon games were played and in the evening magic lantern views and games formed the means of passing a very pleasant evening. Refreshments were served and a most delightful time was spent.

Date for Social.

The social committee of the Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, of which Miss Nettie Kreitling is the chairman, has decided to hold a social on Tuesday evening, March 3. This will be held under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society and is the one postponed from January.

JUDGMENT FROM JUNIORS

SUPREME COURT AFFIRMS JUDGMENT FOR WM. VAN ALSTYNE.

Suit Brought to Recover Death Benefits From Lodge of Which His Son Was a Member.

In the Supreme Court at Trenton, yesterday, Chief Justice Gummere handed down a decision affirming the judgment obtained about a year ago by William VanAlstyne against Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M.

The judgment was taken to the Supreme Court on a writ of error by the defendant council and was argued at the last term. The action was originally brought in the Union County Circuit Court to recover death benefits claimed by the plaintiff to be due him by reason of the death of his son, Harry VanAlstyne, who at the time of his death was a member of the defendant council. The council refused to pay on the ground that its member was in arrears for dues and assessments at the time of his death.

Mr. VanAlstyne was represented by G. W. V. Moy, of this city, and Franklin Council by Fergus A. Dennis, of Princeton, and James Buchanan, of Trenton.

In connection with this it should be stated that while the action was against Franklin Council the whole State council was in fact a defendant. According to the interpretation of the by-laws the part referring to death benefits and claims was violated. For the purpose of testing these laws and proving their validity the State Council became co-defendant with the local council. This latest decision will probably end the case.

MEMORIAL TO MANAGER.

Presented to John D. Bailey on His Departure From Management of Park Avenue Hotel.

As a mark of appreciation of the services of John D. Bailey, who has retired from the managership of the Park Avenue Hotel, a memorial has been signed by guests and sent to him. The testimonial is as follows:

"The undersigned, guests of the Park Avenue Hotel, had intended on your departure April 1, to present to you a memorial of appreciation of your uniform courtesy and generous hospitality during their stay at the hotel under your management, and at the same time wishing you God-speed and good-luck.

"The unexpected change of events leaves us but small opportunity in which we may but hastily and imperfectly express to you the very high esteem in which we hold yourself and your family.

"We wish to thank you most sincerely for the many favors that have been showered upon us, prompted always by those feelings of courteous regard for your guests that will make us ever think of you as an ideal host.

"We also wish most heartily to commend you for the success you have made here, and we know that those generous impulses and sterling qualities that you have exhibited to us will be sure to carry you to the larger measure of success in the future that you so richly merit."

FIFTH MUSICALE.

Given Under the Auspices of the Ladies' Guild of the Church of the Heavenly Rest.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Guild of the Church of the Heavenly Rest a delightful musicale was held there last evening. The attendance was large and all those who took part were received in a flattering manner. It was the fifth annual musicale and was a great success.

The parish house was filled early and all during the evening the audience evinced their appreciation of the music rendered by loud applause, in which they frequently encored those who took part.

Miss Maria Soudant rendered piano solos, while Mrs. Charlotte M. Ross favored with several contralto solos, accompanied by Miss May Grant. Clarinet solos were rendered by Otis Ballard and during the evening selected recitations were given by Mrs. Charles Haseltine.

Spelling Test.

A spelling test was held yesterday morning at the North Plainfield High School by the superintendent, Homer J. Wightman. The results of the test will not be known for several days until all the papers have been corrected.

Annual Endeavor Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of Hope chapel is to be held this evening. A full attendance of members is asked as important business is to be transacted.

FREEDOM CASTLE HAS A BIRTHDAY PARTY

Celebrates Its Second Anniversary by Entertaining Its Many Friends.

HELD LAST EVENING

HAS BEEN GROWING STEADILY AT A PLEASING RATE.

Knights of the Golden Eagle Spent a Pleasant Evening—Supreme Vice Chief Ruff, of Manasquan, Was Present—The Committee.

After two years of existence during which its membership and financial strength had advanced at a pleasing rate, Freedom Castle, No. 5, Knights of the Golden Eagle, celebrated its second anniverary last night in the rooms on Park avenue. Over a hundred were entertained with an elaborate musical programme and a sumptuous repast.

Piano solos were rendered by Mrs. C. M. Nagle, and a recitation was given by Miss Levens. The Knights' quartette rendered several vocal selections. Those composing the quartette were L. C. Hummer, H. J. Martin, Bert Tallamy and Louis Tallamy. Trombone solos were rendered by C. K. Schupp and a bass solo was given by Bert Tallamy.

A few remarks were made by Grand Sir Herald J. Hervey Buchanan, who explained the purpose for which the lodge was organized and its wonderful growth from forty-four charter members two years ago to 150. Supreme Vice Chief William H. Ruff, of Manasquan, addressed a few words of congratulation.

Refreshments were served after which dancing was enjoyed, the music for which was provided by Carpenter's orchestra. Later in the evening musical talent from out of town entertained.

The committee which had the affair in charge comprised: H. J. Martin, chairman; R. V. Kenny, Dr. C. M. Luckey, A. R. Vail and A. C. Hoagland.

AFTERMATH OF RAID.

Two Men Arrested in Borough Were Fined and Given Imprisonment.

Recorder Doud had a busy session of the borough court last night when the prisoners who were arrested in the disorderly house raid on Race street Monday night were arraigned for a hearing. Maggie Belle Jackson and her mother, Mrs. Jackson, were released with a severe reprimand by the Recorder, while "Al" Saunderson and "Kid" Carter were fined $20 each and sentenced to seven days in jail at Somerville. Eva Carter, who was also arrested in the raid, was fined $5 or seven days in jail. The fine was paid.

Frank White was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct and was fined $3, which was paid.

Speeding at Somerville.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 25—Horsemen from Flemington, Plainfield, Middlebush, Three Bridges, Raritan, East Millstone and other places had their fastest trotters out on the speedway here Saturday afternoon and some exciting brushes were the result. Four or five hundred people watched the races. A. S. Case, of Three Bridges, with a little black pacer, was master of the speedway, winning nearly all the heats.

On Skating Committee.

At the annual meeting of the Amateur Skating Association of the United States held in New York on Friday officers and committees for the ensuing year were elected. John Doughty, of Plainfield, was elected on the skating committee. Among the clubs making application for membership were the Plainfield and Somerville Clubs from New Jersey.

Took Part in Musical Programme.

Miss Rosabella H. Schroeder, of New York, formerly of West Seventh street, took part as soprano vocalist in the programme given in "at home" of music at the residence of Hon. and Mrs. Theodore Sutro, of 350 West One Hundred and Second street, New York, Saturday afternoon.

LEE IS AFTER TROLLEY CO.

Introduces Measure in Council to Revoke Franchise If Service Doesn't Improve.

NO 'PHONE COMPANY

Asks City for a Franchise—Councilman Lee Finally Consents to Hold His Drastic Resolution for a Time—Other Business at Common Council Meeting.

Not willing that the discussion of the license applications should be the only important matter before the Common Council, Robert L. Lee gave his colleagues a genuine surprise at the adjourned meeting of the Council last evening, when he offered a drastic measure in the form of a resolution calling for the immediate improvement of the local trolley service or the revocation of the franchise. This has been a hobby with Mr. Lee and his patience is about exhausted. For this reason he decided that his ideas should take definite form for the purpose of accomplishing the desired result.

The wretched condition of the trolley cars, together with the general debility of the rolling stock, is responsible for Mr. Lee's action. His resolution cited the fact that a year ago a conference with the officials of the trolley company was held and at that time the officials promised that $250,000 would be expended during the coming year on the general improvement of the system, and that in this, as in many other respects, all promises had not been kept. In view of this, Mr. Lee's resolution called for the immediate repair of all trolley cars in this city, new carpets on the seats, and that all guard wires be repaired. Failure on the part of the company to comply with these stipulations within sixty days, would mean that steps would be taken to have the franchise of the company revoked. This was the gist of Mr. Lee's resolution, and it further provided that City Clerk MacMurray should deliver a copy of the resolution in person to the vice president or general manager of the trolley company.

After the reading of the resolution, Mr. Gloak jumped up and spoke a few earnest words in support of the resolution. He said that the trolley company could not fool the people any more.

Mr. Pray took exception to Mr. Lee's resolution on the ground that it lacked temperance and dignity. He approved the sentiment, but not the form. He believed that when the Council took action in the matter the position should be well defined so that the official body would not have to take anything back.

Mr. Tolles expressed the opinion that the resolution was too rank and severe. He attended the conference with the trolley officials and he said that some improvements have been made. He thought the cars in Plainfield compared favorably with those to be found in other cities.

Mr. Buckle asked Mr. Tyler to take the chair, while he could speak a few words on the matter. He argued that better judgment should prevail, that all such matters should be thoughtfully considered in the committee room. He did not believe anything would be gained by such hasty and severe action.

In response to suggestions, Mr. Lee at this time refused to withdraw his resolution and he urged a vote. Mr. Tyler suggested that a recess for five minutes be taken. This took the form of a motion, but a tie vote resulted and the recess was not taken. Then Mr. Lee called again for a vote on his resolution.

Mr. Daniel said by way of explanation that he thought the matter was one for consideration by the corporation counsel as to the legal side of the question. He urged deliberate action.

In reply to Mr. Daniel's remarks, Mr. Lee said that a year ago Mr. Marsh drafted a resolution more severe than his present one, and that resolution only gave the trolley company thirty days to come to time.

Finally, Mr. Lee argued to refer his resolution to the street committee, provided it would be brought up at the regular March meeting for definite action. Mr. Lee was thoroughly in earnest as to his purpose, claiming that the trolley company had not done one single thing they promised a year ago to do.

RULES FOR LENTEN SEASON

OFFICIAL LIST OF RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR LENT.

Issued by Bishop McFaul for the Catholics of the Diocese of Trenton.

As the Lenten season commences today, the official list of rules and regulations to govern the Catholics of the diocese of Trenton, just prepared by Bishop McFaul, of Trenton, will be of interest. The regulation will be read today at all the masses. They are as follows:

"All the week-days of Lent from Ash Wednesday to Easter Sunday are fast-days of precept on one meal, with the allowance of a moderate collation in the evening.

"The church excuses from the obligation of fasting (but not of abstinence from flesh-meat, except in special cases of sickness) the infirm, those who are attaining their growth, those whose duties are of an exhausting or laborious character, women bearing or nursing infants, and those who are enfeebled by old age.

"By authority of the Holy See (Ind. Aug. 8, 1897, for ten years), the following dispensations are granted for this diocese:

"I. The use of flesh-meat is permitted at every meal on the Sundays of Lent, and at the principal meal on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, with the exception of Ember Saturday and Holy Saturday.

"II. The use of eggs, and milk, butter, cheese and the like is allowed every day at the principal meal, and at the evening collation.

"III. A small piece of bread with a cup of coffee, tea, chocolate, or similar drink, may be taken in the morning.

"IV. When it is not convenient to take the principal meal at noon, it is lawful to invert the order, and take the collation in the morning and the dinner in the evening.

"V. Dripping and lard may be used in the preparation of food.

"VI. On Sunday there is neither fast nor abstinence, but it is not allowed to eat fish and flesh-meat at the same meal on any day during Lent.

"VII. Those who are not obliged to fast may partake of flesh-meat at every meal on a day when by special indult flesh-meat is permitted at the principal meal.

"VIII. By special indult of the Holy See, dated March 15, 1895, the bishops of the United States are empowered for ten years to dispense from the common law of abstinence when they judge it expedient. We therefore permit working people, who cannot easily abstain from flesh-meat, to use it once a day on all abstinence days throughout the year, with the exception, however, of all Fridays, Ash Wednesday, Wednesday and Saturday of Holy Week, and the Vigil of Christmas.

"This dispensation is granted to working people, and the members of their families share in it, but it does not exempt from fasting, where such an obligation exists, nor does it permit the use of fish and flesh meat at the same meal.

"When the faithful avail themselves of this, indult, they should perform some penitential work as a substitute for the dispensation enjoyed. A most useful and commendable custom is that of abstaining, especially during Lent, from stimulants, in honor of the sacred thirst of our Divine Saviour.

"IX. The time for fulfilling the Easter precept of communion in this diocese extends from the first Sunday in Lent to Trinity Sunday, inclusive.

"All the faithful are exhorted to enter into the spirit of this holy season, which is a special time of prayer, sorrow for sin, almsgiving and mortification. Those particularly who cannot fast are recommended to make suitable compensation by more liberal alms to the poor and other good works.

"By order of the Right Reverend Bishop. John W. Norris,
"Chancellor.

The Easy Pill.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers do not gripe nor weaken the system. They cure biliousness, jaundice, constipation and inactive livers, by arousing the secretions; moving the bowels gently, yet effectually, and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach, liver and bowels that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely. These famous little pills exert a decided tonic effect upon the organs involved, and if their use is continued for a few days there will be no return of the trouble. L. W. Randolph.

THEATRICAL.

Williams and Walker, the famous colored entertainers, supported by a company of 150 noted Afro-American artists, are presenting their musical farce, "In Dahomey," at the New York Theatre, New York. The piece is presented in three acts. The scenes are laid in Boston, on a Florida plantation and in Dahomey in Africa. The story is very comic and is so constructed as to permit of the introduction of a large number of very entertaining specialties. The book of "In Dahomey" is by Jesse Shipp, the colored librettist, and the music by Will Marion Cook, the widely known colored composer. During the performance Williams and Walker sing their song, "My Castle on the Nile" in which they made a great hit at Newport Casino last summer. These bright young colored men first attained fame as entertainers on Fifth avenue and at Newport. Prices during their engagement at the New York will be 25 cents to $1. Seats may be ordered by letter, accompanied by remittance.

A series of delightfully comic complications form the basis of Geo. H. Broadhurst's capital farcical play, "Why Smith Left Home," the attraction which the Proctor Stock Company is producing at Proctor's Fifth Avenue this week. If the business that is being done at Proctor's Twenty-third street can be taken as a criterion, it is then a certainty that vaudeville will never become passe. The throngs of patrons who twice daily fill to its capacity this popular theatre without doubt get more entertainment for the small price of admission, than can be received in any other house in the country. This week the topping feature is Johnstone Bennett & Company, in a protean sketch, entitled "A Quiet Evening At Home." "Hearts are Trump," the famous Drury Lane melodrama by Cecil Raleigh and Arthur Collins, receives its third production under Mr. Proctor's management at Proctor's 125th Street this week. Washington's Birthday marked the opening of another week of vaudeville at Proctor's Fifty-eighth Street. Proctor's Theatre in Military Park, Newark, has another all-star programme this week. The bill is headed by Williams and Tucker, in their latest composition, entitled "Driftwood." The Ten Ichi Troupe, Japan's wonder workers; the Misses Delmore and Company, in a "Bridegroom's Reverie." Ramza and Arno European eccentriques; Treloar, the perfect man, and many other splendid specialties and novelties will complete the show.

DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve.

The only positive cure for blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles, cuts, burns, bruises, eczema and all abrasions of the skin. DeWitt's is the only Witch Hazel Salve that is made from the pure, unadulterated witch hazel—all others are counterfeits. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is made to cure—counterfeits are made to sell. L. W. Randolph.

BASEBALL SCHEDULES.

Committee at Chicago Completes Its Work.

CHICAGO, Feb. 25.—Playing schedules satisfactory to both sides were arranged at the meeting of the committees representing the American and National leagues, and the magnates have left for home.

There are several conflicting dates in the schedules, but they were made by choice in order to avoid long railroad journeys between games. The schedules call for 140 games in each league. The National playing season will open April 15 and the American one week later, April 22. The season in both leagues will close Sept. 27 or 28.

The schedules will not be given out until the annual meetings of each league to be held in New York in the near future.

The meeting of the committee to prepare a new national agreement, composed of Presidents Powers of the Association of Minor Leagues, Johnson of the American and Pulliam of the National League, will meet in New York at the call of President Johnson.

Big Dogs' Day at Boston.

BOSTON, Feb. 25.—The big dogs had their inning yesterday at the dog show in the Mechanics' building, and the setters, beagles and bloodhounds all came in for applause in the judging ring in the morning. John J. Scanlon's Sharon Rose and Sharon Ben carried all before them in the Irish setter classes, while in the beagles the Windholme kennels' Bangle took two firsts and a gold medal. As usual Dr. Lougest of this city took everything in the bloodhound classes, his Wandle Warrior being his chief winner.

Chicago Bowlers Lead.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 25.—The O'Learys of Chicago wrested the high score for five men teams from the Tishimingos of Indianapolis in the national bowling tournament when they rolled a total of 2,819 pins for three games and also established a high tournament record. The Carl Richters, another team from Chicago, also passed the Tishimingos, the record holders of Monday night, making 2,798 pins in three games.

New Orleans Results.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 25.—The carnival visitors swarmed to the track yesterday and saw a fairly good card run off. Fuller's work in the saddle was the feature of the day, the boy riding three winners and two seconds. Benson Caldwell was claimed out of the fifth race by L. V. Bell for $1,325. Odom has been engaged to ride McChesney in the Montgomery handicap.

Pennsy Fencers Defeat Yale.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25.—A fencing contest between teams representing Yale university and the University of Pennsylvania was won by the local collegians. The score was 5 to 4, and the match was only decided when Captain Knipe of Pennsylvania defeated Captain Calmer of Yale in the final round.

Surprises at Ingleside.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 25.—There were several surprises at Ingleside. One occurred in the six and a half furlong handicap when Dainty at odds of 12 to 1 ran around her field and gained a nose victory over Gravina. In the second race Toribio, a 15 to 1 shot, won. The track was fine.

Ice Trotting at Saratoga.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Feb. 25.—The Saratoga Ice Racing association's free-for-all trotting event for $200, five heats, was won by William Clothier's Wyreka of Glens Falls. Best time, 2:21.

Trains Snowbound Again.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Feb. 25.—The belated express trains are again snowbound. One train after making sixty miles in the direction of St. John's found further progress impossible and was sent back ten miles to a divisional point where supplies of food and coal are stored which will enable it to remain a long period without causing anxiety. The other train on the western side of the plateau in the middle interior was unable to retreat to the settlement of Bay of Islands, as had been planned. A working train with two engines and a crew of fifty men, carrying a month's provisions, has started for their relief.

Italian Deputies to Fight.

ROME, Feb. 25.—Several duels between deputies are expected as the outcome of a disorderly scene in the chamber yesterday afternoon. A heated debate followed an interpellation by Signor Montignarerie upon the alleged oppression of Italian subjects in Austria. The Republicans and Conservatives indulged in violent recriminations, and the sitting had to be temporarily suspended.

Hawaii Asks Statehood.

HONOLULU, Feb. 25.—A joint resolution has been introduced in the territorial legislature petitioning for statehood.

The Arkansas legislature has passed a bill to bar from the state all commercial companies that have entered into any combination.

ALARMS THE POWERS

Importation of Arms Into China a Menace.

CHINESE OFFICIALS ARE POWERLESS

Russian Government In the Interest of Peace Calls Attention to the Danger and Asks Co-operation to Stop the Illegal Acts.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Representations have been made to the state department by the Russian ambassador, Count Cassini, regarding the increasing seriousness of the situation in China in the hope that the United States will co-operate with the other powers to stop the illegal importation of arms, which has reached an alarming stage of activity. Similar representations have been made through the Russian representatives to Belgium, Germany and Great Britain.

The Chinese officials claim they are powerless to stop the practice, and the Russian government in the interest of peace has called the matter to the attention of the powers. Secretary Hay and the Russian ambassador have had several conferences on the matter, but it has not been decided just what course the United States, under the constitution, can take toward preventing the exportation of arms. It is probable that the only relief lies in special legislation by congress, which is deemed impossible at this session.

Belgians are the chief offenders in this illegal practice, though it is said many arms are entering China from the United States, Germany and Great Britain. Ambassador Cassini, who has spent many years in China and is responsible in a great degree for the success of the Russian policy there, regards the Chinese situation as deserving of the serious and immediate consideration of the powers. Reports received at the state department also indicate that mischief is being wrought by the importation of arms into China.

New Orleans Carnival Closed.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 25.—The carnival closed last night in a blaze of glory. In point of attendance of strangers it has been the most successful ever held, while the pageants were on a scale of great artistic splendor. The closing pageant was by the Mystic Krewe of Comus. Its title was "A Leaf From the Mahabarata," and it illustrated in twenty superb floats the great epic poem of the Hindoos. The culminating society event of the season was the ball of Comus at the French opera. The curtain rose upon a picturesque tableau revealing Comus on a throne of light and the masked Krewe grouped on either side. Comus chose for his queen Miss Myrtle Stauffer. Miss Alice Roosevelt was present and again was the object of special attention. Admiral and Mrs. Schley and General Joseph Wheeler and his daughters were among the guests.

Health Commissioner at Ithaca.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 25.—Dr. Daniel Lewis, state commissioner of health, has arrived here to investigate the typhoid situation. He spent the day conferring with the city and university authorities and at night addressed a mass meeting of citizens. Dr. Lewis said that an examination at Albany of samples of Ithaca water had shown it to be contaminated and that he believed the water was the specific cause of the present epidemic. He said that his investigation here showed that the situation was not as serious as was generally supposed. Dr. Lewis announced that the state board of health would immediately promulgate rules for the protection of the watershed and gave it as his opinion that there was no reason why the present water supply could not by proper care be made pure.

President Jackson's Papers.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The collection of papers of President Jackson which were in the possession of Montgomery Blair, postmaster general in President Lincoln's cabinet, and on his death passed to his four children have been given to the Library of Congress. These papers are very voluminous, comprising thousands of manuscripts and volumes. They include not merely letters to and from President Jackson, but muster rolls, military reports and various memoranda. They run back prior to the year 1800 and come down to the time of Jackson's death in 1845. The most important of them date from the year 1812. In transmitting the papers to the library the children ask that the gift be known as the "Montgomery Blair collection."

More Pay For Bank Commissioner.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 25.—The senate has passed the bill increasing the salary of the bank and insurance commissioner from $4,000 to $6,000 a year. This bill is being passed for the purpose of making an increase in the salary in advance of the appointment of a new commissioner to succeed Commissioner Bettle, whose term expires on April 3. The bill was opposed by Messrs. Martin and Gebhardt, Democrats, who claim the state officials are receiving too great salaries.

Heavy Damage by Ohio Floods.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Feb. 25.—The river is falling slowly. Farmers in the bottoms will not be able to move into their homes for another week. A great deal of stock has been drowned during the last week and it is estimated the loss to corn in crib and growing wheat between this city and Paducah is $100,000. Lumbermen along the Ohio and the smaller rivers near here probably will lose as much.

Weather Probabilities.

Increasing cloudiness, with rain or snow; northeast winds.

FOR SUNDAY OPENING

New York District Attorney Champions the Bill.

A SHARP THRUST AT MAYOR LOW

No Such Thing as "Liberal Enforcement" of Law, Jerome Says—Gerry Opposes Child Labor Measure—A New Education Bill.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 25.—District Attorney Jerome of New York appeared before senate and assembly committees yesterday in advocacy of the "Jerome bill" permitting saloons in New York to be open between the hours of 1 and 11 p. m. on Sunday.

He said: "Every saloon in New York could be closed on Sunday and kept closed, but it could not be enforced permanently, for the men who enforced it would be swept out of office. The mayor of New York is prattling about the liberal enforcement of the law when there is no such thing. You must either enforce a law or not enforce it. We are not a law abiding community, but we could learn to obey a law that we respected.

"Take the practical humiliation shown in the situation today. There we have a mayor of education and refinement, former president of a great educational institution, a man from the higher walk of life, and we find him juggling with the interpretation of the criminal law, talking about 'liberal enforcement.' We find him a nonjudicial officer, interpreting the statute."

The district attorney declared that 160,000 men drink in saloons and hotels in the metropolis on Sundays, and he pointed to the folly of trying to enforce the system.

The only visible opposition to the child labor bills, on which hearing was given by the assembly committees on labor and industry, was that of Elbridge T. Gerry, president of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children. His objection, which was embodied in a letter read by Major Hamilton of New York city, was that such legislation would lead to a conflict between the law proposed and the penal code. It was the province of his society, he maintained, to care for these matters.

The compulsory education bill prepared by Charles W. Cole, superintendent of schools of Albany, was introduced in the senate by Senator Lewis. It changes the compulsory period in which children must attend school from eight to sixteen to seven to sixteen years of age. Superintendents of schools are given authority to apply an educational test where children are taught elsewhere than at school. Children between the ages of fourteen and sixteen must attend night school not less than six hours a week for sixteen weeks, and school authorities and police magistrates shall have power to commit truants to truant schools or institutions during school vacations.

Legislative Correspondents Dine.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 25.—The annual dinner of the Legislative Correspondents' association was one of the most interesting in the history of that now famous organization. One hundred and fifty members and guests, newspaper men, senators, state officers, officials of great cities and politicians of both great parties, sat down to an elaborate dinner and later listened and applauded "toasts and roasts." Lieutenant Governor Higgins, Mayor Seth Low, District Attorney Jerome of New York, Senator Thomas F. Grady, State Comptroller Miller, Job E. Hedges and Lewis E. Carr were among the brilliant orators.

Lived and Died Together.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—The remarkable series of coincidences that filled the lives of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Moakley of 973 Park avenue found its climax when they both died within the same hour of pneumonia. Mr. and Mrs. Moakley were both born in the same small village in Ireland on the same day sixty-three years ago. They lived on the same little street, and their ancestors had been neighbors for generations. They were educated in the same school, and when they grew up their schoolday friendship ripened into something stronger, and they were married. A double funeral took place today.

Colima's Eruption Violent.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 25.—The news of a violent eruption last Saturday of the volcano of Colima is confirmed. This volcano has often been in eruption during recent years. The eruption of Saturday afternoon was violent and startling, but not more so than those of former years. Much alarm was felt by those in the vicinity at the time. At first it was believed that the top of the mountain had been blown off. Stones of great size were ejected, and flames shot high in the sky.

White House Musicale.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The feature of the musicale given at the White House by Mrs. Roosevelt last night was the excellent programme rendered under the direction of the German Liederkranz and Arion Singing societies of New York. It consisted of selections by the two societies combined and also individually, with incidental baritone solos by Julius J. Scheuch and Carl Schlegel.

Cannot Recover From Companies.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 25.—On the plea that the turf co-operative investment companies are simply gambling schemes and that all investors are partners in the business and must have known the nature of the business, the first attachment suit of the many filed against John J. Ryan & Co. was dismissed by Justice Kleiber today. The suit was to recover money invested.

CIRCUS CARS BURNED.

Costly Fire at Barnum & Bailey's Winter Quarters.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Feb. 25.—Fire yesterday partly destroyed the new brick car barns at the winter quarters of the Barnum & Bailey circus on the west side of this city and burned a number of cars belonging to the circus. The loss is estimated at $100,000, on which there is an insurance of $33,000.

The fire originated in the south end of the building and was caused by a lamp falling to the floor in the midst of a quantity of benzine and other inflammable material. Two alarms of fire were immediately rung in and six fire companies responded. The entrance of the building was a mass of flame, which prevented the removal of any of the cars, but a fireproof partition in the middle of the building was dropped and saved twelve of the cars in the north end of the structure.

Considerable excitement was occasioned during the removal of fourteen elephants which were quartered in a building adjoining the car barns. It was necessary to remove the elephants through a door facing the burning building and across the tracks between rows of burning and smoking cars. In order to accomplish this safely the four keepers took one animal out at a time until the entire herd was removed. The loud trumpeting of the elephants while they were being driven to a place of safety gave rise to a rumor that the animals had broken loose.

The show is due to open in about three weeks at Madison Square Garden, New York. Superintendent John McLachlan is authority for the statement that the opening will not be delayed, despite the inconvenience caused by the fire.

INSURGENT LADRONES FLEE.

San Miguel's Force Took to the Mountains When Pursued.

MANILA, Feb. 25.—General San Miguel's force of insurgent ladrones has abandoned Montalban, sixteen miles from here, and has probably fled to the Morong mountains. Reports from Bosoboso indicate the presence of ladrones in that vicinity. Re-enforcements for the government troops reached Montalban too late and failed to overtake the retreating ladrones. San Miguel has about 300 men with him. It is not believed that they can subsist for any length of time in the mountains. The government is preparing to occupy the valleys and passes and force San Miguel to fight or disband his followers.

Later reports indicate that only fifteen of the government troops, scouts and constabulary were captured Saturday and Sunday when the ladrones surrounded the towns of Cainta and Taytay, eleven miles from Manila. These men, as cabled Feb. 22, were subsequently released by the ladrones after they had given up their arms.

Detachments of constabulary and scouts encountered bands of the enemy on Saturday, and a series of skirmishes ensued. The government forces were victorious.

San Miguel has issued a manifesto directing his adherents to avoid a conflict with the Americans and to content themselves with harassing the police.

A Boy's Terrible Crime.

FRANKFORT, Ind., Feb. 25.—Earl Woods, the seventeen-year-old son of a prominent farmer seven miles west of this city, last evening murdered his father, shot and fatally wounded his mother and sister and then committed suicide. The motive for the boy's bloody crime is not known. After the shooting the young man went to the home of a neighbor and said that robbers had entered his home and killed his father, mother and sister and that he escaped after a running battle with the desperadoes. He apparently was greatly excited and said he was organizing a posse to pursue his father's slayers. He stopped at another house and told the same story. When he was questioned concerning the shooting, he became confused and resented the inquisitiveness of the man to whom he told the story. He started away and disappeared behind a barn, when a shot was heard. An investigation discovered the youthful murderer dying with a bullet through his breast.

Mail Clerks Burned to Death.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 25.—As the result of a head on collision between a westbound passenger train and an eastbound freight train a mile or two east of Berea, O., on the Big Four railroad four mail clerks and two tramps were burned to death and several trainmen hurt. The injuries to the train crews consisted mostly of cuts and bruises and are not considered serious. All but two of the cars of the passenger train were destroyed by a fire which probably started from the overturning and explosion of oil lamps in the express and mail cars.

Will Not Work After Potter.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Feb. 25.—The Building Trades' council, representing all men employed in any of the building trades, has made a demand upon Shafer & Barry, the employers of William Potter, the expelled militiaman, for his discharge. The demand has been refused, and the Building Trades' council has decided that when the spring building season opens all union carpenters, painters, masons, lathers, plasterers, etc., will refuse to work on any building on which Potter has been employed.

A Connecticut Tragedy.

ANSONIA, Conn., Feb. 25.—Fred Jackson, a negro, of this city is held at the lockup in Seymour pending an investigation by the authorities of the cause of the death of Henry Resnet, a woodchopper, whose body, burned to a crisp, was found about midnight lying in the ruins of a little hut in Oxford, where he lived.

NO NEW STATES NOW

Senate Democrats Reject the Compromise Proposition.

ACTION THIS SESSION IS UNLIKELY

The Minority Members Agree to Fight For Omnibus House Bill, but Not to Antagonize Other Measures With It.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The Indianola (Miss.) postoffice case occupied the major portion of the time of the senate yesterday. Mr. Tillman spoke for three hours in continuation of his remarks begun on Monday on the race question and was followed by Mr. Carmack of Tennessee.

During the morning hour several bills and resolutions were passed.

The Democrats in caucus rejected the compromise statehood proposition made by the Republican leaders. A Democratic senator who is a member of the committee on territories on being asked for a statement of the reasons for the rejection wrote the following, which, after submitting to several of his colleagues, he gave out for publication:

"The Democratic caucus rejected the proposed compromise statehood bill for the following reasons: When Arizona and New Mexico were made territories, their areas were established for ultimate statehood purposes, and all the interests and expectations of the people of the two territories have been in anticipation of the two states.

"It would be gross injustice to the people of both to join them in one state. From east to west as railroads must be built it would be 1,700 miles across them. The proposed state would be as large as Texas, and Texas is too large for its convenient government.

"The people of Arizona are unanimously opposed to consolidation with New Mexico, and the people of both these territories should be consulted.

"The Democrats have stood for the statehood bill as it passed the house. They believe that each is entitled to statehood, and they have stood loyally by the Republican minority in their efforts to give them statehood. But they will not inflict the injustice that probably cannot be repaired of forcing the people of the two territories into a state so large that it would forever continue a burden they should not bear."

After the adjournment of the caucus the Democratic members of the committee on postoffices met the Republican members of that committee who have been friendly to statehood. They decided to ask the chairmen of the two committees on postoffices and agriculture to withdraw the statehood riders which the committees have placed on two appropriation bills. They also decided to continue the fight for the omnibus bill as it came from the house without amendment, but not to antagonize appropriation bills or executive business with it.

The Republicans have decided to present their compromise bill to the senate.

The indications are very strong that the question will receive very little if any more consideration during the session, and even the best friends of statehood generally admit that there is no chance for success at this time.

The house passed the Philippine currency bill, accepting the senate bill so far as it relates to the islands. The committee amendment striking out the international monetary conference was agreed to.

Mayor Egozcue Acquitted.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Feb. 25.—The trial of ex-Mayor Egozcue, which began last Friday, on the charge of destroying the records of the city water receipts, which it is alleged constituted the only evidence of extensive peculations and embezzlements, was concluded yesterday, when the jury after an hour's deliberation gave a verdict of acquittal. A procession of Senor Egozcue's friends was formed after the trial and, headed by a band, proceeded to serenade the former mayor. The Republicans, to which party Senor Egozcue belongs, met tonight to celebrate his acquittal.

Lord Minto to Retire.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 25.—A gentleman whose office brings him into close relations with the governor general is authority for the statement that Lord Minto will retire from office in the fall of this year, probably in November. His six years' appointment does not expire till the autumn of 1906, but other governor generals, with the single exception of the late Marquis of Dufferin, have not remained more than five years.

Miss "Buffalo Bill" Weds.

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., Feb. 25.—The marriage of Miss Irma Cody, daughter of Colonel William F. Cody, and Lieutenant Clarence Armstrong Stott of the Twelfth cavalry, stationed at Fort Clark, Tex., was solemnized at noon yesterday. In the absence of Colonel Cody the bride was given away by Dr. D. Frank Powell of St. Paul, an intimate friend of the bride's father.

Mrs. Hoyt to Present an Organ.

STAMFORD, Conn., Feb. 25.—Mrs. William Hoyt announces her intention of presenting a memorial organ to cost $15,000 to the Methodist church of this city as a memorial of her husband, who was for many years a wholesale leather merchant in New York.

Plague Stops Handshaking.

MAZATLAN, Mexico, Feb. 25.—There was one death from the plague yesterday and that at the lazaretto. Signs have been placed in some of the business houses notifying the people that handshaking is stopped during the prevalence of the plague.

March 2—First entertainment in the supplemental course of the Y. M. C. A.

FACTS ARE FACTS.

The Grand Jury is busy today listening to the testimony of witnesses in an attempt to throw more light on the Westfield disaster and the question of responsibility. It seems that, in two particulars, the members of the Grand Jury are not satisfied with the verdict rendered by the coroner's jury and they are now investigating on their own account.

It is regarding the notification of Engineer Davis by the train dispatcher that the Grand Jurors have some doubt. There is a belief current among a number that Davis should have been notified before he left the Jersey City yard, despite the fact that it was brought out on the stand that the rules of the company direct the dispatcher to notify the trainmen at the nearest point to the one where the change is to be made so as to prevent any possible chance of forgetting. This belief was outlined in a letter from Mr. Tracy which was recently published in these columns.

Another point, which the Grand Jury is going to attempt to bring out, is the condtion of engine No. 27 just previous to the accident. There seems to be a feeling among certain members of the Grand Jury that the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad is suppressing facts concerning this engine which, if brought to light, show a different state of affairs. It was to learn some of these facts that two members of the Grand Jury went to Philadelphia and conducted a quiet investigation.

There has been, from the start, a general feeling that engine No. 27 was not in perfect condition. Those who heard all the evidence brought out at the coroner's inquest could not help feeling, however, that the coroner's jury was perfectly correct in placing the blame where it did. Six danger signals were not heeded. Had one of them been, the accident would have been averted. That there were mitigating circumstances as outlined by the coroner's jury, no one denies. But when this fact, the passage of six danger signals, is taken into consideration, no excuse, whether it be the failure to receive orders or the wretched condition of the locomotive, can remove all the blame from the man who disregarded them.

The Daily Press is just as sorry as anyone to see the blame placed on one who is not here to answer but facts are facts and we cannot see how the Grand Jury or anyone else is going to entirely excuse anyone who disregards the most important point in railroad equipment, the passage of a danger signal. One must always be prepared for emergencies on a railroad. When a red light will not stop an engineer, what will?

Of the local athletic organizations, the Alis A. A. is the only one that has weathered all the storms and continued its existence for eight odd years. Now that club is to be reorganized as the Alis Club with a strong membership and some of Plainfield's most energetic young men at its head. A meeting is to be held this evening when the formal new organization will be effected. Its prospects for the coming season are bright and there is no reason why it should not become the athletic club, the need for which has been seen by so many. With a club house and enclosed grounds, it will be on a scale to compare favorably with similar organizations in this part of New Jersey.

This is Ash Wednesday when the Lenten period begins. Activity in social circles is now over until Easter when there will be a resumption of social gaiety.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

During this week, specialties at John Wirth's bakery will be fresh confections, Boston brown bread and angel cake. None better in the city. All goods delivered.

W. W. Dunn announces that his display of fine fruit cannot be surpassed by any local grocery store. Among the latest shipments are oranges from Florida and California. He also carries a full line of vegetables.

Smalley Brothers have for years catered to the best trade and their meats are consequently selected with great care. They have only the best stock on hand and their delivery system is second to none in town.

Shaw's hard water soap is cleansing and healing; it makes the hands soft and preserves the skin. The fact that the demands for it are increasing daily demonstrates its popularity. It is made and sold only by R. J. Shaw, the West Front street druggist.

J. B. Blair has received a select line of spring styles in men's hats. He also received last week some fine neckwear for the coming season. A complete line of valises and dress suitcases are always to be found at that well known Park avenue haberdashery.

Many firms advertise baked beans but few of them retail the variety such as will send a Boston man into ecstasies They want to be crisp, brown and appetizing and that's the kind the A. and P. Tea Company sell. A special price on them has been made at the local store on West Front street.

Are you satisfied with the milk and cream you receive from your milk dealer? Do you have any trouble keeping it? If so give Wm. Lindsay & Son, of Mountain avenue, a trial. This firm guarantees the product of its dairy to give the highest satisfaction. Prompt deliveries are made to all parts of the city and borough.

As the spring season draws near it is time to think about having your house painted and papered. The New York Decorating and Painting Company, of Park avenue, is a reliable concern to deal with and first-class work is assured all customers. The 1903 wall-papers are now being shown and an early inspection is desirable.

DUNELLEN.

Mr. and Mrs W. J. Hamilton, of Dunellen avenue, entertained the Literary Circle at their home, last evening, at an enjoyable meeting. The gathering was the one postponed from a week ago. The papers read were well written and much enjoyed. Several selections from well known writers were also read, the programme was as follows,' "Slavery and State Rights," Rev. N. J. Sproul; Robert Lee," Miss Martha Whitenack; roll call; Lincoln Anecdotes, reading, Commemoration Ode by Lowell, Miss Mary Doolittle; reading, Our Navy by H. L. Carson, Mrs. C. B. Mattis; Original Valentines. After the literary part of the evening was finished refreshments were served and a pleasant social time enjoyed.

A very pleasant meeting of the Afternoon Card Club was held, yesterday afternoon, at the home of Miss Jessie Haynes, of Main street. As usual whist was the game played. The prize for the afternoon's playing was won by Miss Banche Marlow. Dainty refreshments were served before the meeting broke up.

Quite a large number gathered at the home of Mrs. G. T. Schenk last evening and participated in a literary social given under the auspices of the Epworth League.

To the surprise of many who thought everthing would be peaceful the political fight in the borough is waxing quite hot as the time of election draws near.

Miss Amy Sampson returned yesterday to her studies at the State Normal School after spending a few days at the home of her parents.

Miss Emily Rice, of Easton, Pa., has returned home after a visit at the home of Dr. P. W. Brakeley.

Further skin grafting was tried upon Wilson Fredericks successfully, last evening.

The young child of Newton Apgar is under the care of a physician.

The cornet band will meet for practice this evening.

NEW MARKET.

Regular weekly prayer meeting will be held this evening in the First Baptist church. Rev. Frank Fletcher will lead.

The tickets for the primaries have been about made out and it is not probable that there will be much friction.

A meeting of Friendship Social Circle will be held this afternoon.

R. E. Avery, of Montclair, spent Monday with relatives in town.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The annual township report is out and ready for distribution by Township Clerk E. L. Hand. The treasurer's report to Feb. 1, 1903, shows a balance of $900.64. The following appropriations have been recommended by the Township Committee to be acted upon by the voters at the spring election: Fire department, $200; police, $100; roads, $2,000; sidewalks, $250.

John Soden, a well known resident of the lower end of the township, is detained at home. Several days ago, while working about the stable, a horse in some way fell against Soden knocking him down and breaking his leg.

Miss Louise Robison, who has been spending a few days with her parents, Freeholder and Mrs. John Robison, returned yesterday to her duties as teacher in one of the Greater New York schools.

Harry Schaffer left Monday for Waterbury, Conn., where he will install a new printing press for the Walter Scott Company. Mr. Schaffer will be gone several weeks.

The K. O. G., a newly organized club of Netherwood young people, gave a reception and dance to their friends, in the Fanwood Fire House last night.

Fanwood Council, R. A., met in its rooms last night. Final arrangements were made for the Council smoker to be held tonight in Excelsior Hall.

Frederick Clark has returned from a visit to Far Hill where he has been purchasing horses for the spring trade.

Conrad Peltz, a former resident of the village but now living at Bayonne, has been visiting friends in town.

The Boys Club, of the Methodist church, will hold its weekly meeting in the church tonight.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

William T. Day has rented Postmaster William H. Manning's house which Harry E. Weaver recently vacated.

After two weeks' illness William McMullin has resumed work at Jersey City where he is employed as a brakeman.

Morris Gaery, Jr., of Philadelphia, spent Washington's birthday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Gaery.

John O'Keefe has accepted a position at the coal storage under Foreman L. E. Molineaux.

Raymond Randolph has returned to Metuchen after a short visit with friends here.

Miss Julia Gaery, of Newark, has returned to that city after a visit with her parents.

Mrs. Peter Johnson is improving from a severe attack of grip and neuralgia.

Benjamin Kelly, of Oak Tree, died last Monday.

PERSONAL.

Miss Marion D. Woodcock, of West Seventh street, is very ill with the grip.

Miss Buena Vista Vreeland, of East Sixth street, is spending a week in Washington.

Mrs. Robert Lowry, of LaGrande avenue, has gone west with friends for a trip of a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. D. M. VanVliet, of Washington avenue, have gone to Princeton, for a few days.

Mrs. J. A. Haynes, of North avenue, is able to go out again after a two weeks' siege of the grip.

Miss Grant, from the south, is visiting her friend, Mrs. George R. Rogers, of Washington avenue.

Miss Vanderbeek, from Hunterdon county, is a guest at the home of D. N. Groendyke, of Mercer avenue.

George G. Dunshee and family, of Newark, have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Thorn, of East Second street. Mr. Dunshee, who resided in this city for many years, is now an active worker in the educational department of the Y. M. C. A. at Newark.

Mrs. John W. Coddington, of Saidora, Ill., who has been visiting her brother, Alfred Everitt, of the borough, during the past few months, returned home Monday by the Black Diamond Express on the Lehigh Valley Railroad. Miss Clara King, of the borough, accompanied her, and she will remain in the west for six months for her health.

FOUR SURVIVORS.

Who Went to Original Ceremony, Turned Out for Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walker celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding at their home on New street, Monday evening. There were a large number of people present from Brooklyn, New Market South Plainfield and other places. A number of very handsome presents were received by the aged couple including $75 in gold.

Among the company who assisted the aged couple in celebrating their anniversary were four of the nine people still living who were present at the wedding ceremony fifty years ago.

Setting a Prisoner Free.

A man with rheumatism is a prisoner. His fetters are none the less galling because they are invisible. To him Perry Davis' Painkiller comes as a liberator. Rubbed well into the swollen, stiffened joints it not merely drives away the pain, it makes the muscles pliable so that the prisoner becomes a free man. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis. 25 and 50 cts.

LENT BEGINS TODAY WITH ASH WEDNESDAY

Services Being Held in All the Local Roman Catholic and Episcopal Churches.

AND FOR FORTY DAYS

SERVICES WILL BE HELD FREQUENTLY DURING THAT TIME.

Services for Today at St. Mary's and St. Joseph's Churches—"Blessing the Ashes"—Other Services at Episcopal Churches.

Today, in the Catholic and Episcopal churches, Lent begins and for the next forty days all gaiety will cease and devotional services will be held almost every day in all the churches of these denominations throughout the world. This day begins a season of self denial for the devout Catholic and Episcopalian and was marked with suitable services in the various edifices of those creeds early this morning.

At St. Mary's R. C. church early mass was sung by Rev. Father Egan, assisted by Rev. Father Smith, at 8 o'clock. This service was largely attended, as at that service the ceremony of "blessing the ashes" is performed.

This evening devotional services will be held and all during the season special services will be held almost daily.

According to previous custom special services will be held at Grace Episcopal church. Holy Communion was held this morning at 7 o'clock and at 10 o'clock morning prayer and Holy Communion was held. At noon the Penitential office was held and at 8 o'clock this evening a prayer service and sermon will be conducted by Rev. James E. Freeman, rector of St. Andrew's church, Yonkers, N. Y.

Holy Communion was held this morning at 7:30 at St. Stephen's church when the Lenten season opened at that church. Matins were sung at 10 o'clock and this afternoon at 4 o'clock will be held the evensong. All during Lent Holy Communion will be administered on Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays at 7 o'clock in the morning. The church will be opened at all hours of the day during Lent, and at all the services the rector, Rev. William Vincent Dawson, will officiate. The church is located at the corner of Ravine road and Woodland avenue, Netherwood.

Services commemorative of Ash Wednesday were held this morning at 7:30 at the Church of the Holy Cross when there was a large attendance. The service was conducted by the rector, Rev. W. Montgomery Downey, who also administered Holy Communion. Morning prayer and sermon was held at 10:30 o'clock and this afternoon at 4:30 even prayer will be held, when Rev. Dr. Fenton, of St. Luke's church, Metuchen, will officiate with Rev. Mr. Downey.

The ceremony of "blessing the ashes" and a mass were held this morning at St. Joseph's R. C. church by Rev. Father Miller. The church was filled to its greatest capacity at that service.

At 8 o'clock this evening a sermon will be delivered at the church when the ceremony of distributing the ashes will be held. Each Wednesday evening during Lent special priests will be present and conduct the services, and on Sunday evenings Rev. Father Miller will give discourses on the Sacred Shrines of Europe. At the Sunday evening services the choir will render musical vespers.

Returned to Work.

The men employed in rebuilding the Babcock building returned to work yesterday, after an enforced idleness of over a week on account of the cold. It was expected that the roof would be completed before this, but the weather has interfered.

LEE IS AFTER TROLLEY CO.

In the regular order of business transacted at the meeting, there were several petitions remonstrating against the granting of liquor licenses were received. Such petitions were received from William Hewson, Mrs. Elizabeth Brant, Miss J. H. Pettinger, Mrs. G. W. F. Randolph and Y. M. C. A., through its president, Stephen Cahoone. They were all referred to the license committee.

W. J. Dodd, of East Fifth street, protested against the payment of a dog tax on three puppies, claiming that such small dogs should not be assessed. The matter was referred.

Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh, in a communication, reported on a settlement and division of the franchise tax received from the Plainfield Water Supply Company, through the State Board of Taxation. According to this settlement, Plainfield receives $835.29, North Plainfield $242.11 and North Plainfield township $36.92, of the total amount of $1,113.72. Mr. Daniel offered a resolution confirming the action of Mr. Marsh in the settlement.

The Central New Jersey Telephone Company, through its attorney, Wm. N. Runyon, asked the Council for a franchise to install its system in Plainfield, and also submitted a copy of an ordinance regarding the same. A hearing was asked for at the convenience of the Council, and will probably be granted in the near future. This is the telephone company that is endeavoring to establish its system throughout New Jersey The company was incorporated a couple of weeks ago.

After Mr. Tolles offered a resolution authorizing the street and sewer committee to advertise for open bids for culverts and crosswalks, the Council adjourned somewhere about midnight.

THEATRICAL.

At the Central Theatre this week the American Beauties Company is playing to crowded houses at each performance. The entire company is giving satisfaction. Among those especially good is the Jolly Wild Company in its musical sketches. Miss May Yale is pleasing all her hearers with her songs. Gregory & Durrell, the greatest feet balancers ever seen in the city. Little Margaret Gregory, the six-year-old contortionist, is a wonder. The company will remain the balance of this week.

A Weak Stomach causes a weak body and invites disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures and strengthens the stomach, and wards off and overcomes disease. J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Ohriesman, Tex., says: "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and run down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefitted me, and after taking four bottles I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health." L. W. Randolph.

Proceedings of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders.

[OFFICIAL]

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, February 20, 1903, at 2:30 p. m.

The meeting was called to order by the Clerk of the Board.

Roll call showed all members present except Director Hubbard and Freeholders Bonnel and McCandless —3.

The Clerk stated that, owing to the unavoidable absence of Director Hubbard, it would be necessary to elect a Director pro tem., and called for nominations. Freeholder King was nominated, and there being no other nominations he was declared elected as Director pro tem. by the unanimous vote of the Board.

The minutes of the previous meeting (the reading of bills being omitted) were on motion approved as read.

Mr. Lane, of Summit, being present, was granted permission to address the Board: he said in part that the D., L. and W. R. R. Co. was abolishing grade crossings through the city of Summit; that whenever in the course of said work it was necessary to build bridges, they would be built and maintained by the said railroad company. There was now a bridge over said railroad in Summit avenue which had been built and maintained by this county, owing to the contemplated depression of said avenue at that point, the bridge was no longer needed; it was the desire of the railroad people, that the said bridge be removed in such way or manner, as this Board might deem to be for the best interests of the county.

Director pro tem King stated he was informed that a resolution would be presented at this meeting, relative to the matter spoken of by Mr. Lane.

PETITIONS, COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

From Director Hubbard as follows:

Elizabeth, Jan. 15, 1903.

S. R. Ryno, Esq., Clerk, Board of Freeholders, Rahway, N. J.

Dear Sir—I hereby appoint the following named gentlemen as member of the Legislative Commitee for the year 1903, viz.: John Farrell, Benjamin King, Jacob Brucklacher, Henry Krouse and William H. Swain.

Very truly yours,

J. F. Hubbard,

Director Board of Freeholders of Union County.

Received and placed on file.

From Director Hubbard:

Elizabeth, February 5, 1903.

S. R. Ryno, Esq., Clerk of the Board of Freeholders.

Dear Sir—You will be kind enough to announce the following changes in the standing committees:

The Committee on Collectors Bond, will be: Connoly, Klee and McCandless.

The Committee on Publications—Adams, Robison and Pierson.

Miscellaneous Accounts — Tillman, Connoly and Klee.

The Elizabeth Drawbridges—Pierson, Westphal and Klee.

Very truly yours,

J. F. Hubbard, Director.

Received and placed on file.

From A. L. Dutrow as follows:

Rahway, February 2, 1903.

To the Honorable the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—The undersigned being a bondsman of George Wilcox, of this city, for the maintenance of his wife, Caroline Wilcox, at the N. J. State Hospital at Morris Plains, N. J., most respectfully hereby notify your honorable body that I desire to withdraw as a surety on said bond, and therefore I will not be held responsible for said maintenance after that date.

Very respectfully yours,

A. L. Dutrow.

On motion of Freeholder Farrell, it was ordered that the communication be received and referred to the Lunacy Committee and County Attorney.

From A. M. Runyon & Son, as follows:

Plainfield, N. J., Feb 5, 1903.

Board of Freeholders, Union County, Elizabeth, N. J.:

Gentlemen—We enclose herewith a bill of Geo. W. Cole, keeper of the morgue in Plainfield, for charges incurred in temporarily caring for bodies of the victims of the recent wreck near Westfield.

We guarantee the payment of this bill, provided his services were not paid by the railroad company or the county.

Our understanding is that these charges are usually paid by the county. If we are correct will you kindly advise us? If we are not correct please return the bill and state what is customary in such cases, and very much oblige. Yours truly,

A. M. Runyon & Son.

The bill as stated was for the care of nine bodies at a total cost of $135.

The county attorney being present, said that in his opinion the county was not liable for the charges as made in the bill of Mr. Cole, that the county was liable only in cases when bodies were not identified and when funds sufficient to pay funeral expenses could not be found. It was also his belief that morgue fees should not exceed $5 in each case, such conditions did not exist in the cases for which Mr. Cole had rendered his bill.

On motion of Freeholder Farrell it was ordered that the bill be returned, and that the clerk notify A. M. Runyon & Son, in accordance with the opinion as given by the county attorney.

From B. Frank Coriell, Sheriff, as follows, viz:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union.

Gentlemen—Your attention is directed to a decision recently rendered by the Supreme Court of this State in the case of George Virtue, Sheriff, &c., prosecutor, vs. the Freeholders of the County of Essex, defendants. In the opinion of the court, filed in that case, reference is made to the several acts under which the Board of Freeholders have claimed the right to the custody of the county jail, including the act under which your honorable board now claims the right to the care of the jail of this county and the prisoners therein.

After reviewing the same and the legality thereof, the court says: "We conclude, therefore, that the various statutes which have been referred to, so far as they deprive the Sheriffs of the custody of the common jail of their respective counties, and of the prisoners confined therein, and placed it in the hands of Boards of Freeholders, are inoperative and void." Your attention is especially directed to this opinion, which was filed in the office of the clerk of said court November 15, 1901.

It is apparent, upon the reading of this opinion, that I, as Sheriff of the County of Union, am not only entitled to the care of the county jail and the custody of the prisoners therein, but to receive the emoluments, fees and rewards appertaining thereto, and also that it is my duty as a public officer to take charge of the jail and the prisoners and to perform such duties with respect thereto as are imposed on me by law.

Your attention is also directed to the provisions of the act entitled "An act to regulate the custody of the county jails and the prisoners therein," approved March 23, 1900. (See P. L. 1900, page 474.) And you are hereby respectfully notified that I shall and do take the custody, rule, keeping and charge of the county jail within the County of Union.

I therefore respectfully request that your honorable board deliver up to me the care and custody of said jail and the prisoners confined therein, in order that I may properly proceed to discharge the duties of my office.

Yours respectfully,

B. Frank Coriell,

Sheriff of Union County, New Jersey.

After some discussion, the foregoing communication, on motion of Freeholder Brucklacher, was referred to the Committee on Public Grounds and Buildings, the Jail Committee and the County Attorney, with power.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By the committee to settle with the county collector as follows:

January 30, 1903.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee to settle with the county collector respectfully report, that they have examined his books, showing his receipts and disbursements, together with his vouchers, bonds and coupons paid and bank books, and we find the same agree and are correct in every particular.

His total receipts from the beginning of the present fiscal year to date are $416,119.43; total disbursements, $282,693.72; balance in bank, $133,425.71. (Signed) Henry Krouse, Benjamin King, Jacob Brucklacher, committee.

On motion of Freeholder Farrell, received and placed on file.

NEW BUSINESS

By Freeholder Tillman:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to inspect the bridge on Hazelwood avenue, Rahway, and consider the necessity and probable cost of building a new bridge in place of the present structure, and said committee to report at the next meeting of this body.

On motion of Freeholder Farrell, the resolution was adopted without dissent.

Director pro tem King appointed as the said committee, Freeholders Tillman, Krouse and Pierson.

By Freeholders Adams:

Whereas, The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western R. R., are depressing their tracks at Summit, at and near Summit avenue, and

Whereas, It will become proper and expedient to reduce the grade of Summit avenue and the lowering of the present bridges or building of a new one, and

Whereas, The said railroad has agreed upon condition that the present bridge be removed by this Board, to build and maintain an overhead bridge at said point at a grade in conformity with the new grade of said street, at their own expense; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the matter of the removal of the present bridge, be referred to Messrs. Cady and Swain, and Engineer Hubbard, with power to dispose of said bridge for the best price they can obtain; the party to whom the same may be sold to remove the same at their expense and risk.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse, the foregoing preamble and resolutions were adopted without dissent.

The folowing bills, properly audited and approved, were read, and, on roll call, unanimously ordered paid, viz.:

The Great Gospel of Cheerfulness

"HOW do you manage to keep so cheerful?" I asked the friend who had had many troubles.

"Because I have to," came the answer.

And while I was pondering over her odd reply Miss Jones was announced. Now, Miss Jones was young, with a plump, rather pretty face and a nice figure gowned in an up to date tailor made. She should have been attractive, but instead of that the minute she came into the room one felt the depression of the atmosphere.

But my friend greeted her cordially. "Sit down, Mary, dear, and have a cup of tea," she remarked cheerily, "and tell me how everything goes with you."

Mary took the steaming cup and dropped into it two lumps of sugar; also a sigh.

"Oh, I am so discouraged!" was the first sentence we heard from her lips. "It is so fearfully hard living this sort of life. I shall die if it keeps on."

"But you are doing well in your business and earning a large income," my friend suggested cheerily.

"Oh, I suppose so, but you can't understand. I never was brought up to do this sort of thing. It's perfectly awful, and then I never know how long my luck is going to last!"

"Nonsense! You draw such clever sketches you can easily get some other work when this fails you."

The answer was another sigh.

"What has become of that handsome young lawyer you were telling me about?" my friend put in archly, with a vain attempt to make the conversation less lugubrious.

"Oh, he doesn't call any more. I hear he is paying a good deal of attention to that rich Bessie Atwell. Very natural, I'm sure. I would if I were a man. I knew it couldn't last, living alone as I do and having no money or family. Men, like every one else, are out for what they can get," etc.

It was a positive relief when she left and little Susie Brown took her place. Now, there was nothing remarkable about Susie, either in face or costume. In fact, when you came right down to it, her clothes were rather out of style and shabby, but her face fairly shone with courage and good nature, and when she greeted my friend her smile actually seemed to fill the room.

"Well, how goes it?" said the latter.

"Oh, so much better," chirped Susie—"not that I have had one of my stories accepted yet, but the editor said my last one showed great improvement, and they have given me some fashion work to do. Isn't that lovely?"

"Are you not very lonely living by yourself?"

"It is rather hard at times," Susie admitted, her genial face a shade graver, "especially since mother died, but then every one is so good to me. It is wonderful, too, for I'm not pretty or clever or intersting, and I can't give them anything in return. Don't you think this world is just full of the kindest, most disinterested people, Mrs. Caldwell?"

When we were by ourselves again, Mrs. Caldwell turned to me with a grave look. "Maud," she said, "when I experienced my first sorrow and was first thrown on my own resources I was just like Mary Jones. I wanted every one to know and to feel my sorrow. My life was one perpetual whine, punctuated with outbursts of tears on friends' shoulders. The result was, my dear, that I lost nearly every friend I had. The men were the first to go, for men are not patient with tears, and all but my very oldest women friends followed suit. To this day I don't blame them. People don't want to invite shadow in their houses; they prefer sunshine. Other girls used to get asked around, and I was left out. I used to wonder why, and blame the people, until one day I woke up from my bad dream and realized how abominably selfish I had been. In this world you get just about what you give. If you radiate sorrow, you receive sorrow; if selfishness, you receive selfishness. That is why I go about preaching the gospel of cheerfulness and practicing it as well. It's the only way in this world if you want peace and happiness."

MAUD ROBINSON.

March of Refinement.

"Now that I think of it," remarked the passenger with the skull cap, "there used to be a little place on this line they called 'Kiss station,' but it must be something else now. I haven't heard the conductor call it out."

"We're pretty near to it, I think," replied the passenger with the goatee. "But it isn't Kiss station any more. They've changed the name, but retained the idea. It's now—"

"Happy junction!" bawled out the conductor as the train slackened its speed for the next stop.—Chicago Tribune.

Helping Papa Along.

"Yes, I was engaged 14 times during the summer."

"The usual brittle affairs, I suppose?"

"Well, not exactly. Papa's going to hold each of them to his plighted word, one after the other, and I guess he'll make a pretty good thing out of it. He said last summer that it paid to be a damaged affection lawyer when a man had such a clever daughter to drum up business."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Frozen Milk in Labrador.

Cows are scarce in Labrador, because it is difficult to keep them in the extremely cold weather. The natives procure their milk for the winter and then kill their cows. The milk is kept in barrels, where it freezes and never turns sour throughout the entire season. When one wishes to use any milk he has simply to go to the barrel and cut out a slice.—N. Y. Sun.

A Startling Effect.

"Was that an earthquake last night?" inquired the guest of the household.

"Did you hear it? We hoped you wouldn't," said the polite hostess. "You see, we have a cousin visiting us from Chicago. She was at a dancing party last night and came in rather late—and I think she must have dropped one of her shoes."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Lord Kitchener's Only Wound.

Rossiter excused himself and hastened to the door. Without, half a dozen of the more curious men had collected. As Rossiter joined them there rose the sound of a struggle below the kiln, and they heard Jack Parmelee's voice, loud and stern. All moved hastily in the direction from which it proceeded. As they gained the corner they made out three men approaching, followed closely by two others. One of those in advance was Parmelee. He was gripping the man next him by the shoulder and wrist, while this individual was held in similar fashion by the one walking upon the other side. An intuition had told Rossiter that the cause of the commotion was "Whiskers," and his intuition was correct: The captive whom Parmelee and his companion were marching between them was none other than Hart Dawson, and more like a wild animal he looked than a human being.

The group of which Rossiter was a member parted, allowing the two men and their prisoner to pass.

"You will come snoopin' around scarin' honest folk, will you, you hairy ape!" Parmelee was saying. "The place for you and all like you, is the 'jug,' and an all-fired pity it is we can't spare the time to take you there. But I've a little medicine that'll teach you not to show your ugly 'mug' here again. Hey, Dick Whittlesey! where's that ox-goad?"

"I'll git it," said the man addressed, one of the farm-hands close at Parmelee's heels.

Captors and captive, and the attendant onlookers, among whom was Rossiter, were nearing the roadway gate when Whittlesey returned from his errand.

"Give me the goad, and take hold here for a minute," said Parmelee.

Whittlesey did as commanded.

"Now we'll move on," Parmelee continued.

Presently the four were standing in the middle of the road, while the spectators paused in the gate-way. Parmelee got a firm grip on Dawson's coat-collar at the back of his neck.

"When I give the word you men let go," he cried.

They made ready to spring back.

"Now!" he exclaimed, and the next instant the whistling goad wound around the legs of the struggling tramp. In vain did he strive to turn and close with Mr. Merton's overseer. He was in the grip of one more than his equal in strength, who had over him a distinct advantage. Again and again the goad descended, and then at length Parmelee released his hold. "Whiskers" wheeled as though he would leap upon his chastiser, but the merciless goad cut him stingingly across his cheek, and he ran howling and cursing into the night.

CHAPTER X.

PASSING DAYS.

Rossiter had his third dance with Miss Densmore, but he saw that it was an effort for her to go through the changes. Indeed, the spirits of the whole company had fallen many degrees. Miss Merton's friends declared that they must be going home, and with their departure the two girls retired to the house. Rossiter lingered a few moments in the kiln after they had left and then sought his cot. He could not sleep, however, and as the music still continued his thoughts drifted with it up and down the gamut of the night's happenings. He wondered if Miss Densmore would be able to carry out her determination to keep from the store of her hop-picking experiences naught but the pleasant for her treasure-trove of memory. He feared this was little likely, though he realized that she was a girl of strong will. In such matters, however, the mind cannot be coerced. Then he began to query what part, if any, he played in that which she would retain and cherish. He was now past calling himself a fool for dwelling upon her. He had suddenly assumed a different attitude in this regard. He would indulge in the luxury of playing the moth. There was a fine exaltation in being singed at so bright a flame, and if no one save himself was aware of the singeing, what did it matter?

Late in the night a soft rain began falling, and its monotone lulled Rossiter to sleep. Everything was dripping in the morning, and no one turned out early, for picking was impossible. By three o'clock, however, a portion of one yard which stood upon high ground was sufficiently dry under foot, so work was here resumed. All the land near the house devoted to hops had by this time been cleared, and the pickers were obliged to walk a considerable distance from the farm buildings before reaching the scene of their efforts.

Rossiter caught but a glimpse or two of Miss Densmore on the day following the dance, as she and Miss Merton did not go into the fields. He had a bright nod from her as he was hurrying by the house on an errand for Parmelee, and again in the evening spoke an instant with her and with Miss Merton upon the porch. On Saturday, however, both girls were once more picking. In fact, they were out earlier than common.

"See how ambitious we are getting!" exclaimed Miss Merton, as Rossiter wished them good-morning.

"Positively grasping!" cried Miss Densmore. "We counted up our tickets last night, and calculated how much money we were likely to have at the end. I've spent mine in my mind a dozen times already," and she gave one of her infectious little laughs.

That day was one of delight to Rossiter. Both of the girls were as blithe as birds, and he caught something of their gayety. Only once was there any reference to the occurrence which had in a measure marred the pleasure of the hop-dance.

Miss Merton had walked across to chat a moment with Mrs. Becraft, to whom she had taken a fancy, and whom she recalled from the preceding year, and Rossiter chanced to be stripping a pole near the box of the two girls.

"I wanted to ask you a question," said Miss Densmore, when she saw he had finished. "Miriam is not inclined to talk about it for fear, I suppose, of disturbing me. But wasn't that man the other night the same one who——"

"Yes," interrupted Rossiter, not waiting for her to complete the sentence. There seemed to be no other way but to be perfectly frank with her. "But he'll not come 'snoopin'' round again, as Mr. Parmelee says."

"I heard what Jack did. I wonder if it was the wisest course to take? Anyhow, I should be afraid to turn such a creature loose after it."

The same thought had occurred to Rossiter, but he did not acknowledge it. "Whiskers'" bitter vindictiveness he did not doubt. Fear of being caught was the only thing that would deter him from attempting some sort of revenge. Indeed, that had already occurred, had Rossiter but known it, which went far towards disproving his assertion in regard to Dawson's reappearance.

As the pole-puller and Joe Becraft were walking towards the sleeping quarters of the men that night they fancied they detected a figure in the shadow of a tree near the lower rear corner of the hop-kiln.

"We'd better see who that is," said Rossiter; "there may be some mischief going on here."

As they advanced the figure emerged from the gloom and came to meet them.

"It's me," said Parmelee's jolly voice, "just havin' a look round. Come into the kiln a minute." Thus bidden, they went along with him.

"You go out back there," Parmelee said to a farm hand whom they found within, "and keep your eyes open."

The pungent smell of the drying hops permeated the air. Parmelee opened the door which led down into the floorless space where the huge stove stood to see that the draughts were right and the fire hot. Sulphur fumes from two pans upon the stove-top were rising thickly, and a little blue streamer floated out into the baling room of the kiln. Parmelee slammed the door and turned towards Rossiter and Becraft.

"I was lyin' here last night, on the bunk yonder," said he, with a jerk of his thumb, "'long about two o'clock. I'd just got a fresh kiln on, an' the fire all fixed, an' had told Dick Whittlesey to watch it an' was thinkin' that mebbe I'd have a little snooze, when I happened to glance over to the window there—the same one where that hairy devil poked his head in t'other night—an' I swear there was a pair of eyes borin' into me. They were gone quicker than a pole-cat, but I can tell you it didn't take me long to get out there after 'em. There wasn't a sign of anybody, however, but as I stood peerin' into the dark I thought I heard a queer sort o' cracklin', an' then there was a little gleam of light behind the kiln."

"THERE WAS A PAIR OF EYES BORIN' INTO ME."

"Fire?" cried Rossiter.

Do You Wish To Borrow Money?
In order to accommodate all classes of borrowers (those who cannot borrow at a bank, as well as those who can), the Mutual Loan and Investment Company, of 118 Market street, Newark, N. J., has a department for handling quickly and confidentially loans ranging from $10 to $300 on furniture, pianos, storage receipts, etc.
The security is not removed from your possession or in any way disturbed. The honest, careful and conservative borrower will try and decide two points before borrowing. First, where he can get the best terms. Second, where he can get fair and square treatment.
This company is in a position to give you by far the most satisfactory terms ever offered by any concern or individual negotiating this class of loans.
With this company you are assured of getting the lowest rates, easiest payments and longest time for repayment. The whole transaction from the time the application is made until loan is paid is entirely confidential. We give you another advantage in case you take the loan out for six months or a year, and wish to settle the same before the time expires: we charge you only for the time you have had the money. We also take up loans from other companies and advance more money.
Kindly call and let us explain our simple and up-to-date methods. If not entirely convenient for you to call, please write and our representative will call and give you any desired information. Remember it costs nothing to make application. Loans promptly made in Elizabeth, Plainfield, Westfield, Roselle, Rahway, Perth Amboy and all suburban towns.

ANOTHER LIE NAILED.

Mrs. Hayes' Sideboard Not In a Saloon, Nor Portrait In a Cellar.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Colonel Theodore A. Bingham, superintendent of public buildings and grounds, has concluded an exhaustive investigation into the statement recently published widely throughout the country that a sideboard presented to Mrs. Lucy Webb Hayes while she was mistress of the White House by women of the W. C. T. U. has passed into the hands of a Washington saloonist. The statement was made that the sideboard was presented to Mrs. Hayes out of regard for her determination not to permit wine to be served at White House dinners.

Colonel Bingham's investigation discloses clearly the fact that the published statements practically have no foundation in fact. So far as the records and a recent voluminous correspondence with interested parties go no such sideboard ever was presented to Mrs. Hayes by members of the W. C. T. U., by any other body of women or by any individuals.

Two sideboards from the White House were recently sold at auction. The offer of these, as well as of other articles from the White House, was made in accordance with law. The investigation has developed the fact that the one which was purchased by a saloonist was bought for the White House during the incumbency as president of General Arthur. The other was bought for use in the mansion at an earlier date. Where it now is cannot be ascertained.

With respect to the criticism that the portraits of former mistresses of the White House were hung in the "cellar" of the mansion, it is stated by the same authority that the portraits are in the corridor on which is the president's private office, on which there are several guest chambers through which all guests of the president have to pass, and that the portrait of Mrs. Roosevelt is hung directly opposite to that of Mrs. Hayes.

CUBA CELEBRATES.

Eighth Anniversary of Uprising Against Spanish Rule.

HAVANA, Feb. 25.—The eighth anniversary of the uprising at Baire, which was the beginning of the Cuban revolution against Spanish rule which finally resulted in Cuba's freedom, was gayly celebrated in Havana.

The day was also the climax of the carnival season, rain having previously interfered with the festivities. Business was suspended, and the streets and buildings were everywhere decorated with flags. Salutes were fired by the fortresses, and the newly presented flags were hoisted on Morro castle.

In the afternoon a lengthy procession of vehicles wound around the Prado and Central park, carrying revelers, masked and otherwise, belonging to all grades of society, who pelted one another with serpentines until the horses and vehicles, the fronts of the clubs and hotels and some residences were a mass of multicolored streamers. The sport continued until late at night.

Amnesty For All Rebels.

CAPE TOWN, Feb. 25.—Speaking at a farewell banquet, at which the American and several other foreign consuls were present, Colonel Secretary Chamberlain indicated that before long all the rebels would be amnestied.

SPORTING NEWS

ON THE DIAMOND.

Reform Hall has been secured for the afternoons in the remainder of this month and part of March for indoor baseball practice for the freshmen-sophomore team of the Borough High School. It will be used for the training of the pitchers for the team, for which position there are eight candidates.

SCHOOL OF RULES.

Employes of the Jersey Central Instructed in New Book of Rules at Somerville.

New Jersey Central Railroad officials started a school of instruction in the new rules Sunday, when morning, afternoon and evening sessions were held at Somerville. In all nearly fifty employes including telegraph operators, brakemen, conductors, engineers and in fact every class was summoned to receive instructions.

The idea is to have a set of rules uniform throughout the country and the new rules adopted by the New Jersey Central conform to those on every other important road. They apply chiefly to great safety in the operation of trains and provide for the least possible chance of misinterpretation. The company has been at work on the rules for some time past and only recently perfected them.

FOR NEW PASTOR.

Reception Will be Given at Swedish Pilgrim Church.

The members of the Swedish Pilgrim church will tender a reception soon to their new pastor, Rev. L. T. Lindholm, who comes to this city to succeed Rev. O. G. Norseen as pastor of that church. Rev. Mr. Norseen leaves this week for Worcester, Mass., where he has accepted a call from the Swedish Congregational church.

Rev. Mr. Lindholm comes to this city from North Easton, Pa. He is a college friend of Rev. Mr. Norseen who speaks of him in the highest terms as a pastor and a student. The committee which has charge of the reception has planned for the event on an elaborate scale and it promises to be a delightful affair.

Fourth Quarterly Conference.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Grace M. E. church will be held at that church, on Park place, this evening. The presiding elder, Rev. Dr. Samuel Halleron, will be present and will preside at the meeting. This will be the most important conference of the year.

STRAW RIDE AND SUPPER.

Juniors of Borough High School on a Trip to Roselle.

The juniors of the Borough High School enjoyed their straw ride last evening to Roselle. There were thirty-three in the party and they were chaperoned by Miss Alberta E. Waterbury. The start was made at 7:30 and on the return trip a stop was made at Westfield where a light supper was served. The committee in charge of the event were H. C. Brose, chairman; Ernest Powlison, Leonard Mantz and Wm. Nischwitz. It took two large hay wagons to convey the merry young people to Roselle and back.

Lenox Euchre Club Entertained.

The Lenox Euchre Club was entertained last evening by Mrs. Kelly, of East Second street. Mrs. Piker, of Westfield, won first prize for the women and Mrs. Lawrence won the second prize. Edward Laing and Armstrong Mulford won the first and second prizes for the men. After the play there was dancing and a collation was served at midnight. The next meeting will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cook, corner of Second and Richmond streets.

Suit Over Mattresses.

The contract case of the C. C. Folding Mattress Company against A. B. Rosell was tried yesterday afternoon before Justice Huff, and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff for $120. Mr. Rosell was represented by W. G. DeMeza and the case was appealed at once. Mr. Rosell claims that the company owes him $125, that he didn't want the goods as they were not up to contract, but that he is holding the goods to secure the debt.

Straw Ride for Freshmen.

The freshmen of the North Plainfield High School enjoyed a straw ride, Saturday evening, to Westfield. They were chaperoned by Miss Marie Wilson. Refreshments were served on the return trip and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

SMALLEY AGAINST CARNEY

THAT'S THE WAY IT IS LIKELY TO BE IN COMING CAMPAIGN.

Borough Republicans Have Called Their Primary for Friday Evening.

With the election less than two weeks away, politics is the chief topic of conversation in the borough these days. The Republicans have called their primary for Friday evening and there is every reason to believe that Mayor Smalley will be renominated.

At present, there is no sign of any opposition at the primary.

Former Mayor John H. Van Winkle has made a positive statement to a friend that he will not accept the Democratic nomination for mayor this year. David J. Carney is now the only avowed candidate for the nomination and, unless some "dark horse" suddenly turns up, it looks as if he would be nominated by the Democrats.

Funeral of Unknown Victim.

Funeral services over the remains of the unidentified Westfield wreck victim will be held from George Cole's undertaking parlors, Friday afternoon at 3:30. Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., will be in charge and interment will be at Hillside. All interested are invited to attend.

Death of Infant.

Lawrence T., the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Finneran, of Prescott place, died at the parents' home, yesterday, after a brief illness. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Manila Has Many Canals.

Manila is covered with a network of estuaries, or canals, which are very convenient as a means for transporting merchandise from one part of the city to another; yet these canals render it rather awkward for pedestrians who wish to cross them and have not the desire or the time to walk half a mile out of their way to do so. Many and varied are the modes for getting across these little canals. There are a few bridges, but they are not at frequent enough intervals, so at many places it is necessary to squat into a narrow banco, or dugout, and be paddled across. The walled bank on the other side may be four or five feet high, but one is left there to get out the best way he can. Some progressive man is running a ferry carrying passengers, for which he demands half a cent a trip, and seems to be making money, for there can surely be little expense attached to the enterprise.—Chicago News.

FIRST OF SERIES.

Supplemental Course of Entertainments Begins Monday Night.

The Young Men's Christian Association is advertising in another column its second supplemental course of five entertainments of exceptionally strong programmes. The first will be given Monday evening next, when the famous Park Sisters, instrumentalists and Miss A. Mildred Pipe, reader, will furnish the evening's entertainment. The Park Sisters are the only women cornet quartette in the world and have filled thousands of engagements from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and also two successful seasons abroad, appearing before many of the crowned heads of Europe. Miss Pipe is spoken of as of pleasing personality and a reader of strong dramatic ability.

ROUTINE BUSINESS.

All That Was Transacted at Meeting of Hospital Governors.

Nothing but matters of a routine nature occupied the attention of the Muhlenberg Hospital Board of Governors, at the regular meeting, last evening.

The report for the month as submitted by Superintendent Venner was as follows: Total number of patients admitted, 42; discharged cured, 18; discharged improved, 10; died, 5; total number treated, 60; remaining 27. Of the five deaths, four were patients admitted from the Westfield wreck.

The dispensary report showed a total of fifty-two cases treated and 184 visits made.

OFF TO JAIL.

Young Married Woman Will Then be Committed to Industrial School.

The climax to Mrs. Frank Ayers' brief career of waywardness came this morning, when she was arraigned in the city court on a charge preferred by her mother, Mrs. Conger. Although but fourteen years old she has exhibited vicious tendencies and the police have often cautioned her. In order to have the legal steps taken to have her committed to the State Industrial School she was sent to jail for ten days. She is entered in the police blotter as Bertha Conger as her marriage is not recognized.

CARNEY NOT A CANDIDATE

He Writes to The Daily Press That He Will Not Accept Democratic Nomination.

THE DEMOCRATS AT SEA

Little Doubt That Republicans Will Nominate Mayor N. B. Smalley—Looked Like Carney as Opponent Until He Declares He Is Not a Candidate.

With both Republicans and Democrats to hold their primaries in the borough tomorrow night, there is little time for any new mayoralty booms to develop. As to the Republican nominations, there is no question now but it will go to Mayor N. B. Smalley. Yesterday it looked as if David J. Carney would be the Democratic nominee but today he declares that he will not accept the nomination. Now the Democrats are at sea as to a candidate.

A letter from Mr. Carney was received this morning. It is as follows:

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Profoundly appreciating the zeal of many earnest friends for their efforts in complimentarily placing my name so prominently as a probable Democratic nominee for the mayoralty nomination in the borough of North Plainfield, justice to them prompts me to take this occasion to thank them for their kindly interests in my behalf and to decline to become a candidate for the nomination. Sensitive to the spirit so generously extended and deeply gratified at the friendly assurances of support from many Republicans, it is with regret that this conclusion is arrived at.

David J. Carney.

ENDEAVOR OFFICERS.

Elected at Meeting of Christian Endeavor Society at Hope Chapel.

At the annual meeting of the Hope chapel Christian Endeavor Society, held last evening, the following officers were elected: President, Miss Mary Duvier; vice president, Edward Young; secretary, Miss Laura Hangliter; treasurer, Mrs. Annabelle Lewis. Reports read showed the organization to be in a healthy condition.

Following the business session, a social period was held during which piano solos were given by Miss Lillie Duckworth and vocal selections were rendered by members of the society. Refreshments were served by a committee composed of Miss Mary Duvier, Miss Belle Slorah and Edward Young.

Operator Back Again.

In response to a strong petition signed by a great many residents of Westfield, Mr. Major, who was telegraph operator at Westfield at the time of the railroad wreck and who was laid off afterward, has been returned to his position. Thomas Doyle, of this city, who was transferred from Somerville to Westfield, has been returned to the former place as operator.

Going Back to Europe.

Auguste Saltzman, who was formerly chief of the local fire department and who was elected a representative of the International Association of Fire Engineer, received his credentials from the Department of State at Washington a few days ago and will leave this month to attend the sessions of the Fire Brigade Association of Europe.

Music on Phonograph.

Phonographic selections and other music were the means of a large number of young people spending a very enjoyable evening last night at the home of Peter VanCleef, of Watchung avenue. Whitney Frazee favored with phonographic selections while Frederick Finigan rendered several vocal solos. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

Grip Kept Them Home.

The presence of grip among the people of North Plainfield is felt in the attendance at the schools. During the past week there have been an unusually large number of pupils absent on acount of the disease.

Free Day Week.

This is free day week at the North Plainfield High School and many of the pupils are looking forward to a half holiday at the close of the week.

Missionary Sunday.

Missionary Sunday will be observed at the Grace M. E. church, next Sunday. Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll will preach at the morning service.

HEARD DAUGHTER WAS DEAD

HOW COURT STENOGRAPHER KNIGHT FIRST HEARD OF NEWARK ACCIDENT.

Was Taking Testimony When He Caught Glimpse of Paper Which Gave Daughter As Killed.

Many Plainfielders are especially interested in the Newark trolley accident from the fact that one of the severely injured passengers is Miss Emily Knight, who has been a frequent visitor in this city. She is the daughter of Herbert Knight, stenographer of the Union county courts. The young woman's injuries consist of a broken ankle and internal hurts.

Stenographer Knight first learned of his daughter's mishap while taking notes in the Plainfield liquor cases, Thursday morning. A New York paper was laid on his table just before noon and during a short recess he glanced over its columns. An account of the accident caught his eye and almost the first name among the list of dead was that of his daughter. He secured permission to leave the court room and telephoning to his home learned that she was not killed but injured.

Despite this bad news he returned to his duties and continued at work for the day. It was he who took the official notes in the coroner's inquest in the Council chambers, this city.

WANT PASTOR TO REMAIN

GRACE M. E. CHURCH ASKS THAT REV. DR. EARP REMAIN.

At Fourth Quarterly Conference Held at the Church Last Evening.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Grace M. E. church was held last evening after the weekly prayer meeting when the pastor, Rev. Dr. Edwin L. Earp was asked to be allowed to remain at the church for another year.

A missionary meeting preceeded the conference when E. P. Stevens read a paper and addresses were made by Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll and Rev. Dr. Daniel Halleron, presiding elder of this conference.

Reports were read at the conference which was held after the prayer meeting which showed that the church has made rapid strides of progress during the past year. This was shown from the reports read by the pastor and the officers of the church.

Dr. Carroll and John Valiant were elected members of the Laymen's Association of Newark, for the ensuing year.

The conference confirmed the appointments of the Board of Stewards of the church and they are as follows: E. P. Stevens, J. S. Lunger, George Nelson, R. Hoagland, C. A. Hardin, Jacob Voehl, Edward Stine, C. H. Greer, W. M. Warren and A. Vanderbeek.

The trustees of the church for the ensuing year are: Dr. H. K. Carroll, W. J. Conroy, John Valiant, Andrew Wilson, E. E. Winkler, E. A. Vermuele, W. H. Combs, Jacob Voehl and Dyckman Winkler.

Huge Vault Shipped Today.

Workmen at the Hibbard-Rodman-Ely safe plant have finished preparing the 125 ton vault for shipment and it will be started on its journey to Milwaukee, Wis., today. Five cars will be required to transport it as it is in that many sections, any one of which would make an ordinary load. The company's experts from the local shop will be in charge of its erection in a Milwaukee bank.

Wants More Pay.

Rev. Mr. Crudup, who has been the acting pastor at the Mt. Olive Baptist church, during the absence of the pastor, Rev. E. E. Jackson, who is in the south for his health, has resigned the position for the reason that the congregation will not pay him the salary he demands. Mr. Crudup asked for $5 a Sunday, but the congregation, it is said, will not give that amount.

MATCH HEAD FLEW.

And a Serious Fire Was Narrowly Averted at J. E. Water's Home.

What might have been a serious fire was narrowly averted last Monday at the home of Former Chief and Mrs. J. E. Waters, of East Third street. Mr. Waters was reclining on a lounge smoking a cigar and in lighting the weed a second time the head of a match lodged in the fringe about the sofa. In an instant the fringe was ablaze and it was only by the quickest action on the part of Mr. Waters and his son, William, that the fire was extinguished before considerable damage resulted. As it is the loss will be about $35.

RAILROAD COMPANY SETTLES

PAYS MRS. EMMA HARKSEN, OF WESTFIELD, FOR LOSSES SUFFERED.

Her Home Was Dismantled the Night of the Wreck When It Was Made a Hospital.

Through attorneys representing both interests, a settlement was effected yesterday, whereby the New Jersey Central recompensed Mrs. Emma Harksen, of Westfield, for the mismantling of her home to accommodate the wreck victims. She was allowed a total of $300, this amount being considered the extrinsic worth of the furniture, carpets and other furnishings ruined by blood and the passing to and fro of many feet.

The money does not in any way represent charitableness to Mrs. Harksen as its equivalent was taken from her. Many of the shawls, rugs and lambrequins were family heirlooms and in the sentimental sense were priceless but this, of course, did not enter into the commercial value.

In addition to the household goods Mrs. Harksen destroyed after the excitement was over, she burned three of her dresses which were saturated with the blood of dying victims she helped to make comfortable in their last moments.

In speaking to a Daily Press reporter, last evening, Mrs. Harksen said she was satisfied with the amount as it would refurnish her home. She did not enter in the negotiations in any way as her husband, Alfred Harksen, consulted with the officials. The after effects of the terrible ordeal on the eventful night so preyed upon her mind that she has since been under the care of a physician.

ALREADY IN DEMAND.

Rev. J. W. Richardson Kept Busy at Stamford Pastorate.

Rev. John Wilbur Richardson, formerly of the Park Avenue Baptist church, began his pastorate at the Baptist church, Stamford, Conn., last Sunday under very favorable circumstances. The church was thronged morning and evening. After the morning service a young woman signified her desire to make a public confession of her faith by baptism, and in the evening after the service a young man and woman requested to see the pastor in his study. Mr. Richardson retired to the study and learned that the couple wanted to be united in marriage. The young folks were from New York.

President of Board of Trade.

Frank Remsen, who is well-known in this city, has been elected president of the Board of Trade at East Millstone, where he resides. The purpose for which the board was organized is to secure factories for East Millstone and already two manufacturers are being communicated with.

Where to Get Seats.

Seats for the Y. M. C. A. Supplemental Course can be secured by those having already subscribed this evening at 8 o'clock at Hodges' pharmacy. Tomorrow evening at the same place the diagram will be open to the public.

Will Reside Elsewhere.

When J. P. Humble, of Somerset street, retires from the grocery business which he has conducted for thirty years, he and his family will probably change their residence. Mr. Humble expects to give up business this spring.

Rutgers Boys Coming.

The entertainment, which is being arranged by the Borough High School pupils, will be held at the Y. M. C. A. Hall on the evening of March 26. The Rutgers College Glee Club has been secured to entertain on that night.

Two Trained Nurses.

Wilson S. Fredericks, of Dunellen, who is at Muhlenberg Hospital under treatment for injuries received in the wreck at Westfield, has two trained nurses from St. Luke's Hospital, New York, to assist in his care.

BUSINESS MEN WON GAME

DEFEATED THE CITY HIGH SCHOOL AT BASKET BALL.

Score Was a Tie When Time Was Called—Whitford Threw Winning Goal in Play Off.

The City High School basket ball team was defeated last evening at the Y. M. C. A. in a game with the Business Men's team. The score was 10 to 8. The game was closely played throughout, first one side scoring and then the other with remarkable regularity.

When time was called at the end of the second half, the score stood 8 to 8, and both teams agreed to award the victory to the team first scoring two points. After three minutes of play, Whitford, of the business men, shot a goal from the field, winning the game.

Improvement was more marked on the part of the business men both in shooting and passing and at times they played all around the school boys, having things practically their own way. The High School boys put up a much better game in the second half than at first.

The lineup follows:

Business Men.		High School.
J. Doane	RF	Thompson
Whitford	LF	Munro, Sheppard
Spicer	C	Collier
Browning	RG	Anderson, Conant
Zimmer	LG	Miner

Goals from the field—J. Doane (3), Whitford, Sheppard, Miner, Conant, Collier. Referee—G. E. A. Heywood. Umpire—A. L. Denton.

EXCUSED FROM DUTY.

Floyd T. Woodhull Will Not Serve on Jury in Considering Disaster.

Floyd T. Woodhull, who was a member of the Coroner's jury that investigated the causes of the railroad wreck at Westfield, and who has also been a member of the Grand Jury, went before the Court yesterday and asked to be excused from further duty. He explained that he had spent considerable time in the work of the Coroner's jury and had signed the verdict rendered by that body, hence his service on the Grand Jury could not be of additional benefit and would only be a source of inconvenience in that he was obliged to lose more time. The Court accepted the explanation and excused Mr. Woodhull.

SPECIAL SERVICES.

To be Held in the Church of the Holy Cross During Lent.

During the Lenten services at the Church of the Holy Cross special even song services will be held every Thursday when visiting rectors will be present and preach. Those who will come to this city for these services will be: March, 5, Rev. H. E. Gilchrist, of Roselle; March 12, Rev. Charles Fiske, rector of St. John's church at Somerville; March 19, Rev. William Vincent Dawson, rector of St. Stephen's church at Netherwood; March 26, Rev. Robert MacKellar, rector of the Episcopal church at Red Bank and April 2, Rev. Mr. Mulford, rector of the Episcopal church at Scotch Plains.

To Abolish Purchasing Agent.

Official announcement is made that owing to the resignation of C. P. Coleman, the office of purchasing agent of the Lehigh Valley Railroad has been abolished. The duties connected with this position will hereafter be performed by the second vice president. The office has been transferred from New York to Philadelphia.

In Honor of Birthday.

A pleasant social gathering was held last evening at the home of S. Clark Mundy, of Stone street, in honor of his thirty-fourth birthday. There were a large number of people present who enjoyed the evening in listening to music. At a late hour refreshments were served.

Sent Home.

Chief Marshal Cempbell, of the borough, took into custody, Tuesday, a man giving his name as Jacob Harvey, of Providence, R. I. He appeared to be dazed and could give no further information in regard to himself. He was sent home yesterday.

Fraternal Visit.

Members of the Masonic lodges in this city will pay a fraternal visit, this evening, to Azure Lodge, No. 129, of Cranford. At the latter place, the Plainfielders have been assured of a hearty welcome.

Will Appeal.

Counsel for the defendant in the case of Zimmerman against McVey, which was tried in Justice Huff's court a few days ago, has given notice of appeal.

ENTERTAINED AT WHIST.

Charming Affair Given in Honor of Wedding Anniversary.

In honor of their wedding anniversary which occurred on Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Taylor, of Westervelt avenue, entertained a number of friends at a whist party given in the evening. The affair was greatly enjoyed by a number of guests who extended hearty congratulations to the popular couple. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were former residents of Cape Cod, Mass., and during their residence in this city have made a great many friends. During the evening a bountiful collation was served by the host and hostess.

SUIT OVEER POULTRY FARM

DECISION GIVEN IN FAVOR OF WM. H. SCHOONMAKER.

Supreme Court Gave Verdict in a Suit Brought by Executors of P. M. French.

On Tuesday, the Supreme Court decided in favor of William H. Schoonmaker the now famous case brought against him by the executors of P. M. French, deceased.

Craig A. Marsh, counsel for Mr. Schoonmaker, kept the case in the courts during about a year and a half while Mr. Schoonmaker was traveling abroad. The latter's deposition was taken in Venice. Juries were twice empanelled and the case opened but Mr. Marsh, each time on one technical motion or another, had the jury discharged. After W. S. Angleman, counsel for the executors of Mr. French, had outlined to the court and jury what he proposed to prove, Mr. Marsh moved to non-suit him on his opening.

On behalf of the French executors, it was proposed to prove that Mr. French had a claim of about $1,000 against the Plainfield Poultry Farm Company, which afterwards turned out to be insolvent; that Mr. Schoonmaker was the principal stockholder and agreed with Mr. French that if the latter would put his claim in judgment and assign the judgment, Mr. Schoonmaker would pay him the face of the claim; that Mr. French put the claim in judgment and executed the assignment, and offered it to Mr. Schoonmaker, who declined to take it. Mr. Schoonmaker denied absolutely having made any such contract and insisted that if such a contract had been made, it was null and void as a matter of law under the statute of frauds.

Judge VanSyckel said that the point made for Mr. Schoonmaker was a new one of great importance and ought to be decided as, if the point were sustained, there would be no need of going to the expense and trouble of a long trial. Counsel on both sides agreed to argue the question of law before the Supreme Court at Trenton. The argument was heard the last term of court and the decision of the court sustained Mr. Marsh and ordered judgment in favor of Mr. Schoonmaker.

DR. CARROLL TO SPEAK.

At First Regular Meeting of Men's Assembly of Grace M. E. Church.

The Men's Assembly of Grace Methodist Episcopal church will hold its first regular monthly meeting tomorrow evening at which Dr. H. K. Carroll will make the principal address on the topic, "The Influence of Washington and Lincoln on American History." Patriotic songs and hymns will be a feature of the evening, also instrumental music.

The organization, which is chiefly social and intellectual in its aims, is starting with a great deal of enthusiasm on the part of its member, and gives the promise of being a most helpful means of recreation for the men of the church and congregation. The organization sets no limit as to age for its membership, but gives a cordial welcome to all men interested in men.

Pastor for Westfield.

As yet the Baptist church of Westfield has not secured a pastor to succeed Rev. Mr. Francis, who resigned. A special committee has been appointed for the purpose of securing a successor and many available candidates have been heard.

No New Organist Secured.

The music committee of the Crescent Avenue church has not yet secured a successor to Herbert H. Joy, the organist, who resigned recently. Mr. Joy will give up his position at the church March 1.

FIGHT OVER NEW ROAD

THE SURVEYORS WILL BE ASKED TO AMEND THEIR VERDICT.

Judge Skinner Makes a Decision in Road That's Troubling Hillsborough.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Feb. 26—In the Common Pleas Court here, Saturday, Judge Alfred F. Skinner, of Essex county, sat to hear an appeal to the decision in the Hillsborough township road case. The surveyors appointed by the court, Peter P. VanPelt, of Branchburg; Jacob C., and Abram V. Gulick, of Hillsborough; Samuel Garretson, of Franklin; William B. Sharp, of Bridgewater, and Zachariah Smith, of Bedminster, had decided that the new road should be laid out, but Mary F. Scully and others, whose lands it would run through, appealed.

After the taking of testimony and hearing the argument of counsels, Judge Skinner said he would not set aside the return of the surveyors, but that he would fix March 14 in the Court House as the time and place for the surveyors to meet and amend their verdict.

There is much ill-feeling in Hillsborough about this road. Many people desire it for convenience sake while those, through whose land it runs, do not wish it at all.

IT AMENDS INSURANCE LAW

LAST BILL INTRODUCED BY ASSEMBLYMAN S. S. SWACKHAMER.

Amendment Will Lower the Age of Children Affected by the Insurance Law.

Among the important measures introduced in the lower house of the Assembly this week was one by Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, of the borough, who on Tuesday introduced a bill amending section thirty-one of the insurance law of 1902, so that children over the age of five years shall receive paid-up polices after premiums have been paid in for three years and so that their policies shall be incontestible after two years' standing like those of adults.

The insurance companies of this State have heretofore reaped large profits from lapsed policies by reason of the fact that the six sections of the law on insurance which secured certain rights to the adult policy-holders were not allowed to persons under the age of twelve years until three years after they attain that age.

This bill offered by Mr Swackhamer, if passed, will protect these infantile policy-holders and is in the interest of the unfortunate poor, who after paying premiums for years under the present law, often lose all through inability to keep up their payments.

A NEW SENATE.

Elected in the Student Government System at City High School.

Elections were held yesterday at the City High School for the new senate in the student government system. The balleting was scattered and a majority was only obtained in three of the classes, the senior, the sophomore and the freshmen.

Those elected were as follows: From the senior class, Miss Ethel Rogers and Norman C. Hill; from the sophomore class, Miss Anna Runyon and Chester H. Briggs; and from the freshman class Miss Nellie Giles and Jack Douglass. The juniors will vote again for their senators. The senators appointed will serve until the close of school in June.

New Baseball Manager.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Governors of the City High School, Albert D. Beers, 1903, was elected manager of the baseball team for the coming season. Herbert S. Munro, the former manager, tendered his resignation on account of the duties of the position interfering with his work in school. Beers will continue to schedule games.

Meeting of Session.

There will be a regular meeting of the Session of the Crescent Avenue church Friday evening, when those who desire to unite with the church on confession or by letter, will be welcomed.

Surprise Party.

Miss Stella Dennis, of Watchung avenue, entertained a surprise party last night. The time was spent in playing games. Refreshments were served at midnight.

ALIS CLUB PLACED ON FIRM FOUNDATION

Plainfield's New Athletic Organization Formally Organized at Meeting Last Night.

THE OFFICERS ELECTED

LEWIS E. WARING CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF THE NEW CLUB.

Meeting Held at Hotel Kensington Last Evening—Constitution and By-Laws Adopted—To Select Clubhouse and Grounds.

Reorganization of the Alis Athletic Association into the Alis Club was effected last evening at a meeting of the charter members of the club held in the parlors of the Hotel Kensington. Matters of importance were brought up for discussion including the adopting of a constitution and by-laws. A committee was appointed to arrange for a suitable clubhouse. There were forty members present.

The meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock when John G. MacLaughlin was chosen chairman and C. H. Burt secretary. About the first matter which which brought up for discussion was the constitution and bylaws which were submitted by a committee appointed previously to draft these documents. The committee which had this work in charge consisted of Francis J. Blantz, Harold Chandor and Arthur Boone. After some discussion the constitution was adopted as were the bylaws.

The officers elected to serve for the first term of the existance of the new club were: President, L. E. Waring; vice president, John G. MacLaughlin; secretary, Harold Chandor; treasurer, Arthur Boone.

The matter of selecting a suitable house to be used by the club was brought up and after some discussion it was referred to a committee selected for that purpose. Those who will have this matter in charge and who will report at the next meeting which will be held on March 18 were: George Schoonmaker, John G. MacLaughlin, Dr. Arthur H. Dundon, C. H. Burt and Roy T. Phillips.

Several houses suitable as clubhouses have been looked at but before deciding on any one in particular the club decided to look around further. This committee will also have the matter in charge of securing a suitable field for athletic contests. It is proposed to fence in the field providing a suitable one can be found.

At last night's meeting it was announced that all dues and fees are payable to the treasurer, Arthur Boone, inside of thirty days.

FINE TALENT.

Secured for Entertainment at Y. M. C. A. Monday Night.

The New York Herald in speaking of the programme rendered by the famous Park Sisters, says: "The Misses Park, instrumentalists, whose ability is recognized world wide were even better than ever. The harmonious blending of these instruments was as perfect as that of the human voice, while their execution was marvelously rendered. Miss Georgie Park's execution on the mandolin cannot be excelled." Miss Mildred Pipe, the elocutionist, is spoken of by the Brooklyn Daily Times as "a reciter of rare ability, equally at home in comedy or pathos. Her natural manner at once establishes her as a favorite with the audience."

This is the first of the Y. M. C. A. supplemental course to begin Monday evening. See ad in another column.

Third Rail Line Building.

With considerable interest railway men are watching the new third rail electric line now being built between Scranton and Wilkesbarre, Pa. It is being constructed almost on an air line, with 100-pound steel rails and a rock ballast grade, and the company announces that it will operate its cars at the rate a one mile a minute.

To Elect Director.

There will be a special meeting of the City High School Athletic Association tomorrow morning to elect a director to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Robert W. Meeker, former secretary of the board. Mr. Meeker has left school.

Burned While Horseshoeing.

While at work on some horseshoes which he was repairing Frank Hand, of Somerset street, caught his finger on some of the hot metal and severely burned it. Indications of blood poison have set in and he was unable to be at work this morning.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE DOING

SOME BRIEF PARAGRAPHS OF A PERSONAL NATURE.

Many Folk of Greater Plainfield Are Entertaining or Being Entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. Waters, of Somerset street, are entertaining their son's wife from New York.

—An illustrated lecture will be given at the Park Club this evening by S. St. John McCutchen for the benefit of the building fund.

—The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church will hold a regular meeting Friday afternoon in the church parlors.

—The household goods of Rev. J. W. Richardson were slipped to Stamford, Conn., on Tuesday and yesterday they left for their future place of residence.

—M. L. Green, a representative of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, is meeting with much success in securing new subscribers in Plainfield.

CASINO AT METUCHEN.

Metuchen Has Plans for a Fine Clubhouse.

It is said that Metuchen is to have a Casino. It is proposed to erect a handsome building in a central location in the town and to make it one of the finest club houses of its kind in this section of the State. The proposed building is in the hands of a committee consisting of S. S. Carvalho, S. Holden Spear and F. A. Pattison.

It is proposed to buy the plot of ground known as the Markey place on Middlesex avenue which measures 190x150. This situation is accessable but far enough away from the railroads to insure quiet. The entire cost of the building will be about $3,500. A company will be organized and will be capitalized at $5,000.

America's Bed for 1903.

Every person in this country needs something attractive and beautiful on their lawn or in their gardens. James Vick, formerly of Rochester, N. Y., says he is anxious to see how many persons in the United States can excel him in perfecting this bed. The plants required are Salvia bonfire, white vinca, and the new ageratum. No combination could be finer or more brilliant. The plants for the bed will cost from $2.75 to $5, but you can secure seeds from which to grow these plants for nothing, if you simply cut out this notice and return it to D. Landreth & Sons, Philadelphia, Pa., with a cash order for $1 or more. Send at once for their new catalogue, containing full directions and illustrations of this wonderful America's bed for 1903.

Nine-Hour Day.

The employes of the Taylor Iron & Steel Company, of High Bridge, are much pleased over the recent announcement that on and after February 16, the fifty four hour system for a week's work, or nine hours a day, would become effective. The men will receive the same pay for nine hours work as they did for ten hours.

It Is Near at Hand to Hundreds of Plainfield Readers.

Don't neglect an aching back.

Backache is the kidney's cry for help.

Dire disaster, diabetes, Brights disease, follow.

Profit by a Plainfield citizen's experience.

Mr. Charles Giese, cigar manufacturer, of 25 Elm place, says: "I was subject to attacks of kidney complaint for two or three years. Most of the pain was in my back and hips and I could not stoop or straighten without feeling sharp shooting twinges. When I sat for any length of time I grew stiff and sore and was compelled to get up and move about. I grew so bad I had to do something for it. I had read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills being such good medicine for kidney toubles so I got a box of them at L. W. Randolph's drug store. I used them according to directions and after two or three days I felt better. I continued their use until the pain disappeared."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

THEATRICAL.

According to all overland comment, "The Earl of Pawtucket," Augustus Thomas' newest comedy, just produced by Manager Kirke La Shelle, at the Madison Square Theatre, New York, is being greeted with favor immeasurably greater than that of any big metropolitan success of recent years.

Critical newspaper opinion has never been so profuse or concerted in its admissions of unequivocal triumph.

If the city's theatre-goers even only incompletely agree with the journalistic verdict, the production must surely be a New York fixture for a long time to come.

The New York Herald's theatrical reviewer declares that "no more amusing up-to-date comedy has been seen in New York in many days," calls it "a clever and amusing satire on New York life of today," and says, "there is a laugh in every line."

It is always a good programme which Mr. Keith offers for the entertainment of his patrons at the Union Square Theatre, and next week will be no exception to the well established rule.

At the head of the bill is Leon Morris' Troupe of Educated Ponies; Carron and Herbert, well known acrobatic comedians: Crane Brothers and Belmont, in their laughable burlesque effort which they call "The Mud Town Minstrels;" Willis P. Sweatnam, the originator of the black face monologue, appears with that sterling comedian, Barry Maxwell in a negro comedy sketch; LeRoy and Woodford, the rapid fire joke makers; Swan and Bambard, excellent grotesque comedians; The Spray Sisters, duettists; the Seven Reed Birds in a comedy and singing sketch; Dorsch and Russell, in a musical comedy act; Cook and Sylvia dancing specialtists; Naomi Ethardo, the equilibrist; Tom Moore, the singer of coon songs, and other meretorious performers, will help in the entertainment.

Shake Off the Wintry Blasts.

The months of January and February are the most disagreeable to the northerner and delightful are they for the Florida tourist. The trip to Jacksonville is through a section as historic as it is picturesque, and the service to that point via the Royal Blue Line is the best. The New Jersey Central is going to run an excursion to Jacksonville on Tuesday, March 10. Train leaves New York, foot Liberty street, at 8:30 a. m., arrive Washington at 2:10 p. m., same day; leave Washington at 7 p. m., March 11 and arrive Jacksonville at 1:20 p. m., March 12. The round trip rate from New York and vicinity is $50; and includes also sleeping car berths, meals en route, transfer and hotel accommodations in Washington on southward trip, passengers making their own arrangements for the northward return trip. The arrangements are such that the care and worry of the journey are in the hands of the railroad company, and the tourist has the entire time for enjoyment. The New Jersey Central has issued "A Little Yellow Book" on this Florida trip; if you want it send a postal to C. M. Burt, general passenger agent, New York. It's free for the asking. 2 18 6 eod c 3

Is Insanity Infectious?

A Berlin newspaper has published an article in which the claim is made that insanity is infectious. Whether it is so in the same sense that other diseases are may well be doubted, but no student of social conditions can doubt that there are classes of people who are susceptible to the infection of unsound ideas. Nothing is too absurd for belief, to these people, and fads of all kinds, in religious thought, political reform and social customs result. We presume that no antitoxin for either physical or mental liability to the germs of erratic opinions will be discovered. Salvation from a good deal of this tendency to go wrong is found in an effort to be natural and go quietly about the work at hand. General good health and good nature are excellent as a means of resistance to disease germs of any kind.

Doubt Dispelled.

She is a most dignified and staid matron, and her husband is deacon in a Maiden Congregational church. She was passing along a side street in the Back Bay when a well-dressed man suddenly stopped and addressed her:

"Madam, do I look tight?"

"What?"

"Do I look tight?"

"No! No!"

"You're sure I don't. I've been drinking, and I don't feel sure."

"Yes."

"I want to make a call, but I was afraid that I looked 'off.' I'll do?"

"Yes."

"You're quite sure I can make the call and not look wrong?"

"Yes."

"Madam, I am very greatly indebted to you."

And he went on his way, evidently rejoicing, while she pondered on the strange ways of men.—Boston Record.

Quaint Bird Legends.

It is considered very unlucky in Sweden to kill a stork. They have a legend that the stork fluttered round the cross, crying: "Styrke! styrke! Strengthen ye! strengthen ye!" and was ever after called the stork, but lost its voice. In Germany the storks fly down from God's land, bearing the babies with them. Such is the story taught to German children. The red of the robin's breast is produced by the blood of Christ. Magpies are birds of omen; to see one means sorrow, two for joy, three for a wedding and four foretell death. The swallow is sometimes called the "bird of consolation," because it flew around the Saviour on His cross, crying: "Cheer up! cheer up!"—Nature.

CHICAGO BOWLERS AHEAD.

Ten Teams From the Windy City on the Prize List.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—Sixty-nine five men teams competed for the national championship which closed for that class yesterday afternoon, and the cash prizes, amounting to $1,775, were awarded and paid.

When the last ten teams of the five men class finished bowling, the O'Learys, Wrigleys and Carl Richters of Chicago were still one, two, three. The Columbus team, the Standards of Chicago and the Badgers of Chicago got into the money. Ten Chicago teams are in the prize list, with no other city having the honor of even two teams in the list.

The two men teams began bowling late in the afternoon. One hundred and fifty teams are entered. Foster and Schreiner of Dubuque, Ia., set the pace early in the game with 1,164, which was the high mark for the first thirty teams.

McGovern Whipped Maynard.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 26.—At the Penn Art club 4,000 people saw Terry McGovern, the former featherweight champion, defeat Billy Maynard of this city in what was to have been a six round contest. Maynard was knocked out in the fourth round after receiving severe punishment. McGovern adopted his usual rushing tactics, scoring knockdowns in the first and third rounds, Maynard being on his knees when the gong sounded at the end of the third. The local man made the best showing in the second round, holding his own in several exchanges. McGovern never let up in his rushes, however, and gradually wore his man down with terrific body blows. A right hand blow on the jaw early in the fourth round sent Maynard to the floor, and he was counted out.

"Young Corbett" Ready For McGovern

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26.—"Young Corbett," who is to meet Eddie Hanlon in a twenty round bout in this city tonight, has deposited with the Hayes Athletic club $500 as a guarantee that he will be ready to meet Terry McGovern before that club next month. "Corbett" is convinced that San Francisco is the only city in the country where the men can meet without interference and states that unless McGovern comes to terms at once he will take it as a confession of McGovern's fear to meet him and will drop the Brooklyn man from further consideration.

YOUNG "RED" CAUGHT

Plot to Kill Europe's Rulers Revealed.

A CONFERENCE CALLED IN PARIS.

New York Police Hold Italian Youth Whose Rabid Anarchist Utterances Excited Suspicion—Was About to Sail For France.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Francois Hertzel, alias Rudolph Luprez, who is believed by the police to be a dangerous anarchist, has been arraigned in Jefferson market police court. He is suspected of being one of five delegates from the United States to an anarchist convention to be held in Paris on March 25, where, it is said, a plot will be laid to kill all the rulers of Europe.

Young Hertzel, who says he is sixteen, but looks to be over twenty, was employed as a porter in Hartman's hotel in Whitehall street. It was through his boasting talk of what would be done as a result of the Paris convention of anarchists that led to his arrest. Detective Ferretti was sent out after him and found him in Baxter street.

He was taken to police headquarters, where he was questioned by Inspector Brooks. The inspector announced after the examination that he believed Hertzel to be a very dangerous character. Hidden down at the end of the index finger of his right glove was found a newspaper clipping outlining the measure introduced a few days ago in congress providing the death penalty for an attempt upon the life of the president.

Hertzel admitted that he knew the assassin of President McKinley and that he was a subscriber to the anarchist paper published in Paterson, N. J. A postal note receipt showing that he had subscribed for the paper was found in his pocket.

According to Hertzel he came to New York twenty months ago from Lyons, France, and has been working at various places ever since. When asked why he disappeared from Hartman's a few days ago he said he had got tired of the job.

It is said of him at Hartman's that he was a rabid anarchist in his utterances and that he let drop remarks leading those who heard him to believe that he was a regular attendant at anarchist meetings in this city.

Recently his talk has been such as to arouse comment among the people at the hotel. A policeman was finally called in by the proprietor, but he refused to arrest Hertzel. The next day the young man disappeared.

From disclosures made it was the intention of the alleged plotters to sail from New York today aboard a French line steamship. There were to have been five in the party. These were the chosen representatives of the anarchist groups of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Newark and Paterson. The scheme, which involved the attendance at an international conference in Paris one month from today, has been practically nullified through the unguarded statements made by the New York "red."

Colima Creates Alarm.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 26.—News from the region surrounding the volcano of Colima continues alarming. The people, terrified by the belching flames and pouring lava, are seeking refuge in distant towns and villages. The city of Tuxpan, in the state of Jalisco, continues under a heavy cloud of smoke. The volcano is alight with flames. The new eruption has increased the general fear. An American who slept near the volcano on the night of the eruption was awakened by a tremendous explosion and saw the mountain ejecting flames to an enormous height. He waited till morning, enjoying the magnificent spectacle, and then deemed it prudent to leave the vicinity.

Says Note Was Forged.

ONEONTA, N. Y., Feb. 26.—County Treasurer Hugh Adair of Delaware county, with office at Delhi, has been notified by Charles Hathaway & Co. of New York that they hold a note for $30,000 purporting to be signed by him as county treasurer, dated Jan. 28 last. Adair asserts that the signature is a forgery. He is now in New York accompanied by counsel.

Blizzard In the Southwest.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 26.—Reports from western Kansas say that portion of the state, western Oklahoma and northern New Mexico are in the grip of a blizzard. Snow has been falling for a day and has reached a depth of eighteen inches in some places. A high wind accompanies snow and forms big drifts, which are delaying traffic on the railroads.

Jail For Ex-Governor Semple.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 26.—Ex-Governor Eugene Semple, president of the Seattle and Lake Washington Waterway company, has been ordered confined in the county jail until he shall comply with an order of the grand jury to produce certain records of his corporation before that body. Governor Semple is now in the custody of the sheriff.

Illegal Liquor Sellers Fined.

NYACK, N. Y., Feb. 26.—Ellen Farley, Kate Clancy, Edward Prendergast and William Dykens, indicted for selling liquor without a license, have been convicted in the Rockland county trial court and fined $200 each. Several other indictments have been found, and the cases will be tried at the next term of the county court.

Atlanta Next Year.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 26.—After a very lively contest between Kansas City, Chicago, Atlanta, San Antonio and New York for the next place of meeting the school superintendents selected Atlanta by a final vote of almost 2 to 1.

MORTGAGE TAX BILL

New Measure Ready For Presentation at Albany.

CORPORATION LIENS ARE EXEMPTED

It Is Estimated That There Are $3,000,000,000 Worth of Mortgages in New York State Upon Which a Levy Will Be Made.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 26.—The much talked of mortgage tax bill is completed and ready for introduction in the legislature. It is believed by Governor Odell and those who have formulated it to be now in such shape as to disarm the majority of the criticisms that have been aimed at the suggestions for a mortgage tax bill. In its new form the bill provides for a tax of 5 mills upon all mortgages which are of record in the various counties throughout the state. The tax is to be levied and collected by the county clerk or registrar, and the mortgage itself is not to be subject to deductions for debt, but to be free from all other forms of taxation, both state and local.

The most important section of the bill and one which will do away, it is believed, with a great deal of previous criticism is the section exempting certain classes of mortgages. It is calculated that there are in existence in the state today, exclusive of corporation mortgages, $3,000,000,000 worth of taxable mortgages.

The exemptions are as follows: Mortgages of life insurance companies, aggregating $290,000,000; mortgages of savings banks, aggregating $461,000,000, and mortgages of local building and loan associations, aggregating $25,000,000.

This will leave to be taxed about $2,000,000,000 for the benefit of the state and the localities. The reason given for exemptions of the character above named are that the associations holding such mortgages represent the thrift of those who must depend for a future competency for their families upon their ability to save through those organizations or institutions, which the state has brought into existence and which it properly guards and fosters.

It is proposed to divide this revenue in proportion—first for school purposes in the counties which have school districts, and second for local and village purposes, in proportion as the total expenditures for each of these purposes in the town or township bear to the total for each particular school district or union of such townships, thus turning back to the locality this revenue on a plan similar to that of the bank tax. It will be seen, therefore, that there is apparently no loss to the localities, but on the contrary a positive gain in the actual amount received from the tax upon mortgages.

It is urged that in addition to this the bill will make a certainty of the abolition of the direct state tax, which will reduce the percentage of tax upon every man's home and farm to such an extent as will compensate for the tax which the borrower may be called upon to pay.

Good Entries For Harlem Races.

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—One hundred and thirteen of the best handicap horses in the country are entered in the Harlem National handicap, the $10,000 stake, which will be run at Harlem on June 6. The list of eligibles to the race, which the club hopes to make one of the great turf fixtures of the country, has been made public. The weights will be announced March 16. In addition to the good material of the west there are several of the high class horses from the east listed in the event.

Tunneled Out of Jail.

APLING, Ga., Feb. 26.—Four prisoners confined in the county jail here have made their escape from prison by tearing up a portion of the jail floor and tunneling a path to the edge of the building. A pile of sand and dirt found under the jail steps showed that the men had been working for some time to effect their escape. A note left to the jailer said the men had been working on the tunnel since the 10th of February and declared that all efforts to effect their recapture would be futile.

Irish Debate Was Peaceful.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—All this morning's papers dwell in their editorials on the remarkable fact that the Irish debate in the house of commons passed off without a single harsh or defiant expression. Such an occurrence is regarded as memorable in the annals of parliament, and the hope is expressed that the present may prove a momentous epoch in the relations of Great Britain and Ireland.

Fishing Boats Fast In the Ice.

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., Feb. 26.—All efforts to release the local fishing tugs H. J. Dornoos and C. J. Bos were ineffectual. Both are still in the ice-field three miles from this harbor, having been caught Tuesday returning from their nets. The field consists of slush in some places thirty feet thick, and only boats of great power can make a channel through it.

Boot and Shoe Firm to Quit.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 26.—The firm of Buel & Son, manufacturers of boots and shoes at Waterville for fifty years, has decided to cease operations April 1 because of unprofitable business due to changed conditions. The plant employs 100 hands and has an output of 400 pairs per day.

Chamberlain Leaves Cape Town.

CAPE TOWN, Feb. 26.—Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain embarked at 7 o'clock last evening on the Union line steamer Norman for Southampton. Immense crowds gathered at the docks and gave the colonial secretary an enthusiastic send off.

POWELL REMOVED.

New Jersey Representatives Vacate Office of Sergeant-at-arms.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 26.—In the house yesterday afternoon the special committee appointed to investigate the charges against Sergeant-at-arms G. P. Powell made its report, and after a long debate Powell was removed from office. There were but nine votes cast against the resolution offered by Mr. Boyd, the Republican leader, declaring the position of sergeant-at-arms vacant. These votes were cast by Republicans, the Democrats voting solidly with the majority against Powell.

The report of the investigating committee was presented by Chairman Avis. The report sets out that the committee after hearing evidence in Newark last Saturday reached the conclusion that Powell went to Rev. C. C. Edmunds, rector of Grace Episcopal church, Newark, and stated that he had been informed by a friend that upon the payment of $250 reward church vestments stolen from the church would be recovered and the thief placed in custody. The committee exonerated Powell from seeking to profit personally by his action, but criticised his conduct as a wrongful act without any appreciation of its enormity and expressed the opinion that, whatever may have been Powell's motive in going to Rev. Mr. Edmunds, the committee was unable to find any extenuating circumstances which might excuse him in disregarding his moral obligations in the matter. The report concluded with a recommendation that Powell be dismissed and was signed by all of the committee, including Mr. Schumann, the minority member.

During the entire proceedings Powell stood at his accustomed place facing the speaker's desk. His manner was that of one who did not seem conscious of having done anything wrong. Immediately after Powell's dismissal a resolution was adopted putting the first assistant sergeant-at-arms in charge until Monday night, when Powell's successor will be chosen. It is expected that the new sergeant-at-arms will come from Essex county.

BURIED EMPTY COFFINS.

Graves In Pauper Cemetery at Knoxville Being Investigated.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 26.—The county court's investigating committee has resumed its work of examining graves in the county pauper cemetery. Twenty-eight coffins were exhumed, and of these twenty were found to give no evidence of ever having contained human bodies. The coffins were buried in 1901.

It is understood that every coffin buried within the last six years will be exhumed. It is expected that evidence will be secured to prove or disprove alleged grave robbing for medical college purposes. Jim Goins, the negro charged with having committed "fake" burials during the last few months for the purpose of securing payment for the same from the county treasury, was tried and bound to court. He swore on the stand that he had taken coffins to the county cemetery knowing there was nothing in them.

W. C. McCoy, the undertaker employing Goins, disclaims responsibility for Goins' actions and also denies ever having had knowledge of the commission of frauds.

Rockefeller Visits Washington.

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Feb. 26.—Mr. J. D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Mrs. Rockefeller and Mr. W. H. Baldwin, Jr., president of the Long Island railroad of New York, spent the day at Tuskegee as guests of Booker T. Washington. Mr. Rockefeller and his father are greatly interested in the Tuskegee Normal Industrial institute, located here. Mr. Rockefeller was here two years ago and on his return to New York specially interested his father in the school, and the latter provided a large dormitory building for boys costing $34,000. This building has just been completed.

BATTLE WITH MINERS

Three Killed and Many Injured In West Virginia.

OFFICERS DEFIED BY ARMED MEN

Attempt by United States Marshal and Sheriff to Arrest Thirty-four Miners Ends In the Shedding of Blood.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 26.—At Staniford, Raleigh county, a terrible battle took place at dawn between the joint posses of Deputy United States Marshal Cunningham and Sheriff Cook on one side and rioting miners on the other, as a result of which three miners were killed, two others mortally wounded and a number of others on both sides more or less seriously hurt.

The trouble grew out of the attempt to arrest thirty-four miners for violation of the blanket injunction issued by Federal Judge Keller last August. Deputy Marshal D. W. Cunningham went last Saturday to Atkinsville, a mining town in Raleigh county, to arrest men charged with violating the injunction. He was surrounded by a large party of miners armed with Winchester rifles, who ordered him to leave the place, an order which he quickly obeyed. Sheriff Cook at this time attempted to make some arrests under process issued by the state court and was treated in a like manner.

Cunningham returned to this city and reported to the marshal and district attorney that he could do nothing without a large force and then only at imminent risk of precipitating a bloody conflict. He was instructed to return with men sufficient to serve the process given him and to do it at all hazards.

Before Cunningham returned to Atkinsville, however, Marshal John K. Thompson and S. C. Burdette, attorney for the United Mine Workers, went to the scene, spending most of Sunday and Monday there. They found everything quiet, the rioters having withdrawn from the immediate neighborhood and crossed New river, going into camp 300 strong near the Big Q mine on the north side.

Thompson and Burdette came home Tuesday morning, and Cunningham and a strong posse went from here to make the arrests. When Atkinsville was reached, the federal forces were joined by Sheriff Cook and his posse, the coal companies near by furnishing some guards, and the deputy and sheriff found themselves in command of about 100 well armed men.

The posse met with a mob of 250 miners armed with Winchesters, who defied arrest and service papers. They followed defiance with hostilities, opening fire on the deputies at once. The deputies responded, and the battle raged furiously for several minutes.

After the posse had repulsed the miners they followed up their advantage and secured the arrest of over 100, who were brought to Beckley under guard. Cunningham and posse have gone back to the scene and will arrest every one implicated.

An ugly strike in progress there is the cause of the trouble. Most of the strikers are foreigners.

A Commissioner From Alaska.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Senator Beveridge from the senate committee on territories today reported a substitute for the house bill providing for a delegate in congress from Alaska. The substitute provides for a commissioner instead of a delegate, but he is given all the rights and privileges enjoyed by territorial delegates. Instead of being elected, as are the delegates from other territories, the representative from Alaska is to be appointed if the senate committee bill becomes a law. The power of appointment is vested in the governor, the secretary and the district judges of the territory sitting as a board.

Dr. Rankin Resigns.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Dr. J. E. Rankin, president of Howard university, has resigned owing to advanced age and infirmities. Dr. Teunis S. Hamlin, a member of the board of trustees and pastor of the Church of the Covenant in this city, has been elected president pro tem. It is expected that a permanent president will be secured soon. Howard university is one of the leading colored educational institutions of the country.

AFTER TROLLEY COMPANY.

Councilman Lee appears to be after the local trolley company with a sharp stick. It is evident that Councilman Lee has been riding on the local trolley cars. Sometime ago, this same Councilman stirred things up in the Council on the same question and the company was notified that it must improve its service. There were several conferences between city officials and the officers of the trolley company and the promise was made that the service would soon be improved, that the delay was occasioned only by failure to secure what was needed. There has been no improvement to speak of and so Councilman Lee is after the company again. This time he proposes drastic measures.

Everybody who is unfortunate enough to have to ride on the cars of the local service has realized that there is room for improvement. Visitors to this city have failed to admire our trolley cars as they have other features of the city life and have even pronounced this the worst they had seen. It was known, however, that the car manufactories were rushed to their greatest capacity and the claim of the company that it was trying to secure better equipment sounded like the truth.

It is possible sometimes to move more expeditiously at one time than others. It may be that Councilman Lee's strenuous action will bring the company to a realization that it will be well to move with more rapidity than it is doing at present. While Mr. Lee consented to let his motion go over for a time, he plans to revoke the company's franchise if the service is not put into proper condition without delay. There is no doubt that Mr. Lee is thoroughly in earnest and that he will not stop until he is perfectly satisfied that Plainfield is going to have a good trolley service. Otherwise he is likely to make it decidedly unpleasant for the trolley company. And in his campaign Mr. Lee is going to have the enthusiastic support of the public which is gradually getting tired of riding in the cars that are now attempting to do duty.

THE LICENSE QUESTION.

It was generally understood previous to the Common Council meeting Tuesday evening that the members of the Council would not favor the enlargement of the number of saloons in this city. There were several additional applications but it was reported that, while one might be granted, the renewal of an old applicant would be denied. These things happened but they managed to make quite a stir in the Council, decidedly unlike its usual harmonious sessions.

When the Kean and Fowler factions of the Republican party battled for supremacy in Union county last fall and the Republican primaries brought down such general condemnation from fair minded voters, one Daniel Galbraith, proprietor of a saloon on West Third street, was very active in behalf of the interests of Senator Kean. This winter, his application for a renewal for his license was turned down and a license for a saloon in the same locality granted to another man. No one doubts for a moment that the Councilmen had good reasons for refusing the license. The coincidence is too marked however to avoid public comment, and the public at large believes, and will continue to do so, no matter what is said, that Mr. Galbraith is suffering for his political sins.

There isn't any doubt but Plainfield is much better behaved than many of its neighbors and that the police force, which preserves peace and order here, would be utterly inadequate in many cities no larger than Plainfield. As long as this city continues its peaceful career, the present force would accomplish all that is necessary. It is, however, manifestly advisable to be prepared to some degree to meet the emergencies. That is the object of installing the Gamewell police patrol system. It is claimed that the increased efficiency for the police department could be secured in no other way at such a moderate cost. Plainfield is the finest of all the suburban cities. There is much valuable property here. While the criminal class is very small, property of value should be given ample protection. If it can be done, as is claimed, without increasing the tax rate, then there will be only satisfaction on the part of the Plainfield people.

There is prospect of a telephone war in Plainfield. A new company has asked for the privilege of establishing an exchange in this city. It is bucking against a strong proposition, however. The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company has an exchange of nearly a thousand telephones here and connects with over a million others all over the country. Rates have been coming down slowly and the service improving. While competition is a good thing, it is probable that the new company will have to prove pretty strongly that it is going to offer Plainfield some decided advantages before the Councilmen will consent to have a double system thereby bringing the added expense of both to the local merchants and business men.

Occasionally we are favored with some really excellent communications which are sent without the name of the writer. While we are willing to publish anonymous communications on certain subjects, it is absolutely necessary for us to know the name of the writer before publishing it. No communication will be considered that does not bear the signature of the author, if not for publication then as an evidence of good faith.

TWO BITES OF CHERRY.

X. Y. Z., Makes Some Pertinent Remarks on Interesting Subject.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Some little things are emphasizing what, to some of us, seems the obvious need of Plainfield and North Plainfield to come together. In clearing the snow of the late storm from the sidewalks of the Washington avenue and Grove street bridges, the double jurisdiction resulted in a clear walk half way over the bridge and a snowy or a slushy one for the other half. To call out two details of men, to make out two sets of vouchers, to necessitate two sets of entries in the records and all in the matter of shovelling off the snow from a small bridge, seems unnecessary and not up to the times. Hadn't we better change it?

Martinsville Realty Change.

The Richardson Farm, near Martinsville, has been purchased by John VanNest, well-known in this city as a property owner. The deal was closed last week and the new owner intends making of the farm a large stock ranch. The property consists of about 150 acres and part of this is laid out in fine orchards.

Engagement Is Announced.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Lottie May Connett, of East Fifth street, to William Robert Spanks, of Pennsylvania. The wedding will occur within a few weeks.

Annual Election.

The annual election of the First Baptist church Sunday-school officers will be held Thursday evening, March 5, when several other matters of importance will be considered.

DUNELLEN.

A parlor meeting of the local W. C. T. U. will be held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edmund Teel, of Dunellen avenue. The meeting is expected to be the most interesting held in a long time as Mrs. Robinson, a well known worker, is expected to be present and speak. John Campbell is recovering from a slight illness.

Services will be held in the Presbyterian church Sunday for the first time in several weeks. The church has been handsomely decorated and papered, new carpets have been laid and electric lights installed.

For some time past claim agents from the Central Railroad have been visiting those from this place who were injured in the wreck in the effort to effect a settlement.

Next Sunday Communion will be administered at the morning services in the Methodist church. In the evening union services will be held in the Presbyterian church.

About $20 was cleared by the recent entertainment given by the Alonzo Hatch Company in the Methodist church.

Ray Apgar is rapidly recovering his strength after the illness caused by being injured in the wreck.

There was a good atendance at prayer meetings in the local churches last evening.

Wilson Fredericks' condition was given today at the hospital as still favorable.

The new factory at the "Eight Row" is nearly finished on the outside.

Services will be held in Holy Innocents' regularly throughout Lent.

A regular meeting of the Y. W. C. was held yesterday afternoon.

Charles D. Boice will leave in a few days for a business trip.

NEW MARKET.

Unless ice is brought in from outside there will be an ice famine in town this summer as there is practically no supply in the local ice house.

F. P. Vail and family are expected to return in a few weeks from New York where they have been staying.

There was a good attendance at prayer meeting in the First Baptist church last evening.

The cornet band will meet for practice this evening at the usual place.

Charles Thorton was in Plainfield on business yesterday.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

One of the pleasantest epochs in the history of Fanwood Council, R. A. was held last night when the members and their friends gathered in Excelsior Hall. The pleasant affair was arranged by the entertainment and membership committee for the purpose of bringing together the eligible candidates for membership in the order, and to present to them the social side of this great fraternal organization. Wm. E. Collins, as chairman, opened the programme. Chas. Seymour, humorist and impersonator, kept his audience in laughter for the half hour. Past Grand Regent L. A. Lightfoot, of Westfield, gave a talk upon the Arcanum presenting the practical side of fraternal insurance in a forceful manner. Adolph Ganzel, of Cranford, delighted his audience with several selections upon the mandolin, after which Seymour was seen in impersonations, of Henry Irving and James Herne in "Shore Acres." Wm. Pope, of Plainfield, accompanied all musical selections upon the piano. Delegations were present from Plainfield and Greenbrook Councils, Westfield Council and Cranford Council. The enjoyable affair is only one of a number the entertainment committee have planned. At the next it is just possible the women will be invited.

The Amity Club held one of its interesting meetings, Tuesday evening at the home of its president, Miss Klemser. A reading upon the works of James Russell Lowell by Miss Hollingsworth, was enjoyed by the members after which a short musical programme was given. During the evening's pleasures, refreshments were served. One new member was added to the club membership.

Gustav Schepp, of the Central Hotel, while out of the barroom for a few minutes Tuesday, had his till tapped for several dollars. Upon discovering his loss, an investigation was started and the thief was soon located and made to unload his spoils. No action was taken by Mr. Schepp, but the party will be an unwelcomed visitor in the future.

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

The Belleview Avenue Nursery is now ready to make spring deliveries of trees, shrubs and plants. A postal card will suffice to bring a representative to your door.

In preparing for your spring and summer outfit in clothing inspect the large stock at M. Weinberger's store on West Front street. You can replenish your wardrobe at a little expense.

J. Hervey Doane, of Park avenue, always carries an exceptional line of fine jewelry, watches, diamonds, silver and goldware and his long experience gives him an advantage in this business.

A man's troubles will vanish in smoke if the right cigar is lighted. Such cigars are made by M. C. Dobbins, of Park avenue. One feature of his cigars is that they are entirely free from flavoring of any kind.

The H. E. Gayle Hardware Company is stocking up for the spring and summer months with a fine line of general hardware. Builders can trade at this store with profit and the assurance that all goods are of the best quality.

The Rogers Seafood Company guarantees every pound of fish sold at its market. None but experienced buyers are employed to make selections for the company and their ability can be relied upon. Rogers makes a specialty of early morning deliveries.

Charles Conover & Company, painters and decorators of Elmwood place, have received the contract to paint the house of Robert McCutcheon on Plainfield avenue and the residence of W. J. Buttfield in Washington Park. The houses will be painted inside and out.

One of the largest and finest lines of fresh vegetables to be found in this city is at Thomas L. Walsh's North avenue market. It comprises many of the spring and summer delicacies now supposed to be out of season. In addition Walsh has a nice lot of foreign and domestic fruits.

It is almost as necessary to have a reliable watchmaker as it is to have a reliable physician. Much depends on a faithful timepiece and therefore when it gets out of order it should be taken to an experienced watch repairer. L. Moraller & Son, of Park avenue are thoroughly reliable and have years of experience behind them.

—Neuman Brothers are handlers of White Label maple syrup. It is guaranteed to be absolutely the best in the market.

E. O. Martin, of Compton avenue, has been detained at home for the past week by grip.

FUNERAL OF MISS MEYER.

Services Held From Home of Her Parents on Liberty Street.

Funeral services over the remains of Miss Josie Meyer, who died at the home of her parents on Liberty street, Monday, were held from Hope chapel, this afternoon. They were in charge of Rev. L. R. Howard and were attended by a large number of her former schoolmates and young friends. A pretty floral tribute was given by the pupils of Miss Booream's class in the Washington School.

The pall bearers were William Firstbrook, Joseph Sweeney, Lloyd Lewis and Jens Claasen. Interment was made in the Methodist cemetery.

CHANCE OF TIE.

Quoit Contest Will be Settled at Meeting Tonight.

At the meeting of Somerset Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., last night there were two candidates initiated, one reinstated and one proposition received. The quoit contest resulted in Somerset winning three out of five, which makes that council five in the lead. The last five games are to be played tonight at the meeting of Franklin Council. Should Franklin win the entire number it will require the two councils to play the entire contest over again.

Had An Eye to Business.

A story is told of a certain Plainfielder who was a passenger on the Easton local train which was wrecked at Westfield, recently. He occupied a seat in the car next to the engine and strangely did not know of the wreck until so informed by a friend. A little later, it is said, he put in a claim for damages. It is reported that the railroad company refused to settle, being in possession of the facts.

Whist at the Park Club.

Wednesday evening, March 4, will be devoted to whist at the Park Club, and all of the male members are invited to be present and take part. Play will begin at 8 o'clock. Should there be sufficient interest manifested it is the purpose of the club to devote an evening every week to the game. At the first meeting members will be privileged to invite any friends who may care to attend and play.

Gummere Refers to Violations.

While it has for some time past been a rule that no attorneys can appear in the Supreme Court in the capacity of counsellors, there have been violations of the rule. Yesterday Chief Justice Gummere called attention to the fact that this rule had been violated, and he advised the several cases to proceed as though no briefs had been filed by attorneys.

Services During Lent.

Special evening services will be held during Lent at the Church of the Holy Cross, in North Plainfield. On these occasions, the rector, Rev. W. Montgomey Downey, will exchange with other ministers from neighboring cities. The preacher for this evening will be Rev. Dr. Fenton, of St. Luke's church, Metuchen. Music will be a feature of the service.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 1—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Lessons from the sermon on the mount: What Christ teaches about blessedness.—Matt. v, 1-12.

Christ's sermon on the mount, which is to form the subject of our study for our successive evenings, was delivered, according to tradition, on the horns of Hattin, which lies on the south of the Galilean sea, on the way to Nazareth. After spending the night previous in prayer Jesus chose the twelve apostles and then delivered this address. It is "the Magna Charta of Christ's kingdom, His inaugural address, the sublimest code of morals ever proclaimed on earth, the 'perfect law of liberty.'" It embraces the fifth, sixth and seventh chapters of Matthew and treats of a number of important subjects pertaining to Christ's kingdom, which He was about to set up on earth. We will study what Christ here teaches (1) concerning "blessedness," (2) "heart righteousness," (3) trust and (4) about judging others. Blessedness is therefore our present subject.

What, then, does Christ teach about blessedness?

1. Christ teaches that blessedness is more than happiness. Happiness may be obtained from earthly things, but this part of the sermon on the mount teaches very clearly that blessedness comes from God. It is repeatedly emphasized that blessedness is not the fruit of any earthly relation, but the result of special relationships to God, desires for God and the possession of God given attributes. Searchers after blessedness should bear this in mind. The best happiness in life is not to be found apart from God, but only in God. "Thou hast made us for Thyself, and the heart is restless till it rest in Thee."

2. Christ teaches that blessedness is the result of character. It is not bestowed arbitrarily. A reason follows each beatitude. In one instance it is poverty of spirit, in another spiritual mourning and then meekness, hunger and thirst after righteousness, mercy, purity, peace and faithfulness amid persecution. Those who possess these characteristics cannot but be blessed, for blessedness is the fruit of their possession. It is not simply a reward for such a character, but the direct fruit of it. We cannot possess the one without the other. Given the character, the blessedness will necessarily follow. But our tendency is to follow other beacon lights in our search for happiness.

3. Christ taught that blessedness entitles to membership in the kingdom of God. Of the blessed it is said, "Theirs is the kingdom of heaven." They are members of God's kingdom upon earth and will be members of His kingdom in heaven. The results of a character that produces blessedness cease not with time, but extend into eternity. If we are wise, therefore, we will covet earnestly and seek after the best gifts—not the temporary, transitory happiness of this life, which perisheth with the using, but the deep, abiding happiness that comes from a life of faith in God through Jesus Christ and the possession of these Christlike attributes of character, for Christ not only taught the beatitudes, but lived them.

Gen. xii, 1-4; Ps. i, 1-6; lxv, 4; lxxxiv, 4-7; cxii, 1; Matt. xxv, 31-40; Luke vi, 20-23; xii, 37; Rom. iv, 1-10; Jas. i, 12.

An Ardent Endeavorer.

Rev. John H. Elliott, D. D., of New York city, recently elected president of the New York State union, is one of the best loved Endeavorers in the Empire State. First as a Y. M. C. A. secretary he was successful in several fields, his most conspicuous work being his last, in Minneapolis, Minn., where, chiefly through his splendid pluck and push, funds were secured for the present magnificent Y. M. C. A. building. Later, entering upon evangelistic work, he was associated with Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, D. D., and, having labored in many cities, he is well known to Christian Endeavorers all over the land. Dr. Chapman has said of him, "His familiarity with the Bible, his understanding of men and his acquaintance with the best methods of work in evangelistic meetings all make him a strong leader." Mr. Elliott is a man of abounding physical vigor, great intellectual versatility, warm sympathy with all, especially young people, and with the most earnest consecration, ready always and everywhere for service.

REV. JOHN H. ELLIOTT.

Vickers, 12 Westlake avenue, Auburn; Bible study, Herbert E. Bariglit, M. D., Clifton Springs; evangelistic, Rev. F. H. Jacobs, 113 Fulton street, New York; correspondence, C. H. Van Buskirk, 108 Van Sicien avenue, Brooklyn; prison work, W. A. Horn, Lockport; Christian citizenship, J. Tallmadge, Jr., 35 Tweddle building, Albany; press, John R. Clements, Binghamton.

40. D., Scranton, Pa.—The New York state Endeavorers observe the second Sunday in December each year as "prison work day" and gather an offering in their meetings for efforts among the prisoners.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning March 1, "Total Abstinence the Only Safe Rule"—Text, Dan. i, 8-15; I Thess. v, 22; I Pet. ii, 11.

"Prove thy servants, I beseech thee." After all argument the debate must be finally decided by an appeal to the practical results in the case. Suppose it is proved scientifically after the most careful tests in a calorimeter that alcohol does in the human system give a certain degree of heat and nourishment. That is a valuable thing to know and may possibly, will probably, be used beneficially in the cases to which it has proper application. That it has any bearing on the question of alcoholic stimulants as a habitual drink no one believes who has an adequate understanding of the matter.

The practical issue in the drink question is whether alcoholic drinks benefit or injure a person. Some say no very decidedly and are impatient of debate, believing nothing can be said favorable to the other side. But an immense multitude still continues to use such liquors, and many declare that use to be of benefit to them.

No one defends drunkenness at the present time. Well, that is an advance surely, for the time is not long past when drunkenness was expected of gentlemen, if indeed it was not a mark of distinction! Most will agree that any one who cannot avoid drunkenness should not indulge in intoxicating drinks. Drunkards ought not to drink. All will agree to that except drunkards probably, and they, of course, are not competent to have an opinion on the subject. But what of those who use such drinks moderately?

"Good fellowship" has much to do with social drinking in saloons and clubs, but the great majority who drink do so because they like to do so. The taste is acquired and the effect is desired. Large numbers depend as much upon liquors of some kind with meals as other people do on coffee and tea and see no more harm in using one than the other, but the most of these have never put the matter to a practical test. Some workingmen think they cannot work without liquors. Many employers think they cannot get laborers unless they permit them to drink.

To every one using intoxicants for a frequent drink the plan of Daniel is to be commended. Put the matter to the test of experiment for a sufficient length of time to reach a fair conclusion. We have no doubt that when the experiment is fairly tried it will be found that in every particular total abstinence gives better results than any degree of use of intoxicating beverages can give.

First.—So far as physical health is concerned, total abstinence is best and gives most chance of recovery in sickness.

Second.—In all mental effort best results come from abstinence.

Third.—In all manual labor, athletic training and hard work abstinence is far the best.

Fourth.—In home life, personal enjoyment, moral elevation, spiritual culture, abstinence is indispensable.

Fifth.—In all places of responsibility, danger and needing skill abstinence is essential.

Sixth.—In the interest of economy and well being abstinence is needed.

Don't Worry.

In accomplishing your day's work you have simply to take one step at a time. To take that step wisely is all that you need think about. If I am climbing a mountain, to look down may make me dizzy; to look far up may make me tired and discouraged. Take no anxious thought for the morrow. Sufficient for the day—yes, and for each hour in the day—is the toil or the trial thereof. There is not a child of God in this world who is strong enough to stand the strain of today's duties and all the load of tomorrow's anxieties piled upon the top of them. Paul himself would have broken down if he had attempted the experiment. We have a perfect right to ask our Heavenly Father for strength equal to the day, but we have no right to ask Him for one extra ounce of strength for anything beyond it. When the morrow comes, grace will come with it sufficient for its tasks or for its troubles.—Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler, D. D.

Obliging Others.

A man was once asked why he took so much pains to oblige others in trifles. His answer was, in substance: "I have neither the wealth nor the intellect nor the learning nor the position to do big things for God or man, and so I take delight in doing any little thing to promote another's interest or enjoyment. In this way I may add to the sum of human happiness and also recommend my Saviour to the attention of those who know Him not."—Christian Intelligencer.

The Sure Reliance.

The branch must abide in the vine, the oak in the soil, the child in its parents, the president in the laws of his nation, the believer in Christ. To abide in Christ is to rest one's hope in infinite strength and to draw one's life out of infinite goodness and love. Christ is the perfection, the teacher and the example of all goodness, the source and giver of eternal life, the power of God unto salvation.—Independent.

Wrong Paths.

TEACH SINCERITY.

One Thing In Which a Child Should Be Trained.

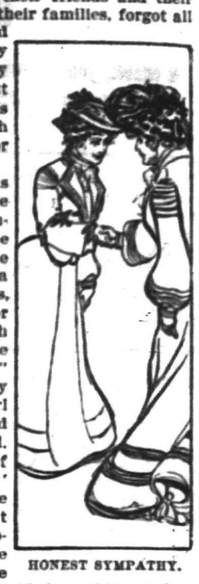
Some little time ago a girl was left alone in a great city. On all sides she met with sympathy. People gushed over her and said:

"Oh, you poor girl!"

"I am so sorry for you!"

"I wish I could do something to make your life less lonely!"

Then they promptly went off and, being busy with their friends and their festivities and their families, forgot all about her, and she was lonely as much as any one cares about being in this world, which was meant for good things.



HONEST SYMPATHY.

At first she was grateful for the words of sympathy, but in the end, after she had heard half a hundred times, "I'm so sorry for you!" "I wish you could have more pleasure!" "It's such a pity a nice young girl like you should not be married, with a home of her own!" "What a shame it is you don't know more people!" etc., she used to loathe the people who said those things to her, because she had found out they didn't mean what they said. If they had, they would have put themselves out a little, would have introduced her to people, would have put her on the road toward bettering herself.

But it was easier to talk than to do.

In the end they made her lose her faith in all human nature, which is a bad conclusion.

Now, this is a lesson to teach children from their earliest years. Sympathy is a great thing, but deeds, no matter how small, are infinitely better. You may not be able to do much, but do what little you can. Say, "I'm sorry," if you will, but don't say, "I wish I could do this and that," when you don't wish any such thing. If you did wish it, you would help toward it—that is, don't say so unless you mean to help the one you are saying it to. That is the true test of sincerity, and sincerity is what all women stand in great need of.

Fashion Notes.

Among all the new things the black goods surpass all others in elegance. There are voiles, silk and wool crapes, etamines, mystral, canvas, zibeline canvas with long hairs over the surface, voile plumetis, a delicately light all wool fabric; striped voile, crepe de paris, fancy cravenette mohair and openwork mohairs. Mohair is to be a fashionable material, and that of this season is much softer and silkier than any before woven. All the voiles, or veilings, in plain English, are produced, and, though generally of plain, smooth surface, some of them have fancy woven lacelike stripes. The mystral etamines are very elegant.

Crashes, mostly in the Russian and Belfast varieties, will be favorites for outing, and they are to be trimmed with the heavy Russian lace or a little Bulgarian embroidery judiciously applied. Java and Panama linen, mostly in natural colors, are also much sought for just now.

Consolation For Woman.

"Fire! yes, siree," said Parmelee. "Well, I let out a yell for Dick Whittlesey, and he came boundin' to the door, scart as a rabbit. 'Water!' I shouted to him. 'Bring that bucket!' We always keep a bucket handy, you know, in case anythin' should happen inside. He was pretty quick, I s'pose, but it seemed just all eternity to me. However, when he did come we weren't many seconds gittin' round to the other side, and there was as pretty a little blaze as you'd care to see just beginnin' to eat into the boards of the kiln. If we'd been five minutes later, you wouldn't be standin' where you are now."

"By Jove," exclaimed Rossiter, "that's a mighty serious matter! You think——"

"Think!" broke in Parmelee; "you don't have to think long to spot the pair o' hands that tried that trick. It's that develish ape I thrashed the other night, though there's nothin' to prove it. Very considerate, I call it, of those Waterbury people to fix up that stockade, or whatever it is, for hoboes over there, and bring all the offscourings in creation into this part of the country."

"Is that what they've done?" asked Rossiter.

"Yes," said Parmelee. "They 'jug' a tramp if he's found in town, but outside the corporation they've got this place, where all the vagrants under God's heaven can sleep and feed. We're reapin' the benefit of their little scheme."

"I don't believe this fellow'll try it on again here," said Becraft, as he and Rossiter turned to go.

"Guess you're right," answered Parmelee. "Of course, he saw that we nipped his fine little flame in the bud, and knows we're pretty sure to be on the lookout. If you should go over to Waterbury to-morrow, like as not you'd find him there with some of his handsome pals as innocent as you please."

As Rossiter and Becraft sallied forth on their excursion to Blue Creek on the following morning, Sunday, they encountered Jack Parmelee and Mr. Merton in earnest talk at the gate-way.

"Goin' for a tramp?" Parmelee asked as the two passed.

"Yes," answered Rossiter, "over to Blue Creek."

"It's quite a place," said Parmelee. "I'll tell you what you might do," he continued, "if you care to walk as far."

"What's that?"

"Well, if you follow the creek down for three-quarters of a mile, mebbe, you'll come to a little branch that leads up through a side gully. Strike into that for a score of rods, cross the Blue Creek road, which makes a big dip just there, and after you've gone, oh, say twice as far again, take a bee-line through the woods and you'll hit our loggin'-road that'll fetch you out at the meadow below the orchard."

"Much obliged," said Rossiter.

"And say," added Parmelee, "you might just have your eyes open and watch out for any traces of that hairy hobo."

"We'll do it!" and the two swung off in the direction of the gulf.

It was one of those vital September mornings. The artist Frost had begun work upon his autumn picture, giving little touches here and there which later he would amplify until the whole country-side from horizon to horizon would show the result of his glowing skill.

"You're not sorry you came hop-pickin', are you?" demanded Becraft, as the two stopped for a moment at the spot where Rossiter had encountered "Whiskers."

The valley of the Blue Creek was at their feet, peaceful and beautiful in the September sunlight.

"Sorry!" exclaimed Rossiter; "very far from it. And I've you to thank for it all. I feel that I'm a different man from the vagabond you met that day at Illica."

"There's no doubt o' that. Nobody'd take you for the same chap. But as for thanks, I don't want to hear anythin' about that sort o' thing. You don't suppose I've forgotten what you did for me, do you?"

"Well, we'll call its quits, and say no more about it. But why did you let on to your mother in regard to that business in the river? She made it mighty uncomfortable for me the other day."

Becraft grinned.

"Did she?" said he. "She always thought you was just about right, but, by jinks, now you're the whole thing, an' no mistake!"

"What does she think about a certain son of hers? Eh, Joe?"

Becraft tried to look unconcerned, but his effort proved a flat failure, and so, in the best of humor, they descended into the valley. Along the bank of the singing, cyrstal stream they wandered, now through open pastures, now beneath the shade of great forest trees, and now through a dense undergrowth of beech and maple. On both sides rose lofty wooded bank, sometimes 100 yards or more from the bed of the stream, sometimes close at hand, so that they could see, in moist clefts far above their heads, great sprays of maiden-hair and beds of the rare walking fern. They surprised speckled trout in dark pools [illegible] lowed by the action of the water upon the blue slate which gave the stream its name; and they encountered curious fungus-growth, strange even to Rossiter, who had picked up considerable wood-lore in his wayfarings. By and by they noted the branch glen, of which Parmelee had spoken, and turned into it. It was contracted and thickly wooded before they emerged upon the Blue Creek road, a highway which ran for some distance parallel to the stream and then bent away towards the Merton farm, but above the road it expanded, and in places the forest was less dense.

The road crossed the ravine by an embankment, and yet there was a sharp dip, so deep was the depression.

"Golly!" said Becraft, gazing about, "if this ain't a wild place!"

"It certainly is," responded Rossiter. "We might be miles from a house, and yet I presume there are farms quite near."

They did not pause to see, however, but continued on their way up the glen.

"I think we'd better climb the bank and strike into the woods here," announced Rossiter, as they reached a spot where the ravine widened and its bottom was dotted with dense clumps of scrub hemlock.

They were making for the thicket-covered slope, when, on passing between two close set hemlock clumps, they discovered the still smouldering ashes of a fire. Charred potato skins and cobs from which the corn had been eaten were strewn upon the ground.

"We're too late for breakfast," said Rossiter, looking about him as if in search of further traces of those who had kindled the fire. "It might be interesting to know who feasted here. More than one, evidently, judging the workmen by their chips, or if but one he'd been indulging in a pretty long fast."

There was nothing further to be discovered, so they ascended the bank and entered the forest. After a time, as Parmelee had predicted, they encountered the logging-road, and were back at the farm before the dinner hour. That afternoon they reported the finding of the remains of the fire to Mr. Merton's manager.

"Of course, there's no tellin' who it might have been," Parmelee said. "We'll keep watch anyhow. That blamed monkey may still be hangin' about after all."

CHAPTER XI.

THE DIP IN THE BLUE CREEK ROAD.

Hop-picking at the Merton farm was drawing to a close. It was Wednesday afternoon, and by mid-afternoon of the day following Jack Parmelee calculated that the last pole would be stripped.

During these final days of the harvest Miss Densmore had contrived to learn much of the story of Rossiter's life, not directly, but by inference, and by patching together such facts in regard to him as he had let fall intentionally or by accident. She managed to break in upon his reserve, and had often been upon the point of asking him certain questions regarding himself, yet had never done so. Of Rossiter's admiration for her she was aware, perhaps in a measure by intuition, for he had scrupulously endeavored not to let his feelings be manifest, and she doubted if even her cousin had observed anything in his demeanor to indicate that he had a preference between them. Her state of mind towards him she had not seriously tried to analyze. Of a lively interest in him she was conscious, but had any one suggested that she cherished a deeper or a warmer feeling she would have repelled the idea vehemently. The discovery of weaknesses in his character had not lowered him in her estimation. Indeed, her sympathies, for that very reason, went out towards him more strongly. She fancied she discerned the battle he was fighting with himself, and longed somehow, if he would but let her, to give him encouragement and help.

On Wednesday morning the girls had been at their box as usual, but they did not come into the yard to pick in the afternoon. About three o'clock, as Rossiter was stripping a pole in that portion of the field nearest the house, he caught sight of Miss Merton hastening towards him.

"Where is Jack—Mr. Parmelee?" she called, much perturbed, as soon as she came within speaking distance.

Rossiter looked about but could see nothing of the farm manager. Finally, however, he descried him engaged in emptying a box of hops in a remote part of the field.

CONGRESS BUSY.

Philippine Currency and Army Appropriation Bills Passed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The senate yesterday made rapid progress. The statehood riders to the agricultural and postoffice appropriation bills were withdrawn and both bills passed. The house amendments to the Philippine currency bill were agreed to with but slight discussion, thus sending the bill to the president. The sundry civil bill was nearly completed. A large number of pension bills was also passed.

In the course of the day Civil Service Commissioner Foulke was severely criticised on account of a letter written by him to Mr. Spooner regarding the dismissal of an employee of the surveyor general's office in Idaho, who had been charged with receiving campaign contributions. The discussion arose over a resolution by Mr. Dubois calling for information in the case.

The house adopted the conference report on the army appropriation bill and sent the bill to the president. The bill to establish a union station in this city also was finally passed, the house abandoning its amendments to reduce the amount to be given to the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio railroads from $1,500,000 each, as fixed in the senate bill, to $1,000,000 each, as fixed by the house. Mr. Cannon and Mr. Cowherd (Mo.) made the fight against the motion to recede, while Mr. Morrell (Pa.), supported by Mr. Dalzell (Pa.), Mr. Olmstead (Pa.) and others, favored agreement in the amount fixed by the senate.

The Fowler bill was debated in a desultory way. Mr. Clayton (Ala.) delivered a mock funeral oration on the bill. The other speakers were Messrs. Pugsley (N. Y.), Scallenberger (Neb.) and Thompson (Ala.). The speaker appointed the committee to represent the house at the dedication of the Louisiana Purchase exposition.

The Democrats of the house held a caucus this morning to act on the filibustering programme the Democratic leaders have decided on for the remainder of the session. The result of their deliberations is not yet known.

Typhoid on the Decline.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 26.—President Schurman has sent a letter to the deans of the several colleges of Cornell university asking them to organize special classes to enable students now returning to the university to make up work lost during their absence. A number of students have already returned. Only eleven fresh cases of typhoid were reported to the health officer for yesterday, and no deaths occurred. Two new patients were admitted to Stimson annex of Cornell infirmary—Harold J. Snyder of Schoharie, N. Y., and Miss Ethel I. Edwards of Forestville, N. Y.

Mrs. McLean Withdraws.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Mrs. Donald McLean of New York, who has been prominently mentioned as a candidate in the coming election for president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, has formally announced her withdrawal. This action insures the re-election of Mrs. Fairbanks for another term of two years and also means that Mrs. McLean will be a candidate for president general two years hence.

Rock Island Gets Frisco System.

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—The Record-Herald says it is reported on almost official authority that the Rock Island has secured control of the Frisco system and that the deal is the forerunner of a new and farreaching community of interests among western lines.

SPORTING NEWS

ON THE DIAMOND.

By addressing Henry C. Brose, manager of the freshman-sophomore baseball team of the North Plainfield High School, games can still be secured for the coming season.

BASKET BALL.

A basket ball game has been arranged between the junior-senior and the freshmen-sophomore teams of the North Plainfield High School. It will be played March 12.

There will be a basket ball game this evening between the team representing Leal's School and the Y. M. C. A. team. The game will be played in the local gymnasium and will be called at 8 o'clock.

Funeral of the Unknown.

The remains of the unknown man killed in the recent railroad wreck will be buried tomorrow afternoon at 3:30. Rev. Dr. Schenck will have charge of the services. The lecture room of Trinity Reformed church has been tendered and accepted by the railroad company as the place which to give the unknown a Christian funeral service.

Swedish Lutheran Services.

Swedish Lutheran services will be conducted Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the German Lutheran church on Grove street. Rev. R. H. Johnson, of Oakseller Seminary, at Orange, will have charge of the services. Swedish services will be conducted at that church every Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Invitation Entertainment.

The freshmen of the North Plainfield High School are planning for an entertainment which will be held in the assembly room in the school sometime during the week of March 16. The affair will be an invitation event and none but the members of the classes and school and a few friends will be admitted.

Strange Line Building.

The people of Rahway are much concerned over a line of road which has been recently laid south of that city. Whether the new line is to be a branch of the Pennsylvania, a new trolley route or part of the line of the much-talked-of Wabash is a matter of conjecture on the part of the inhabitants of Rahway.

Two Extra Policemen.

It is expected that Mayor O. L. Jenkins will appoint two extra policemen at the regular March meeting of the Common Council. There are three candidates to select from, but who the two will be is not yet known. The new appointees will serve the first year for $60 per month.

The New Pump.

The first installment of machinery for the large pump to be put in position at the pumping station of the Plainfield Water Supply Company is being taken off the flat cars and within a few days the work of putting the machinery in place will be commenced.

DEATH OF MRS. PORTER.

Devout Christian Woman Passed Away After Long Illness.

The death of Mrs. John Porter occurred at her home on East Second street, late last night. She had been ill for several months and her death was not unexpected.

Mrs. Porter was thirty-three years old and leaves two children, one eight years old and the other five. She was a member of Trinity Reformed church and attended until her health failed her. For many years she had been a devout Christian woman and patiently awaited the death she prayed for.

The funeral services will be held from her late home, Saturday afternoon and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck.

MEN WON ALL.

Played for the Women at Euchre Party and Captured Prizes.

The Silver Star Club held a euchre last evening at the home of Miss Annie Texier at Watchung. The evening was pleasantly spent and the winners of the various prizes were as follows: Henry Voehl and Peter Burnett, first prizes; and Charles Overbaugh and James Gun, second prizes. A number of the young women could not attend and so some of the men had to play for the women. There were no prize winners among the women.

Social Club Meeting.

The G. G. Social Club held a meeting last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jones, of East Third street. The members were entertained with games and instrumental music until a late hour after whist was enjoyed. Refreshments were served at a late hour after which the club voted to attend the reception of the Nonpariel Social Club in Saengerbund Hall on the evening of March 12.

Could Accommodate Him.

Officer John Wise arrested a tramp on Somerset street yesterday afternoon and last night he was given a hearing before Judge Doud. The fellow wanted to be sent to Somerville for sixty days but instead, the Recorder ordered him out of town and this morning he was escorted to the borough lines where he made tracks for parts unknown.

Justice Hand Overcome.

While transacting some business matters in the office of Codington & Swackhamer, yesterday afternoon, Justice Hezekiah Hand, was attacked by vertigo. He was taken to his home in a carriage and this morning recovered sufficiently to be at his office.

Auction at Hotel.

The entire contents of the Hotel McVey Annex, 132 and 134 North avenue, will be sold at auction Saturday afternoon. It consists of twenty bedroom suits, with springs and mattresses, 300 yards of carpet. H. Hand is the auctioneer.

Received Bad Sprain.

Alex. Runyon, of Madison avenue, is detained at home with a severe sprain to his ankle. Several days ago he was walking from his place of business to the barn on the premises when he slipped on some ice, resulting in the sprain.

Kanen Not Improving.

It is reported that Fred Kanen, the young man injured in the wreck on the New Jersey Central, near Westfield, is not improving as rapidly as his parents would like. His injuries appear to be more serious than at first supposed.

PALE PEOPLE

With Weak Lungs and Weak Stomachs,

ATTENTION!

The main trouble with the ordinary Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is that many people with weak stomachs are unable to use it, thereby being deprived of one of the best tissue builders and lung tonics of the day. We have formed a perfect mechanical combination of the

NORWEGIAN COD LIVER OIL, SHERRY WINE, GLYCERINE AND EGGS,

With the universal digestant—PURE PEPSIN making a food and medicine for the weakest constitution. Consider this matter before it is too late for you to derive proper benefits. Confer with your physician regarding it if you desire. If your lungs are weak act and act quickly.

THOSE WHO COME AND GO

NOTES CONCERNING PLAINFELDERS AND THEIR MANY GUESTS.

Some of Those That Go to Make Up the Day's Budget of Arrivals and Departures.

Irving Neighbor, of Somerset street, has been spending the past two days with Philadelphia friends.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. W. Bamberger, of Jackson avenue, are the parents of a baby boy who came to their home, Monday.

A daughter arrived at the home of George Bremmer, of Harrison avenue, hesterday afternoon. The little one is doing nicely and weighs twelve pounds.

Miss Mildred Tyrrell, of East Fifth street, has been entertaining Miss Ethel Wyckoff, of Somerville, and Miss Nellie Todd, of Trenton, for the past week.

George Bedford and family have gone on a pleasure trip to Plymouth and some of the surrounding cities of interest. Before his return he will visit Waterbury.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel R. Douglas, of 4 Mercer avenue, are receiving congratulations upon the arrival of a daughter. The young woman was born yesterday afternoon.

NO REPORT YET.

Grand Jury Adjourned This Morning to Await New Witnesses Who Are Wanted.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 28—The Grand Jury convened this morning at 9 o'clock, when it was expected that a report would be prepared for presentation to the court regarding the Coroner's jury verdict as to the causes of the wreck on the New Jersey Central at Westfield. This was not done, however, and the Grand Jury adjourned to meet next Monday, for the purpose of allowing more time to examine some desirable witnesses.

It is said that there are some witnesses the jury has not been able to get hold of and additional time is granted for that purpose.

PLANS NEARLY READY.

Music Hall Will be Opened April 1—Other Improvements to Follow.

Although the work on the remodelled Music Hall has not been going on as rapidly as it was expected it would, plans are almost completed for putting in a new entrance and opening exits from the place. The interior of the playhouse will be left as it is for the present season but after the first season new seats will be installed and galleries will be put in. A large assignment of seats has been ordered but they cannot now be delivered before August. The hall will probably be opened by the first of April.

To Speak on Early Closing.

Father Miller, of St. Joseph's church, has consented to speak in his church in behalf of the early closing movement being agitated by the Retail Clerks' Mutual Aid Association. He will probably speak on the subject either next Sunday or the following Sunday. Rev. Father Egan, of St. Mary's church, will also have something to say on the subject later on.

Filling Hollow Places.

Street Commissioner Andrew Gavett has a force of men at work on West End avenue, between the brook and Front street, filling in the hollow places with slag and cinders secured from the Pond Tool Works. This makes the best kind of a foundation for a pavement and does even better than earth.

Lenten Services.

Lenten services will be held at St. Peter's Lutheran church every Friday evening during Lent. The services will commence at 7:30 o'clock. Thursday evenings the Swedish Lutheran services will be held at the same hour.

Former Plainfielder Preached.

At the anniversary exercises held in the Flemington M. E. church, last evening, Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, a former pastor, was one of the speakers. Mr. O'Donnell formerly preached at Monroe Avenue church.

Pennsy's Mileage.

A recent report of the Pennsylvania Railroad shows that it has a total mileage of 10,558 miles, with seventy-one miles of ferries and canals. This includes everything east and west of Pittsburg.

Removing Snow.

Up to Tuesday of this week Street Commissioner Andrew Gavett had a large force of men at work in different parts of the city clearing the snow off the sidewalk.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Hill Saxton, of Grandview avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Jessie Eliot, to Harold Boylston Clark, of Elizabeth.

Initiation and Smoker.

Proposals for Furnishing Crushed Stone and Material for Culverts and Crosswalks.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, at the regular adjourned meeting held February 24, 1903, notice is hereby given that the Committee on Streets and Sewers will meet at the office of the Committee, No. 151 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, on Thursday, March 12, 1903, at 8 o'clock p. m., at which time and place said Committee on Streets and Sewers will receive sealed proposals for furnishing crushed stone, and for furnishing material for culverts and crosswalks as follows:

For crushed stone for the remainder of the year 1903, the bids to state the price per ton of 2,000 lbs. for furnishing the following sizes, viz:

Fine screenings, ½ inch clean stone, 1½ inch stone and 2½ inch stone, in such quantities, and delivered at such places in the City as the Street Commissioner may direct.

The above must be of the very best quality of trap rock, free from weathered stone, dirt, clay or other foreign matter, and in every way acceptable to the said Street Commissioner.

The stone must be weighed on such scales as the Street Commissioner may direct, and a voucher or weigh bill must be delivered with every load to the said Street Commissioner or his authorized representative.

Also for furnishing the following materials for culverts and crosswalks:

Cover stone for culverts not larger than 4 ft. by 3 ft. by not less than 3½ inches in thickness, per square foot.

Curbing for side walls 16 inches by 4 inches, 3 to 6 ft. long, per lineal foot.

Curbing for side walls 20 inches by 4 inches, 3 to 6 ft. long, per lineal foot.

Crosswalk stone 24 inches by not less than 4 inches, 3 to 4½ feet long, Belgian edge, per lineal foot.

Crosswalk stone 24 inches by not less than 4 inches, 3 to 4½ feet long, flag edge, per lineal foot.

All to be of the best quality hard bluestone and subject to the approval of the Street Commissioner.

Upon receipt of the bids or proposals the Committee on Streets and Sewers will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or their agents choose to be then and there present, and also make proper record of the prices and terms.

The right to reject any or all bids is expressly reserved.

By order of the Common Council and the Committee on Streets and Sewers.

TWO BIG GAMES IN BASKET BALL LEAGUE

I. C. T. Club and Reform Club Meet for First Time in the League This Evening.

PLAY WILL BE EVEN

HOPE Y. M. A. AND Y. M. C. A. WILL MEET MONDAY NIGHT.

That Game May Decide the Championship of the Plainfield Amateur Basket Ball League—At Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium.

PLAINFIELD AMATEUR BASKET BALL LEAGUE.

	Won.	Lost.	Ave.
Hope Y. M. A.	2	0	1.000
Y. M. C. A.	2	0	1.000
I. C. T. Club	0	2	.000
Reform Club	0	2	.000

Two of the most important games in the Plainfield Amateur Basket Ball League are scheduled for this evening and Monday evening. Tonight the fives of the I. C. T. Club and the Reform Club meet in the rooms of the former. These two new teams have so far met both of the veteran fives but have not played each other in a league contest. As the two newcomers in the league, the meeting is looked forward to with more than the ordinary interest.

It should be about an even thing between the two teams although in the games already played, the Reform Club has made the best showing. There is no telling what will be done when they meet. I. C. T. Club will have the advantage of its own rooms and that should count for something. The game is going to be hard fought anyhow, and each team is making special preparations for it. While the I. C. T. boys defeated their Reform Club rivals in a practice game some time ago, the play of both teams has improved materially since then and it is a question as to which has improved the more.

Monday's game promises to be of special interest and will undoubtedly play an important part in settling the championship of the league. The Hope Y. M. A. and the Y. M. C. A. will meet for the first time since the new schedule was adopted and a brisk game is assured. The teams will meet in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. While the Y. M. C. A. has twice defeated the Hope boys there, the last game was won by two points and the Hopes are playing much stronger now than they were then. As these two teams are now tied for first pace, victory Monday night may mean victory for the pennant.

MARRIED IN CHILI.

Former Plainfielder Married An American Who Visited There.

News has been received in this city of the wedding of Miss Florence Osgood, of Cincinnati, to William Waldo Suydam, formerly of this city, where he formerly resided on Crescent avenue. The wedding took place in Chili where the groom is employed in an electrical concern. Miss Osgood was visiting at Chili with her parents and while there her father died, as a result of injuries sustained by a gun exploding prematurely while Mr. Osgood was out hunting. The wedding was quietly celebrated. Mr. and Mrs. Suydam will remain in Chili.

William Vosseller Married.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, Feb. 27—Wm. Vosseller, of this place, and Miss Mae Wilson, of West Town, N. Y., were married at the former's home, Wednesday evening, in the presence of a large assemblage of guests. The bride is a daughter of a former pastor of the Methodist church of Bound Brook. Wm. A. Fisher, of Bound Brook, acted as best man. The young couple will reside in this borough.

Cuban Giants Ball.

The Cuban Giants Baseball Club held a dance and entertainment last evening in Saengerbund Hall. There were large delegations present from out of town including many from Elizabeth and Newark. The committee having the affair in charge comprised P. J. Simmons, chairman; A. Johnson, Wm. Davis, J. A. Perkins, E. Britton, R. Hopkins, floor managers, and Wm. F. Walters, general manager.

Granted a Patent.

Louis Borsum, of Woodland avenue, has been granted a valuable patent for improvements in photographic cameras.

SUCCESSFUL TRIP.

The Jenrenauds Have Returned After Trip of Forty Weeks.

Arnold and Emile Jenrenaud, of this city, the well known musical team, are in town after a successful season of forty weeks on the Orpheum circuit, through the middle west. They closed Tuesday in Wheeling, W. Va., and will spend several weeks in Plainfield recuperating before again going on the road for a long engagement. Their last tour was a continuous success and they are now ranked as one of the best musical comedy teams in the business.

CHAPERONE NEARLY DROWNED

MRS. ADAM BLAIR FELL THROUGH ICE ON TIER'S POND.

Had Accompanied Party of Boys and Girls—Walked on Weak Ice Which Gave Way.

While chaperoning a party of young boys and girls on Tier's pond Washington's birthday, Mrs. Adam Blair, wife of the proprietor of the livery stables on West Sixth street, had a narrow escape from losing her life by falling through the thin ice.

The younger members of the pary were skating about the pond early in the afternoon while Mrs. Blair walked about the ice. She started to go towards the shore when the ice gave way suddenly and Mrs. Blair sank up to her armpits in the chilly water. The cries of the children brought a man to her assistance and he rescued her from her dangerous position. The water at that spot is very dangerous as it is deep and whirls about the spot in a strong eddy as it follows the channel of the stream.

Mrs. Blair was able to go to her home at 433 East Fifth street where she was made comfortable. She was able to be around yesterday none the worse for her cold plunge.

WORK DIDN'T SUIT.

So the Painter Brought Suit and Recovered Most of the Amount He Wanted.

What appeared on the surface to be an ordinary contract case led to an interesting session of Justice Nash's court, yesterday afternoon.

The principals were Edward M. Ayers, of the Painters' Supply House, who was the plaintiff and William Taylor, the defendant. Attorney V. W. Nash, Jr., appeared for Ayers and G. W. V. Moy represented Taylor.

Ayers claimed $23.16, the difference in a bill rendered by him for painting and wall papering at Taylor's home. The defendant claimed the amount of paper was not what it was represented and also that the work was not done in a thoroughly artistic manner. James F. Buckle, president of the Common Council, was called in by the defense as an expert to testify as to the workmanship, but proved a better witness for the plaintiff. The court rendered a verdict in favor of Ayers for $19.45. Attorney Moy immediately gave notice of appeal.

Attempt to Rob Letter Box in Front of Sub Postoffice.

Tuesday night an attempt was made to rob the large letter receptacle in front of the sub-postoffice on Somerset street, North Plainfield. A large iron bar was wedged down inside the box and from marks on the inside it is evident that the men tried to pry off the top of the box. The letter box was so badly damaged that a new one was installed yesterday. No clue was left as to who the men were who tampered with the receptacle.

A Finished Look.

The new store of Woodhull & Martin on East Front street is beginning to take on a finished look. Yesterday a metal cornice was placed on the front of the roof and the building has something of the appearance of its completed design. The cornice which extends the entire length of the front of the building is put up in pieces. The metal work is about six feet wide at its broadest part.

PRAISE FOR THE MAYOR

Many Annexationists and "Antis," Regardless of Party, Favor His Re-Election.

INTERVIEWS WITH THEM

Opinions of Some Boroughites As to Mayor Smalley and the Kind of a Chief Executive He Has Been—All Are Well Pleased With the Record He Has Made.

On the night of the Republican primary to be held in the borough it seems appropriate that the opinions of prominent residents of that municipality concerning the Mayoralty should be given. There has been all sorts of talk regarding the various candidates for the chief office in the borough administration, and there has been much said about Mayor Newton B. Smalley standing for a re-election. That this sentiment has grown rapidly there is no doubt. It has been the boast of a large number of people that Mayor Smalley has been one of the best chief executives the borough has ever had, and in substantiation of this fact the opinion of a few boroughites is herewith given.

George T. Rogers, who served the borough as a Councilman and who then as well as ever since has been alive to the best interests of that community, was questioned as to his opinion of Mayor Smalley as a candidate for re-election. In reply Mr. Rogers said:

"If Mayor Smalley will stand for a renomination I believe it should be given to him on a gold platter. My intimate knowledge of Mr. Smalley during the time that I served as a Councilman and under his predecessor, who, by the way, was one of the best Mayors in the history of the borough, enables me to speak with assurance. I was, as everyone knows, in favor of Mayor Wilson for a re-election and I was out and out opposed to Mr. Smalley for the office. I did not even have one part of friendship for him when he took the office. After my service with him I learned to admire him as a man and Mayor. Certainly no one could possibly give more intelligent effort in behalf of the borough than he, unless there were more than twenty-four hours in a day.

"Mayor Smalley is around the borough most of the time and knows the needs of the various departments. He is in touch with the people and in a peculiar way most accessible to all who demand his attention. It makes little difference to me what a man's views are on other subjects, annexation or anti-annexation. What we want is the right man for Mayor and four years of trial has shown Mr. Smalley to be the right man. No one qualified to judge of borough affairs can criticize Mayor Smalley's official acts.

"It this connection I have been informed that Charles S. Lee is a candidate for re-election to the Council. I hope this is true. He is an intelligent and painstaking Councilman and I trust he will allow his name to be used and that he will be re-elected."

John Valiant, who has also served the borough as a Councilman, and part of the time while Mr. Rogers held a similar position, is probably one of the best qualified to speak on the subject. Mr. Valiant says that Mr. Smalley has made an excellent Mayor and has devoted a great deal of time to the office. He favors a re-election in Mr. Smalley's case, believing he would continue to serve the borough in an efficient manner.

Although William L. Saunders, a former Mayor of the borough, is a staunch Democrat, when asked his opinion of Mayor Smalley's services in the past as chief executive, said that Mr. Smalley had been one of the best mayors the borough ever had and he seemed to think that he would be renominated. Mr. Saunders said, however, that he being a Democrat, would attend his party's primary this evening and do all possible for its success.

Samuel Townsend, another Democrat, could not help but pay tribute to Mayor Smalley, as an excellent, careful official. This he considered was due to the fact that Mr. Smalley was about the borough a great deal and is thoroughly acquainted with the needs. Mr. Townsend also felt that Mr. Smalley would get a renomination, although being of the opposite party, said that he was not in a position to know the plans of the Republicans.

S. St. John McCutchen, still another Democrat, when asked if Mayor Smalley had not made an excellent official, replied that he had served the borough well.

It seems to be the general opinion of both Democrats and Republicans that Mr. Smalley stands the best show for a renomination at the hands of his party, although several express an idea that there may be some surprises when the primary is held. Of the number of people seen not one depreciated the services rendered the borough by Mayor Smalley, and for this reason it would appear that a majority of the voters are more or less favorable to him.

William C. Smith: "We never had a better mayor since we have been a borough and, although his politics last fall did not suit me, I think that if he was nominated for a third term he would stand a good chance of being elected. I think he will have little or no difficulty in securing an election. I consider his chances good and would be willing to work for him because I think we want a man of his type for mayor."

L. E. Barkelew: "I believe that it is the general opinion at present that if a good man was nominated by the Democrats Smalley would be defeated. Smalley, however, has many friends and he has made a good mayor. Some things he agreed to do have not been done, notably, the decreasing of taxes. They have been raising right along. He has been the best mayor we have ever had simply because he has personally looked after things and consequently things in the borough are in a very good condition at present. No mayor has ever taken the interest in the borough as Smalley has but many will vote against him on account of the stand he took in the annexation matter."

"If the annexation question was brought up again, how would you vote?" questioned the reporter.

"If it was brought up in the proper way, namely, by the people, I think it would go through. I voted against it before but if it was started right I would vote for it."

A. J. Winkler: "Smalley has made as a good mayor and, in my opinion, no other candidate has such a good chance. The annexation question has no bearing on this election and I think it is purely a party concern and it is a fight to elect the best man. If the Democrats put up a good man I think Smalley's chances will be lessened for re-election."

Harrison Codington: "Mayor Smalley has always been a strong candidate but whether the annexation question will have any effect upon his re-election, it is hard to tell. He has made a good mayor but I was opposed to him on the annexation questions, as he knows. I think that if he gets the Republican nomination he will be elected."

"You say you were opposed to the annexation scheme; how would you vote if the question was brought up again?" he was asked. He replied: "I have had no reason to change my mind since then."

Horace J. Martin: "The borough of North Plainfield has never had a better mayor than Mayor Smalley. In my opinion the annexation question will not effect his chances for re-election in the least and there is no question but that he will be the next mayor regardless of the candidates put up by the opposite party."

A very prominent merchant on Somerset street, who would not allow his name to be mentioned in connection with his statement, for obvious reasons, said that in his opinion Smalley will be re-elected if he is nominated again for mayor.

He said that Mayor Smalley has been a good mayor which has had to be admitted by many, who, when he was first elected, said that he would not make a good executive. The manner in which he has conducted that affairs of the borough since he has been in office has proven a great surprise to many because he has shown that he has a great amount of executive ability and tact. He promised to lower the taxes. This promise he has partially fulfilled. Some of the taxes he has lowered while the taxes on other things he has not reduced. Notwithstanding this he has done much for the borough. One thing in particular is the widening of Somerset street which has been the greatest thing that could have happened to the borough.

"I do not think there is another man in the borough who has such good chances of success as Mayor Smalley for re-election."

DEMOCRATS ARE AT SEA

Lots of Names Mentioned for Their Mayoralty Candidates, But All Are Uncertain.

COUNCIL CANDIDATES

Prominent Greater City Advocates and "Antis" Are Both Mentioned for Places on the Democratic Ticket—Splendid Opportunity for the "Dark Horse."

The withdrawal of David J. Carney from the candidacy for mayor of North Plainfield against Mayor Newton B. Smalley, has thrown the Democrats of the borough into a quandary for a likely candidate. The conditions as they existed this morning showed conclusively that the Democrats were all at sea and seemed anxious for a "dark horse" to appear to relieve their anxiety. Matters were in such a way that theory of "man wanted" was raised upon the streets by a number of Democrats who were in search of a man to run for the office.

There were a number of names mentioned upon the streets and sidewalk caucuses who were considered as possible candidates but no one in particular was definitely decided upon.

Among those who were mentioned as candidates were Samuel St. John McCutchen and John A. VanWinkle, Sr. The latter has declined to allow his name to be mentioned and the former is considered as being doubtful. Samuel Townsend is another Democrat whose name was spoken of this morning but it is thought by some that he would not consent to a nomination. John Case and Richard Boyce were also spoken of as candidates.

George Baird has been mentioned as a candidate for councilman as has Louis Van Nest. Henry Klinsman was mentioned this morning and it is considered that his chances are good for a nomination.

When asked this morning who their probable candidates were a prominent Democrat would not give out any names. He said that that matter would be settled this evening at the Democratic caucus.

For councilmen the Republicans have secured the names of Charles A. Lee and Morris C. VanArsdale. They are considered strong candidates and it is a foregone conclusion that they will be nominated this evening.

TO KEEP OUT REPORTERS

PROSECUTOR ENGLISH HAD TO CLEAR COUNTY BUILDINGS OF THEM.

To Prevent Their Getting Inside Information of Doings of Grand Jury.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Feb. 27—For the purpose of taking every precaution against reporters and correspondents getting inside information about the work of the Grand Jury in connection with the Westfield wreck, Prosecutor English, yesterday, ordered the constables to clear the county building of reporter and correspondents. Mr. English has been aggravated over the attempt of these scribes to get inside information.

The jury had taken extra precautions to keep the newspaper men out. One constable was placed at the hall entrance to the jury room and another stationed at the head of the hallway. Instructions were also given to keep newspaper men from interviewing witnesses as they left the jury room.

A short session was held yesterday. Former Sheriff Robert G. Houston, one of the jurymen, was unable to be present on account of sickness, but the session went on without him. Through the thick walls could be heard indications that the jurors were engaged in a heated discussion. A number of witnesses waited without, but were not called.

MASONIC RECEPTION.

Delegation From Plainfield at Opening Reception in New Masonic Building at Cranford.

A delegation of Anchor Lodge, F. and A. M., members was included in a large gathering of Masons at Cranford, last evening, in honor of the opening reception in Azure Lodge's new building. Masonic brethren were present also from Westfield, Bound Brook, Somerville and Elizabeth.

Following the communication, the visitors sat down to an elaborate banquet served in an attractive room fitted especially for such affairs. Later in the evening numerous informal addresses were made.

Among the Grand Lodge officers present were Grand Master Apgar, Deputy Grand Master John H. Wilkins, Grand Senior Warden Benjamin F. Wakefield, Grand Junior Warden Walter Chandler, Grand Secretary Thomas R. Radway, District Deputy William Wolfskiel and Past Grand Master G. W. Fortmeyer.

PUMP FELL.

While Being Unloaded From Car For Plainfield Water Supply Company.

While unloading from a car a part of the new pump which recently arrived in this city from the Worthington Pump Company, Brooklyn, consigned to the Plainfield Water Supply Company, a hook, which supported a chain which was fastened around the piece of machinery, broke and the piece of machinery, weighing many tons, fell to the ground and was damaged. The pump did not belong to the water company as it is not their property until after it is set up. The contract for moving the pump and for setting it up was given to William Hand & Son, of East Second street.

The pump is worth $30,000 but the damage done to it by the fall will not be known until this afternoon when a representative of Worthington & Company, will come to this city to look over the damaged machinery.

WHAT RIVAL 'PHONE COMPANY WOULD DO

Plans of Central New Jersey Telephone Company Which Has Applied for Franchise.

ITS FOUR TRUNK LINES

PLAINFIELD WOULD BE LOCATED ON ONE OF THEM.

The Company Proposes to Install the Clark Automatic Telephone Switchboard—Each Subscriber Does His Own Calling.

There is another determined effort to introduce a second telephone system in Plainfield, in opposition to the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, the old-established corporation. When the Central New Jersey Telephone Company made application to the Council Tuesday evening for a franchise, it caused considerable comment. While the new company has extensive plans for covering New Jersey, there seems to be some doubt as to whether the Council would be willing to give out a second franchise. However, the company, through it's attorney, Wm. N. Runyon, has asked for a hearing and this will no doubt be granted soon. The result of this will be waited with interest.

Four trunk lines are proposed by the new company and according to the articles of incorporation recently filed with the Secretary of State, Plainfield is to be on the third line, which starts from the first line at Elizabeth and connects all the principal places between Elizabeth and Plainfield and Metuchen. The first line starts at New Brunswick and connects all the principal towns and cities along the New Jersey coast down as far as Sea Girt. The second trunk line connects all of the towns in the vicinity of New Brunswick and includes Helmetta, Jamesburg, Farmingdale, Englishtown, Freehold, Manasquan and reconnects at Sea Girt. The fourth line will connect with the third line at Dunellen and connect with Bound Brook and Somerville.

It is proposed to install the Clark automatic telephone switch board, thus doing away with the expense of maintaining a private exchange. This is an inter-communicative telephone system and will be installed in factories and business houses.

The Clark apparatus consists of two parts, an automatic telephone dial and an automatic switch board. The dial will be located at the subscriber's 'phone or calling station and the switches are all concentrated at a central point.

According to this system subscriber having a calling dial has absolute control over his own automatic switch and can call any person in the system, independent of the other subscribers.

The dial contains seventy-four numbers. The pointer is moved to the number desired and allowed to run down. The operation of running down connects the subscriber's instrument with the party desired. After that the operation is the same as in any other system.

EVERYBODY LIKED HIM.

James Harding, Once a Messenger Boy, Died After Short Illness.

Following an illness of but a few days from pneumonia, death came yesterday afternoon to James Harding, an eighteen-year-old boy, at the home of his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Harding, of 617 South Second street.

The young man was very well known throughout the city, especially with the business men as he had been a Western Union messenger for many years. He was quiet in disposition but of such a sunny nature that everyone with whom he came in contact became his friend. At the time of his death he was employed in the foundry department of the Pond Tool Works.

The funeral services will be held from his mother's home, tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and from St. Mary's church at 9:45.

John Doud, of the borough, who has been ill with a severe cold for the past week, is now recovering. In spite of his indisposition he was able to remain at his desk in the substation of the postoffice on Somerset street.

THEATRICAL.

Preparations are already being made at the Casino for the 350th performance of "A Chinese Honeymoon" at that popular playhouse. The date of this performance is on Wednesday night, March 25, and the souvenirs to be given on that occasion will be the prettiest, the most expensive and the most useful which have ever marked a commemorative theatrical performance anywhere in the world. Next Monday will begin the forty-fourth week of consecutive performances at the Casino of the "evergreen musical success," as many writers have referred to "A Chinese Honeymoon."

Klaw & Erlanger's colossal production of the Drury Lane spectacle, "Mr. Blue Beard," at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, is the greatest spectacular success ever recorded in the history of the New York stage and is turning people away at every performance. It is not only a great spectacle, but also a wonderfully comic entertainment. It is a combination of both the artistic and the humorous and applause and laughter prevail throughout its presentation. Dan McAvoy, who plays "Mr. Blue Beard," has scored an especially notable hit in his own comic song, "The Beer That Made Milwaukee Famous," assisted by Bonnie Maginn and the Pony Ballet, eight beautiful little English dancers. Seats are constantly on sale four weeks ahead. All correspondence receives special attention through the mail order bureau.

PENNSY'S SENATOR SPEAKS

QUAY OUTLINES HIS POSITION IN PHILADELPHIA NORTH AMERICAN.

Will be One of the Features of Next Sunday's Issue of That Paper—On Statehood Bill.

Senator Quay is the champion of the Statehood bill now before the United States Senate. He also is an enthusiastic sponsor for the people of the Territory of New Mexico, which he describes in an extended article written by him for the Magazine Section of next Sunday's North American.

For more than fifty years New Mexico has knocked at the door and demanded recognition as a right inherent in the treaty which annexed the territory to the Union. Statehood has been demanded of twenty-nine Congresses, and at least once a bill passed both houses and failed only because of the neglect or sinister act of the then Speaker of the House of Representatives, who permitted the bill to remain upon his desk.

In his effort to make New Mexico a State, and, incidentally, make his friend and former lieutenant, W. H. Andrews, a United States Senator, Mr. Quay has braved the indignant protest of the united press of the country, and dared to threaten to encompass the defeat of the Panama Canal bill.

In next Sunday's magazine section of the North American Senator Quay tells in a statement especially prepared for The North American the reasons for his advocacy of the admission of New Mexico into Statehood. Territorial Senator W. H. Andrews, formerly Senator from Crawford county, Pa., now a heavy owner of mines and president of railroads in the new country, also gives to the readers of The North American an inside view of the resources of the Territory.

And there's something else in the Sunday North American.

Boys, how would you like the best hand-car wagon on the market?

How would a handsome piano, three feet high, suit you girls?

These and more than a dozen tip-top prizes are offered by the Philadelphia Sunday North American. You can win them by answering one simple question.

Look for pictures and description of them on the children's page in next Sunday's North American.

IN WESLEY'S MEMORY

President Speaks at Bicentennial of Methodism.

MASS MEETING IN CARNEGIE HALL

Prominent Members of the Church Listen to Roosevelt's Tribute—Addresses by Chancellor Day and Bishop Andrews.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Carnegie hall was crowded to suffocation last evening. The occasion was the bicentenary celebration of the birth of the founder of Methodism, John Wesley. President Roosevelt was the principal speaker of the evening. Besides the president's speech there were addresses by Bishop Andrews and the Rev. James R. Day, chancellor of Syracuse university.

Seats and boxes were at an enormous premium. It is said that fully 12,000 more seats could have been sold if the hall would have held the people. Boxes sold for $1,000, and seats were going at all prices, from $5 up to $20. The proceeds will be devoted to the "twentieth century movement."

The president arrived in the city at 5 p. m. He was driven to the house of Samuel W. Bowne on West Fifty-seventh street, where he took dinner with a large party of friends. The president left Carnegie hall about half past 9 o'clock and drove to the University club, Fifth avenue and Fifty-fifth street, where he was to meet a number of old friends. He remained until midnight, when he left the city on a special train for Washington.

The scene at Carnegie hall was an inspiring one. The stage was filled with many men prominent in state and church affairs, including some of the most distinguished men in the Methodist church. The president was loudly cheered when he arose to speak. His subject was "Methodism." He spoke in part as follows:

I am glad to have the chance of addressing this representative body of the great church which Wesley founded on the occasion of the commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of his birth. America, moreover, has a peculiar proprietary claim on Wesley's memory, for it is on our continent that the Methodist church has received its greatest development. In the days of our colonial life Methodism was not on the whole a great factor in the religious and social life of the people. The Congregationalists were supreme throughout most of New England, the Episcopalians on the seaboard from New York southward, while the Presbyterian congregations were most numerous along what was then the entire western frontier, and the Quaker, Catholic and Dutch Reformed churches each had developments in special places. The great growth of the Methodist church, like the great growth of the Baptist church, began at about the time of the Revolutionary war. Today my theme is purely Methodism.

Since the days of the Revolution not only has the Methodist church increased greatly in the old communities of the thirteen original states, but it has played a peculiar and prominent part in the pioneer growth of our country and has in consequence assumed a position of immense importance throughout the vast region west of the Alleghanies which has been added to our nation since the days when the Continental congress first met.

For a century after the Declaration of Independence the greatest work of our people, with the exception only of the work of self preservation under Lincoln, was the work of the pioneers as they took possession of this continent. During that century we pushed westward from the Alleghanies to the Pacific, southward to the gulf and the Rio Grande, and also took possession of Alaska. The work of advancing our boundary, of pushing the frontier across forest and desert and mountain chain, was the great typical work of our nation, and the men who did it—the frontiersmen, the pioneers, the backwoodsmen, plainsmen, mountain men—formed a class by themselves. It was an iron task which none but men of iron soul and iron body could do.

In the hard and cruel life of the border, with its grim struggle against the forbidding forces of wild nature and wilder men, there was much to pull the frontiersman down. If left to himself, without moral teaching and moral guidance, without any of the influences that tend toward the uplifting of man and the subduing of the brute within him, sad would have been his and therefore our fate. From this fate we have been largely rescued by the fact that together with the rest of the pioneers went the pioneer preachers, and all honor be given to the Methodists for the great proportion of these pioneer preachers whom they furnished.

These preachers were of the stamp of old Peter Cartwright—men who suffered and overcame every hardship in common with their flock and who in addition tamed the wild and fierce spirits of their fellow pioneers. It was not a task that could have been accomplished by men desirous to live in the soft places of the earth and to walk easily on life's journey. They had in them the heroic spirit, the spirit that scorns ease if it must be purchased by failure to do duty, the spirit that courts risk and a life of hard endeavor if the goal to be reached is really worth attaining. Great is our debt to these men and scant the patience we need show toward their critics.

And now, friends, in celebrating the wonderful growth of Methodism, in rejoicing at the good it has done to the country and to mankind, I need hardly ask a body like this to remember that the greatness of the fathers becomes to the children a shameful thing if they use it only as an excuse for inaction instead of as a spur to effort for noble aims. I speak to you not only as Methodists; I speak to you as American citizens. The pioneer days are over. We now all of us form parts of a great civilized nation, with a complex industrial and social life and infinite possibilities both for good and for evil. The instruments with which and the surroundings in which we work have changed immeasurably from what they were in the days when the rough backwoods preachers ministered to the moral and spiritual needs of their rough backwoods congregations. But if we are to succeed the spirit in which we do our work must be the same as the spirit in which they did theirs. These men drove forward and fought their way upward to success because their sense of duty was in their hearts, in the very marrow of their bones.

Life is not easy, and least of all is it easy for either the man or the nation that aspires to do great deeds. In the century opening the play of the infinitely far-reaching forces and tendencies which go to make up our social system bids fair to be even fiercer in its activity than in the century which has just closed. If we are to do as I believe we shall and will do, if we are to advance in broad humanity, in kindliness, in the spirit of brotherhood, exactly as we advance in our conquest over the hidden forces of nature, it must be by developing strength in virtue and virtue in strength, by breeding and training men who shall be both good and strong, both gentle and valiant—men who scorn wrongdoing and who at the same time have both the courage and the strength to strive mightily for the right.

I come here tonight to greet you and to pay my tribute to your past because you have deserved well of mankind, because you have striven with strength and courage to bring nearer the day when peace and justice shall obtain among the peoples of the earth.

KILLED MANY WOMEN.

Knapp Calmly Confesses to Slaying Five—Other Cases Suspected.

HAMILTON, O., Feb. 27.—Knapp, the wife murderer, is now suspected of strangling three women at Evansville, Ind., and to have killed women elsewhere. He was in the Cincinnati house of refuge when seventeen years old, and new records are being discovered almost hourly.

Knapp, according to the police, is a degenerate of a pronounced type. The murder of his third wife, Annie Goddard Knapp, which led to Knapp's arrest in Indianapolis, was done "I don't know why," to quote the prisoner. Knapp's confession, which was sworn to before Mayor Bosch, is as follows:

"On Jan. 21, 1894, I killed Emma Littleman in a lumber yard in Gest street, Cincinnati; on Aug. 1, 1894, I killed May Eckert in Walnut street, opposite the Y. M. C. A., in Cincinnati; on Aug. 7, 1894, I killed my wife, Jennie Connors Knapp, under the canal bridge in Liberty street, Cincinnati, and threw her into the canal. In Indianapolis in July, 1895, I killed Ida Gebhard. On Dec. 22, 1902, I killed my wife, Annie Knapp, at 339 South Fourth street, in Hamilton, and threw her into the river at Lindenwald. This is the truth.

"I make this statement by my own free will and not by the request of any officer or any one else."

Knapp has served five prison sentences, three for larceny and two for assault. He has served two terms at Jeffersonville, Ind.; one at Columbus, O.; one at Joliet, Ill., and one at Michigan City, Ind., to which prison he was sent from Indianapolis in 1806 for assault on Bessie Drapier, a child.

Since his return in December the police feel sure he has been guilty of two barn burnings. When he was convicted for the Drapier assault, he threatened to get even with every one concerned in his conviction.

Ex-Sheriff Womack, then sheriff, gained his enmity. His barn was recently burned, and several fine horses and imported cattle were roasted to death.

Al Boardman was one of the jurors who convicted him, and his barn was burned about six or seven weeks ago. Almost every hour adds to the long list of crimes laid to the man's door.

Knapp Insane.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 27.—The parents of Knapp here say that Albert is insane and his confession should not be believed. Albert has given them so much trouble they believe he would be better dead. When five years old, he was kicked by a colt and later was struck by lightning.

Wireless Messages From Martinique.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—United States Consul Ayme at Guadeloupe announces that the French army engineers have established a wireless telegraphic connection with the island of Martinique, and already official messages between the governors of the two colonies have been exchanged. The consul says that all cable communication has been interrupted for several months, and the wireless system is the only means of sending telegraphic messages.

Bank President to Surrender.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Feb. 27.—George F. Kroehl, president of the defunct First National bank, is expected to return here today and surrender himself. John C. Robinson, a New York lawyer, has telephoned to Examiner Vredenberg and asked if there was a warrant for Mr. Kroehl's arrest. When told there was, he is said to have replied that Mr. Kroehl would submit to arrest.

PRIMARIES TONIGHT.

All eyes are centred on the borough tonight as both parties will hold their primaries and select their candidates for the coming municipal election in North Plainfield. That the Republicans will renominate Mayor N. B. Smalley seems a foregone conclusion. There is no such certainty regarding the acts of the Democrats.

This campaign has assumed lines which have never before been followed in any borough election contest. When it opened over a month ago, it did look as if the annexation fight was going to be fought over again at the spring election but since then there has come a factor into the field which has changed the conditions. That factor is Mayor Smalley. No one, who is at all acquainted with the situation, can deny for a moment that the bitterness engendered in the greater city fight is to some degree going to be carried into this campaign. But slowly and surely the chief issue of the campaign has drifted from the question of annexation to the personality of the Mayor himself. It is Mayor Smalley and his record which is going to be the pre-eminent issue of this campaign.

Mayor Smalley is not a man to retire under fire. So, when there came a demand that he continue the work he had begun, he expressed his willingness to accept the nomination despite the fact that he would have much preferred seeing it go to some one else. Now Mayor Smalley has a host of friends; people who, while they may not agree with him on all questions, believe that he is the man for the place and are well satisfied with the record he has made. Of course, his fellow workers in the greater city scheme were only too glad to see him nominated and their efforts have been seconded by a host of those who have been lined up among the "antis."

There are some boroughites who were bitterly opposed to annexation and who now allow that feeling to dominate their opinion of Mayor Smalley. They will oppose him with tooth and nail and will do their best to win votes from him on the ground that he is an annexationist. Despite their efforts to make annexation the only issue of the fight, it is now a recognized fact that it is not. The campaign is going to wage over Mayor Smalley and his record. Those borough voters who do not trust him as chief executive are to be against him. His friends, whether they favor or oppose annexation, are going to give him their solid support.

This new telephone company, which has applied for a franchise in this city, has asked for a public hearing before the Common Council. While the Council has taken no action on the request as yet, it seems probable that the request will be granted. The granting of a hearing does not signify that the Council will look upon the application with favor. The argument against allowing another 'phone company in this city is old. If the new system amounts to anything it will increase rather than decrease the expenses of the local merchants and business men as they will be compelled to become subscribers to both systems. If the present company was increasing its rates or giving particularly poor service, the invading company would stand a much better show of getting a franchise here.

The Grand Jury has adjourned until next Monday and it is said that there are certain witnesses which the Grand Jury is desirous of hearing before a verdict is reached. These witnesses are probably the railroad men from Philadelphia whose testimony some people expect will clear the dead engineer of responsibility. It may be that the Grand Jury will be able to get further evidence about the condition of engine No. 27 but, whatever that may be, the responsibility of the engineer cannot be shifted until there is proof that he did not run by the red signals which warned him of his danger or, at least, attempted to stop his train with that intention.

Assemblyman William Newcorn was one of those who bolted his party caucus on the investigation of charges against the doorkeeper. There are some questions which a man ought to answer for himself rather than await the decision of a majority of his party workers.

A coroner's jury is now trying to fix the responsibility for the trolley accident at Newark. The Newark News has well said that the blame is primarily on the city for allowing such a crossing to exist.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—The Christian Endeavor Society, of the First Bapist church, meet this evening.

—The regular communion service will be held at the Crescent Avenue church Sunday morning.

—The Bible classes, taught by the general secretary and physical director of the Y. M. C. A., met last evening as usual.

—Bible classes in the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., taught by J. W. Gavett, and E. R. Taylor, will meet this evening.

—The Woman's Home Missionary Society, of the Crescent Avenue church, will meet this afternoon in the church parlors.

—Grand Master Workman V. W. Nash visited Earnest Lodge, A. O. U. W., of Elizabethport, last evening and presented a jewel to a Past Master Workman.

—A meeting of the Session of the Crescent Avenue church will be held this evening after the prayer meeting to confer with anyone who desires to unite with the church.

—Boice, Runyon & Company have recently bought a handsome pair of fine dray horses from Asbury, N. J. They are sixteen and one half hands high and weigh 3,200 pounds. They will be used as truck horses in their business in this city.

Excellent Talent.

The Park Sisters, instrumentalists, who open the Supplemental Course at the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening, enjoy the distinction of being the only women's cornet quartette in the world and having made two most successful foreign trips are now of world-wide reputation. Miss Mildred Pipe, the elocutionist, is most strongly endorsed by pulpit and press as a reader of great and rare ability. See advertisement in another column.

Going to Build.

Philip Maguire, the well-known inspector of the trolley system in this city and whose station is in front of the traction office on Watchung avenue, is about ready to start the erection of a new house on West Fourth street. The house will be an attraction to the neighborhood and will cost $3,000. When it is completed Mr. Maguire will occupy it with his family.

Going to New Charge.

Rev. O. G. Norseen, the retiring minister of the Swedish Pilgrim church, of this city, leaves this afternoon for Brooklyn, where he will visit his parents, and Saturday he will be the assistant pastor of the Swedish Congregational church there.

New Director Chosen.

SUBURBAN NEWS

A Department Devoted to the Minor Events in Greater Plainfield's Suburbs by Our Own Correspondents.

DUNELLEN.

A very interesting and instructive meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edmund Teel, of Dunellen avenue. A large number of local women gathered to hear Mrs. Robertson, of Paterson, a well-known W. C. T. U. worker, deliver an address. Mrs. Robertson's talk was very much enjoyed as it told of W. C. T. U. work and aims. During the afternoon refreshments were served.

Wilson Fredricks is standing the skin grafting remarkably well at the hospital. His strength will be tested when the new skin commences to grow.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church will hold its monthly cake and pie sale in the W. C. T. U. rooms tomorrow.

Special services will be held in the Presbyterian church Sunday evening. Music will be rendered by an orchestra.

Ziba Osmun has added a large stage to his equipment and is now able to carry almost any number of passengers.

The Borough Council will hold the last meeting of the year Monday evening when all business will be settled up.

The Willing Workers will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs Stanley Day, in New Market.

The electric light wires on Washington avenue were repaired yesterday, as one wire was broken.

The Ladies' Aid Society will hold a social at the home of Mrs. George Giles next Thursday.

A young son has taken up his residence with Mr. and Mrs. Clement Dixon.

Herbert Richardsen is spending a few days at the home of James Craig.

The next meeting of the Literary Club will be held Tuesday evening.

Levering & Garrigues have a night gang working at their factory now.

The Board of Registry will meet in the Council Chamber, Tuesday.

William Winges is recovering from an illness with pneumonia.

Herbert Bruch and family have moved to New York City.

Alonzo A. Lake is slightly improved from a severe illness.

NEW MARKET.

A large number attended the lunch box social held last evening at the home of Miss Cora Dayton, the president of the Christian Endeavor Society. A unique plan was originated for raising money which proved quite successful. Each woman attending was expected to bring a lunch basket which was sold afterwards to the highest bidder. The buyer and the donor were then supposed to partake of the contents of the basket together. The evening was made pleasant by music and vocal selections.

Letters remain unclaimed for at the local postoffice for Miss Mary Brown and James Baker.

The baseball club has decided to lay out its diamond this year on Abram Nelson's lot.

J. Y. Wilson's men are cutting ice on the pond. It is not over six inches thick.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Tuesday evening, March 10, will be known in Royal Arcanum circles as "application night." The members of Fanwood Council are making great endeavors to make a decided gain in prospective membership on that night.

According to the township report, the local police force has not been an expensive luxury for the residents, as the fines collected by Judge Clark from drunks and disorderlies have nearly balanced accounts.

Mrs. Westcott, of Somerville, who has charge of a number of dancing classes in nearby towns, will have charge of the newly-organized class among the young people of the village and borough.

Conrad Peltz, a former tonsorial artist of the village but for several years past of Bayonne, will reopen a shop in the Baptist church building Saturday.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., held a large meeting in its rooms last night. At the close of routine business the members enjoyed social hour together.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace G. Young, of New York, have been visiting at the home of Ma Young's parents in the borough.

The "Brooksides" will hold their weekly practice shoot on their grounds near the mountains tomorrow afternoon.

Rev. G. M. Shott will have charge of the Friday evening prayer meeting at the Baptist church tonight.

Miss Reighnette Marsh is making an extended visit with friends at New Orleans, La.

The weekly teachers meeting of the Baptist Sunday-school was held last night.

Henry Keuhm, of Westfield, has been visiting relatives and friends in town.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Cornelius Young, of Clinton avenue, has sold his farm to a party at Westfield and will take up his residence in Plainfield, where he is employed as a bookkeeper.

Miss Imogene Smith, teacher of the primary grade in the local school, has been obliged to remain at home this week on account of illness.

Miss Marjorie Voorhees, of Metuchen, has been visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Manning.

Miss Nellie B. Manning, who has been suffering with tonsilitis for several days, has returned to her school duties.

PICTURES OF THE RHINE.

Shown to Members of Park Club by J. B. Betts Last Evening.

A great many beautiful scenes along the Rhine were shown at the Park Club, last evening, by J. B. Betts, of Washington Park, for the benefit of the building fund. Mr. Betts is a deputy in the State Department of Public Instruction, and the pictures shown last evening were a few of many taken for exhibit at the various public school institutes throughout the State. Mr. Betts operated the lantern-slides, while S. St. John McCutchen gave an interesting descriptive talk explaining the various pictures.

There was a good-sized audience present and it is believed that a fair sum will be realized as profit. Considerable laughter was occasioned over the last picture shown. It was that of C. W. McCutchen showing his son with his arms about his father's neck. This St. John McCutchen said gave an excellent illustration of the advantages of annexation. This remark caused loud and hearty applause.

Black Cat Club Ride.

The Black Cat Club, of the borough, went to Roselle, Wednesday evening, on a straw ride. At Roselle supper was served and the members returned home at a reasonable hour.

To Entertain at Dinner.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., will entertain the members of a Brooklyn Commandery at dinner Monday evening, March 9, at the Hotel Kensington.

—Reserved seat tickets for the Supplemental Course of entertainments of the Y. M. C. A. will be on sale at Hodge's pharmacy this evening at 8 o'clock.

The Easy Pill.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers do not gripe nor weaken the system. They cure biliousness, jaundice, constipation and inactive livers, by arousing the secretions, moving the bowels gently, yet effectually, and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach, liver and bowels that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely. These famous little pills exert a decided tonic effect upon the organs involved, and if their use is continued for a few days there will be no return of the trouble. L. W. Randolph.

COMPANY K STANDS FIRST

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S REPORT GIVES LOCAL COMPANY FIRST PLACE.

Despite Its Short Life Company Has 4 Experts, 10 Sharpshooters and 37 Marksmen.

In the matter of merit during the rifle practice of 1902, Company K, Second Regiment, of this city, is given the honor of first place. Its membership, according to a recent report, includes four experts, ten sharpshooters and thirty-seven marksmen, a total of fifty-one. The company is especially deserving of congtraulations in view of the fact that it was organized but little more than two years ago.

In the adjutant-general's report, just published, it is shown that the percentage of absentees at various military functions was entirely too large during 1902. This is especially true as to annual inspection and muster. In the Second Regiment there were 10½ per cent. of the members absent, as against 8 6-10 in 1901. Nearly 15 per cent. of the Third Regiment failed to put in appearance.

PERSONAL.

B. A. Hegeman, Jr., of Myrtle avenue, has been in St. Louis on a business trip.

Mrs. P. B. Hodge, of Plaifield avenue, is convalescing from a severe attack of the grip.

Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk and one of his sons are spending a few days at Atlantic City.

Harrison Durant, of Philadelphia, has been the guest of Dr. and Mrs. T. S. Davis, of Park avenue.

Samuel T. Overton, of Newark, who has been the guest of friends on Somerset street, has returned home.

The condition of B. A. Hegeman, Sr., of Sycamore avenue, is such today as to cause his family and friends anxiety.

Mrs. W. L. Saunders and Mrs. B. A. Hegeman, Jr., who have been sojourning at Atlantic City, are expected home tomorrow.

Superintendent of Schools Henry M. Maxson has been attending the superintendents' convention of School Masters' Association, held this past week at Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, of Watchung avenue, has returned from Williamstown, Mass., after a visit with her son, Brockholst K. Miller, a student at Williams College.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Patterson, of East Ninth street, will leave in a few days for Zanesville, Ohio, where they will spend two weeks. While there they will be at the Clarendon Hotel.

Kenreth Robbie, secretary of the boys' department of the Young Men's Christian Association, who has been recuperating since his recent illness, in Florida and the south, is expected home Saturday night.

Missionary Sunday.

Sunday will be observed at the Grace M. E. church as Missionary Sunday, when Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll will conduct the services. A large attendance is anticipated at these services and the music will be a special feature.

Knocked Out Teeth.

While swinging in a patent swing in his parents' house on Pearl street, yesterday, Willie Dunlap fell and knocked out several teeth against a door. The child was otherwise bruised, but not seriously injured.

Notice of Appeal.

Notice of appeal has been given in the contract case of the C. C. Mattress Company against A. B. Rosell, which was tried Tuesday before Justice Huff and a jury and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff.

Young Men's Supper.

The Young Men's Brotherhood of the First M. E. church will give a supper in Vincent chapel, this evening. It will be followed by an entertainment.

REGARDING EARLY CLOSING

PROGRESSIVE SAYS THERE IS NO DEMAND FOR LATE CLOSING.

Declares That Only Those Who Keep Late Hours Are Desirous of Keeping Open Evenings.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—At the last two meetings of the Board of Trade, several merchants who keep their stores open evenings, have been agitating the keeping open of the stores after 6 o'clock, for what reason it seems hard to find, as they keep open till nearly midnight and would be glad to keep open on Sundays if they could. As far as I have been able to find out, there is absolutely no demand by the people of Plainfield for the stores to keep open nights. The trend of the times is for shorter hours of labor, not only in the stores, but in all lines of business. People who work in stores work from 7 to 6 o'clock, while most all mechanics work from 8 to 4:30 o'clock.

Plainfield as a progressive up-to-date city cannot afford to take any steps backward in this early closing matter. Nearly all the stores in New York, Philadelphia and elsewhere open at 8:30 and close at 5, excepting in the busy seasons and close at noon all through the summer months. Wide awake merchants like John Wanamaker claim that salespeople who have a little time to themselves for rest and recreation, are better fitted for service the following day and it's good logic. One strange thing you will notice in connection with this agitation and that is that it is being done by the merchants who now keep open nearly all night as aforesaid. I am sure that when I say that the merchants who now close at 6 p. m., are perfectly satisfied and have no desire to keep open evenings, that I say it without fear of contradiction. Now what do these all night fellows want. If they have such a good thing and it pays them so handsomely to keep open, you'd naturally think they would be satisfied and want to keep it to themselves. The retail clerks of Plainfield worked hard to secure the 6 o'clock closing and have the support of the clergy and all others who have a desire to give their fellow men a lifting hand. People nowadays want to do their buying in the daylight and there is no more reason why the stores should go back to the all night movement, than there is to replace candles for electric lights.

Yours very truly,
Progressive.

Why Supply Wasn't Kept.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—In the columns of your paper last evening we saw what purported to be the Rev. Mr. Crudup as the pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church. Relative to this I desire to say first Rev. Mr. Crudup was never paster of the Mt. Olive Baptist church but only a supply. Our congregation declined under his administration, so much that we could not meet our necessary expenses, therefore we readly accepted his resignation. T. J. Barker, Clerk.

Council Meeting.

The regular March meeting of the Common Council will be held Monday evening, when it is expected there will be something definite done regarding the Gamewell patrol police system. There seems to be no doubt but what it is the ultimate intention of the Council to install the system and the details perfecting plans for such action are now being attended to.

Prepared Year's Budget.

The finance committee of the Y. M. C. A. met last evening at the residence of George P. Mellick. The following members of the committee were present: A. B. Beers, George P Mellick, John Doull Miller, Roger F Murray, J. W. Gavett, J. H. Case. W. D. Murray and also President Cahoone. The committee met to prepare the budget for the ensuing year.

Mrs. George Cheshire, of Oyster Bay, L. I., has returned home after spending four weeks with relatives in his city and Dunellen.

WARM TIME IN HOUSE

Republicans Unseat Butler and Seat Wagoner.

DEMOCRATIC MEMBERS FILIBUSTER

All Sorts of Tactics Resorted to by the Majority to Enable Them to Do Business—Many Measures May Fail.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Amid scenes which recalled the memorable and exciting days of the Fifty-first congress, when party feeling ran fiercely and the hall of representatives resounded with denunciation of the alleged "high handed methods" of the majority, James J. Butler (Mo.) was unseated yesterday by the house and George C. R. Wagoner was seated in his place. The Democrats had decided at their caucus that if this case was called up they would prosecute a filibuster from now until March 4, regardless of consequences to legislation, and they began the fight as soon as the gavel fell at noon. Roll call followed roll call, and it took over three hours to approve the journal of Wednesday's proceedings. Then when the decks were cleared the case was called. A spirited debate of two hours followed, and finally after repeated roll calls the case was brought to a vote. The Democrats then attempted to block things by leaving the hall, but enough absentees finally were brought in to make up the necessary quorum.

The closing chapter was dramatic. Mr. Dalzell (Pa.), who was in the chair, declined to recognize a demand for a division, and Mr. Richardson, the minority leader, stood in his place and denounced his course in unmeasured terms amid the jeers of the Republican side. The handful of Democrats present were overridden roughshod, and Mr. Wagoner was seated.

The Republican leaders in deciding to force this case to a vote did so with a perfect realization of the embarrassments which would follow if the Democrats carried out their filibustering threat, and they have arranged a programme to reduce the minority's obstructive power to a minimum so far as appropriation bills are concerned. This is to be accomplished by a special rule, which has been tentatively prepared, by which all the preliminary parliamentary steps for getting appropriation bills with senate amendments into conference can be cut off. But later in the afternoon Republicans interested in the omnibus public building bill threatened to vote against the rule unless it made provision for the bill. This disturbing factor in the situation was not straightened out.

The Republican programme also includes a proposition to continue the legislative day of yesterday until noon March 4 in order to obviate the long and tedious work of approving the journal against filibustering tactics. A recess was taken until 11 o'clock today, and a rule has been prepared which hereafter will give a motion to recess precedence over a motion to adjourn. Under the operation of these drastic measures it is believed that none of the appropriation bills or other necessary measures will be jeopardized, but the present situation undoubtedly sounds the death knell of many minor measures.

The senate went into executive session at 1:40 p. m. and devoted the remainder of the day to the Panama canal treaty.

Quarantine Includes Wool.

BOSTON, Feb. 27.—Confirmation of the action of the cattle bureau in including wool in the foot and mouth disease quarantine has been received from Washington. Officials of the bureau by long distance telephone took up the question with the agricultural department at Washington, and the interpretation put upon the "hair of ruminants" as used in the quarantine order to include the wool of sheep was absolutely upheld. The decision practically suspends the domestic wool business in Massachusetts, and Boston dealers say that if the embargo is not modified so as to except wool many mills will have to be closed.

Walked Thirty Miles in the Snow.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Feb. 27.—One of the two blockaded express trains is moving toward this city. The other snowbound train has not yet been moved. Twenty of the latter's passengers left the train and traveled across thirty miles of unbroken snowfields, carrying food in knapsacks on their shoulders and guiding themselves by the telegraph poles. They reached an open section of the line on this side of the country after great hardships and are expected to reach here in a few days.

Students Returning to Ithaca.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 27.—Only one suspected case of typhoid fever was admitted to the Cornell infirmary yesterday. The recitation halls at Cornell are rapidly filling up with students who are returning from their homes. In the city, however, conditions do not improve to any material extent, and Health Officer Hitchcock is greatly perplexed. His last report for twenty-four hours showed eleven new cases of identified typhoid fever. Many people still use city water unboiled.

Fatal New York Fire.

New York, Feb. 27.—One fireman lost his life, a score of others were hurt, six or seven seriously, and $250,000 damage was done by a fire at an early hour in the Hackett, Carhart & Co. building at 837-847 Broadway, at the northwest corner of Thirteenth street. The man who lost his life was Captain John Andreese of engine company No. 1, noted in the department for his courage.

A FASHIONABLE LECTURE.

"Don't Hurry or Worry" and How the Subject Was Heeded.

Eleven o'clock was the hour set for Mme. Soulful's lecture before the Hypatian association. At 11 o'clock nobody was in the room. Only the usher, Mrs. Osprey, hovered near the door to see that no one got into the yellow dream room without a ticket. Ten minutes past 11 a sprinkling of elegantly clad ladies moved through the lobby looking a little embarrassed because they were so early. Quarter past 11 three old ladies in black took seats up in the front of the hall, so they could hear. Twenty minutes past 11 other seats began to fill, acquaintances nodded to one another across the hall and the real entertainment began, as was manifest from the buzz of gentle conversation. Half past 11 the hall was half filled. Twenty minutes to 12 the ladies began to drop in frequently. Quarter to 12 the chairs were nearly filled and there proceeded the feminine interchange of seats and minds and getting settled. The lone woman who had orders to be ready at 12 with her report of the lecture for the afternoon paper was on needles, but no one else was.

Ten minutes to 12 Mrs. Ermine and Mrs. Milyun gravely mounted the platform.

"Oh, there's Mrs. Milyun! What's she going on the grand stand for?" whispered a lively lady to her neighbor.

Mrs. Ermine stood up and said, "We will first hear from Miss Romboli, who will whistle for us a little tune or two."

Then Mrs. Ermine slipped down from the "grand stand," leaving only Miss Romboli, Mrs. Milyun and the lecturer to occupy it. Miss Romboli whistled very prettily. When she finished, the ladies looked at one another, said "O-h-h!" "A-h-h!" and clapped their hands softly for her to do it some more, which she kindly did.

By that time it was 12 o'clock. The newspaper woman left even before Miss Romboli began to warble and faked up a report for her paper. She had to do so or lose her assignment, and she was a space writer. Ten minutes after the lecture, according to schedule time, should have ended Mrs. Milyun, a leathery looking little old lady in black, rose briskly, cleared her throat and said:

"Ladies, I have been requested by Mrs. Ermine to introduce the lecturer. I know the ladies are very busy and the audience is restless, but at the close of the lecture Miss Romboli will give us another little whistle or two, and I hope the ladies will kindly stay till all is finished. I now have the pleasure of introducing to you Mrs. Bowiful, who will speak to us on—hm-m-er—the subject announced on the programme. Ladies, Mrs. Bowiful, who comes to us highly commended."

Now, Mme. Soulful was a lady much better and more favorably known in the land than Mrs. Milyun, but Mrs. Milyun spoke the words "very highly commended" exactly as if she had been describing an animal at a county fair. If Mme. Soulful had her own thoughts, she would not let her countenance express them, thereby giving her audience an object lesson in that self control on which she lectured. "Mind Building" was her theme. She told them how they could begin at any time and build new and improved brain cells. "Above all," said Mme. Soulful, "don't hurry and don't worry. Calmly concentrate down within yourselves and build new and orderly thought habits. You express outwardly exactly the result of your thought habits in the past. You look like your thoughts."

Here leathery little old Mrs. Milyun looked as though she didn't need any making over as to appearance, however the rest might be hit, also as though she needed nothing more in the way of orderly and exact thought habits. Mme. Soulful spoke perhaps three-quarters of an hour. But long ere she come to her closing advice, "Don't worry and don't hurry," the ladies in the audience began to act as if they had the running of the planet in their minds and it would wabble in its orbit and spill if they did not get out of the hall. The promptness they left off at the first end of the lecture they put at the last end. Before and while Miss Romboli whistled they rustled out by twos and threes and fours, murmuring:

"Oh, wasn't it lovely?"

KATE SHARP.

In the New Woman's Sphere

A SINGULAR case of attempted robbery occurred not long since. Two young women were riding in a cab near the dock of one of the great transatlantic steamer lines in New York. Wagons, street cars, pedestrians and carriages were mixed up in inextricable confusion. The two young women were richly and showily dressed. One of them, ungloved, displayed the fingers of each hand loaded to the knuckles with gorgeous rings. They were so numerous and they glittered so they gave the impression that the wearer had borrowed them from a jewelry shop in order to show them and herself off to the miscellaneous crowd at the steamer dock. The carriage containing the women was stopped by a blockade of vehicles. The beringed one rested her hands most complacently and admiringly in a position where they would be visible to all the world. Suddenly a boy of fifteen sprang at her with a large, open knife. He grabbed one of the hands and slashed the fingers across, cutting a tremendous gash. It is a horror to write and think of, but the young fiend was trying to cut her fingers off so he could get her rings. He was prevented before he finished the deed, but he came very near it. For the moment the sight of those gems, richer than anything he had ever seen, so close to him maddened him. A dreadful wretch? Oh, yes, of course. But what of the girl who made the tempting display merely to gratify her own vulgar vanity? For it is the extreme of vulgarity and imperfect breeding to display a load of valuable jewels outdoors in a miscellaneous herd of mortals, aside from the danger of it. To wear outdoors in a public crowd any garment or ornament that glaringly arrests attention is in the worst possible taste, and it is something no high bred woman ever does.

A certain woman is traipsing up and down the land lecturing on "Home is Woman's Place." Then why does not this woman stay there?

A disgruntled thinker says that man is a bundle of prejudices and woman a bundle of superstitions.

There is no shuffling or dodging in the attitude of President James of the Northwestern university at Evanston in the matter of coeducation. He comes out calmly and candidly in favor of it and says the American policy is to give woman as full opportunity as man for higher education. Then he calls attention to the necessity for two entirely separate and equally equipped sets of college buildings, where the sex line is drawn among students. He says it will be a long time ere the American people can afford to erect two such sets of buildings for every scholastic institution; then he adds, "Nor will such a duplication of educational facilities ever be justified by the fancied evils of coeducation." Let us not forget that President Edmund J. James, Ph. D., LL. D., of the Northwestern university is in favor of justice to women and says so.

Here is precisely what might be expected in a city like New York, whose mayor and superintendent of education distinctly discriminate against women: An order was issued that high school girls who wished to enter the training school for teachers in Brooklyn should be subjected to a physical examination, that it might be ascertained whether they were healthy enough to undertake the profession they proposed for themselves. And the physicians that were to examine them were to be men. Now, how does this strike the really enlightened portion of the American people, who are mostly outside of New York city?

An interesting discussion has been started on the question, "Shall wives forgive deserting husbands?" Here is the correct answer: "Let each deserted wife find out for certain whether her husband would forgive her and take her back in case she deserted him for awhile. Then, if she is dead sure he would, and if she still is fond enough of him to try him again, let her forgive him."

A tightly laced woman cannot stoop over to put on her own overshoes? Well, neither can a fat man. I have watched one try it.

Whenever you see the name of United States Senator Teller of Colorado, recall that he was nominated for his high office this time by a woman member of the legislature in a state where women vote for every officer, presidential electors included, and that the woman who did it is Hon. Alice M. Ruble.

Many women have a sort of warmed over tone in their voices when they endeavor to be polite and cordial to their friends and acquaintances.

The last national convention of the western labor unions and Western Federation of Miners at Denver passed a resolution indorsing woman suffrage and recommending its adoption in all the states. Now let us see what the eastern labor unions will do.

If you see a young lady sitting particularly erect, correct and graceful, do not infer from it that she is necessarily a physically trained "new girl" who carries herself perfectly. The young lady may be only trying to live up to a new corset.

"There he is," he said, "way out yonder."

"Oh, won't you go and fetch him? I'm all out of breath. And hurry, do, for what I have to tell him may be very important."

Rossiter set out at a sharp run, and presently he and Parmelee came back together. The pole-puller was about to retire when Miss Merton stopped him.

"Won't you listen, too, Mr. Rossiter," she said, "for if there's any trouble perhaps you can help us."

He acquiesced, and the two men stood regarding the girl in expectation and wonder.

"First tell me," she said, addressing Parmelee, "if Simpson is in the yard, for if he is, perhaps I've had my fright for nothing."

"Simpson!" exclaimed Parmelee; "no, he's not. I've been lookin' for him this long time. I sent him over to the kiln on an errand more than half an hour ago."

"Then I'm afraid there's something wrong," said Miss Merton, growing more agitated, "and, oh, I wish I'd come sooner! I happened to go out on the porch a while ago," she went on, speaking rapidly, "and saw a man running far down in the lower orchard. He stopped under a tree, and then I noticed there were two other men there. I thought they were some of the pickers after apples—you know they're in the habit of getting them—and didn't pay much more attention, but when I got back in the house it came to me that the first man seemed like Simpson, and that one of the others, though, of course, I couldn't really see much at that distance, had a face like that creature who frightened us at the hop-dance. I went out to look again and they were gone, so I came to the conclusion that they must have leaped the fence and taken a short cut back to the yard, but when I got to thinking about it later, I couldn't help feeling that it was strange, so I hurried over to tell you."

Parmelee pursed his lips and seemed incredulous.

"If it wa'n't for Simpson's absence," said he, "I should set all this down as foolishness, Miriam."

"Wasn't Simpson by when father started for Hintonville?" she asked, "and didn't he hear father speak about going to the bank for money to pay the pickers, and say he meant to return by Blue Creek road because he wanted to speak with Ezra Merriman a minute?"

"He was there, by the Eternal!" cried Parmelee, "for he brought the horse out."

"And you know Simpson owes father a grudge for having him discharged last spring. Father said he never would have let you take him back if help hadn't been so scarce," continued Miss Merton, growing more animated.

"If there's anythin' wrong," said Parmelee, now awakening to the possible seriousness of the situation, "we're losin' valuable time. You'll come?" he asked, turning to Rossiter. "I'd rather have you along than anyone else I know."

"I'm at your service," said Rossiter.

"You find Dick Whittlesey, Miriam, and tell him to hitch on to the light wagon with the yellow gear, and drive towards Merriman's by the Blue Creek road as fast as he can. We'll go across lots. If anythin's goin' to happen it'll be at the dip."

Parmelee had suddenly thought of the remains of the fire which Rossiter and Becraft had seen near this depression in the road.

"You know Sylvia went with father," said Miss Merton as she hurried away.

"By thunder, so she did!" cried Parmelee.

Rossiter's face grew very grave at this news.

"You haven't a revolver, have you?" he asked.

"No; I wish to heaven I had!" exclaimed the farm manager. "There's a shotgun at the kiln, but it's so heavy it'd be more hindrance than use."

Parmelee paused long enough at the barn to catch up the ox-goad, then he led the way down through the orchard. The dog-trot pace he set hardly satisfied the impatient Rossiter, but he ventured no comment, realizing that Parmelee was the better judge of time and distance. The latter was inclined to drink at the spring, but his companion restrained him, telling him water was a poor stay for what they might have in hand. Swerving from the logging-road at the glade, they struck off almost at right angles. Progress was slower now, yet they did not relax into a walk until they approached a fence beyond which the bank of the branch of the Blue Creek glen pitched abruptly. Up to this time they had exchanged but few words.

"I've been thinkin' it out," said Parmelee, leaning for a breathing space against the top fence-rail, "an' I guess we'd better part here, so that you can hit the dip on one side and I on the other. If you follow this fence you'll come out in a pasture about 300 yards from the road; then if they're in sight you can shout, and wave 'em to stop. I'll cross the glen here, and that'll land me on the other side of the dip. In case everythin's not all right, it may advantage us more to have you appearin' from one way an' me from the other. You'll have a little farther to go, but I take it you're a good bit speedier than I am. How does the plan strike you?"

"As excellent," answered Rossiter.

"All right, then," said Parmelee, "we're off!" and he put his foot upon the lower rail.

Here and there, as Rossiter sped on, the sunlight lay in little golden splashes upon moss and bracken, but mostly his track lay through soft, cool, green shade. The ground was high and dry, and, though the trees set thickly, there was scarcely any undergrowth to impede his progress. His blood sang in his veins, and he was keyed to the height of action. He leaped across hollows, sprang over fallen logs and vaulted cross-fences with the light-heartedness of one hastening to a tryst. His thought did not include Mr. Merton, nor did it take into account the possibility of harm befalling the one whom he was speeding to guard. Neither did he harbor any dream in his mind that to him aught could accrue from any aid he might give to the girl whose gracious loveliness had grown to be so much to him. He was filled with the pure joy of serving. That alone impelled him.

At length the forest grew thinner, and he saw before him the open field and beyond it the Blue Creek road. As he emerged from the trees he discovered that a short distance from the dip the highway took a sharp turn, so that in reality he had but a few rods of it in view. He had traversed perhaps half of the stretch of pasture when he descried a horse and buggy rounding the bend. Was it Mr. Merton and his niece? An instant, and he knew it was, and Mr. Merton was driving rapidly. Rossiter set up a shout and began waving his cap, but evidently the noise of the wheels drowned his cries, and against the dark background of trees skirting the glen his figure was not seen, for the occupants of the carriage did not appear to be looking toward him, and there was no diminution in the speed of the horse. He redoubled his shouts, and yet without effect. Then it occurred to him that his proximity to the fence and foliage might be the cause of his not being noticed, and he ran obliquely into the field, swinging his arms. Just as the horse reached the crest of the dip he fancied Miss Densmore observed him, but he was not sure, for a moment later the buggy disappeared.

He did not slacken his speed, but raced on over the springy turf, his ear alert to catch the first sounds of a struggle. A confusion of shouts came to him as he drew near the fence separating the pasture from the road. He put his hands upon the top rail and went over with a bound. Almost before his feet touched ground he was conscious of what was going on in the dip below him. Mr. Merton's horse was rearing and plunging in the grasp of one man, while Mr. Merton was lashing savagely with his whip at two others who were attacking him from opposite sides of the buggy. Of Miss Densmore, Rossiter could see nothing, but he surmised, and rightly, that she was crouching half upon the seat and half upon the bottom of the vehicle to give her uncle freer play with his whip.

With an Indian-like yell Rossiter dashed down into the dip. Already one of the men—"Whiskers"—had Mr. Merton in his grasp. He seemed not to heed the shout, but the other, Simpson, turned his head, and seeing who it was stepped back a pace. "Whiskers'" attention was thus attracted, and he too recognizing Rossiter ripped out a terrible oath.

"Tackle him, tackle him, you dummy! I'll tend to the old gent," he added.

Do You Wish To Borrow Money?
In order to accommodate all classes of borrowers (those who cannot borrow at a bank, as well as those who can), the Mutual Loan and Investment Company, of 118 Market street, Newark, N. J., has a department for handling quickly and confidentially loans ranging from $10 to $500 on furniture, pianos, storage receipts, etc.
The security is not removed from your possession or in any way disturbed. The honest, careful and conservative borrower will try and decide two points before borrowing. First, where he can get the best terms. Second, where he can get fair and square treatment.
This company is in a position to give you by far the most satisfactory terms ever offered by any concern or individual negotiating this class of loans.
With this company you are assured of getting the lowest rates, easiest payments and longest time for repayment. The whole transaction from the time the application is made until loan is paid is entirely confidential. We give you another advantage in case you take the loan out for six months or a year, and wish to settle the same before the time expires: we charge you only for the time you have had the money. We also take up loans from other companies and advance more money.
Kindly call and let us explain our simple and up-to-date methods. If not entirely convenient for you to call, please write and our representative will call and give you any desired information. Remember it costs nothing to make application. Loans promptly made in Elizabeth, Plainfield, Westfield, Roselle, Rahway, Perth Amboy and all suburban towns.

A DIPLOMATIC HITCH

Venezuelan Case Delayed by Envoys at Caracas.

SEEKING TO DEAL WITH CASTRO.

Representatives of France, Spain and Belgium Said to Have Approached the President For Independent Settlement.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Mr. Bowen has signed the protocol for the settlement of the claims of Mexico against Venezuela.

The king of Spain is the person named to appoint an umpire should the occasion arise. The commission is to be appointed by May 1 and to meet by June 1. The Mexican claims against Venezuela aggregate about $90,000.

Advices received from Caracas are to the effect that the representatives there of the French, Spanish and Belgian governments have approached President Castro regarding the claims of their countries and have proposed a scheme of settlement independent of that which is now under consideration by Mr. Bowen and the Washington representatives of these nations.

In consequence President Castro has suggested to Mr. Bowen that it would be advisable to refrain from signing the French, Spanish and Belgian protocols until these governments signify whether their representatives in Caracas or in Washington are to carry on the negotiations. Mr. Bowen has informed the Belgian minister and also will make similar representations to the French ambassador and the Spanish minister here that if they do not intend to sign the protocol which he has submitted all negotiations looking to a settlement of their claims must be transferred to Caracas.

Naturally there is a strong desire on the part of the Washington representatives of these three nations to secure from Mr. Bowen the same terms obtained by the United States and the other unallied claimant nations. They realize that if their governments take up the matter through their respective envoys at Caracas some contingency may arise which will postpone indefinitely the drafting of any agreement with President Castro.

DELAWARE DEADLOCK.

Regular Republicans and Democrats Together.

DOVER, Del., Feb. 27.—After a stormy session the regular Republicans and Democrats combined and voted to reconsider the house bill repealing the voters' assistance law. When the bill came up in the house several days ago, the Addicks Republicans with the assistance of two regular Republicans succeeded in defeating the measure. Yesterday, however, the two regulars who voted with the Addicks men returned to the ranks of the regulars. The Addicks Republicans made every parliamentary move possible to prevent the reconsideration of the bill, but were defeated and the repeal bill was passed by a vote of 19 to 16.

The thirty-second joint ballot for United States senators resulted as follows: Long term, Addicks, 20; Dupont, 8; Higgins, 2; Saulsbury, 20. Short term—Addicks, 18; Higgins, 8; Richardson, 2; Hilles, 2; Kenny (Dem.), 20. No election.

To Complete Grant's Mausoleum.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The Grant monument on Riverside drive is at last to be completed. The monument commission at its annual meeting instructed the president to name a committee of five to collect from $150,000 to $200,000, necessary to erect the statuary which the original plans contemplated. Lack of funds was responsible for the failure to complete the structure. A triumphant figure of "Victory" is to be placed at the top of the monument. There are to be four emblematic figures in bronze at the four corners, four equestrian figures are to be erected over the facade, and a splendid equestrian figure of General Grant is to be placed in front.

National Tube Improvements.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 27.—The National Tube company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, will expend $9,000,000 in additions and improvements to its fourteen plants, commencing as soon as spring opens. At Lorain, O., about $8,000,000 will be the outlay, and over 5,000 more men will be given employment. The plant at Benwood, near Wheeling, W. Va., will be remodeled and enlarged. Improvements of an extensive nature will be made at McKeesport, Pa.

BASKET BALL.

A basket ball game will be played this evening in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium between Leal's School and the first team of the Y. M. C. A.

A boys' basket ball game will be played tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock between the local boys' team and a team from the Rahway Y. M. C. A.

The officials for this evening's league game at the I. C. T. Club between that club and the Reform Club will be from Newark. Frank McTague, who made such a satisfactory referee in the opening game in the league, was unable to officiate a week ago on account of a death in his family, a relative having been killed in that trolley disaster. Mr. McTague will be unable to officiate this evening but his place will be filled by another man from Newark.

ON THE DIAMOND.

Manager Albert D. Beers, of the City High School baseball team, has arranged for three games to be added to the schedule. The games are with the Dewitt Clinton High School, on June 3, with Rutgers College, 1906, on May 13, and with the Westfield High School on April 1. These games will all be played in town. This makes a total of seventeen games scheduled for the season so far and there are still some open dates.

CITY NURSE RESIGNS.

Miss Olive DeLany Has Been Secured to Permanently Fill That Position.

Miss Virginia Anderson who, for some time past, has been the nurse for the City Union, King's Daughters, has resigned the position owing to poor health and she and Miss Evans, who formerly held the same position, have gone to California in search of rest and recreation. Miss Olive DeLany, who has been a nurse in the hospital at Somerville, has been secured permanently for Miss Anderson's position and she will enter upon her duties Monday. Miss DeLany was the city nurse in Plainfield for some time and gave up the position to complete a course of study in Canada.

Another change has been made in the chairmanship of the nurse committee of the King's Daughters. Miss Emily Tracy, who has held this position since the committee was formed, has left compelled to resign on account of her many duties and on account of her health. Mrs. W. L. C. Gleeney, who has served on this committee, has consented to take the chairmanship and any person having any matters to report in connection with this work will confer with Mrs. Gleeney.

FAREWELL AND WELCOME

DOUBLE RECEPTION AT THE SWEDISH PILGRIM CHURCH.

Farewell to Old Pastor, Rev. O. G. Norseen—Welcome to New One. Rev. L. T. Lindholm.

An attendance, which filled the pretty Swedish Pilgrim church to overflowing, last evening, bade adieu to its former pastor and welcomed heartily his successor. The former is Rev. O. G. Norseen, who left today for his new field in Worcester, Mass., and the latter is Rev. Lambert T. Lindholm, who comes from North Easton, Mass.

The evening began with devotional exercises and at their conclusion Mr. Norseen introduced the new minister. In a few well chosen remarks Mr. Lindholm declared his intention of taking up the work where his predecessor left off and making every effort to equal his success. He was followed by Miss Matilda Melin who expressed regret in behalf of the church at Mr. Norseen's departure.

Last evening's affair terminated with the serving of refreshments, during which Mr. Lindholm mingled with the congregation and met each member personally. The women in charge were Mrs. Annette Brandt and Mrs. C. W. Johnson.

FELL DEAD IN THE KITCHEN

DOMESTIC IN EMPLOY OF MRS. G. F. EARLE DIED SUDDENLY.

Stricken With Heart Disease This Morning—Came Here From Ireland.

Striken with heart disease while preparing the breakfast at the home of Mrs. G. F. Earle, of 508 Central avenue, Miss Mary Harrington, the cook, died this morning at 7 o'clock. The stroke came without any warning and almost before assistance arrived the girl was dead. Later this morning the remains were removed to the home of Mrs. Richard Lawton, of 517 West Sixth street, where they were prepared for burial.

She was twenty-four years of age and had been in the employ of Mrs. Earle for a year and a half. She had been in this country for several years and has lived only in this city. Her parents reside in Ireland and a cousin is employed at the home of Mrs. Charles Matthews, of Grove street. She was a member of St. Mary's church from where the funeral will be held. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

PROF. GRIGGS ON "FAUST"

SECOND LECTURE IN COURSE GIVEN AT VINCENT CHAPEL.

Discussed the Two Introductions to Goethe's Great Work—The Types There Pictured.

The second lecture in the course being given by Professor Edward Howard Griggs on "Faust" was delivered yesterday afternoon at Vincent chapel.

Mr. Griggs referred in a few words to the subject of his first lecture—the relation of Goethe's personality to his poetry—and spoke of the great variety of verse forms in Faust, suited to the occasion and to the characteristics of the speaker. He read numerous quotations, both from the original and from Baynard Taylor's translation, which he ranks highest in rendering the peculiar metres into English. Mr. Griggs spoke of the two introductions to the poem, the prelude on the stage and the prologue in Heaven. In the first, of the three types of men displayed, the clown comes nearer to human nature than either the poet or the stage manager, one of whom represents the sentimental side of life, the ideal divorced from the real, the other the practical commercial side.

Speaking of the great introduction or the prologue in Heaven, Mr. Griggs mentioned numerous analogies in thought and in conception to the Book of Job. While Goethe had no unity with medieval thought, as expressed by Dante, he reached back to the old Hebraic ideas and found sympathy with them. Four types of being were here represented, the angels, the demons, man and God. In connection with this thought, he said that to the angels hope and memory are unnecessary, as they are absolutely in harmony with God's love and are permeated by it. With them is no failure. The perfect beauty of their Hymn to the Creator was contrasted with the irreverent parody of Mephistopheles whom Dr. Griggs compared to the adversary in the Book of Job. He spoke of Mephistopheles' intellect being one of cynical denial—a cold intellect unbalanced by appreciation. Men unites to a certain degree the qualities of both these natures, but differs from them in that he is experiencing a constant process of development.

The lecture was followed by an informal discussion. The third lecture of the course will be held next Thursday.

Unity Is Preparing.

Unity Lodge, Knights of Pythias, met last evening when further arrangements were made for the celebration of the twentieth anniversary of that lodge which will be held next month. Death of Mrs. Perkins.

Mrs. Dorcas Perkins, colored, of this city, died this morning after a long illness. Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon from the Mt. Olive Baptist church at 3 o'clock.

Sunday's Preacher.

Rev. Dr. E. E. Chivers, a well-known Baptist divine from Brooklyn, will occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist church, Sunday.

Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood, of the Y. M. C. A., says that for the present basket ball games will not be arranged so that they interfere with the business men's class meeting in the gymnasium. No doubt a convenient time some evening will be arranged for the play-off of the deciding game between the business men's class and the High School.

Earl Kennedy, of East Third street, has returned from a stay with friends at Derby, Conn.

A Weak Stomach
causes a weak body and invites disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures and strengthens the stomach, and wards off and overcomes disease. J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Chriesman, Tex., says: "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and run down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefitted me, and after taking four bottles I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health." L. W. Randolph.

CONROY BY DEMOCRATS

"Dark Horse" Nominated for Mayor and May Mean An Independent Ticket.

NO CONTEST OVER IT

William J. Conroy Chosen As Democratic Nominee for Mayor—Other Nominations Left to Committee on Vacancies to Fill—Talk of An Independent Ticket.

Contrary to expectation, there were no exciting features at the Democratic primary held in the basement of the North Plainfield High School, last evening. The same quiet manner that has characterized the movements of the party leaders and followers was evidenced at the primary, and there was no disagreements of any kind. Harmony prevailed from first to last.

William J. Conroy, as chairman of the spring caucus, called the meeting to order. Lambert Bodine was made chairman and William B. Mills secretary. After the reading of the call by the secretary, nominations for Mayor were called for. Walter Linbarger, one of the active leaders of the party, immediately nominated William J. Conroy and there was a prompt second.

Mr. Conroy stepped forward and said that he believed someone else should be nominated, someone who would poll a larger vote than he. He was willing to do all that was possible for the success of his party but thought it hardly proper to nominate him for so important an office.

The nominee's words were not heeded and he received the unanimous vote of the fifty Democrats present by the casting of the ballot by the secretary. Walter Bennett and William Kiely were the tellers.

This part of the programme was comparatively easy, but when the rest of the nominations were called for it was exceedingly difficult to secure candidates. Two Councilmen were to be nominated for a term of three years, but after the declinations of Frank Krewson, Walter Bennett, Stonewall Jackson, John Snyder and John V. Case, Levi Kline moved that the nominations be left to the committee on vacancies. This was also true as regards the rest of the nominations for commissioners of appeal and justice of the peace.

There was much merriment over the attempt to nominate a justice of the peace. John Emmons was nominated and declined and Justice Smalley was then named. The latter said that he had two years yet to serve, but that there was a vacancy caused by the removal of Justice Crossley some years ago. He thought it would be well to fill that vacancy. There was no apparent desire to lengthen Justice Smalley's term for four years and the committee on vacancies will take care of that nomination. Others nominated for this office were John H. Carney and John V. Case but both declined with thanks.

The committee on vacancies consists of David J. Carney, Walter Linbarger and Levi Kline.

After the caucus it was hinted by a prominent Democrat that the primary would result in the making of an independent ticket with possibly Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan as the Mayoralty candidate. There was some talk of securing Dr. D. C. Adams for a candidate, but a person who had conferred with the physician said that he absolutely refused to allow his name to be used. It cannot be denied but that there is some dissatisfaction among the Democrats over the result of the primary. That is to be expected in any case, but whether the division will be strong enough to make a strong showing for an independent ticket, remains to be seen later on.

POLICE PATROL MAY RAISE TAX A POINT

Chairman Randolph, of Police Board, Talks About Cost of This New System.

WILL AMOUNT TO $6,000

BUT THE INITIAL COST WILL PROBABLY BE THE ONLY ONE.

The Police Committee Will Report Favorably on Gamewell System—Will Require Six Weeks to Install—The Other Details.

It is believed that when the regular March meeting of the Common Council is held Monday evening, Chairman Frank D. Randolph, of the Police Board, will submit a favorable report on the Gamewell patrol police system, which it is proposed to install in this city within a short time. This report would have been made at the last meeting but, as there were some technical points to be looked after, the matter was deferred. That the Gamewell Company will secure the contract there seems to be no doubt. This company owns and controls nearly all of the most important rights and privileges and, it is said, that other companies want more money to install a system than the Gamewell Company.

In conversation with Councilman Randolph, a reporter for The Daily Press learned that the installation of the system in this city will cost about $6,000, and the first cost is practically the only one. The expense of maintenance is considered very slight, about the same as in the case of the fire alarm system. According to the drafted contract the Plainfield system calls for sixteen boxes, located as already stated in The Daily Press. The Gamewell Company at first objected to the provision in the contract which specified that Charles W. Runyon, manager of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, should have charge of the inspection of the installation and the care afterward, but this objection has been overcome and agreed to. Mr. Runyon is a man thoroughly acquainted with all the details of electric work and is well qualified to fill the position.

It is estimated that the system can be installed within six weeks, and no greater length of time would probably be necessary. For the present the "cental" office would be at police headquarters on East Front street, until a new headquarters is established and some provision would be made temporarily for a patrol wagon and horse.

When asked as to whether the installation of the system and the appointment of two extra policemen would increase the tax rate, Mr. Randolph said that it was barely possible that the rate would be increased one point this year, but that would be the end of it. As for the extra men on the force, Mr. Randolph explained that there are now vacancies to be filled and the new men would only bring the force up to its regular number. Besides, under the new regime, the policemen will only be paid for the time they work. This will be a saving to the city for in the past the men have been paid whether they worked or not and much time has been lost by some of the men by sickness or absence for other reasons.

POSTAL OFFICE MOVED.

Postal Telegraph Company's Headquarters Now on North Avenue.

The local office of the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company was removed today to North avenue adjoining the Smalley building. The new office has been equipped and furnished in a very complete and comfortable manner and is sure to result in an increase in business. One of the notable improvements in the new office is the provision made for patrons. A desk and comfortable chairs are arranged in the front of the office, where one may sit down and write. Manager Mondieu is gratified and pleased with the change and believes he will be better able to serve the public.

Possible Successor.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, Feb. 28—Rev. D. W. Skellinger, formerly of Dunellen, is a probable successor to Rev. T. E. Davis, of the Bound Brook Presbyterian church. Rev. T. E. Davis recently resigned his pastorate to accept a position with a mining concern in the south.

Plainfield Camera Club Defeats Crack Four of Cosmopolitan Whist Club.

FIFTH STRAIGHT WIN

PLAINFIELD'S FOUR WINS FROM ONE OF NEW YORK'S BEST TEAMS.

Visitors Were Very Confident of Victory and Result Was a Big Surprise—The Score Was 13 to 10—Refreshments Served.

The Metropolitan challenge trophy will remain in the possession of the Plainfield Camera Club "whist four" for awhile longer. This was determined last evening, when the strong four from the Cosmopolitan Whist Club, of New York, came to Plainfield and met defeat at the hands of the local team. It was one of the best and most important matches of the season, and victory counted for much.

That the home team was able to win out is a source of gratification not only to the members of the Camera Club, but the team as well. The team representing the Cosmopolitan Club is, with the exception of the Camera Club four, the strongest aggregation in the east. So sure was one of the visitors of winning the game, that he wagered a dinner with a friend that the Camera Club would be defeated. The result was a genuine surprise to the challengers. The final score was 13 to 10. This is the fifth consecutive victory for the Camera Club team.

In the first round the home players walked away from their opponents, the score being 7 to 2 in their favor. The second round showed an improvement on the part of the challengers and they won the honors by a score of 6 to 3. The last round was the most exciting, but with a steady nerve and careful play the holders of the cup won out by a score of 3 to 2. There is one strong feature about the play of the Camera Club team and that is the way they work together. The members have no individual pet ideas as to system, but they stand together like one man. This victory practically means the loss of the trophy for the Cosmopolitan Club. Another victory for the Brooklyn Whist Club would secure the trophy for that club, and the Brooklyn team will soon meet the holders of the cup. The Park Club four will probably be the next challenger for the trophy.

The team representing the Cosmopolitan Whist Club consisted of E. E. Baker, captain; Henry B. Newman, John E. Faber and Andrew Gilhooly. The Plainfield Camera Club was represented by its same team, A. F. Freeman, F. H. Freeman, Ralph T. Willis and W. J. R. Hegeman, Jr. At the close of the match the home team entertained its visitors by serving light refreshments.

Couldn't Agree on Amount.

In the Ayers-Taylor suit in Justice Nash's court, the details of which were given in yesterday's Daily Press, the defendant, Wm. Taylor, did not deny that there was a debt but did not agree as to the amount, claiming that there had been an overcharge and certain repairs had not been completed. While the difference between Mr. Taylor's figure and the deduction made by the court is small, the case was appealed on principle.

Skin Grafting Progressing.

Wilson S. Fredericks, who is at the hospital under treatment for injuries received in the recent railroad wreck, continues to improve slowly. The process of grafting skin progresses graddually and with a considerable degree of success.

Sentence Day Postponed.

Sentence in the several "speakeasy" cases was deferred Wednesday of this week to next Wednesday. The several lawyers received word of this from the court, but no explanation was offered for the change.

Sunday-School Election.

The Sunday-school officers and teachers of the First Baptist church will meet Thursday evening, March 5 in annual session to elect officers and transact other important business.

Taxed on Actual Value.

The State Board of Taxation recently decided that a property should be taxed on the actual value of the premises and not at the face of the mortgage upon it.

STOLE WHILE FAMILY DINED

Burglar Secured $100 and Jewelry at Residence of Chas. Matthews, Grove St.

THEN WAS DISTURBED

Was Rifling Bureau Drawers on the Second Floor When Frightened Away—Jumped From Piazza Roof to Snow Beneath—No Clue—Was An Expert Thief.

A daring attempt was made to rob the house of Charles Matthews, of 49 Grove street, last evening at 7 o'clock while the family was at dinner. Although the fellow was frightened away before he secured much booty he took with him $100 in money and a pair of earrings valued very highly.

The robbery was discovered by Peter B. Matthews and from the appearance of the room it was apparent that the burglar was in the act of rifling the drawers of the bureau when he heard Mr. Matthews approaching up the hall stairs. Chief Marshal William B. Campbell was notified ten minutes after the burglary was discovered and an investigation was at once started.

It is believed that the burglar was a clever second story man as he secured an entrance into the house by means of the front bedroom window over the front door. He climbed up the veranda posts and when he made his escape he jumped from the top of the veranda to the soft snow below as his footprints were plainly seen on the ground.

Mrs. Matthews said this morning that the earrings, which were stolen, were of onyx set with pearls and were a part of a set which she valued highly. Mrs. Matthews wore the pin which completes the set when the robbery occurred. The room was littered with articles of clothing and the bureau drawers were found in different part of the room, showing that the robber was working in great haste.

WINNER AT POOL.

C. Westley Abbott Won Prize at the Meeting of Friday Night Club.

A pool tournament which has been attracting much attention among the members of the Friday Night Club was played off last evening at the Casino when C. Westley Abbott was declared the winner. The badminton tournament which has been going on for some time will probably come to a close next week. It has been going on for several weeks and is becoming very popular. Some very clever players are developing in this game.

There will be an interesting event next Friday evening at the club when the potato race will be run. The race has been in progess for three weeks and by next week, it is believed, that the finals will be run off.

HOSPITAL VISITORS.

Named at the Meeting of Hospital Woman's Auxiliary.

The Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, held a regular meeting yesterday, when Mrs. Guion, Mrs. G. A. Chapman, Mrs. Thomas Minford, Miss Schipper and Mrs. Herman Schwed were appointed visitors to the hospital for the coming month, and Mrs. Guion was appointed as purchaser. It was reported that the plans for the collection of the subscriptions for the new Nurses' Home were perfected and the working of making these collections will be started at once in a systematic manner.

Want More Pay.

Freight agents and freight handlers in the employ of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company desire an advance in their wages. They claim that while other employes of the system have been advanced, they have been left out, and that they are entitled to an increase in wages, which at present averages between $40 and $50 per month.

Woodmen to Reorganize.

Wednesday evening, March 4, there will be a reorganization of Robin Hood Camp, Woodmen of the World. A full attendance of members is desired.

YOUNG MEN SUCCEED IN GIVING SUPPER

Highly Delightful Attempt Made by the Young Men's Brotherhood of First M. E.

AN EXCELLENT REPAST

THEN JAMES R. JOY GAVE ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON NATIONAL PARK.

Over 200 Guests Partook of the Supper Which, Cooked and Served by the Men Alone, Was Much Enjoyed—The Cooks and Waiters.

Successful to a degree that surpassed the most sanguine hopes of its promoters, the supper given in the basement of the First M. E. church, under the auspices of the Young Men's Brotherhood, last evening, proved an immense drawing card. A menu that rivalled a French table d' hote, music and decorations formed a combination that stamped the organization as very important factor when it comes to a question of entertaining. Fully 200 guests partook of the excellent meal which was prepared and served entirely by the young men.

Eight tables were used for the purpose and they were placed in the form of a cross. A large bank of palms formed a center piece in a decorative way and bunting and flags used without stint about pillars and walls enhanced the pretty effect. On each table a lighted lamp shed soft rays. Evidences of the modern restaurant scheme were revealed in signs of a humorous nature conspicuously displayed, warning all guests not to tip the waiters and to beware of pickpockets and overcoat thieves, and the presence of the Brotherhood orchestra which discoursed music during the evening.

The last supper was served at 8 o'clock and half an hour later adjournment was taken to Vincent chapel where preparation had been made by James R. Joy to give his lecture on the beauties of the Yellowstone National Park. While waiting for its commencement the Brotherhood quartette composed of Lewis Schutt, Robert Davis, Ralph Lane and George A. Horne delighted the audience with vocal selections.

Mr. Joy's lecture was illustrated by 100 views taken by himself and showed some of the most wonderful scenes in the great park. Among the most prominent were those of the geysers, the workings of which he explained in detail.

The idea of the supper and entertainment originated with Nelson A. Miller, president of the Brotherhood, and it is due mainly to his efforts that the scheme was so successfully carried out. He was assisted by the following comittees: Decorations, Albert Steiner and William Symons; service, George A. Horne, Stephen H. Tugwell; tickest and advertising, J. A. Stafford and L. V. Wilson; music, C. Kenneth Shupp; provisions, Nelson A. Miller and Dr. Frank W. French; cashier, Ralph Lane.

The members of the Brotherhood who acted as waiters were Lewis Schutt, Walter McNaughton, Ralph Lane, John M. Lewis, Ralph Fenno, Edward Shearer, John VanMiddlesworth, Dr. F. W. French, Fred Martin, William Symons, Harold Whitney, Albert Steiner, Harold Fenno, William Pike, R. Elwood Sebring and George A. Horne.

STRONG PREACHERS.

Will Address Series of Evangelistic Meetings at First M. E. Church for Next Two Weeks.

Commencing with tomorrow evening, a series af evangelistic meetings will be held in the First M. E. church. Some of the best preacher in this vicinity connected with the Methodist church will preach as follows: Monday evening, March 2, Rev. Charles L. Mead, of Hoboken; March 3, Rev. Alexander H. Tuttle, of Summit; March 4, Rev. John M. Howard, of Rahway; March 5, Rev. Jonathan Meeker, of Paterson; March 6, Rev. George C. Wilding Elizabeth; March 9, Rev. Wm. Anderson, of Ossining, N. Y.; March 10, Rev. Wallace McMullen, of New York; March 11, Rev. Fred Baldwin, of East Orange; March 12, Rev. Allan McRossie, of New York; March 13, Rev. Jesse Lyman Hurlbut, of Morristown.

It was originally planned to have Rev. Wm. T. Helms, U. S. N., chaplain of the U. S. S. Columbia, preach tomorrow night, but has been called south by the death of his father. His place will be taken by Dr. Snodgrass.

UNKNOWN DEAD LAID AT REST AT HILLSIDE

Funeral of Remains of Unidentified Victim of Westfield Disaster Held Yesterday.

MANY IN ATTENDANCE

REV. DR. CORNELIUS SCHENCK OFFICIATED AT TRINITY REFORMED.

Floral Tributes From Unknown Donors Included One "With a Mother's Love"—A Handsome Casket—A Solemn Service.

Up the steep and winding paths of Hillside cemetery, there passed yesterday afternoon, a small funeral cortage composed of a hearse and several carriages. On and on it went until it reached one of the prettiest spots in the burial ground and then stopped by the side of a new made grave. From out the funeral car was taken a handsome cloth covered casket, heaped with roses and lilies of the valley. A heartfelt prayer ascended and, as the benediction was pronounced, the clouds of earth fell until the grave slowly closed over the last unidentified victim of the terrible catastrophe that plunged Plainfield into a gloom years will scarce efface. It was the concluding incident of the Westfield horror.

But though the body went to its tomb unknown and perhaps among strangers it lacked not the ceremonies that marked the burial of the other twenty-two claimed by friends. It was clothed in broadcloth and placed in a costly coffin. Loving hands brought wreaths and when the casket was placed in Trinity Reformed church yesterday afternoon, the tokens of sympathy were many. No better manifestation was there than the gathering of mourners. True, it was composed mostly of women, whose hearts are always ready to go out to the friendless and afflicted, but there were men beside.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck conducted the last rites and from the tragic death of the unknown he drew a lesson dealing with the uncertainties of life. He paralleled the failure to learn the stranger's name with the thousands of soldiers lying in southern burying grounds, the graves headed by slabs marked "Unknown." They died alone as did this victim but it remained for the living to honor them and supply the place of relatives.

Of the flowers contributed all were sent by unknown donors, but a beautiful wreath bearing a card inscribed, "With a mother's love" revealed the sympathetic nature of one.

Those who carried the casket were Dr. F. W. Westcott, William Addis, George Cole, J. A. Haynes, J. K. Large and A. F. Barkalew, the latter three employes of the New Jersey Central. All expense incurred by the burial was borne by the railroad company.

FORCEFUL SPEAKERS.

They Will Address Y. M. C. A. Meeting Sunday Afternoon.

Seldom have the young men in this city had an opportunity of listening to more forceful speakers than those who will address the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. One of the speakers is A. B. Dodd, who shortly goes to China where he will undertake work for a young men's association. The other will be B. M. Brown, of Princeton, who will go to Mexico in the near future to take up similar work there.

The music will be a special feature of the meeting and a trio consisting of Mrs. George W. Saums, Elmer P. Wheeler and Miss Lillian A. Force will render music on the violin, flute and piano. The singing will be led by Edson C. Martin.

Contest at Swimming.

A swimming contest will be held this evening at the Y. M. C. A., after which there will be a social when the winner of the swimming contest will receive his medal. The cup for the winner of the handball tournament will also be presented at that time.

SMALLEY IS NAMED AGAIN

Mayor N. B. Smalley Unanimously Renominated by the Borough Republicans.

ALL WAS HARMONY

Named by Once Prominent "Anti" and Seconded by One of Other View—Chas. A. Lee and Morris C. VanArsdale Nominated for the Borough Council.

As was expected, Mayor Newton B. Smalley was nominated for the mayoralty of North Plainfield at the Republican primary which was held last evening at Saengerbund Hall. Never before has there been a more harmonious primary and, in spite of the inclemency of the weather, over 150 Republicans including many well known "antis," were present.

At 8 o'clock Peter A. Emmons called the meeting to order and was chosen chairman. William Angleman was chosen secretary of the meeting. In response to the question of the chairman as to whom they wanted to be nominated as mayor, William C. Smith stepped forward and in a short speech in which he told of the past record of the present incumbent, he nominated for a third term, Newton B. Smalley. Former Senator Charles A. Reed seconded the motion, amid loud applause.

For councilmen, Charles A. Lee and Morris C. VanArsdale were nominated. Harrison Codington was nominated for a second term as councilman but declined the nomination. Recorder Thomas Doud was nominated for the office of justice of the peace and L. E. Barkelew received the nomination for commissioner of appeals.

On motion of Former Senator Charles A. Reed, the appropriation for the Board of Health was placed at $550, the same amount as the appropriation of last year. Mr. Reed also made a motion to the effect that the chairman be one of a committee of three to fill vacancies and that he appoint the other two. He later appointed Mayor Smalley and Mr. Reed on that committee to serve with him.

Before the primary came to a close Mayor Smalley came forward and addressed the primary. He said in part:

"Gentlemen: I want to say a word of appreciation for the compliment you have extended to me in a nomination. I have served you for four years as Mayor and to have served with such men as compose the Borough Council it has been a pleasure.

"Although some may differ about questions of importance to us all, it has been my duty as well as my pleasure to serve you, regardless of the different views you have taken of the question, as such duties should have been performed.

"The borough has been unusually blessed with members of the Council which have had the best interests of the town at heart and never before has the town been in a better financial condition. The result has been quite as much of a surprise to me as it has been to you.

"I promise, if elected, to renew my efforts and will endeavor to give you as good a government as it is possible to have. I appreciate your attendance here this evening, and I hope you will support the ticket you have named."

THE QUIVER.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

The managements of the Santa Fe Railroad is about to establish clubhouses along the line of the road, where dancing will be taught the employes of the road. The general superintendent of the road will have charge of this work and it is the purpose of the company to cultivate the social side of its employes. It is believed that a young brakeman able to dance the two-step will be better qualified to waltz over ice-covered freight cars.

Shake Off the Wintry Blasts.

The months of January and February are the most disagreeable to the northerner and delightful are they for the Florida tourist. The trip to Jacksonville is through a section as historic as it is picturesque, and the service to that point via the Royal Blue Line is the best. The New Jersey Central is going to run an excursion to Jacksonville on Tuesday, March 10. Train leaves New York, foot Liberty street, at 8:30 a. m., arrive Washington at 2:10 p. m., same day; leave Washington at 7 p. m., March 11 and arrive Jacksonville at 1:20 p. m., March 12. The round trip rate from New York and vicinity is $50, and includes also sleeping car berths, meals en route, transfer and hotel accommodations in Washington on southward trip, passengers making their own arrangements for the northward return trip. The arrangements are such that the care and worry of the journey are in the hands of the railroad company, and the tourist has the entire time for enjoyment. The New Jersey Central has issued "A Little Yellow Book" on this Florida trip; if you want it send a postal to C. M. Burt, general passenger agent, New York. It's free for the asking. 2 18 6 eod c 3

THEATRICAL.

"Camille," or the Fate of a Coquette, an adaption from the French of Aleaxnder Dumas, Jr., will be the attraction at Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York, next week. The reappearance of Miss Marie Dressler on the local stage will be an event worthy of more than passing notice at Proctor's Twenty-third Street next week. "Innocent As a Lamb," a brilliant comedy by Sydney Rosenfeld, will be the vehicle in which Proctor's 125th Street stock company will exploit themselves next week. "Devil's Island," a stirring melodrama founded upon the famous Dreyfus case, will be the attraction in which the stock company at Proctor's Fifty-eighth Street will be seen next week. Proctor's Theatre in Newark will next week have another all-star bill. Johnstone Bennett & Company, in "A Quiet Evening at Home," will be the headliner; Hickey and Nelson, in "Twisted and Tangled;" the Five Juggling Johnsons, Terrill and Simon, and many other vaudeville favorites will complete the entertainment.

DeWolf Hopper and Mr. Pickwick make an irresistable combination at the Herald Square Theatre, New York City, where they continue to delight large audiences at every performance. The refreshing mirth of the celebrated Dickens' characters is transferred across the footlights by a company of artists, thoroughly competent in every respect to present the various parts in a faithful portrayal of the great author's ideas. Digby Bell, Laura Joyce Bell, Louise Gunning, Grant Stewart, Marguerite Clark and Henry Norman all well known in the theatrical world are among the principals. One of the features of Mr. Pickwick is the atmosphere which pervades the entire production and which carries the auditor back to the time and place of the celebrated incidents of Dingley Bell.

QUAKERS KEEP TROPHY.

Racket Doubles Championship Won by Philadelphians.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 28.—Philadelphia will retain the silver racket, the trophy emblematic of the racket doubles championship of America, for another year as a result of the match played in the court of the Philadelphia Racket club.

The competing pairs were Quincy Shaw, the former single champion, and O. M. Bartlett, representing the Boston Athletic association, and Robert Kelso Cassatt and Hugh David, part holder of the doubles trophy, playing for Philadelphia.

The contest was elected to be the best of seven games, and the Philadelphians proved that they were superior to the Bostonians by capturing four games in fifty minutes of fast play. Only one game went to the credit of Boston.

Jeffries and Corbett to Meet.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—That James J. Jeffries and James J. Corbett will be matched in a few days for a battle for the heavyweight championship of the world there is now little doubt. Jeffries has notified his manager, Billy Delaney, that he would arrive here from Columbus tomorrow morning, ready and anxious to sign articles with Corbett. Jeffries, Delaney and Corbett will meet at the Delavan House tomorrow afternoon to talk over details, and unless some unexpected hitch arises the conditions of the match will have been formulated before the conference is ended.

Harvard Defeated Yale.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Harvard beat Yale last night in the first game of the finals for the intercollegiate hockey championship by a score of 6 to 2. The crimson players led at the end of the first half by 4 to 2. Hitchcock, Yale's captain, strained his kneecap while attempting to trip Lovering. Ward of Yale was disqualified twice for rough play, as were Newhall and Rowland in the second period. The game was exceptionally rough.

Long Shots Won.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 28.—Long shots were in evidence at Ingleside. July Gyp, a 40 to 1 chance, took the seven furlongs race by a head from El Piloto, quoted at 15 to 1. M. F. Tarpey won the first race at odds of 10 to 1, while in the closing number Bonnie Lissak scored at 15 to 1. Sad Sam upset calculations by winning the six furlongs handicap at odds of 7 to 1.

Chess at Monte Carlo.

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 28.—The conclusion of the first half of the chess tournament shows the following scores: Pillsbury, 9½; Tarrasch and Teichmann, 9; Marco and Schlechter, 8½; Maroczy and Mieses, 7; Marshall, 6½; Mason, Taubenhaus and Wolf, 5½; Albin, 5; Reggio, 3½; Moreau, 0.

English Fighter Defeated.

DETROIT, Feb. 28.—England tried for another championship last night and scored another defeat. Her champion bantamweight, Andy Tokell, was beaten clearly and decisively by Harry Forbes, the champion bantamweight of the world.

Jaw Broken While Sparring.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 28.—In an athletic carnival at Watertown George Bush, who was a sparring partner of John L. Sullivan, had his jaw broken by Ralph Barter, formerly sparring partner of Jeffries.

Favorites Won at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 28.—Winning favorites were the rule. Malster was run up to $1,000 and bought by Daniels & Co. The weather was rainy and track muddy.

Guatemala Greatly Disturbed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Advices from reliable sources received here by mail from Guatemala show that the country was in a most disturbed condition as late as Feb. 13. All men capable of bearing arms were being mobilized on the frontier of Salvador, and President Cabriera had 20,000 men under arms in Guatemala City. The revolutionists had about 6,000 men under arms, mostly refugees and Guatemalan enemies of Cabrera. Business was paralyzed, and financial conditions were going from bad to worse. The paper money was worth about 5 or 6 cents on the dollar. Cabrera had declared himself dictator and civil law had been suspended.

Five Holidays For Cubans.

HAVANA, Feb. 28.—The session of the senate yesterday was taken up with the discussion of the house bill fixing five national holidays. Good Friday was stricken out of the list of the proposed holidays after a debate in which the idea of accentuating the separation of church and state by not legalizing the holidays fixed by the church predominated. The reciprocity treaty was not discussed, and consideration of it was adjourned until Monday.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Port-de-Paix, Haiti, has been burned.

Rebels ambushed 500 imperial troops in Kwangsi, China, and killed all.

The latest advices from Central America indicate that all the republics are arming troops.

General John B. Gordon of Georgia was taken seriously ill on a railroad train in Mississippi.

An explosion in the imperial palace, Vienna, created great excitement. Two workmen were hurt.

Five men were killed by an explosion at the Latian & Rand Powder works at Turk, Kan.

United States Consul General Sawyer, who went to Guayaquil, Ecuador, to succeed Thomas Nast, has left that city for fear of yellow fever.

ITHACA YET UNSAFE

Board of Health Issues a Statement.

COMMISSIONER LEWIS CONTRADICTED

President Schurman Says Students Remain on Their Own Responsibility—Fewer New Cases of Fever Reported.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 28.—The Ithaca board of health refuses to assume the responsibility for the statement made several days ago by State Health Commissioner Lewis, when he was here investigating the typhoid fever situation, to the effect that it was safe for students of Cornell to return to Ithaca. The board has passed resolutions to that effect.

"We deem the condition of the Ithaca city water," says one of the resolutions, "such that it is absolutely essential for residents to secure such board and lodging as will guarantee that no unboiled water from that source will enter the stomach, and we look upon the chance of secondary infection from the numerous cases of typhoid fever now in the city as a new and serious source of danger."

Circulars reviewing the whole typhoid fever situation, which are being sent from the president's office, have been revised so that Dr. Lewis' statement that it is safe for students to return has been omitted.

Dean Wilcox has given out a statement in which he says:

"The faculty of arts and sciences today voted to leave the arrangements for the making up of the work on the part of students ill or absent in consequence of the epidemic of typhoid fever to the several departments and to assure such students that reasonable absence from their duties will not prejudice their case and that candidates for the degree of bachelor of arts next June whose previous work was satisfactory will be dealt with generously to the extent of modifying where necessary the standard requirements for degrees."

The other faculties of the university have adopted substantially the same rules except that in mechanical engineering, medicine and law.

President Schurman said that the attitude of the university authorities was the same now as it had been throughout the epidemic—namely, that students who remain in Ithaca or who now return do so entirely upon their own responsibility, but that absent students would be given the greatest consideration in making up for work lost.

The contract was signed today between the Ithaca Water company and Cornell university whereby the water company is to immediately build a filtration plant in consideration of $150,000 furnished by the university.

No deaths have occurred from typhoid and only seven cases have developed in the last twenty-four hours, none of which were among students of Cornell university.

Ladrone Leader Captured.

MANILA, Feb. 28.—Governor Dancel of the Rizal province has captured Colonel Santos, one of the ladrone leaders, at San Jose de Navotes, a village five miles north of Manila, on a small island. Governor Dancel learned of the whereabouts of Santos and surrounded the house in which he was with police and constabulary. He then entered the house personally and made a prisoner of Santos, who has been brought to Manila. Colonel Santos was the leader of the ladrones in Rizal province and a comrade of General San Miguel. A reward of 2,000 pesos had been offered for his capture.

Gale Sweeps Great Britain.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—A severe gale has swept over Great Britain, doing much damage. At Ulverston, Lancashire, a passenger train was blown over, a number of passengers were injured, and ten cars were wrecked. The gale swept over Ireland from north to south. At Cork a three story building collapsed, burying fifteen persons in the ruins. One of them was killed, and one was fatally injured. Various coast points report vessels ashore. The rivers in the interior are flooding.

Wounded Schoolboy Is Dead.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Feb. 28.—Edwin Foster, the seventeen-year-old schoolboy who was shot last Friday afternoon by Reuben E. Pitts, a teacher in the academy Foster attended, has just died here. It is said that several of the students attacked Professor Pitts while he was whipping Foster and that in the scuffle that followed Foster was shot by Pitts.

Cattle Plague Caused Heavy Loss.

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 28.—Dr. F. W. Huntington of the state board of agriculture estimates that Portland has lost in shipment thus far 45,000 head of cattle because of the cattle embargo resulting from the foot and mouth disease. Of this number, he said, about 30,000 head probably would have been cattle and 15,000 sheep.

Mexicans Visit Chile.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 28.—A Mexican delegation having in view the fostering of commercial relations between this country and Mexico has arrived here and was well received. There are great expectations regarding the outcome of this mission.

Portuguese Cabinet Out.

LISBON, Feb. 28.—The cabinet has resigned. The king has accepted its resignation and charged Senhor Hintze Ribeiro, formerly premier and minister of finance, to form a cabinet.

MESSAGE TO SENATE

President Urges Passage of Philippine Tariff.

TAFT CABLES URGENT PETITION.

All Political Parties In the Island Join In Asking Action to Avert Starvation and Complete Stagnation of Business.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The president has sent the following message to the senate:

"I have just received a cable from Governor Taft which runs as follows: 'Necessity for passage house tariff bill most urgent. The conditions of productive industry and business considerably worse than in November, the date of last report, and growing worse each month. Some revival in sugar. Tobacco prices due to expectation of tariff law. The interests of Filipinos in sugar and tobacco extensive, and failure of bill will be blow in face of those interests. Number of tobacco factories will have to close, and many sugar haciendas will be put up for sale at a sacrifice if the bill will not pass. Customs receipts have fallen off this month one-third, showing decrease of purchasing power of islands. General business stagnant. All political parties, including labor unions, most strenuous in petition for tariff bill. Effect of its failure very discouraging.'

"Vice Governor Luke Wright indorses in the strongest manner all that Governor Taft has said and states that he has the gravest apprehension as to the damage that may come to the islands if there is not a substantial reduction in the tariff levied against Philippine goods coming into the United States. I very earnestly ask that this matter receive the immediate attention of congress and that the relief prayed for be granted.

"As congress knows, a series of calamities have befallen the Philippine people. Just as they were emerging from nearly six years of devastating warfare, with the accompanying destruction of property and the breaking up of the bonds of social order and the habits of peaceful industry, there occurred an epidemic of rinderpest which destroyed 90 per cent of the carabaos, the Filipino cattle, crippling transportation. The rice crop, already reduced by various causes to but a fourth of its ordinary size, has been damaged by locusts so that the price of rice has nearly doubled.

"Under these circumstances there is imminent danger of famine in the islands. Congress is in course of generously appropriating $3,000,000 to meet the immediate needs, but the indispensable and pre-eminent need is the resurrection of productive industry from the prostration into which it has been thrown by the causes above enumerated. I ask action in the tariff matter not merely from the standpoint of wise governmental policy, but as a measure of humanity in response to an appeal to which this great people should not close its ears. We have assumed responsibilities toward the Philippine Islands which we are in honor bound to fulfill. We have the specific duty of taking every measure in our power to see to their prosperity.

"The first and most important step in this direction has been accomplished by the joint action of the military and civil authorities in securing peace and civil government. The wisdom of congress at the present session has provided for them a stable currency, and its spirit of humane liberality and justice toward them will be shown in the appropriation now substantially agreed upon of $3,000,000 to meet the pressing immediate necessities, but there remains a vital need that one thing further shall be done. The calamities which have befallen them, as above enumerated, could have been averted by no human wisdom. They cannot be completely repaired, but the suffering can be greatly alleviated and a permanent basis of future prosperity assured if the economic relations of the islands with the United States are put upon a satisfactory basis."

Speaker Henderson's Plans.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—It is said by an intimate friend of Speaker Henderson that the latter has not formed any definite plans for the immediate future following his retirement from congress. He expects to go to California for a visit to his daughter soon after the adjournment of that body. The probability is he will retire from the law firm in Dubuque with which he has been connected for many years, as his connection with it has been largely nominal, and the speaker has several plans for the future under consideration.

Empty Coffins by the Hundred.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 28.—Coroner Hackney has begun an inquest over the dead body of a man found in a zinc trunk at the county cemetery, the jury after hearing several witnesses adjourning until Monday, when the investigation will be resumed. The investigating committee up to this time has opened 321 graves, and of these 225 have been found to contain empty coffins.

She Overdid the Business.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 28.—Because she wished to prevent her mother from going away on a short visit Mona Mills, aged fourteen years, swallowed a dose of glycerin and carbolic acid with the intention of making herself sick. She took too large a quantity, however, and died from the effects.

Utica Knitting Mills Closed.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 28.—The Index Knitting mills at Phoenix Mills are to be shut down indefinitely, throwing 200 employees out of work. All will secure positions in other places.

A BUFFALO MYSTERY.

Prominent Man Murdered In His Home—Robbery Not Committed.

BUFFALO, Feb. 28.—Edwin L. Burdick, president of E. L. Burdick & Co. and of the Buffalo Envelope company, has been murdered at his home on Ashland avenue, in one of the finest residence sections of the city. The theory at first advanced—that the crime was the work of a burglar—was abandoned as the police probed deeper into the case, and while they claim to have several important clews no arrest has been made.

Burdick was last seen alive last night at 10:30 when he bade the other members of the household goodnight and started for his room, apparently with the intention of retiring for the night. In the morning his body, clad in an undershirt, was found lying on a couch in a small room off the lower hall used by Burdick as a smoking room. The body was covered with a rug and a number of sofa pillows. The couch was saturated with blood, and the walls and floor of the little den were bespattered with Burdick's brains and blood. The body when uncovered presented a ghastly sight. His head had been crushed with some blunt instrument, and the blows were delivered with such force that the skull was crushed in several places, and brains were oozing out upon the couch.

Chief of Detectives Cusack took charge of the case. A thorough examination of the house and its occupants was made. Nothing of value was missing. The outside door was locked, and the spring lock was in its place when the servants got up in the morning. The inner door was ajar. A kitchen window was partly raised, but there were no marks on the snow outside or upon the window sill to indicate that any one had entered there. All the other windows and doors of the house were securely fastened. That shattered the theory of an unknown intruder.

Some interesting discoveries were made in other parts of the house. To begin with, no weapon could be found anywhere. Articles of clothing which Burdick had worn were in his bedroom on the floor above. The bed had not been occupied. On the table in the smoking room the detectives found a bottle partly filled with whisky and the remains of a light lunch. Members of the family declare that Burdick never partook of the food of which the lunch was composed and never drank liquor while eating. For whom, then, was the lunch?

Mrs. Burdick, the murdered man's wife, left home two months ago, with the intention, it is said, of not returning. On Dec. 5 proceedings for divorce were filed in the county clerk's office by Mr. Burdick.

Central Road Blocked by a Washout.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Feb. 28.—The Hudson division of the New York Central railroad is tied up by a washout which occurred at the point known as "the loop," three miles north of Peekskill, where the company is blasting out the base of the mountain for the purpose of getting a solid foundation for the tracks. The slide, which was caused by the thaw of the last week, carried away both tracks for a distance of seventy-five feet. Western trains are being run over the Harlem division between New York and Albany via Chatham.

Postmasters Named.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The president has sent the following nominations to the senate: Postmasters—Connecticut, Wilbur F. Smith, Seymour; Massachusetts, John S. Fay, Marlboro; New York, Mortimer N. Cole, Castile; Pennsylvania, Windle W. Montgomery, Bellefonte; Orrin Serfass.

Jail For Doe Killer.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 28.—In the case of the people of the state against Dwight Lash for having killed a doe out of season a plea of guilty was entered, and Lash was sent to the Lewis county jail for forty days.

KODOL Digests What You Eat

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Kodol

Digests What You Eat

Mrs. Loring Nichols of Penn Yan, N. Y., writes: After eating, my food would distress me by making my heart palpitate and I would become very weak. Finally I got a bottle of Kodol and it gave me immediate relief. After using a few bottles I am cured.

Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders, and gives the heart a full, free and untrammeled action.

Bottles only. $1.00 Size holding 2½ times the trial size, which sells for 50c.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Briskness In Nearly All Lines—Unprecedented Consumption of Goods.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Milder weather not only accelerated the demand for many lines of merchandise, but relieved the pressure for fuel, which threatened to become a serious matter, and incidentally facilitated efforts to reduce the freight congestion. With no other retarding feature than the holiday, business fully maintains its gratifying position. Returns of both domestic and foreign trade are fully equal to those of the same month last year, and in many cases there are marked gains. The people are consuming on a scale never before equaled, as evidenced by the enormous distribution and continual inquiries for prompt shipment. Firmly held quotations also bear testimony to the fact that demand is often greater than supply.

Increased interest has been displayed by purchasers of all products of iron and steel, giving a decidedly firmer tone to the market, and in many instances quotations have advanced.

Future conditions in this industry are indicated by sales of basic iron at $21.50 for deliveries up to the end of the year, while large bessemer contracts are under consideration covering shipments during the first half of 1904.

Few additional advances have occurred in quotations of cotton goods, the developments of the week being chiefly in the direction of establishing the market on the higher basis that was suggested by earlier spasmodic advances. There is more conservatism on the part of buyers, rendering the market actually duller despite distinct improvement in weather.

Western receipts of wheat aggregated only 2,509,610 bushels for the week compared with 3,354,546 bushels a year ago, while exports from all points of the United States, flour included, were but 3,054,079 bushels against 3,185,032 last year and 4,324,249 bushels two years ago. As usual, the new corn hurried to market is not grading high, but better results are anticipated as the season advances.

Failures this week numbered 211 in the United States against 215 last year and 28 in Canada compared with 35 a year ago.

FRENCH PROTOCOL SIGNED.

Complications Averted by Action of M. Jusserand.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—M. J. J. Jusserand, the French ambassador, and Mr. Herbert W. Bowen, the Venezuelan plenipotentiary, have signed a protocol for the settlement of the French claims against Venezuela by a joint commission to meet at Caracas and for the reference to The Hague tribunal of the contention of the allied powers for preferential treatment in the satisfaction of their demands. The French protocol, which is the sixth convention Mr. Bowen has signed, is identical save as to parties with that of the United States recently signed by Secretary Hay and Mr. Bowen.

For several days it has been feared that President Castro's suggestions regarding a separate mode of settlement for the French, Belgian and Spanish claims might result in complications in Washington which would delay the signing of the French convention. Had the French government insisted on more advantageous terms than those provided for in the United States protocol it would have been difficult for Venezuela to refuse them. M. Jusserand, however, appreciated the situation, urged his government to content itself with a protocol framed along the exact lines of that accepted by the United States, and his suggestions were approved.

Initiation Ended Disastrously.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., Feb. 28.—J. B. Thompson of De Kalb is at Ogdensburg hospital with an eye shot out and face filled with powder as the result of an accident at a lodge initiation. Thompson was a candidate for membership in the lodge of a secret order at Heuvelton and in spirit of fun his friends were preparing to fire a revolver loaded with blank cartridges, when it accidentally discharged in Thompson's face. The injured man is in a serious condition.

Lowell's Fatal Fire.

LOWELL, Mass., Feb. 28.—One life was lost and six persons suffered severely from burns and smoke at a fire which partially destroyed the Burbank block. The victim was Mrs. Sarah F. Kittredge, a newspaper correspondent, about sixty years old, who, although aroused with the other seventy-five lodgers in the building, stopped to get her bicycle and in doing so was overcome by smoke and perished.

Wool Shippers Protest.

BOSTON, Feb. 28.—Men engaged in the wool trade in Boston met to protest against the action of the United States department of agriculture in placing an embargo on wool in connection with its fight against the foot and mouth disease. The embargo has been on since Dec. 22, but it was not until Saturday that the railroads began to enforce it.

High Prices For Porcelains.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—A collection of porcelains which belonged to the late Sir Hugh Adair has been sold at auction and aggregated $35,255 for twenty pieces, mostly Dresden and Sevres vases. The highest price, $9,975, was paid for a vase by Morin which originally came from the Marchioness of Londonderry's collection.

New Jersey Red Men.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 28.—The New Jersey great council of the Improved Order of Red Men concluded a two days' session here with the election and installation of officers. A proposition to reduce the age limit from twenty-one to eighteen years was defeated.

MORGAN IS STUBBORN

Will Not Allow a Vote on the Canal Treaty.

RATIFICATION SEEMS IMPROBABLE.

Senator Cullom Tries In Vain to Get the Member From Alabama to Yield Consent—Secret Sessions Complained Of.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—A determined effort on the part of Senator Cullom to obtain Senator Morgan's consent to fix a time for voting on the Panama canal treaty was made while the senate was in executive session yesterday and was met by just as determined opposition on the part of the Alabama senator. In making the request Senator Cullom said that the United States had been trying for fifty years to get a canal across the isthmus and he appealed to Senator Morgan not to stand in the way of the consummation of this aspiration. He first asked for a vote today, then for a vote Monday and lastly for a vote Tuesday, but each request was refused.

SENATOR CULLOM.

"I think," said Mr. Cullom, "the senator is making a great mistake. The whole country recognizes his great services for the past twenty years in the interest of a canal connecting the two oceans. Indeed he may be called the father of the isthmian canal, but it certainly would seem that by his present opposition to the Panama treaty he is strangling his own offspring."

To this Senator Morgan replied with spirit. He said that his interest in a canal is now as great as it ever was, that it was indeed so great that he felt he owed it to himself and the country to exert himself to the utmost to prevent the ratification of a treaty which he felt to be so full of defects as the pending agreement. He then complained of the refusal of the senate to allow him to discuss the treaty in open session. The country, he said, ought to know just what it was going into, but it could not know so long as the doors were closed every time the treaty was mentioned.

Most senators believe that the refusal to fix a time for a vote means that the treaty cannot be ratified before the close of the present session.

DEMOCRATS FILIBUSTER.

Stormy and Slow Progress In the House.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The Democrats of the house yesterday carried out their threat made Thursday that if Mr. Butler was unseated they would do everything in their power to block legislation from now until congress expires, March 4. The result was another stormy session, prolonged from 11 o'clock in the morning until almost 7 o'clock in the evening. Roll call succeeded roll call, and at every pause party passion manifested itself in a bitter and acrimonious denunciation.

Two special rules were brought in to expedite appropriation bills and to continue the legislative day of Thursday in order to reduce as much as possible the minority's power to obstruct legislation. During the debate on the rule the Democrats voiced their condemnation of what they denominated an outrageous action of the chair. The Republicans declared that they were willing to assume responsibility for what they had done and explained the necessity of the drastic rules presented, Mr. Dalzell saying that unless this course was pursued the Democrats could consume 137 hours, or twenty-seven legislative days, on roll calls on the senate amendments to the appropriation bills.

It was agreed on both sides that the present situation sounded the death knell of practically everything except the appropriation bills. The friends of the omnibus public building bill, who were threatening to defeat the rules if they were not modified to include their measure, were placated by a promise which, it was understood, was given that their bills would be covered by a special rule to be brought in later.

The senate passed the naval and the Military academy appropriation bills. Mr. Blackburn secured a vote on his motion to take up the Littlefield anti-trust bill, but his motion was lost—28 to 38. The senate from 1:45 p. m. to 5:15 was in executive session. When the doors were opened, a number of bills were passed without objection.

Venezuela Rebels Retreat.

CARACAS, Feb. 28.—The body of revolutionists numbering about 2,500 under the command of General Rolando which reached the neighborhood of Caracas on Feb. 15 with the intention of attacking the capital has abandoned the positions taken up and retreated in the direction of Guarenas, Guatire and Santa Lucia. The government, which is actively reorganizing the army and receiving re-enforcements from the provinces, will send forces to pursue the rebels.

REPORT OF HOSPITAL.

With the report of Muhlenberg Hospital in hand, the philanthropic citizen of Plainfield may congratulate himself that there is such an institution in our city, that the new hospital buildings on Park avenue are well underway and that plans are on foot for improvement of the hospital service. The treatment of 451 patients during the year, 222 of the cases being surgical operations, demonstrates the need of a hospital for the city and vicinity. The treasurer's report showing the total amount of bequests, donations and interest from memorial funds for the year to be $14,035 84, shows how willing the friends of this institution are to supply the cost of its maintenance.

The fact that no person is ever refused admission because of inability to pay the charge for treatment, that one-third of the patients treated last year were free patients and that in the dispensary 539 patients were treated entirely free, makes the hospital service one of the most beneficent charities of the city.

The registry of officers, board of governors, committees, medical staff and members of women's auxiliary board with the list of donors show how large a number of willing-hearted men and women have lent their aid to this good cause.

Not a week goes by but many unfortunates from accident or failing health find a shelter within the hospital walls, where skillful treatment and a degree of comfort that would not be attainable in private homes, await the suffering patients. The recent disastrous wreck on the Jersey Central Railroad taxed the resources of the hospital as no previous event in its history, and its ability to minister to the wounded sufferers, must enforce on the community a new and real appreciation of its usefulness and the necessity of its maintenance.

The completion of the new buildings at the south-easterly corner of Park avenue and Randolph road will greatly increase the facilities for skillful and extended service. These new buildings consisting of the administration building, the kitchen building, the ward building and the operating pavilion, which is the gift of J. Howard Wright, will be an honor to the city and those who helped to build them. There are none so poor but they can aid the inmates and secure the blessing of Him whose commendation "I was sick and ye visited me" won a right hand place in the last great day of final account.

It is not pleasant to read that Prosecutor English was compelled to drive all the newspapermen from the county buildings in order to keep the sessions of the Grand Jury secret. It is only fair to the profession to explain that the offenders were but a few out of many. Plainfield had its experience with them during the days immediately following the Westfield disaster and when the coroner's jury was in session. Most of the newspapermen were found to be a very agreeable and gentlemanly lot. There were a few, however, who, in their desire to allow nothing to escape them, made themselves somewhat obnoxious. It was probably a few men of the same stripe that made things so unpleasant at Elizabeth that compelled Prosecutor English to take the step he did. During the coroner's inquest, Mr. English was always ready to do what he could for the newspapermen and it does not seem likely that any great change would have come over him without due provocation.

This installation of a police patrol system in Plainfield has made considerable talk and it is interesting to hear just what the chairman of the police board has to say on the subject. According to him, it is possible that the initial cost may increase the tax rate by a single point this year but that thereafter the cost of maintenance will be so small that the rate may return to its present point. Everybody has to admit that such a system is a good thing for the city and unless other things combine to raise the rate way up, it is not likely that the public will make any strenuous objection to an increase of a single point. It is the combination of events which may run the rate well up in the air that is feared.

There is a communication in this issue of The Daily Press which is worthy of attention. It is from the pen of W. H. Riley, of North Plainfield, and deals with the present trouble with the trolley company. Mr. Riley points out that the trolley company and the public ought to work together. This can be done without converting that street railway corporation into a benevolent organization or a public institution. Everyone expects the company to look after its interests but its interests should be to give its patrons the best possible service. The good will of the community is a valuable thing for any company to possess and it cannot be sought for too earnestly.

It might be well to explain that the reason Floyd T. Woodhull asked to be excused from serving on the Grand Jury when the Westfield disaster was considered was that he could not very well agree to two verdicts on the same subject.

There is some reason to believe that these stories of wonderful findings by the Grand Jury in the Westfield disaster case are mythical and that its verdict can be but little different from that of the coroner's jury.

The Democratic "dark horse" finally made its appearance last night. It took some hustling to find it, however.

SOME GOOD ADVICE.

Wm. H. Riley Writes in Regard to the Present Condition of the Trolley Service.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Mr. Lee's efforts in the Common Council to secure to the city its rights from the trolley company, ought to have the support of every citizen of Plainfield. If the public does not actively claim the service that it has bought, it is liable to go short. The writer, returning, at many hours of the day from New York, does not recall an instance in which he has found a car waiting at the trolley station, and yet to fit the service to New York trains would seem to be a reasonable thing to do. That the cars are not clean, and that they are often cold, are conditions that ought to be remedied. The departure of cars should be called out in the waiting room; the omission of this sometimes means the loss of a car to a waiting passenger.

Between the public and its servants there ought to be friendly co-operation. The trolley company can easily gain the public good will. This is a tangible asset, and it seems to the writer that a wise manager would seek to secure it by an earnest effort to comply with reasonable demands in the matter of service. The company ought not to force an appeal to the law. William H. Riley.

ON PORTO RICO.

Dr. Carroll Gave Interesting Talk at Men's Assembly of Grace M. E. Church.

The first meeting of a series arranged by the Men's Assembly of Grace M. E. church took place last evening. Despite the bad weather, the attendance was very gratifying.

Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll was present and delivered an interesting talk on "The Civilization of Porto Rico" in which he related many facts gleaned during his residence in the Island. He dwelt in particular upon the people and country and the scenes during the change of government from that of Spain to the United States. Another feature of the evening was violin solos by M. A. Korff assisted by William Conger.

William Heil presided at the meeting and a committee was in charge consisting of W. J. Conroy, Fred Schooley and William Warren.

SUBURBAN NEWS

A Department Devoted to the Minor Events in Greater Plainfield's Suburbs by Our Own Correspondents.

DUNELLEN.

At the reopening of the Presbyterian church Sunday evening, the following musical programme will be rendered by the choir, assisted by Wm. Jeffery, tenor; Mrs. Hoffman, soprano; Mrs. Runyon, alto; Edmund Teel, bass; Mr. Wotton, violin; Mr. Humpston, organist, and an orchestra: Prelude, Romance, Brooks, orchestra and organ; solo, Mrs. Hoffman, selected; quartette, "Lead and Keep Me," Henny; solo, "Holy City," Adams, Mr. Jeffery; duet, selected, Mr. Jeffery and Mrs. Hoffman; solo, "Dream of Paradise," Gray, Miss Edith Boice, violin obligato by Mr. Wotton; organ postlude.

Charles Hack, of North avenue, met with an unfortunate accident while at his work as brakeman on the Central Railroad, yesterday. He was on the top of a freight car coming out of the Pond Tool Works and forgot about a railing across the gate. The rail caught him in the back of the neck and threw him with great force to the ground. His left arm was broken and he was badly shaken up and bruised. He was brought home and Dr. Brakeley was called to attend his injuries. He will be confined to the house for some time.

A large number attended the auction sale of the household goods of the late Hulda Randolph yesterday afternoon, and good prices were realized. G. W. Day was auctioneer.

A dime social will be held in the chapel of the Presbyterian church, March 6 under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society.

Cottage prayer meeting was held by the members of the First Baptist church at the home of Mrs. Henry Garretson, last evening.

A slight fire occurred at the home of Louis Block yesterday but it was put out without the assistance of the fire department.

Mrs. Lewis Tunison has so far recovered from her recent illness as to be able to be about again.

A sale of homemade cookery will be held this afternoon in the W. C. T. U. room.

Mrs. Albert Randolph is ill at her home with a slight attack of the grip.

Theodore Apgar has rented the house now occupied by Lewis Block.

The annual school meeting will be held March 17, in the Town Hall.

An extra chair has been placed in John Peters' barber shop.

Miss Mary Opdyke is visiting friends in Philadelphia.

Henry Stevens has been laid up this week with a lame back.

Mayor Swackhamer is still improving from his illness.

John Logan is confined to his home by a slight illness.

Mrs. J. Newton is ill at her home.

NEW MARKET.

Friendship Social Circle met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Squiers.

Mrs. Foster Sofield is spending a week with Mrs. Fred Nelson at Watchung.

C. T. Rogers has been confined to his home by rheumatism this week.

The local board of registry and appeals will meet next Tuesday.

James Hallet is improving from a two weeks' illness.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

As soon as the weather will permit Briant Johnston, captain of the school ball team, will have the material from which to select the team from out for regular practice. There is plenty of material in the school and a strong team should make its appearance when the season opens in April.

The board of registry will meet Tuesday of next week in the town rooms for the purpose of revising and correcting the registry list for the spring election. This is the only opportunity given to the voters to have their names added to the polling list unless by order of the court.

Regular services will be held tomorrow at the Baptist church: Sunday-school, 9:30; morning preaching, 10:45; B. Y. P. U. meeting, 7; evening preaching in the church parlors, 7:45.

It is reported that the butcher shop recently conducted by A. J. Brace has been rented to an out of town party who will soon reopen the market.

The Saturday evening dances at Ivamy's pavillion are growing in favor. Music is furnished by Naylor's orchestra of Plainfield.

Special Constable Henry Guenier will soon begin the work of rounding up the annual batch of delinquent taxpayers.

Chas. Joerg, of Westfield road, is detained at home with a severe cold which has threatened pneumonia.

Joseph Eller, who has been detained at home suffering from a severe attack of the grip, is improving.

Fanwood Council, R. A., will have as its guest at its meeting March 10 Grand Vice Regent Washburn.

Chas. Hockey and family will shortly remove to the Peter Frazee cottage on Bartle avenue.

Rev. Mr. Bayliss will lead the weekly prayer meeting at the Methodist church tonight.

John Rickerson has been visiting friends in Plainfield.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Interesting subjects will be presented at the regular services at the Baptist church tomorrow morning and evening. The Christian Endeavor meeting at 7 o'clock, will be led by Mrs. Oscar Thorn, topic: "What Christ teaches about blessedness."

Dayton Meelick, Jr., has sold thirty acres off the south side of his farm to a Mr. Huron who has also purchased other adjoining property for the purpose, as it said, of constructing a park.

George Wooden has bought the farm on which he resides, which was owned by Mrs. Katherine Brantingham.

Mrs. John Teeple's children, who have been confined with an attack of measles, are improving.

William Drake, of Stelton, was in town on business this morning.

Henry Meeker entertained a few of his young friends last evening.

Mrs. Ottis Todd, of Park avenue, is confined at home by illness.

Charles E. Drake is suffering with symptoms of pneumonia.

Mrs. Melvin Teeple is suffering with grip and neuralgia.

CARRIER TO COLLECT MAIL

NEW IMPROVEMENT POSTMASTER BIRD WILL INAUGURATE MONDAY.

Carrier Dunn Will Devote All His Time to the Collection of Mail—Other Changes.

Through the earnest endeavors of Postmaster E. H. Bird the local postal service is to be improved so that in the future the letter-carriers will have more time to deliver their mail. Mention of this proposed change was exclusively made in The Daily Press recently, and if possible it will go in effect on Monday, provided some of the sick carriers are able to report for duty.

The plan as formulated is to have Letter-Carrier Edward T. Dunn attend to the collection of mail from the boxes. One of his special duties will be the early morning collection from all boxes. Of course, this will not interfere with the other carriers collecting from boxes when delivering mail, but the fact that one man will be assigned to collecting will greatly aid the other carriers in covering their territory more thoroughly.

Carrier Dunn's present route will be covered by Substitute Carrier Daniel McNamara. He will have the use of a horse and cart, the same as was allowed Mr. Dunn. The latter will continue to use a horse and cart, it being impossible to cover the city on foot. Another change will be to relieve Carrier Glaentzer from his duty of delivering mail on West Front street, between Madison avenue and Grove street. Carrier John Hines will take this portion of the route. With the appointment of Carrier McNamara as a regular, this will give Mr. Bird a force of fifteen carriers.

MAYOR NOT TO BLAME.

L. E. Barkalew Wants to Give Honor to Whom Honor is Due.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The statement I made to your reporter in gard to the borough taxes seems to have been a little deficient. The increase in taxes last year was not caused by anything the mayor could control. The advance in taxes seems to have been caused by the large appropriation asked for by the Borough Board of Education. The borough taxes, outside the school and freeholder appropriation, were lower last year than in 1901. L. E. Barkalew.

Funeral of Miss Harrington.

Funeral services over the remains of Miss Mary Harrington, who died suddenly, yesterday morning, at her employer's home, will be held tomorrow afternoon from the residence of her cousin, Richard Lorton, at 2:30 and from St. Mary's church at 3 o'clock. Interment will be made in St. Mary's cemetery.

Ice Houses Filled.

After keeping its force of men at work day and night, the Watchung Ice Company has succeeded in filling its houses with the season's supply of the frozen commodity. The ice is of a good quality but averages but six inches in thickness.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants

Chocolates, caramels and bon bons will be the features at Fowler's candy kitchen, this week. All of Fowler's candies are made on the premises and nothing but the purest of ingredients are used.

Trading stamps are not the only good features at S. Scheuer & Company's grocery on West Front street. The goods sold by this firm are of the best quality and you get them at the lowest market prices.

Giles, the popular butcher, Park avenue and West Second street, sells meat that is rich, tender of fine flavor and very nutrious, and his prices are of the lowest considering quality. Give him an order and be convinced.

Powlison & Jones announce that all furniture bought at their show rooms within the next few weeks will be held until delivery is ordered. This is a convenience that is appreciated by all who undertake changes in the housefurnishing during the spring.

Winter is almost over and the last of Harry Werner's stock of medium suits is about gone. In the lot there are many bargains yet but they will soon be snapped up by people who appreciate a good thing. Werner carries a full line of men's furnishings.

Grip will invariably leave the patient with a sallow complexion and sluggish blood. If Peptonate of Iron tablets, which are sold at B. J. Schreiner's drug store, are used they will restore the color to the cheeks and make the blood circulate with vigor.

In selecting toilet articles it is very necessary to secure the best to be had. In soaps of inferior quality cheap material is used in its manufacture but if it is secured at T. S. Armstrong's apothecary store at the corner of Park and North avenues it can be relied upon.

As the spring season approaches there will be need for a good tonic and there is no better article on the market than one kept by Dunley S. Miller, the Park avenue druggist. It is well worth a trial. Mr. Miller keeps one of the best pharmacies in the city and he is always prepared to serve his patrons promptly. He gives especial attention to compounding prescriptions.

If you are troubled the least bit with your eyesight this is an indication that they should be examined promptly. Charles E. Vail, the Park avenue jeweler and optician, will give your eyes a thorough examination free, and if you need glasses will properly fit your eyes at a reasonable cost. Mr. Vail's stock of jewelry, diamonds, watches, etc., is one of the best in the State.

Death of New Providence Man.

Emanuel J. Frazier, a well known resident of New Providence, died at his home, last night, after a long illness from pulmonary troubles. He was forty-two years old and leaves a wife and five children. The funeral will be held from the Stony Hill R. C. church, Monday morning at 10:30.

EVERY CHURCH or institution supported by voluntary contribution will be given a liberal quantity of the Longman & Martinez Pure Paints whenever they paint.

NOTE: Have done so for twenty-seven years. Sales: Tens of millions of gallons; painted nearly two million houses under guarantee to repaint if not satisfactory. The paint wears for periods up to eighteen years. Linseed Oil must be added to the paint, (done in two minutes). Actual cost then about $1.25 a gallon. Samples free. Sold by our Agents—

AN ABBREVIATED SNOWSTORM

Blind Man in the Play Objected to Hammers and Other Hardware Among the Flakes.

"Mechanical devices are now made wonderfully real on the stage," said the old stock actor, according to the Philadelphia Record. "It hasn't been so many years ago since even the simple device of depicting a snow storm was regarded an achievement. I remember on one occasion I was out with a 'ten, twent and thirt' company playing repertoire, and in one melodrama—I don't even now recall the name, for it was a pirated play—I took the part of an old man whose daughter, the heroine, had been abducted. I was supposed to be blind, and my strong scene was the third act, when I went out into a snowstorm in search of my daughter. She was lying in a drift, and as I hobbled across the stage I kept crying: 'Me che-ild! where is me che-ild?' Well, it was early in the season, and the play was the first attraction at that theater. The scene painters had been at work, and had dropped several paint brushes, hammers and other articles into the sheet that held the snowstorm. As the stage hands in the flies shook the sheets to make the snow come out a couple of hammers came down and just missed me by an inch. I was blind, and didn't dare to look up, but when a monkey wrench just grazed my temple I had presence of mind enough to yell: 'See yonder moon! The storm is over!' The stage hands took their cue and let up on me, and the audience never stopped to question how a blind man could see yonder moon."

AMERICAN ARISTOCRACY.

"Oil Kings," "Money Kings" and Other Trade Monarchs Who Are Richer Than Royalty.

The few enormously wealthy American families of which the head enjoys an assured annual income of more than $1,000,000 may be regarded as representing in the American republic what the "royalties" represent in England, says Ainslee's Magazine. Popular phraseology, indeed, gives them, with unconscious fitness, quasi-royal titles in styling them—"oil kings," "money kings" and mining kings." Most of them live as few real kings can afford to live, and they receive from their immediate entourage something of the obsequious deference which in monarchial lands is given to those who are of the royal blood. Coming down a grade, we have the somewhat larger group of those whose incomes range from $1,000,000 down to $100,000. These individuals, as a class, are equivalent of the British peerage—the $900,000 magnate having, let us say, the relative rank of a duke, while the others represent a descending scale of dignity and are respectively the equals of marquises, earls, viscounts and barons. Then come what we may style in British terminology the "upper middle classes"—persons with incomes ranging from $100,000 to $20,000. Social classification ends with the final group of families whom we may collectively describe as the "lower middle classes," having incomes of not more than $20,000 and not less than $5,000.

PLAIN ENGLISH WANTED.

Young Medical Student Objected to the Use of Foreign Terms in His.

"There's a physician in my town," said a Cincinnati Drummer to a reporter for the New York Herald, "who has a son whom he is instructing in the rudiments of the profession, but just at present the young fellow is thinking of a great many things not down in the books. He has a lot of rapid young companions of the slangy sort, and he is master of them all. Indeed, his language is at times so utterly modern as to be almost unintelligible to the old-fashioned people who learned their language out of Webster's dictionary. The other day a patient was brought into the doctor's office and the son happened to be present.

"'The man is suffering from mania a potu,' said the doctor after a brief examination.

"'What was that?' inquired the son, with an evident effort to catch the meaning.

"'Mania a potu—delirium tremens,' repeated the doctor.

"'Oh,' commented the youngster, 'you mean the jim jams, the d. t.'s, the delirious trimmings, the gotemagins, do you? I suppose I'll get next to this medical racket before the finish, but until I do I wish you would talk plain English for my benefit, dad.'"

Volcanic Eruptions on the Moon.

Messrs. Loewy and Puiseux, of the Paris observatory, in issuing some additional plates of their photographic atlas of the moon, refer to the recent volcanic cataclysm at Martinique and St. Vincent, and say that study of the lunar surface leads them to think that eruptions, quite as intense as the greatest recorded on the earth have occurred on the moon, repeated at long intervals in the same places. But, "favored by a condition of calm and dryness, they have been more durable in their effects, and the more recent deposits superposed upon the earlier ones are distinguishable by their darker tone and less extended boundary."

Chinese Population.

It is stated that the Chinese population of to-day numbers about 426,000,000 of souls, including 8,500,000 in Manchuria, 2,580,000 in Mongolia, 6,430,000 in Tibet and 1,200 in Chinese Turkestan.

FILMY AND DIAPHANOUS.

Character of the New Summer Things. Elegant Lace Gowns.

More filmy and diaphanous than ever will be the gowns for the coming summer—that is, the present outlook would so indicate—but I have seen in the spring so many things planned for summer that never saw the light of day that I do not exactly like to profess to be a prophet of infallibility. We know that the stores are full of all sorts of delicate and dainty things such as properly belong to the long, warm summer days, and that all who have the means to do so are now buying the first fruits of the loom, to be made up in the privacy of their homes during the quiet of Lent. Nearly all the wash dresses and much of the handsome attire intended to be worn "for nice" in some fashionable summer resort will be made then.

Almost everything save the percales and chambreys have more or less openwork in the goods, and when there is a dress to be made where the material is solid so much inset work is put into the garment that it, too, becomes transparent to a greater or lesser degree.

Foremost and first come the all lace dress patterns. Cream and white lierre laces are made wide enough so that one width is long enough for a full skirt. Some of the designs have the skirt proper still further added to by an extra flounce some six inches deep, carrying the same figure as that in the skirt, and this is laid around the bottom of the skirt and just above a chiffon ruffle, with a close little ruche to set it out. The chiffon ruffle is set on a silk skirt which the lace skirt falls over. When the lace is dead white, it has a richer effect if the silk is cream or ivory. Not only is lierre offered, but cream and white French point d'esprit lace, and this is made up like any kind of thin goods, with tucks and overlaying of black or white lace. This makes up into extremely pretty gowns, but is not so dressy as the heavier renaissance and Irish point gowns. There is also a novel and very effective arrangement of fine batiste, with applications of lace of various kinds let in in places. Some have a combination of the batiste and net, and these have the merit of being entirely new.

Handsome gowns are produced of black silk mull with inset stripes of black lace insertion, and this is set lengthwise down the skirts to the deep graduated flounce. Where the flounce joins the rest is a band of black lace guipure, and lower down on each fan shaped fold is placed a rosette of black satin ribbon. This dress is one easy to copy and handsome when done. The waist is a blouse, with insets of insertion, and the sleeves are of the mull, with a deep fall of the mull and insertion set up and down like all the rest. The mull of which the skirt is made has the insertion laid in between, and three widths are put at the bottom of each line to form the flounce. The mull is cut in slashes wider at the bottom than the top, and they are upheld by the lace insertion flounce beneath. It makes a superb gown for a young matron.

A home gown made of white chiffon with applique and thin taffeta is shown. This dress, worn over a delicately colored lining, would be beautiful. Speaking of ribbon reminds me to say that ribbon is to be seen if not heard the coming season. In fact, it is already beginning to be noticed. This is as it should be, for aside from lace nothing is so delightful as ribbon. The ribbons of the season are in all the syndicate colors and are satin faced liberty, double faced satins, very rich, and plain taffetas. Black velvet ribbon as a finish is not quite so generally used, but it has by no means fallen into that awful abyss where all old fashions go and whose depths no one has sounded.

Silk mull is to be one of the dress materials for the coming season, not only for evening gowns, but also for almost any afternoon occasion. Silk mull is really strong and does not crush and will stand much wear. If the color is good and it is judiciously trimmed, one can keep such a dress all summer in fair condition. It does not crush or grow limp. By judicious trimming I mean that the trimming around the bottom should be something that can be removed for cleansing or else be black lace.

Next to silk mulls come the liberty silks and the satin twills. Both are printed in very pretty and even artistic designs. The colors are varied. The Lyons printed india silks are good value and are very useful. With a little lace and some ribbon one has a ladylike and serviceable gown. The most of these seem to be in navy and black grounds, with all sorts of designs.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

Mary Grady, The Fearless Woman Jailer

It used to be said that there were no women vikings, but a few months ago the skeleton of a woman buried with her horse and armor was found in Norway. The fact that the armor fitted the woman's skeleton "as though she had been melted and poured into it" proved beyond dispute that there were also women vikings, tremendous, fearless, full of fight.

The viking matter being settled for good and all, it remains for the United States today, twentieth century, to show a woman who is keeper and guard of a county pail—a jail, too, where characters as desperate as any in skins, both white and black, are prisoned. That woman is Mary Grady, the official jailer of Talladega county, Ala. Talk of woman's weakness and helplessness and dependence! Great Mary Grady is 6 feet 4 inches tall and large and strong in proportion. Maybe she is the reincarnation of that same tremendous viking lady who was buried with her horse and armor in Norway so many centuries ago. At any rate, Mary Grady is brave, powerful and real enough to be anything that mortal can be, past, present or future.

In Talladega county the heroine is called "Molly Grady." A correspondent of the Sunny South prints an interview with her that ought to be read aloud at city women's club meetings. The story would be so refreshing.

The interviewer found that Molly Grady had had charge of Talladega jail six years, and no prisoner escaped during her term. She is "deeply in earnest," and that accounts for much of her greatness. The way she got her regular appointment was through frustrating an attempted jail delivery. That is so good a story it must be told by itself. Molly's brother, wrongfully accused, it turned out, was a prisoner in Talladega jail. Molly went repeatedly to see him. Once the man who was jailer at the time had to go to the village on an errand while Molly was at the prison. She could not get to her hill home because of a storm that was raging. It was after dark that the jailer started to the village. Molly had told him she would keep guard during his absence. The faith he had in her is evident, for he left her with the keys. At any moment she might have opened her brother's cell and let him walk out.

Molly stood guard in the night at the entrance to the prison. She heard a grating sound and a crash at the rear of the building. She sprang around there and saw a man just about to descend to the ground from a window.

"Halt, or I'll shoot!" roared Molly Grady. The man sneaked back in again. She had no gun, but he did not know that. Molly's next move was to pass like a flash to her brother's cell and let him out, telling him to stand guard while she got help. The strange part of the story is that he did just what she told him. Through her wit, courage and loyalty the whole flock of jailbirds was prevented from escaping. After that it was only natural when a vacancy in the jailership occurred that Molly Grady should be invited to fill it. Talladega county ought to be very proud of its Molly Grady.

Not often prisoners test the mettle of the woman jailer. They know better. Once a big, ugly negro, with a face scarred by razor slashes, was imprisoned. She gave him an order one day. He gave her back talk and refused to obey. Instantly she unlocked the cell door and was on him like a lion. She gave him a thrashing that he will remember as long as he remembers anything earthly. From that day to this there is awe in his eye even when he looks at her, as though she were a being superhuman. She has a wonderful, compelling gray brown eye, with an eaglelike glance, as of one fearing nothing that lives.

She told the interviewer she applied the "water cure" to obstreperous prisoners, a modified water cure of her own devising. She says: "I just yank the sassy rascals out into the far end of the aisle and turn the hose on them. It does them good, soul and body."

And, after all, Molly Grady is human and woman. Her soul is as tender as it is large and fearless. She does all the cooking for the prisoners, and when they are ailing she pulls out her own purse and buys them delicacies that they need. Once she ran into a burning house and brought out a tiny baby when its own mother did not dare go after it. "Think of the little darling burning to death!" she said.

Glorious Molly Grady!

He had not relaxed his ferocious grip on Mr. Merton, and Rossiter saw that Miriam's father was in imminent danger of being dragged from the carriage. His whip had slipped to the ground, and the reins would have fallen beneath the heels of the horse had not Miss Densmore opportunely seized them. Rossiter eluded Simpson's clumsy attempt to grasp him, and sprang to Mr. Merton's aid, thus forcing "Whiskers" for an instant to release his hold. If he could keep them at bay until Parmelee arrived all would be well. He danced out of reach along the edge of the embankment after he had fetched "Whiskers" a stinging buffet, Simpson close after him.

"Parmelee! Parmelee!" he shouted.

There was a faint cry in answer. "Whiskers" renewed his attack upon Mr. Merton, but Simpson stopped short, and the man who was gripping the horse's head glanced about in apprehension.

"The game's up, 'Whiskers,'" said Simpson, "we'd better make tracks!"

"Not if hell splits!" cried the furious tramp, and he caught from the roadside a bludgeon which he had evidently dropped in order the better to use his hands, and menaced the now defenceless Mr. Merton.

"That bag o' money, or I'll brain ye!" he shouted.

Rossiter made a rush at Simpson. The man was powerful but awkward, while Rossiter had never lost the agility of his college days. There was no grappling, though the farm-hand made a clutch at his antagonist, a second and afterwards to reel blindly backward under a fierce blow that landed upon his jaw. Then Rossiter was past him. The bludgeon was poised in "Whiskers'" hand, and Mr. Merton was fumbling in his pocket, when Parmelee's shout from the crest of the dip caused the tramp to turn. He knew that their dastardly attempt had failed. Even at that instant his confederate released the struggling horse, and the frightened animal plunged forward. "Whiskers'" eyes were murderous. The young man's impetuous leap past Simpson to Mr. Merton's assistance had brought him and the enraged vagabond face to face. The long run and the violent efforts he had since made seemed suddenly to tell upon his strength. He felt his breath weaken. He was aware of the swinging bludgeon and of trying to dodge the blow, and then it was as though the earth had gaped and swallowed him.

He returned to a consciousness of existence through a variety of painful sensations, most of them in his head. He opened his eyes.

"Are they gone?" he asked weakly.

"Yes," someone said.

He knew the voice, and gained suddenly a clearer realization of his surroundings. Parmelee, Mr. Merton and Dick Whittlesey were standing about him, while over him Miss Densmore was bending with a look which he many, many times afterward questioned himself, wondering if he had seen it in a dream.

CHAPTER XII.

AN ARRIVAL.

In the light wagon, propped up between Jack Parmelee and Dick Whittlesey, Rossiter rode back to the Merton farm. At first everything was a daze to him, but soon the air revived him somewhat, and before the house was reached, save for a giddiness and dull throbbing in his head, he fancied he was quite himself. He was glad of the aid of Parmelee's stout arm, however, when he came to descend to the ground.

"I'll be all right after a bit," he said, as he steadied himself, "if you'll help me down to my cot."

Mr. Merton and Miss Densmore had hastened on in advance, and they, with Miss Merton and her mother, gathered about the injured man.

"You're to come right in here," Mrs. Merton declared, and, though Rossiter protested, he was led into the family living-room, where, stretched upon a couch, he was made as comfortable as might be with cool compresses that after a time allayed the painful feeling in his head. The blow from the bludgeon had been a glancing one, but above his ear a lump had formed that was exceedingly tender to the touch.

By and by Jack Parmelee looked in from an outer door, and, noting the improvement in Rossiter's appearance, exclaimed:

"That was a pretty ugly little clip you got! It keeled you half way down the embankment, an' if it had been a couple o' inches the other way your head an' a squashed puff-ball'd have passed for twins."

"How can you, Jack?" cried Miss Merton, who, with her mother, chanced to be in the room.

"What's the use o' gloomin' about it? He'll be fit enough in the mornin'. A trifle sore in the upper story mebbe, but that won't last long."

"You were just in time," said Rossiter, smiling. "I was about done for."

"You put up a great fight, Sylvia says, and Merton allows you've got the darndest grit he ever saw. They'd all skeedaddled by the time I got down into the dip. They must have thought I had an army behind me by the way they lit out. Well, Dick Whittlesey was close by, and he's a whole regiment in a scrap."

Rossiter had a brief nap late in the afternoon, and woke to find himself alone and much refreshed. The rattling of dishes indicated the nearness of the supper-hour, and outside there was a suggestion of approaching dusk. He rose to his feet without difficulty, and was walking towards the outer door, which opened upon the porch, with no definite intention, when Miss Densmore appeared from the adjoining room bearing a daintily arranged tray, upon which was a steaming cup of tea, some toast, and a few other tempting edibles.

She exclaimed in protest on seeing Rossiter.

"You're to sit down at once, sir!" she said. "We're not going to have you running off in that fashion."

He succumbed very willingly, and she bustled about making him comfortable.

"Miriam and my aunt are busy," she exclaimed, "so I said I'd look after you."

"You needn't have been to all this trouble," he answered. "I'm fully recovered now." But he was glad to eat with her sitting by chatting cheerily to him.

"I'm afraid," he remarked presently, "that you will find it difficult to keep to yourself your promise of the other night."

"What was that?"

"Don't you recall? You were going to hold in recollection from your hop-picking life only its pleasant phases. Aren't the disagreeables, so to speak, likely far to outweigh the happy experiences?"

"Oh, no!" she replied, with a little shake of her head. "It's like a play. Unless the end is tragic, however much the actors pass through, the effect is not darksome, quite the contrary. The bright scenes stand out and the gloomy ones recede."

"The end!" thought Rossiter. Yes, the end of this small episode in life's drama was certainly near at hand. It was delicate ground these two were treading upon—the girl more and more conscious of something in her heart which she would not admit to herself was there, fearful of all it might involve, her sensitive nature shrinking from the speech of family, of friends, and of the world; the man now wholly mastered by the love he had so sternly struggled against, realizing its apparent folly and hopelessness, and yet grasping at straws, and buoyed up by the frailer fabric of dreams.

"Though you would not let me try to tell you, Mr. Rossiter," Miss Densmore broke out suddenly, "of my gratitude to you for all you did for me, I must, I will speak of your nobleness, your generosity, your bravery in coming to uncle's aid. Why, if it hadn't been for you——"

Her words were as spark to powder. All the pent-up emotion within him rushed to his lips. She should know, whatever might be the consequences, that it was her presence with Mr. Merton that had moved him to strive so mightily, that there was nothing he would not do, aye, to risking life and limb a thousand times to win her favor. Whatever his past might have been, and she should read the open page of it without reserve, the future, and she might put him to the proof, should be like the life-moulding of another man, if he might but wear her gage.

"Do you think, Miss Densmore," he began, and there was that in his voice and in his eyes that caused her to turn away, "do you think I would have gone so eagerly to your uncle's aid——"

His impassioned words were cut short by Miss Merton's entrance.

"How cosey you are!" she cried, seating herself. "And is the hero quite recovered?"

Do You Wish To Borrow Money?

In order to accommodate all classes of borrowers (those who cannot borrow at a bank, as well as those who can), the Mutual Loan and Investment Company, of 118 Market street, Newark, N. J., has a department for handling quickly and confidentially loans ranging from $10 to $300 on furniture, pianos, storage receipts, etc.

The security is not removed from your possession or in any way disturbed. The honest, careful and conservative borrower will try and decide two points before borrowing. First, where he can get the best terms. Second, where he can get fair and square treatment.

This company is in a position to give you by far the most satisfactory terms ever offered by any concern or individual negotiating this class of loans.

With this company you are assured of getting the lowest rates, easiest payments and longest time for repayment. The whole transaction from the time the application is made until loan is paid is entirely confidential. We give you another advantage in case you take the loan out for six months or a year, and wish to settle the same before the time expires: we charge you only for the time you have had the money. We also take up loans from other companies and advance more money.

Kindly call and let us explain our simple and up-to-date methods. If not entirely convenient for you to call, please write and our representative will call and give you any desired information. Remember it costs nothing to make application. Loans promptly made in Elizabeth, Plainfield, Westfield, Roselle, Rahway, Perth Amboy and all suburban towns.

BOND IN A PICTURE.

Valuable Paper Found by German Woman in an Old Daguerreotype Frame.

The treasury department lately received from United States Consul General Guenther, at Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, a United States bond for $500, which he forwarded for redemption for the benefit of Mrs. Martha Schnell, an old woman living at Bornheim, reports the Washington Star.

He writes that Mrs. Schnell has a fad for collecting daguerreotypes, and recently in cleaning one she had had about ten years, she accidentally broke the glass covering the portrait, disclosing the bond, which had been neatly folded and placed in its hiding place many years before.

Mrs. Schnell was about to throw it away, but was persuaded to take it to the United States consul to ascertain if it had any value.

The portrait is faded beyond possible recognition, but the old case shows that it was made in Worcester, Mass.

The bond is of the issue of July 1, 1867, series C, and has 28 coupons attached, showing that the last one was removed for interest due January 1, 1873. Interest on the bond, however, ceased on April 6, 1879.

United States Treasurer Roberts forwarded to Mr. Guenther for Mrs. Schnell a government warrant for $687.81, covering the principal and interest to 1879.—Washington Post.

THE LOST SIXTEENTH.

That Much of a Second Missing and Scientists Cannot Tell Where It Has Gone.

If one grain of sand on the shore of the ocean were lost, and scientists were to spend years in trying to find it, they would be attempting a task resembling that to which leading astronomers of England and France are now devoting themselves, says the Toronto (Ont.) Mail and Empire. One-sixteenth of a second is missing, and no one can tell where it has gone. Between the sun's time, as recorded at Greenwich, and as understood at Paris, there is that brief and seemingly unimportant discrepancy. No expense is being spared to trace the missing fraction. A special building has been erected at Paris, costly instruments installed, a corps of mathematicians engaged, and a process that may take years to complete has been commenced. The inaccuracy is more important than will appear to the lay mind. Longitude is calculated on the basis of Greenwich time. It determines the boundaries of many countries. A slight variation of time may change the nationality of thousands of people. The pursuit of the missing fraction of a second is therefore of world-wide importance. We shall all be much relieved when it has been found, for then not a grain of the sands of time will be missing.

GRAY ANTS OF SIAM.

Small Insects That Travel in Troops and Seem to Have a Larger Leader.

Charles Meissen, French explorer, in traveling through Siam, observed a species of small gray ants which were new to him, says the Kobe (Japan) Herald. These ants were much engaged in traveling. They lived in damp places and went in troops. To his surprise he noticed among them from time to time an occasional ant which was much larger than the others and moved at a much swifter pace, and each of these larger ants, M. Meissen saw, always carried one of the gray ants on its back. While the main body of gray ants were always on foot they were accompanied by at least one of their own sort mounted on one of these larger ants. It mounted and detached itself now and then from the line, rode rapidly to the head, came swiftly back to the rear, and seemed to be the commander of the expedition.

The explorer was satisfied that this species of ant employs a larger ant—possibly a drone of the same species—just as we employ horses to ride upon, though scarcely more than one ant in each colony seems to be provided with a mount.

THIEVES IN A WHIP DUEL.

Agree to Lash Each Other Rather Than Go to Jail for Their Theft.

In Anderson county, S. C., two negroes were recently caught in the act of robbing a farmer, and, rather than go to jail, they offered to accept any punishment the farmer might inflict. The farmer decided that they should whip each other. The negroes were taken into a field and stripped to the waist. There is no whipping-post law in South Carolina, but this did not interfere with the plans for the lashing. Each was given a buggy trace, and they fought each other until the blood began to flow.

A big crowd gathered to watch the duel of whipping. A neighbor of the man who had been robbed acted as referee, and made the negroes break clean when they clinched.

Under the rules the contest had to continue until one negro had given the other 100 lashes. Foul tips were not counted. Finally, after a desperate fight, the referee lifted his hand as a signal to stop. The man who suggested the whipping had given his enemy 100 lashes. He got 75. They were in bad shape when the fight ceased, and went to bed.

BASKET BALL.

The Y. M. C. A. basket ball team played a game last evening with the Leal School team and won by a score of 15 to 12. The game was roughly played and was a great surprise to both teams. Leal's held the Y. M. C. A. boys down in the first half by a score of 10 to 4. The Y. M. C. A's made a goal by a throw from the field. A goal was also made on a foul making the Y. M. C. A. score 15 to the Leal's 12. The lineups:

ON THE DIAMOND.

Physical Director G. E. A. Heywood, of the Y. M. C. A., has not yet come to a decision regarding the formation of a baseball team to represent the association this season. Some definite action will be taken within a short time.

The 1903 baseball management of the Hibbard-Rodman-Ely Safe Works has secured George Keene and Thomas O'Keefe for the season's team. Both were members of the St. Mary team last season and are rated among the best all-round men in the city.

NO BASEBALL.

I. C. T. Club Decides Not to Have a Nine This Season.

The I. C. T. Club will not enter the baseball field this spring. This was decided at a meeting held last night when it was also decided to remain in the present quarters for the present. Two new pool tables will be bought. The following is the committee which will arrange another dance sometime next month: Charles Overbaugh, Leonce Texier, William Waters, Geo. Apg r and Charles Heartle.

Fourth Death in Terry Family.

Winfield Scott Terry, the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Terry, of Alton, died last night after several weeks' illness from pneumonia. His was the fourth death to occur in the family within a year. The funeral will be held from the parents' residence Monday afternoon at 2:30.

Criterion Club Dance.

The Criterion Club will hold its dance at the Casino Thursday evening, March 5.

Mr. and Mrs. John Chamberlain, of Plainfield, have been visiting friends at High Bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Whiton, of Central avenue, sailed today for Porto Rico, where they will remain for several weeks.

John Lloyd, of North avenue, has returned after a two weeks' business trip through New England and in New York State.

Miss Carrie Corson, of Mariners' Harbor, N. Y., has returned home after a delightful visit with Miss Katie Bodine, of Jackson avenue.

Harry DeMeza, of Woodbull & Martin's store, who has been detained at home by illness, improves slowly. Dr. Zeglio is the attending physician.

W. C. Smith, of Watchung avenue, who recently dislocated his shoulder and who has been suffering much pain from the injury, is somewhat improved.

Letter-Carriers C. B. Stephens and Clarkson and Mail Clerk A. E. LaPorte, of the local postoffice, are still on the sick list. Carrier Glaentzer, who has been ill, returned to work today.

Y. M. C. A. OFFICERS.

Will Hold a Conference at Passaic Monday to Discuss Work.

A meeting of the employed officers of the Y. M. C. A.'s, of this State, will be held at Passaic, Monday, when Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood will attend. The sessions will begin at 10 o'clock when subjects of interest to all employes of the different branches of association work will be discussed.

At the close of the conference, the physical directors of the various associations will meet when they will organize for the purpose of holding an inter-association athletic meet some time during the spring. This has been tried once before when it proved to be a partial success, but this time it is believed that with an organization it will be even more successful. Newark, Paterson and Trenton are debarerd from taking part in the meet as they are too large for the smaller associations.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—The Democratic Club will meet Monday evening at headquarters on East Second street, and all members are requested to be present.

Setting a Prisoner Free.

A man with rheumatism is a prisoner. His fetters are none the less galling because they are invisible. To him Perry Davis' Painkiller comes as a liberator. Rubbed well into the swollen, stiffened joints it not merely drives away the pain, it makes the muscles pliable so that the prisoner becomes a free man. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis. 25 and 50 cts.

How They Cook Venison in Maine.

Here is the most savory way to prepare venison according to Game Warden Walter I. Neal. He says: "The man who is going into the woods to shoot a deer and to cook and eat venison of his own killing should leave all his broiling and grilling utensils behind. There is only one way to cook venison in the woods or anywhere else. Heat a thick frying pan or an old style spider upon the coals until it is almost red. Cut off thick slices of the meat and throw them in the pan and keep them right up against the dry, hot surface until they are scorched on both sides. Then turn them out on a platter, cut the meat full of deep gashes, clear down through the crust and into or beyond the center, and fill the openings with butter, piling it on until the platter swims in gravy. After this add pepper and salt to suit the taste, and eat it before it is cold. Cooked and served in this manner venison is the best meat that grows, and the man who does not like it either has trouble with his stomach or his conscience.—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

Possible Only in England.

A village clergyman was examining his Sunday school children in Scripture, and the text, "The eagle fluttereth over her young," came up for elucidation. "Have any of you seen an eagle?" asked the vicar.

There was a silence for a while, until one little mite ventured to put up her hand.

"And where did you see an eagle?"

"Blackpool," replied the child.

"That's right," acknowledged the vicar, thinking, perhaps, that at Blackpool—where he had never been—there was a zoological garden. "How did you know it was an eagle?"

No answer.

"Did any one tell you that it was an eagle?"

Again a negative shake.

"Come, how did you know?"

"Please, sir, there was a lot of shegulls, so I thought there must be a hegull, too."—Stray Stories.

ACCURACY WON FOR REFORM CLUB FIVE

League Basket Ball Game Played at I. C. T. Club Rooms Last Evening.

THE SCORE WAS 20 TO 16

THE FIRST HALF WAS EASY FOR THE REFORM CLUB.

Splendid Brace by Home Team in Second Half Was Not Quite Quick Enough to Save the Game—Accurate Play by Reformers.

PLAINFIELD AMATEUR BASKET BALL LEAGUE.

	Won.	Lost.	Ave.
Hope Y. M. A.	2	0	1.000
Y. M. C. A.	2	0	1.000
Reform Club	1	2	.333
I. C. T. Club	0	3	.000

It was accuracy in goal throwing that won the day for the Reform Club in its game with the I. C. T. Club in the Plainfield Amateur Basket Ball League, played in the I. C. T. Club rooms last evening. It was the first meeting of those two clubs in the league series and, as everybody expected, it was a close one. The final score was 20 to 16 in favor of the Reform Club. Word was received at the last moment that the out-of-town officials could not be present and members of the Hope Y. M. A. officiated.

Both teams opened the game at a brisk pace. The I. C. T. five was a trifle more on the defensive but its forwards had a number of tries at goal. Even with a clear field they were unable to land the basket while one try generally sufficed for the Reformers. As a result, the visitors began to pile up a score with ease. Toward the close of the half, Blimm landed one from the field for I. C. T. but that was the only score from the field for the home team. Blimm also threw three out of four on fouls. The half ended with the score 11 to 5 in Reform's favor.

Several changes were made in the I. C. T. team and the second half developed a more even contest. I. C. T.'s defence improved and Reynolds and Sherwin made the basket when the proper opportunity came. The Reform Club still scored on accurate throwing. The star play of the half was a long throw on a run by Townley which scored. Taylor also made a sensational goal from the middle of the field. Fouls proved expensive luxuries for the visitors and Blimm again threw three out of four. During the second half, the home team scored 11 to the visitors' 9 but the big lead of the first half decided the match for the Reform Club by four points.

The teams lined up as follows:

I. C. T. Club.		Reform Club.
Reynolds	rf	O'Loughlin
Blimm, Sherwin	lf	Taylor
Sherwin, McNaughton	c	Higgins
McNaughton, Blimm	rg	Townley
Overbaugh, Heardle	lg	Scott

Score—Reform Club, 20; I. C. T. Club, 16. Goals from the field—O'Loughlin (2), Taylor (5), Townley (2), Reynolds (3), Blimm, Sherwin. Goals on fouls — O'Loughlin (2), Blimm (6). Fouls—Reform Club, 8; I. C. T. Club, 4. Referee—Charles B. Morse, of Hope Y. M. A. Umpires—George McCombe, of Hope Y. M. A., and John H. Cose, of Hope Y. M. A. Time-keepers—J. Fred Wharton, of Hope Y. M. A., and Harry Montross, of Reform Club. Scorers—Edward P. T. Smith, of Reform Club, and V. W. Nash, Jr., of I. C. T. Club.

ODD FELLOWS TO MEET.

Grand Master Tomson Issues a Call for Special Session of Grand Lodge.

A call for a special session of the Grand Lodge of New Jersey, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, has been issued by Chester Tomson, the Grand Master. The session will be held at Newark on the afternoon of Friday, March 6. An adjourned session will be held in the evening for the purpose of giving instructions in the unwritten work of the fraternity and to confer the Grand Lodge degree on all eligible past grands who apply. The night session will convene at 8 o'clock.

Members of the body and past grands only will be admitted. From the interest manifested, it is said, the session promises to be the largest special meeting ever held. These special sessions afford to past grands a means of receiving the Grand Lodge degree without incurring the expense of attending the annual session held in Trenton. During the year several of these sessions are held in various sections of the State.
